BRITISH SWEEP GERMANS BACK ON 11 MILE LINE

Crushing Blow Dealt on Somme—Teuton Front Riddled with Shells.

FRENCH HELP ALLY.

EUROPEAN WAR SUMMARY

British sweep Germans back on eleven mile line along Somme as French peril them to south.

Russians break through Teuton lines before Kovel; Slavs advance in northern Carpathians, but are driven back further south.

Allied offensive in the Balkans begins. Five towns occupied by Bulgarians and Germans captured.

Austrians report Italian efforts to advance southeast of Goritz are failures. All attacks break down.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, Aug. 20, 3 a. m.—British troops drove forward in new gains today at many points along the eleven mile front north of the Somme, in which striking advances were registered in last night's fighting.

Gen. Haig reported to the war office at 11:45 last night the capture of a line held by the Germans north of Thiepval, the capture of the northern slope of a high strategic position north of Pozieres, and the taking of the western edge of Foureaux wood, also known as the "high wood," southeast of Martinpuich.

HALF WAY TO GINCHY.

Other British detachments advanced [illegible] yards east of Pozieres, while on the right the British line was advanced half way to Ginchy village.

Sixteen German officers and 780 men were captured in these operations.

The great battle, renewed with the greatest violence on Thursday, raged with unceasing fury today, according to various reports from the front. In fighting that lasted until daybreak yesterday the British beat down German counter attacks in which the Teutons vainly tried to reconquer lost ground between Maurepas and Guillemont and at other points where the British scored striking successes in Friday night's operations.

FIGHT NORTH OF THIEPVAL.

Having stifled these counter blows, Gen. Haig resumed the attack. For the first time in several weeks the fighting was extended on the British left until it reached north of the village of Thiepval. The British advance in that sector deepened the pocket in which the Germans have been placed by steady British gains, particularly southeast of Thiepval.

As a result of this terrific fighting on the part of the British the kaiser's hold on five French villages is threatened.

NEWS ELECTRIFIES LONDON.

News of the British successes on the Somme front has electrified London. The official reports from Gen. Haig yesterday were terse and carried no idea of the importance of the fighting, though they recorded gains in the direction of Guillemont and Ginchy.

But when tonight's reports of the great British advance arrived the public for the first time in many days showed great enthusiasm.

When yelling newsboys greeted early diners with the startling news of a further advance there was a rush for papers, and the dispatches and official reports, figuratively, were devoured.

PREPARES FOR DRIVE.

In preparation for the advance on Friday, according to dispatches from the front, the whole German line from Ovillers to the Somme was bathed in a steady nine hour downpour of explosive shells and shrapnel. The bombardment attained its greatest violence in the region of Foureaux wood, where the largest number of guns are said to be concentrated.

The advance began on the British left with Australians and units of the

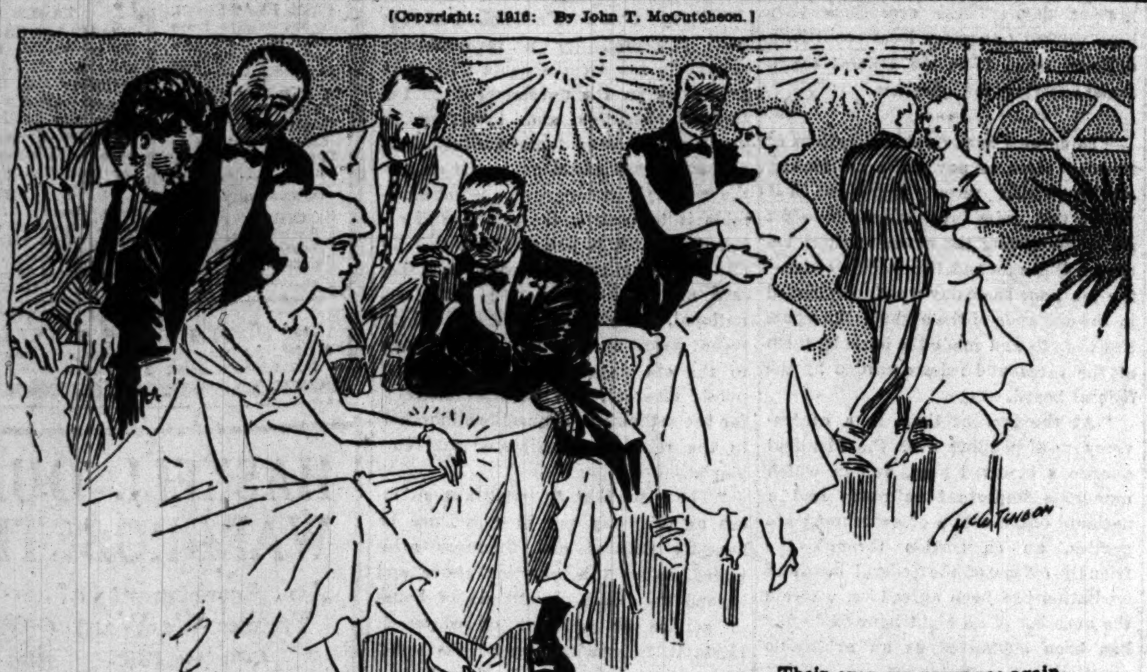
THE MUNITION MAKER'S DAUGHTER

[Copyright: 1916: By John T. McCutcheon.]



See, there she sits, light heartedly,
Bedecked to finger tips;
Her cheeks are flushed from dancing—
A smile is on her lips.

Her necklace cost a thousand eyes,
Her rings a hundred lives;
Her pendant cost a million tears,
To weeping soldiers' wives.

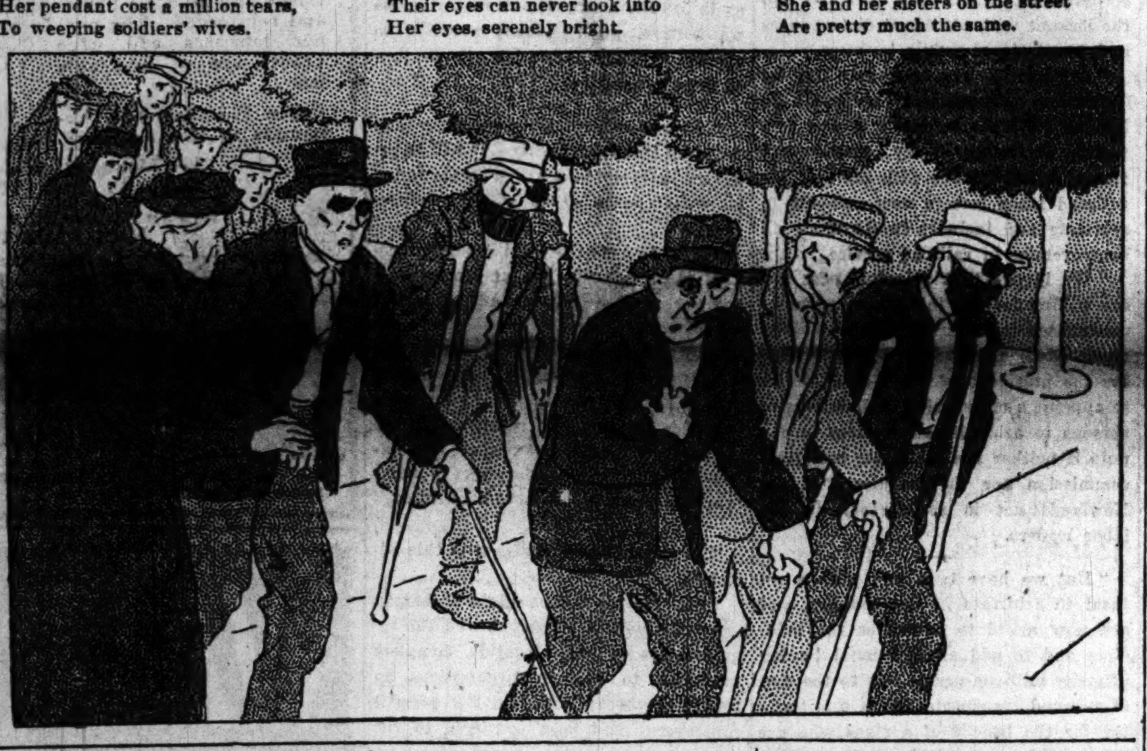
Her slippers cost the profit from
A high explosive shell;
Her gown was bought and paid for
In the agonies of hell.

That she might shine, a thousand blind
Will grope in endless night;
Their eyes can never look into
Her eyes, serenely bright.

Their eyes can never see again
The glory of the day,
For they must walk in somber paths
That her own path be gay.

She knows from where her jewels came;
She knows the tragic cost:
She knows that for each ornament
A dozen lives were lost.

And yet she sits, light heartedly,
Unmindful of her shame—
She and her sisters on the street
Are pretty much the same.



MOB HANGS FIVE NEGROES AFTER CONSTABLE'S MURDER

Three Men and Two Women Charged with Aiding Slayer Dragged from Newberry, Fla., Jail.

Gainesville, Fla., Aug. 19.—Five Negroes, three men and two women, were taken from the jail at Newberry, Fla., early today and hanged by a mob, and another Negro was shot and killed by deputy sheriffs near Jonesville, Fla., as the result of the killing yesterday of Constable S. G. Wynne and the shooting of Dr. L. G. Harris by Boisey Long, a negro. The lynched Negroes were accused of aiding Long to escape.

Posses of several hundred men tonight were searching the woods about Newberry, eighteen miles from here, for trace of Long. Further trouble was feared.

Dispatches from Newberry said that the mob which lynched the five Negroes was composed of about 200 men and worked quietly and rapidly. After gaining entrance to the jail they took the victims about a mile from town and hanged all on one oak tree.

Texas Mob Hangs Negro.

Rice, Tex., Aug. 19.—Ed Lang, a Negro, was hanged to a telephone pole near here today by an armed mob for an attack on a young white girl.

TRAFFIC POLICEMAN GOES ON RAMPAGE; LOSES STAR.

E. L. Paul Charged with Shooting Off Man's Fingers After Lurching from West Side Saloon.

Edward L. Paul, traffic policeman, who once directed traffic at State and Adams, was stripped of his star and sent to a cell last night.

At 7:25 p. m. Angelo Christopher, 2153 Emerson avenue, was passing a saloon at Hoyne and Huron when Paul suddenly lurched from the door and without warning, it is claimed, pulled out a revolver and began shooting. Two of Christopher's fingers were shot off and he was taken to a hospital.

Paul was in civilian clothes. His connection with the police department was discovered only after he had been arrested and taken to the station. He is on furlough. He probably will have to stand trial on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon.

TWO HURT WHEN CARS OF ELECTRIC TRAIN TELESCOPE.

Motorman Throws on Brakes So Quickly One Coach Plows Through Another in Glencoe Accident.

A returning Ravinia park train on the Chicago and Milwaukee electric telescoped in an odd accident last night and one woman suffered the loss of both feet and another is dying as a result. A number of passengers were injured.

The accident occurred at Park avenue at the south end of the Northwestern railway station in Glencoe.

A Milwaukee electric car was standing in such a position as to be invisible to the motorman of the approaching Ravinia park train. There were three cars in the latter train.

As the motorman of the Ravinia Park train saw the danger of a collision he threw on his air brakes with full force. The suddenness of the air brakes caused the cars of his train to telescope.

RICH REAL ESTATE DEALER HELD ON SWINDLING CHARGE

James B. Streeter, said to be a wealthy real estate dealer of Jacksonville, Fla., was taken into custody last night in the Great Northern hotel on dispatches from Marion, Ia., stating he is wanted there for swindling a man named Gorman out of $20,000 in a real estate deal.

The advices also say that his alleged swindles by similar methods may reach $100,000.

RIOT AT 2 BANKS FOR $200,000 AS OWNER SKIPS

West Side Mobs at Silver's Concerns Awed by the Police.

CONFESSES IN LETTER.

Max Silver, another "private banker," skipped out yesterday leaving a cordon of police to keep some 15,000 Russian and Jewish depositors from tearing down his banking houses in revenge for $200,000 of their money, probably lost.

Last night the vicinity of 848 Maxwell street, the principal banking house of Adolph Silver & Co., was a scene of wild hubbub. Mounted police rode the streets to pacify the throngs of angry depositors.

CONFESSES HIS DEFALCATION.

Before his departure Max Silver, brother of Adolph Silver, wrote a letter to his father in which he confessed the defalcation. He said he was "unable to stand it any longer." The letter was turned over to attorneys and then to the police.

Adolph Silver, head of the chain of private banks, who lives in a smart dwelling at 910 Castlewood terrace, is in California.

Joseph Silver, the aged father of the brothers, and the women and children of the family have taken refuge outside of Chicago for protection because of threats of violence.

OPERATE THREE CONCERNS.

The Silvers maintained three institutions:

ADOLPH SILVER BANK, the parent institution, at 848 Maxwell state.

ADOLPH SILVER BANK, a branch, at 1208 South Jefferson street.

ADOLPH SILVER & CO., steamship ticket brokers, 744 West Twelfth street.

When the banks failed to open for business at 5 o'clock last evening small knots of depositors gathered. Those who had gone to the Twelfth street and the Jefferson street concerns turned and went to the Maxwell street address. There they met with the same lock doors.

CROWD BEGINS TO FORM.

At 6 o'clock a crowd of several hundred had gathered. A cordon of police guarded the doors of each bank. At 8 o'clock the streets were blocked. The news spread rapidly and the agitated conversation of the Russians, who form the majority of the creditors of the banks, grew louder.

Two Russian detectives overheard threats by several men who were for breaking in the doors and distributing the deposits. A riot call was sent to the Maxwell street police station and to headquarters, and within a short time the detectives and patrolmen were reinforced by twenty-five mounted policemen, who cleared the streets within a radius of two blocks of the bank in every direction.

KNOWN AS "GLADHANDER."

Adolph Silver was known as a "gladhander." So was his brother, Max, whom he trained in the business of private banking. They operated their banks like a café. They told jokes and were extremely gracious in the art of handshaking. They gained a powerful foothold in the Russian colony.

Adolph formerly lived in a small Twelfth street flat. After one or two removals he became a fixture in the exclusive Sheridan road district. He built a house at 910 Castlewood terrace, within a stone's throw of the Cuneo mansion, and kept himself apart from the Maxwell street horde. Adolph is 32 years old. Max is 28. Both rose from small positions in the trade of the neighborhood in which the banks are situated.

ADOLPH WIRES HE'LL RETURN.

There is a question whether Adolph still is connected with the concern. News of his brother's defalcation was telegraphed to him in California and he replied that he would return and straighten out matters. Late last night it was said he was seventy-five miles from San Francisco and in an almost inaccessible place.

The news of the $200,000 defalcation came with the letter written by Max Silver when he determined to flee with

Ripley Defiant as He Starts to Meet President

Rail Chief Calls Wilson Stand Unfair and Will Not Accept It.

HOPES MEN STRIKE

E. P. Ripley, president of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe railroad, will depart today for Washington in response to President Wilson's last call to the railroad presidents of the country for a conference in a last ditch effort to prevent a nationwide strike of railroad employés.

"President Wilson's so-called plan for adjustment of the questions at stake," said Mr. Ripley last night, "is no more nor less than an invitation to the railroads to surrender."

Will Tell Mr. Wilson.

"What will you tell President Wilson?"

"Exactly what I am saying now."

"Then you do not think there is any chance of President Wilson's finally adjusting matters between the men and the railroads?"

"I don't think so. But you never can tell. When we are stood up in a corner and lectured and told what we ought to do and what will happen to the nation if we don't do it, there is no forecasting the result.

"This is a fight in which the entire country should stand behind the railroads. If a comparatively small number of men can take the bit in their teeth and demand something and tie up the commerce of the country if they don't get it, it can be done in any other line of business. The men started out to enforce their demands without arbitration. We offered to arbitrate in any way. They would not do it. President Wilson has lined up with the men."

Calls Wilson Stand Unfair.

"You think his attitude unfair?"

"Yes. The present schedule calls for the 100 miles or less a day or ten hours or less a day. The men demand 100 miles or less a day and eight hours or less a day. Their demand means a 25 per cent advance in pay."

"How do you figure that?"

"The men run, say, five hours a day. Few work ten hours. Half of them don't work four. They want eight hours' pay, but they don't give us eight hours' service. If they run 100 miles in four hours and then work fifteen minutes overtime, they demand pay for an extra day. They want two days' pay for the four hours and fifteen minutes." The schedule they demand would increase their hourly pay without increasing their hours of work."

"Is there any plan by which peace can be insured?"

"I know of none just now."

Hopes Men Will Strike.

"But you have hopes?"

"Yes, I have hopes. I hope the men will strike."

"What?"

"Exactly that. I hope they strike."

"Why?"

"If a small number of men can block the country's business, the country ought to know it. The sooner the better. That condition ought to be defeated at once and decisively."

"There is no doubt in your mind that the strike would tie up the country's business?"

"It would cripple it for a time. It would cause very serious inconvenience. But the strike could be defeated. We can run our trains."

"How?"

"We can run our trains all right."

"Can the other roads run their trains?"

"Yes."

"Then you have no fear of a strike if it comes?"

"None. I would welcome it. It would be broken within thirty days."

STATUS OF ISSUES IN RAIL CRISIS

THE PRESIDENT.

President Wilson will wait until Tuesday, if necessary, for the final reply of the railroads. He has summoned to Washington all rail heads not already there.

In his statement he says the eight hour day has the sanction of society. He suggests a federal inquiry on other points will bring adjustments (of rates, etc.) that will do justice to all interests.

It is reported that Mr. Wilson is prepared, in an extremity, to ask congress to authorize him to take over the roads and operate them temporarily. It is surmised this may be used as a club to drive the railroads to surrender.

THE RAILROADS.

The railway presidents made a statement pleading for arbitration—for "the common right of every citizen to have his day in court."

They say that if they are compelled to accept the president's dictum the effect will be "by the force of this high precedent to place in peril all that has been accomplished in the peaceful adjustment of labor controversies by methods of arbitration."

They make the point that it is not an eight hour day, but an eight hour basis for securing a higher wage that is in issue. Moreover, they assert that the nature of train service makes it impracticable to apply the eight hour day to it as it is applied in other industries.

THE BROTHERHOODS.

Employes say they have surrendered a large portion of their demands and signified their willingness to accept the president's suggestions. They will take no further action until they hear from the president.

President's Aid Opposes Use of Injunction Law

Bridgeport, Conn., Aug. 19.—Secretary William B. Wilson of the federal department of labor tonight announced his opposition to the use of injunction as a weapon of the employers in "strike conspiracy" cases. He also predicted a national eight hour day for all crafts and urged continuous fighting for this issue.

Secretary Wilson was speaking at the machinists' outing here.

Labor Fights Conspiracy Laws.

In discussing the recent action whereby Bridgeport foundry owners, alleging conspiracy, otbained an injunction against the moulders' union forbidding picketing, he declared:

"Organized labor will not stand for the restoration of the conspiracy laws in the United States. For 600 years labor has fought conspiracy laws. In 1875, in Pennsylvania, the last conspiracy law was put out of business.

Injunctions Owners' Weapons.

"Employers began to look around for something to take its place. An injunction was given in Massachusetts because workingmen maintained the right to strike when shorter hours and better wages were not granted. Injunctions have been granted since.

"With all due respect to the courts, I say organized labor will not stand for this."

CHICAGO PASTOR, ONCE BAR OWNER, SELLS HIS HOTEL.

The Rev. W. M. Saunders Wipes Out Last Connection with "Demon Rum" He Formerly Sold.

Connellsville, Pa., Aug. 19.—[Special.]—The Rev. W. M. Saunders, formerly a saloonkeeper at Smithton, now pastor of a Presbyterian church in Chicago, today severed his last connection, slight though it was, with the liquor business. The clergyman came here yesterday from Chicago to dispose of the hotel property which he has owned for several years and where he formerly dispensed liquor.

Saunders, one of the best known bonifaces in Fayette county a few years ago decided that his place was in the ministry. At that time his hotel was doing a flourishing business, but he closed his bar and entered McCormick Theological seminary, Chicago, where he began to study for the ministry. Accompanying the Rev. Mr. Saunders is his former teacher in the seminary, Dr. George L. Robbins.

DRASTIC STEP IF RAIL HEADS ARE OBDURATE

Executive May Take Action to Force Eight Hour Concession to Unions.

OTHER ISSUES NEXT.

Public statements by the president and the railway companies are printed in full on page 2.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 19.—[Special.]—Seizure of the railroads by the government and their operation by the government, temporarily at least, may be invoked by President Wilson unless a settlement of the railway wage controversy is reached by next Tuesday.

President Wilson is prepared to take the most drastic and daring action in the history of the republic, if necessary, to avert a general railroad strike and compel the carriers to yield to the terms of settlement of the wage dispute proposed by the chief executive, with the approval of the unions.

At the same time, there is an underlying feeling that the railroads in the end will submit to the demands of the president, however unfair they may regard them.

Following the refusal of the railway presidents today to accept the White House eight hour day plan, the issuance by Mr. Wilson of a statement tantamount to an appeal for public approval of his plan and the counter move of the employers in a public plea for arbitration, the character of the administration's scheme to whip the carriers into line became known.

In the event of a failure of the present negotiations the president, in order to avert a strike, plans to obtain legislation authorizing the federal government to take over all the railroads threatened with a tieup and operate them until such time as their owners consent to put into effect the eight hour day with pro rata pay for overtime and agree to a commission investigation of the time and a half overtime demand.

MAY COMMANDEER WORKERS.

The president proposes that if such drastic action becomes necessary, in his estimation, the federal government, in order to operate the railroads, shall be empowered to commandeer the services not only of all wage earning employes but of all railroad officials from the presidents of the roads down. There is a disposition to regard these threats as a bluff, but they may be effective, just the same.

Mr. Wilson's advisers believe the program could be carried through constitutionally, if it becomes necessary, as a provision for public welfare.

In this connection it is recalled that at the time he invited the conferees to Washington, Mr. Wilson said that a strike, especially at this time, "might be disastrous." Many thought he had reference to the demands put upon the transportation companies by the presence of the army on the Mexican border.

SEIZURE BILL BRIEF.

Formulation of the executive program of last resort has progressed so far that a bill has been drafted by Attorney General Gregory granting authority to the president to take charge of the 225 railroads threatened with a strike.

The Gregory bill is extremely brief. It merely provides that for the purpose of conserving the welfare of the nation the president is authorized to assume control and supervision of all the railroads which are parties to the controversy and to adopt such measures as he deems necessary to maintain the transportation systems in uninterrupted operation.

It gives the president ample authority to commandeer the services of all officials and employés of the railroads and provides for the punishment of such officials or employés as may refuse to render service or disobey the instructions of the president.

Upon taking charge of the railroads the president would put into effect at once the eight hour day with pro rata pay for overtime.

The bill provides that when in the judgment of the president the danger of an interruption of transportation is removed he shall relinquish control and supervision of the railroads and turn them back to their owners and managers.

This means that as each road consented to substitute the eight for the ten hour day in existing working agreements and agreed to the adjudication of the overtime pay the president would withdraw government control.

Although the utmost precautions have been taken to prevent the president's plan of drastic action from becoming public, it was learned today that he has selected the Democratic leaders who will introduce the bill in both houses of congress simultaneously.

WILL ADDRESS CONGRESS.

In the event of such action being taken the president intends to appear before congress, submit his views of the controversy and his plan of settlement, and urge the lawmaking branch to act favorably upon the measure without delay.

It transpired that the president would have had the bill introduced in congress today had the railroad officials in their second conference with him returned a flat rejection of his proposed terms of settlement.

Inasmuch as the officials did not definitely reject the compromise and merely presented an appeal for arbitration and a plea to the president not to invoke his vast power against them both Mr. Wilson and the union leaders deemed it wise to postpone any action on last resort.

UNIONS TO STAND PAT.

Garretson and the three other brotherhood heads sent word to the president that they will agree to no material modification of the settlement plan formulated by Mr. Wilson and that they will order the strike if the railroad officials refuse to agree to it.

In view of the pacific and appealing attitude of the railroad presidents today, however, the brotherhood leaders said they would be willing to give the employers until next Tuesday to return a definite reply and they counseled Mr. Wilson not to lay the measure of seizure of the roads before congress until after that day.

The brotherhood leaders have informed the president that they will call the strike the moment he informs them that he has failed to obtain an agreement with the carriers and that the operation of trains will cease at a specified time.

They have confided to the executive the period that will elapse between the calling of the strike and the suspension of work. It is a short period, but the president believes that within this period congress would pass his bill enabling him to take possession of the roads and avert the strike.

Meets Unions' Approval.

The president's bill has been submitted to the union leaders and meets with their approval. They believe, that rather than take this dose of government ownership the railroads would speedily meet the union terms.

They are confident, as is the administration, that the mere introduction of the bill would suffice to bring the railway officials into line for the president's settlement plan.

So far as can be learned the president has not confided this contemplated action to any of the railway executives who have conferred with him. He hinted at it darkly in his first conference when he said that, much as he would regret it, government ownership might become a necessity to end the constant fighting between the carriers and their employés.

May Adopt French Tactics.

The president also hinted that it might become necessary to take some such action in this crisis as the French government took in 1914 when, in order to avert a general strike, it called all the railroad employés to the colors and detailed them to operate the trains. The president's plan to commandeer the services of the railroad officials and employés is analogous to the French expedient.

Although the president is carefully concealing his plans from the railroad officials, it is not believed he would initiate legislation to seize control of the roads without informing them of his intentions.

It is believed if the negotiations should approach the point of failure on Monday or Tuesday the president would play his last card by informing the carriers of the action he purposed to ask congress to take in order to avert a strike.

Administration officials are of the opinion that in the face of a threat by the president to take over the roads even temporarily the railroad executives would back down and accede to the terms submitted by Mr. Wilson and the unions.

Would Stir Up Big Row.

There is no doubt, however, that the submission of a scheme to seize the railroads would stir up a row bigger even than the strike controversy itself. Senators and representatives amenable to union labor influence, who are numerous, would fall in line for the plan, but there would be a large group in both houses which would put up a desperate fight against it.

The administration realized that it would have to meet the issue of the constitutionality of the move. It would be contended that congress could not, without violation of constitutional guarantees, take the railroad properties from their owners without their consent.

The bill has been drawn by the attorney general with great care, so as to avoid attack on this score.

Urge Change by Wilson.

At today's conference at the White House the railroad executives submitted a lengthy argument designed to dissuade the president from ignoring the principle of arbitration of industrial disputes and giving a setback thereby to the progress accomplished of recent years in the pacific settlement of differences between capital and labor. They said it would open the way to the settlement of labor disputes henceforth by force.

Hale Holden, spokesman for the executives, intimated strongly that if they are compelled to yield it be to the vast power of the president.

"We present to you our respectful but earnest request that you do not lend the weight of your great influence against this right, which we claim, to be heard, but support the railroads in this crisis in the effort to maintain this great principle of arbitration," he said.

Gets Statement Out First.

The executives informed the president that while they would regard confidential their conversations with him they purposed to avail themselves of the right of presenting their case to the public. This they did later in the day, when they issued in the form of a public statement Mr. Holden's remarks to the president, from which these quotations are taken.

Mr. Wilson, thus advised of the railroads' next move, decided to get his view of the matter before the public first and immediately issued a formal and personal statement setting forth his eight hour day settlement plan and inferentially appealing for the approval of his course by the people.

In evidence of his design to "put the screws" on the railroad executives, he said in his statement:

"This seems to me a thoroughly practical and entirely fair program, and I think that the public has the right to expect its acceptance."

Peace Only Temporary.

In his statement the president makes it clear that the working agreement he proposes is only a temporary expedient designed to operate for only a few months.

The president proposes the substitution of the eight for the ten hour day and the creation of a commission to study and report to congress the results of the change "without recommendation of any kind."

The president proposes that when this report of results is made "it should then be entirely open to either or both parties to the present controversy to give notice of a termination of the present agreements with a view to instituting inquiry into suggested readjustments of pay or practice."

Therefore, if either or both parties should be dissatisfied with the result of the change the public again would face the crisis of a transportation tieup which it now faces.

Hints at Economy by Roads.

Not the least significant portion of the president's statement sets forth Mr. Wilson's ideas of the means by which the railroads shall find the additional money to pay their men on an eight hour basis.

The president hints that the carriers might economize in their administration sufficiently to meet the increased pay charge. This recalls Justice Brandeis' statement in 1914 that the railroads could save $1,000,000 a day if they would abandon wasteful administration. It is not without interest that Mr. Wilson conferred with Justice Brandeis on the eve of his summons to the union leaders to come to Washington.

Intimates Rate Raise.

Broader than this hint is the intimation in the statement that the roads might be given an advance of freight rates sufficient to offset the additional wage expenditure.

"Only experience," says the president, "can make it certain what rearrangements would be fair and equitable either on behalf of the men or on behalf of the roads. That experience would be a definite guide to the interstate commerce commission, for example, in determining whether, as a consequence of the change, it would be necessary and right to authorize an increase of rates for the handling and carriage of freight [for passenger service is not affected]."

This, a direct admission by the president that the consumers of the country eventually may be required to foot the bill for the increased wages to the railroad employés.

Roads May Accept Bait.

That the president threw out this intimation of increased freight rates as a bait to the railroad officials to accept his peace plan is the general view here. The officials, it transpires, are far from displeased with the president's utterance on this point, for they view it as virtually committing him to advocacy of a rate raise to meet the expense his plan entails.

The railroad heads confess that if assured of a rate advance they would be more disposed to yield to the president's insistent demand that they accept the compromise settlement. They have been angling for some assurance of this character ever since they arrived and when a hint of it was forthcoming in the president's statement they were distinctly gratified.

Wants All Railroads' Views.

With a view to bringing greater influence to bear upon the railroads, the president summoned eighty-four more carriers to come to Washington to confer with him.

The rail officials reiterated at the morning conference that they possessed no authority to decide anything except for their individual roads, whereupon Mr. Wilson said he would ask all the responsible railroad executives in the country to come to Washington.

In response to a request for the names of the officials who should be summoned the managers here sent the White House a list of fourteen presidents and receivers, to whom the president immediately sent this message:

"Discussion of the matters involved in threatened railway strike is still continuing. It is highly important that I should personally confer with you or some one authorized to represent you at the earliest possible moment. Hope you can arrange matters so as to be able to come to Washington at once."

Other R. R. Men Called.

The fourteen officials thus summoned are:

Louis W. Hill, president of the Great Northern; A. J. Earling, president of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul; J. M. Hannaford, president of the Northern Pacific; E. P. Ripley, president of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fé; J. M. Dickinson, receiver of the Rock Island system; E. F. Kearney, president of the Wabash; W. C. Nixon, receiver of the Frisco; H. U. Mudge, president of the Denver and Rio Grande; C. M. Lovey, president of the Western Pacific; W. C. Bosler, president of the Central of New Jersey; E. Pennington, president of the Minneapolis, St. Paul and Sault Ste. Marie; M. H. Smith, president of the Louisville and Nashville; C. E. Schaff, receiver of the Missouri, Kansas and Texas; and Edwin Gould, president of the St. Louis Southwestern.

Later the executives sent the White House an additional list of seventy names. Early this evening telegrams were sent to these officials by the president.

The carriers say that more than 100 officials will respond to this second call by the president. It is planned to hire a hall and hold meetings of the railroad officials to consider the president's settlement plan, just as the brotherhood leaders have done in the last few days.

Eight Hours in South.

A supplemental statement regarding the eight hour day, directed particularly at President Wilson's contention that some southern roads already have adopted the eight hour day without disastrous effects, was issued tonight by the railroad officials. It pointed out that most of the men working on an eight hour basis are employed in moving fast freight, for which freight rates are high.

"Some of the roads in the southeast now have the eight hour basic day, but affecting through freight service only and including less than 50 per cent of the men in freight service," said the statement. "All the men in yard service and those running local freights and mine runs are on the ten hour basis, while on many branch lines ten and twelve hour basic days prevail.

Carry Perishable Freight.

"These roads are the Seaboard Air line, the Richmond, Fredericksburg and Potomac, Norfolk Southern, Atlantic Coast line, Central of Georgia, Georgia Southern and Florida, Florida East Coast, and Queen and Crescent lines south, all of them roads with a high percentage of perishable traffic, such as fruits and vegetables, which must be moved at a high rate of speed in order to reach markets in good condition and which, for that reason, carry freight rates which no shipper could afford to pay for the movement of ordinary freight.

Not Used on Other Roads.

"On some of the largest and most important roads in the south the eight hour basic day is not in effect in any branch of the service. Among them are the Norfolk and Western, Chesapeake and Ohio, Virginian, Southern railway, Mobile and Ohio, Queen and Crescent lines north [Cincinnati, New Orleans and Texas Pacific railway and Alabama Great Southern railroad], and Carolina, Clinchfield and Ohio. These roads handle a much larger percentage of coal and other heavy traffic than the roads which now have the basic eight hour day, and the adoption of this basis would mean an increased cost in every branch of freight service for each of them.

"The Louisville and Nashville and the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis have a peculiar system under which no overtime is paid if the trains make schedule. The adoption of the eight hour basic day would necessitate a general revision of the basis of pay of these roads."

Statement from Unions.

Before leaving here tonight for Cleveland, W. G. Lee, head of the trainmen, issued the following statement as to the employés' attitude:

"The employés accepted, as law abiding citizens should, the request of President Wilson to meet him and present our views. President Wilson, after very careful investigation, suggested certain terms of settlement that in his opinion should be accepted by both sides to the controversy.

"The employés surrendered a very large portion of their demands and signified their willingness to accept the president's suggestion.

"The railway companies, after appealing to the government, seem about as unwilling to accept suggestions from the president of the United States as they have in the past refused to consider requests from their employés."

WILSON OUTLINES HIS POSITION ON STRIKE SITUATION

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 19.—The president today issued the following statement from the White House, outlining his position in the strike situation:

"I have recommended the concession of an eight hour day—that is, the substitution of an eight hour day for the present ten hour day in all the existing practices and agreements.

"I made this recommendation because I believed the concession right. The eight hour day now undoubtedly has the sanction of a judgment of society in its favor and should be adopted as a basis for wages, even where the actual work to be done cannot be completed within eight hours.

"Concerning the adjustment which should be made in justice to the railroads and their stockholders in the payment and privileges to which their men are now entitled (if such adjustments are necessary), there is a wide divergence of opinion.

"The railroads which have already adopted the eight hour day do not seem to be at any serious disadvantage in respect of their cost of operation, as compared with the railroads that have retained a ten hour day, and calculations as to the cost of the change must, if made now, be made without regard to any possible administrative economies or readjustments.

"Only experience can make it certain rearrangements would be fair and equitable either on behalf of the men or on behalf of the railroads.

"That experience would be a definite guide to the interstate commerce commission, for example, in determining whether, as a consequence of the change, it would be necessary and right to authorize an increase of the rates for the handling and carriage of freight (for passenger service is not affected).

"I therefore proposed that the demand for extra pay for overtime made by the men and the contingent proposal of the railroad authorities be postponed until facts shall have taken the place of calculations and forecasts with regard to the effect of a change to the eight hour day; that in the meantime, while experience was developing the facts, I should seek, and, if need be, obtain authority from the congress to appoint a small body of impartial men to observe and thoroughly acquaint themselves with the results with a view to reporting to congress at the earliest possible time the facts disclosed by their inquiries, but without recommendation of any kind; and that it should then be entirely open to either or both parties to the present controversy to give notice of a termination of the present agreements with a view to instituting inquiries into suggested readjustment of pay or practice.

"This seems to me a thoroughly practical and entirely fair program, and I think that the public has the right to expect its acceptance."

Railroads' Attitude in Strike Issue as Explained to the President

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 19.—The railroad managers' committee tonight issued the statement which President Holden of the Burlington made to the president, giving the railroads' side of the wage controversy. It follows:

"The representatives of the railroads here present have given careful consideration to the proposals submitted by you for an adjustment of the critical conditions confronting us. May we again express the grave sense of responsibility upon our shoulders to discharge, as faithful trustees of the public interest, the duty to maintain and operate these properties as agencies, efficient at all times—to serve the continuous public demand for transportation service—as faithful trustees; also to protect in so far as it is in our power the interests of the owners of these properties committed to our charge?

"In the previous stages of these negotiations the conference committee of managers has consistently adhered to the policy of arbitration as a fundamental principle—it is essentially the common right of every citizen, of whatever station in life, to be heard, to have his day in court; it is, indeed, a substitute for wasteful litigation recognized long since in the codes of all civilized countries.

"A denial of the right to be heard does not exist under any form of government with which our race has ever been familiar, and the common acceptance in international affairs, in the adjustmet of public and private rights under our federal and state governments, of the principle of arbitration as an approved method for the friendly settlement of the serious contentions of the parties has put the right to claim arbitration as a method of settling such controversies beyond question. For these reasons we have supported our committee in its continuous demand, and in those important particulars upon which no agreement could be reached arbitration should be accorded upon any reasonable basis that might be adopted.

"The eight hour day—I shall not at this time stop to fully analyze or comment on the importance of the difference between the eight hour day as commonly understood in the building and manufacturing trades and the so-called eight hour basic day demanded in this controversy—the eight hour day is, in our mature judgment, when considered in connection with railroad train service, a question upon which honest minds may differ, and there is therefore necessarily a subject for arbitration. In that matter the contentions of the parties may be considered and a fair answer given.

"Social questions affecting the ordinary work day in which for six days a week a regular daily routine is pursued, are those which determine how long, during each of those periods, the laborer should work, and while in some states eight hours has been adopted as the desirable or compulsory maximum, this broad land is today teeming with the contented and efficient industry of millions of workers that are working more than eight hours a day.

"The precedent, therefore, exists—it exists in fact and the right or wrong of it, as we feel, has not yet in this country passed beyond the realm of debate.

"But these are not our problems. The railroad day is a different thing, as has been patiently, and I infer, many times explained. Railroad trains run throughout the twenty-four hour period—the public demands that they run on Sundays and holidays—they start at any hour that the necessities may demand—they cannot stop until a terminal is reached and many conditions, stated and accidental, render it impossible to restrict the hours of railroad labor to a fixed standard.

"In a general movement of some years ago the present ten hour basic day was negotiated and approved by the representatives of railroad labor throughout the country and has continued with some exceptions to the present day. These exceptions have been worked out under local conditions, different often from the general conditions affecting the question.

"In several important arbitrations of railroad rates of pay and conditions of service within recent years—the last within two years involving ninety-eight railroads serving the entire territory between Chicago and the Pacific coast—the ten hour basic day was incorporated in the demands of the organizations parties thereto and made the basis by them of the rates and rules awarded by the federal board.

"At the present time, in a controversy now pending over the identical questions involved here, and in which numerous important railroads and a national organization of switchmen are parties, an arbitration through the friendly offices of the federal board of mediation has been agreed to, wherein the question of an eight hour basic day has been submitted as an arbitrable question.

"We stand for the principle of arbitration for the settlement of industrial disputes. Arbitration is the ideal toward which public sentiment and legislation of this country have been steadily tending for the settlement of disputes between employers and employés, particularly in the case of public service corporations, rather than the strike and the lockout with attendant disturbances and paralysis of public business.

"Arbitration has been provided by legislation, both state and national. So late as 1913 the federal law was perfected or improved by amendments framed in conference with some of the railroad labor leaders now refusing to arbitrate and includes in its scope all controversies in railroad service.

"We invoke that principle now and are willing for the interstate commerce commisison to arbitrate the whole question. More than that, we are willing for the president of the United States to appoint a commission of disinterested persons to arbitrate all matters in dispute if neither the interstate commerce commission nor the machinery of the Newlands act is satisfactory to the labor leaders.

"But we have been met with a refusal to arbitrate in any manner, and are now asked to surrender the principle and to add an additional burden of many millions per annum to the cost of railroad transportation in this country for the benefit of a class who are among the most highly paid and favored workmen in the world. This is demanded under the guise of a plea for an eight hour day. It is in reality only an indirect plea for an enormous increase in wages.

"The intricate and technical nature of the case and the complexity of the facts make the controversy preëminently one for arbitration by an impartial tribunal with authority to examine into every factor and reach a decision fair and just to the employés, the owners, and the public, which ultimately must bear the burden. To refuse to arbitrate is an admission of the unreasonableness of the demand. Moreover, the refusal is by those demanding a vital change in an existing status. For a party to demand a change of such a status and accompany the demand with a refusal to arbitrate is in conflict with right standards of conduct. In this instance for those demanding a change to refuse to submit their demands to arbitration is indefensible.

"To say that such a demand as that now presented for a revolutionary change in the arrangements that have grown up in the development of the railroad business and involving so many complicated facts and relations and such vast additions to the cost of the country's transportation is not arbitrable is to destroy the principle of arbitration, and, if successful, would, in our judgment, tend immediately to discard all of the legislation, state and national, which has been enacted in recent years and set the country back to the old days of strikes, lockouts, public disorder, and business anarchy for the settlement of questions inherent in the relation of employer and employé.

"The view that so important an issue as this may not in conscience be honestly debated and therefore arbitrated, raises this question above and beyond the lesser contentions of hours of service or payment of wages—it raises it, in gravity, beyond the social or monetary questions affecting the parties before you because it tends to force, by the great weight of your spoken word, the railroads to surrender a right to be heard—a right expressly recognized by the policy of the federal legislation enacted for the purpose of adjusting these disputes and under the ban of your disapproval, expressed before the bar of public opinion, to accept as indisputable conditions requiring, as we believe, an enormous sacrifice in efficiency of service and cost of operation of these properties.

"An adjustment in this manner will not stop this controversy. It will be repeated in every industry wherein today industrial peace exists without controversy.

"It will by the force of this high precedent place in peril all that has been accomplished in the peaceful adjustment of labor controversies by methods of arbitration, and therefore we present to you our respectful but earnest request that you do not lend the weight of your great influence against this right, which we claim, to be heard, but support the railroads in this crisis in the effort to maintain this great principle of arbitration."

The statement concludes with this addition:

"Mr. Holden then explained that in acordance with past custom and the requirements of the situation complete authority to conduct negotiations in behalf of the railroads in the present controversy had been conveyed to the conference committee of managers.

"He further explained that the executives present had authority to speak only for the properties each represents. It is understood that telegrams were sent from the White House to other railroad executives of the country and the conference adjourned pending their arrival."

Fifty Texas Brotherhood Delegates Call on Representatives to Oppose Arbitration.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 19.—Fifty railroad brotherhood delegates from Texas asked Texas senators and congressmen to oppose any compulsory arbitration at this time, on the ground that such a measure would be unfavorable and unfair to the employés. The men were told that the congressional group looked favorably upon their position.

RUSSIANS BREAK TEUTONS' LINES ON KOVEL FRONT

Slavs Renew Advance on Rail Center—Gain and Lose at Points in Carpathians.

PETROGRAD, Aug. 19.—The Russians have broken through the Austro-German lines on the Stokhod river in Volhynia and have made a considerable advance, it was announced today. The break in the Austro-German front was made in the region of the village of Czerwiszcze, forty miles northeast of Kovel. The Russians captured the village of Tobol. The official statement says:

Last evening after an artillery bombardment, the enemy launched an attack near the village of Zvinlache, about nine miles southeast of [illegible]. It was repulsed.

West of Lake Nobel, sixty miles northeast of Kovel, our troops captured a part of the enemy's positions.

Break Through Teuton Line.

In the region of the village of Czerwiszcze on the river Stokhod, our troops, after a stubborn fight, broke through the enemy's position and captured the village of Tobol, two miles northwest of Czerwiszcze, the farm Tcherische, and a distillery, making a considerable advance. The number of prisoners accounted for amounts to two officers and 220 men.

In the region of the little town of Sokul an enemy aeroplane dropped more than seventy bombs.

In the direction of Kirlibaba, a pass on the Transylvanian frontier, the enemy is resuming his offensive with considerable forces and has pushed back our advanced guards a little distance.

Austrian Official Statement.

VIENNA, Aug. 19.—Austro-Hungarian troops have been forced to withdraw under heavy Russian attacks in the Carpathians, it was officially admitted tonight in the following statement:

Westward of Zabie, thirty-five miles southwest of Kolomea, we withdrew our advanced troops, after fierce fighting toward the Chornahore ridge.

Northwest of Stanislau, Russian forces, attempting to advance on Halitz from the south bank of the Dniester, were repulsed.

[Zabie is seventeen miles southeast of Korosmezo mountains, toward which the Russians are advancing in their attempt to invade Hungary.]

German Official Statement.

BERLIN, Aug. 19.—In the Carpathians north of Capul further progress has been made by the Austro-German forces. The war office announcement of today says:

Front of Archduke Charles Francis—North of the Carpathians the situation is unchanged. Tagura hill, north of Capul, has been carried by storm by the allied (Teutonic) troops. Six hundred prisoners were taken and counter attacks were repulsed.

Front of Field Marshal von Hindenburg: The engagement west of Lake Nobel continued. The Russians were completely thrown back and three officers and 320 men and four machine guns captured.

ALLIES' HOSPITAL RELIEF OFFICIAL UNDER ARREST.

The Rev. Charles Baylis, Indicted on Grand Larceny Charges, Trailed and Caught in New York.

New York, Aug. 19.—[Special.]—The Rev. Charles T. Baylis, ex-pastor of the Bushwick Avenue Congregational church, who was indicted yesterday on grand larceny charges in connection with his work as director general of the allies' hospital relief commission, was arrested today in the Canal street subway station by Detective Russo of the district attorney's staff.

The clergyman was immediately arraigned before Judge Rosalsky in General Sessions and released in $2,500 bail for examination on Monday.

His arrest was due to the work of Russo, who trailed Dr. Baylis' lawyer, C. Walter Randall, from the district attorney's office to the uptown subway station at Canal street. He saw Baylis step forward to meet Randall, and the arrest followed.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 19.—An advance of twenty-five miles by the Turkish right wing in southern Armenia is announced in the official statement issued by Turkish army headquarters under date of Aug. 18. The statement follows:

Irak front: British infantry and cavalry, supported by two gunboats and three motorboats, tried to attack our division near Nasiriyeh (on the southern Euphrates). After four hours' fighting they had to withdraw.

Caucasus front: Our right wing advanced its positions forty kilometers in a northerly direction, everywhere reestablishing contact with the enemy's retiring rear guard.

DENY CROWN PRINCE HURT.

Authorities Claim No Truth in Rumor of Frederick William Being Wounded.

PARIS, Aug. 19.—The report that the German crown prince Frederick William is wounded and is in a hospital at Verdun is authoritatively denied. The report that he had been wounded is based upon a Zurich dispatch to the Secolo of Milan, saying that a Swiss officer returning from the German frontier was told by a German officer that the crown prince had been wounded in the arm and one of his legs with splinters of a shell and that he was being treated in an unnamed hospital.

GUARD ROOKIES AGAINST PLAGUE

Geneva Officers Bar Visitors and Stop Leaves as Precaution.

National Service School Camp No. 3, Women's Section, Navy League, Lake Geneva, Wis., Aug. 19.—[Special.]—All leaves of absence were recalled tonight and visitors are barred from the training camp as a precaution against infantile paralysis. Consequently the camp will be isolated until further notice.

The order, which was read at evening mess, reads as follows:

"Due to the spread of infantile paralysis in the west among adults as well as children, as a precaution, nobody will be granted leave of absence from the camp. Until further notice no visitors will be allowed on the grounds except those directly connected with the National Service school. No visitors will be allowed in the company streets.

"MAJ. GEN. ELEANOR COUNTISS."

Many Have Town Leave.

All of the rookies had been anxious to go to the town of Lake Geneva and paint it more or less red, and half of the camp had been granted leave for Sunday. Now they will have to spend the day in camp and amuse themselves.

Company A started the entertaining last night by inviting Company B to an impromptu fête, in which ice cream cones played a prominent part.

There has been no illness in the camp and the stay-home order was issued merely to insure a continuation of the present perfect state of health. Dr. S. P. Doane declares the encampment eclipses any men's camp he has seen.

Drill Despite Heat.

The temperature reached 100 degrees in camp today. It made no difference, however, in the routine of the women rookies. And there wasn't a prostration among the 150 of them. Physicians on the ground give the credit to the remarkable sanitary conditions— from fly swatters to formaldehyde.

The women probably wouldn't have given up any of their drill or class work if they had been offered a choice. Col. Mrs. R. P. Davidson marched her command at double time [a slow run] about noon and even this raised no objections, probably because the women were crossing the grounds to bid farewell to Dr. S. P. Doane, who has been their instructor and a favorite in camp.

Review on Tuesday.

Also the women want the drill and all they can get of it, because of the review on Tuesday. This will take place on the big drill field. The company making the best showing is to be announced as the choice.

A few of the friends of the officers made special trips across the lake for noon mess. They sat down to the long board tables covered with oilcloth and partook of the rookies' rations. Among the visitors were Mrs. Edward Ayre, Mrs. Orville Babcock, Mrs. William P. Martin, Mrs. Edward Pollock, S. B. Chapin, and Alexander McKinlock.

Booked on Auto Theft Charge.

Ward King, 18 years old, said to have a police record, was booked at detective bureau last night on a charge of larceny for the alleged theft of an automobile. He was arrested several days ago by Detective Sergts. Bermingham and McGinnis.

LINER STAMPALIA IS SUNK WHILE USED AS TRANSPORT

Italian Vessel Which Had Been Passenger Carrier to New York Victim of Torpedo.

New York, Aug. 19.—The Italian steamer Stampalia, formerly in service as a passenger liner between New York and Italian ports but more recently engaged as a troop transport, has been sunk, presumably by a submarine, according to reports received by its agents here today.

The Stampalia, steel twin screw steamer of 9,000 tons, reached Genoa on July 30 from New York and was scheduled to sail from New York on the return voyage on Aug. 26.

Local agents of the line received notice fifteen days ago to cancel all bookings for the return trip to Genoa, as the Stampalia had been taken over by the Italian government as a transport.

Berlin Offers to Pay for Rijndijk, Torpedoed Off Scilly Islands in April.

THE HAGUE, Aug. 20, 2:05 a. m.—It is officially announced that the German government has admitted that the Dutch steamer Rijndijk was struck by a German torpedo and has apologized and offered to compensate the owners. The Rijndijk was torpedoed off the Scilly islands last April while bound for Rotterdam from Portland with a food cargo for the Belgian relief commission.

BERLIN SOCIALISTS RAIDED.

LONDON, Aug. 19.—The premises of all Berlin Socialist clubs were raided by the police on Wednesday last, according to an Exchange Telegraph company dispatch from Geneva today. Many persons were arrested, the advices state, and it is reported that large quantities of peace manifestoes and pamphlets were seized.

DEADLOCK ALONG ITALIAN FRONT

Vienna Reports Italy's Failure to Advance Southeast of Goritz.

BERLIN, Aug. 19.—[By Wireless to Sayville.]—The Austrian official statement of Aug. 17, received here from Vienna, reports the repulse of the Italians in numerous attacks southeast of Goritz. The statement says:

Between Plava and the Vippach river yesterday there was only lively artillery fire. The Italians attacked between the river and Oppachisella, assaulting our positions five times in deep rows.

At only one place was it necessary to repulse the enemy in hand to hand fighting. Otherwise the storming attacks broke down under our fire with notably heavy losses.

On the Tyrolean front minor hostile enterprises at Monte Piano and Ovaion failed.

Italian War Report.

ROME, Aug. 19.—Heavy fighting is reported on the Carso, over which the Italians are attempting to advance in the direction of Triest, according to an official statement, which says:

Along the whole front artillery actions occurred. Our artillery was particularly active in the Upper Fella, where the railway line at the mouth of the Seebach valley was damaged. Hostile batteries shelled the town of Goritz and the Isonzo bridges.

Yesterday evening, after heavy artillery fire, the enemy began an attack against the left wing of our positions on the Carso. It was checked promptly by the effective fire of our batteries.

ALICE MAZARYK, CHICAGO WOMAN, FREED IN VIENNA

Settlement Worker Charged with Treason Against Austria Is Released.

New York, Aug. 19.—Miss Alice Mazaryk, formerly a social worker in the Chicago University settlement in Chicago, has been released from prison in Vienna, where she was held on a charge of high treason against the Austrian government.

This announcement was made public tonight by Alexander von Nuber, Austrian consul general to the United States. He said Miss Mazaryk was released on July 3.

Miss Mazaryk is a daughter of Prof. Thomas G. Mazaryk of Prague, who married a daughter of Rodolphe Garrigue, a New York banker. Dr. Mazaryk is living in England, where he fled soon after the outbreak of the war.

Father Champions Bohemia.

His daughter's arrest, it has been charged, was due to the fact that on her father's departure from Prague she took charge of his library.

Dr. Mazaryk is a staunch advocate of Bohemian nationality and attracted attention by his attacks on the treatment by Austria of the southern Slavs and of the manner of the annexation of Bosnia and Herzogovina.

State department officials at Washington informed those who asked some time ago that an appeal be made to the Austrian government in Miss Mazaryk's behalf that the United States probably would make an informal inquiry through Ambassador Penfield.

PLANNED HISTORY OF BOHEMIA

Miss Mazaryk was a resident of the social settlement in Chicago during 1905. She was preparing to write a history of Bohemia and desired to know the Bohemians of this country. While in the settlement she organized a Clean Up club and worked in cleaning up the alleys "back of the yards." She also organized the Young Bohemian Women and spoke to many organizations of Bohemian women in Chicago.

It was while engaged in this work that she became a close friend of Miss Mary E. McDowell, Miss Jane Addams, and Miss Julia Lathrop, who later led in the movement to have the American government appeal for her release.

SAYS GERMANS NEVER WILL REACH U. S. WITH BREMEN.

F. B. Whitney of Waukegan and Official of Lakes Torpedo Co. Claims He Knows Boat's Fate.

Waukegan, Ill., Aug. 19.—Fred Brown Whitney of Waukegan and Washington, chairman of the board of directors of the Lakes Torpedo company of Bridgeport, Conn., arrived in Waukegan last evening and, because of his close relations with submarine matters, he was asked this question:

"Where do you think the German submarine Bremen now is?"

He made this most significant and emphatic reply:

"I know this and I know it positively: The Bremen will never enter a United States port in charge of the Germans. I know its status and its locality, but I am not in position to say anything more."

"But who is in charge of the boat—has it been captured?"

"I could not give out that information, although I know. It came to me as an attorney and I cannot violate the confidence I would be in case I told further details. However, it is a positive thing the Germans never will bring the Bremen into a United States port."

ALLIED DRIVE ON IN THE BALKANS

Five Towns Captured from Germans and Bulgarians in Macedonia Sector.

PARIS, Aug. 19.—The entente allied forces are in contact with the Germans and Bulgarians along the entire Saloniki front, according to an official statement issued by the war office tonight. The allies have taken five villages.

For several days fighting on the Saloniki front has been reported in official statements from Berlin and Sofia, which, however, minimized the importance of the operations.

Engagements of advanced posts and patrols on the whole front from Aug. 1 to Aug. 15 have been officially reported here, and military observers believe the present fighting is the prelude to the long expected general offensive by the entente allies on this front.

Serbian War Report.

SALONIKI, Aug. 19.—Bulgarian troops who attacked the positions of the entente allies along the Serbian frontier on Aug. 17 were repulsed and thrown back upon their original positions after sustaining enormous losses, according to the Serbian official statement, which says:

Yesterday at dawn the Bulgarians attacked along our front in the sector of Moglena [Moglemica], north of the villages of Scupina and Pojar. The Bulgarians were repulsed by our powerful counter attacks and were thrown back upon their original positions after sustaining enormous losses.

The Bulgarians occupied the town and station of Enlorina [Florina].

CAPITOL SILENT ABOUT FUNSTON URGING RETREAT

Administration, Not War Department, to Determine Mexican Action, Belief.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 19.—[Special.]—The administration maintained a discreet silence today on the reported recommendations from Gen. Funston that the Pershing expeditionary force of 12,000 or more regular troops be withdrawn from Mexico without further delay. It is understood that Gen. Funston has already been informed that the administration and not the war department is going to decide when the troops will come out.

Gen. Funston's opinion, unexpectedly made public, is said to have been given at the request of the war department, which was preparing its formal recommendations to the international commission, which is to debate over the withdrawal or nonwithdrawal of troops

Secretary of War Baker this afternoon had another conference at the White House and drove away following a refusal to discuss in any way the embarrassing communication from Gen. Funston. He has been striving all day to learn how the message became public.

No Intention of Recall.

"I can only say that at the present time I have no intention of recalling the troops," he said. "That does not mean that I may not have such an intention soon. It means only that our Mexican policy is unchanged."

That now famous policy as previously announced on many occasions by Secretary Baker is as follows:

"The army will stay in Mexico until the bandits responsible for the Columbus raid are captured or their bands dispersed."

That the policy is still in force, according to the war secretary, would suggest that the soldiers are supposed to be hunting for Villa. At the same time Gen. Pershing has been practically forbidden to prosecute that search, and at last report the only theory advanced by the administration for keeping the troops in Mexico was that by being there they were protecting the American border from further raids.

Report Cheers Carrancistas.

El Paso, Tex., Aug. 19.—Reports that Gen. Funston had recommended the withdrawal were received with the greatest enthusiasm in Juarez. Gen. Gabriel Gavira, inspector general of the Carranza armies, and Gen. Francisco Gonzales, commandant, said that the reports, if true, "will tend to eliminate the greatest cloud upon the Mexican horizon."

BELGIANS WIN IN AFRICA.

HAVRE, Aug. 19.—A Belgian official review of the campaign in German East Africa and in the vicinity of Lake Tanganyika, issued today, says that the first two weeks in August were marked by further progress of the Belgian troops in Africa, and announces that Col. Molitor's brigade occupied Saint Michael Aug. 12.

AUSTRIANS RAID VENICE AGAIN AS RETALIATION

Inflict Heavy Loss on Enemy and Fire Rail Magazines, Vienna Claims.

BERLIN, Aug. 19.—By wireless to Sayville.—Another bombardment of Venice by Austrian aircraft on the night of Aug. 16 in retaliation for an Italian raid on Triest on Aug. 14 is announced in an Austrian admiralty statement today. Notable damage of a military nature was caused, according to the statement, which says:

> An Austro-Hungarian air squadron, in retaliation for an attack against Triest, attacked Venice on the night of Aug. 16-17. The railroad station and arsenal and military objects and magazines were extensively bombarded. Many full hits were obtained. A great fire broke out in the railroad magazine.
> A second aerial squadron successfully attacked the inner port of Grado, a battery on the lower Isonzo, and military objects at Monfalcone.

Germans Raid Russian Base.

Raids by German aircraft on the Russian military establishments on Oesel island, off the Gulf of Riga, are being continued. Another such raid is announced in a German admiralty statement today as having taken place on the night of Aug. 15-16. The statement says:

> German naval aeroplanes on the night of Aug. 15-16 extensively bombarded the aeroplane stations at Papenholm, on Oesel island, and hostile aeroplanes standing on the shore of the Island of Runo, in the Gulf of Riga. All the machines returned undamaged.
> On the night of Aug. 14-15 an Austro-Hungarian naval aeroplane squadron attacked Avlona, Albania. Definite hits were obtained on a shore battery and on the barracks, a camp, a storehouse, and a ship.

British Raid in Belgium.

LONDON, Aug. 19.—British naval aeroplanes raided German ammunition stations at Lichtervelde, in Belgium, thirteen miles southwest of Bruges yesterday, causing large fires, the war office announced.

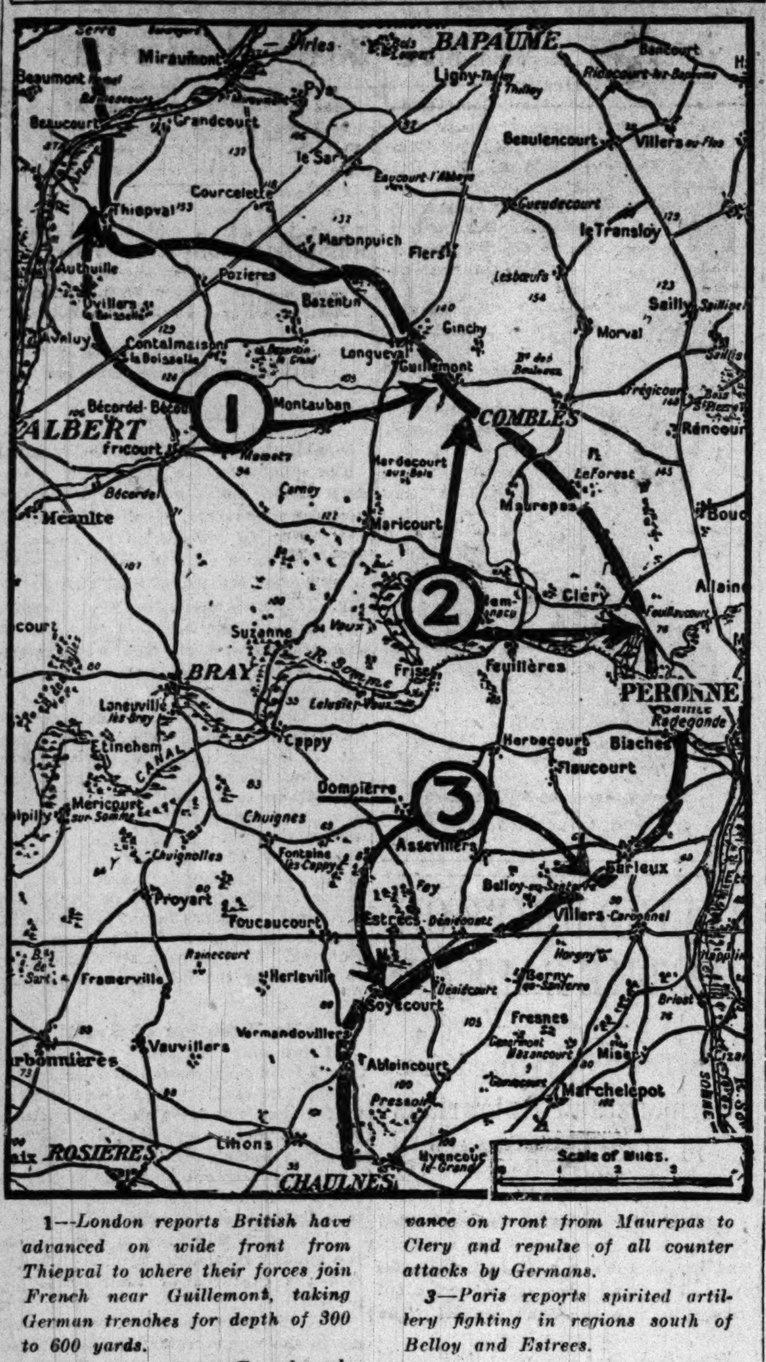
He was working as a laborer. Martin was said to have had a part in the original Robin Hood company, and was at one time a star in big time vaudeville.

THE BATTLE OF THE SOMME



1—London reports British have advanced on wide front from Thiepval to where their forces join French near Guillemont, taking German trenches for depth of 300 to 600 yards.

2—Paris reports French advance on front from Maurepas to Clery and repulse of all counter attacks by Germans.

3—Paris reports spirited artillery fighting in regions south of Belloy and Estrees.

JEWISH RELIEF FUND NEEDS $27,000 TO MAKE $600,000.

West Side Committee Raises $3,114 of the Amount Donated Since the Last Report.

The work of the Chicago Jewish relief committee is slowly augmenting the total and now a bare $27,000 stands between the workers and their goal of $600,000. Since the last report nearly $4,000 has been contributed, the larger part being turned in by the west side auxiliary committee.

Contributions of any size down to $1 are welcomed. They should be sent to Jewish Relief Committee, 1312 Columbus Memorial building, Chicago, or to M. E. Greenebaum, 10 South La Salle street, Chicago.

CHINA PROTESTS JAPANESE TROOP MOVE TO MONGOLIA.

Says Nipponese Refused to Obey Orders of Local Magistrate—Resistance Results in 17 Deaths.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 19.—China has protested to Japan against the sending of 2,000 troops to Cheng Chiatung in eastern Manchuria because of a recent disturbance there, resulting in a clash between Chinese and Japanese troops.

It is contended by the Peking government that when the local Chinese magistrate ordered precautions taken against an expected raid by nomadic bandits some of the Japanese residents refused to obey. The magistrate attempted to enforce the order by arresting a Japanese, it is said, whereupon the Japanese began armed resistance, which resulted in seventeen deaths. The Japanese captured the magistrate and took him away.

BRITISH SWEEP GERMANS BACK ON 11 MILE LINE

Crushing Blow Dealt on the Somme—Teuton Front Is Riddled with Shells.

new army charging the German trenches north of Ovillers.

The Germans by this onslaught were thrown back on a front of at least half a mile at this point, straightening out the British line and pressing in the ring being drawn around Thiepval village, whose fortifications have held up the British advance.

STORM GERMAN TRENCHES.

As the battle spread toward the Somme British troops east of the Bapaume-Albert highway leaped out in an attack against the German lines defending Martinpuich. They stormed and captured several hundred yards of an enemy trench before they were checked by German fire.

The advance brought the British lines within easy striking distance of Martinpuich, which is being shelled from the heights north of Pozieres.

East of the Foureaux wood the whole British line rushed forward, driving the Germans from first one and then another line of trenches until the western outskirts of Guillemont were firmly held and the German positions at Ginchy and Maurepas made almost untenable.

British War Report.

The text of the latest British statement follows:

> Operations carried out yesterday at various points along our front from Thiepval to our extreme right south of Guillemont, a distance of about eleven miles, were most successful. As a result we captured a ridge southeast of and overlooking Thiepval and northern slopes of high ground north of Pozieres, from which we get an extensive view of the east and northeast.
> We are holding the western edge of High Wood and trenches made by the enemy extending some half mile west of the wood.
> Advance Line Near Ginchy.
> We have advanced our line half way to Ginchy and to the edge of Guillemont, where we hold the outskirts of the village, including the railway station and quarry, which is of considerable military importance. The number of prisoners passed back to 4 o'clock in the afternoon as a result of these operations is sixteen officers and 780 of other ranks.
> Today northeast of Pozieres we made a further advance on both sides of the Pozieres-Bapaume road for some three hundred yards.

French War Report.

PARIS, Aug. 19.—The French have driven the Germans out of the portion of the trench north of Maurepas into which they penetrated in their counter attack last night, according to the official statement issued by the war office tonight. The text of the statement follows:

> North of the Somme, apart from an operation of detail which permitted us to eject the enemy from the portion of the trench he penetrated last night north of Maurepas, the day has been quiet. Our troops actively pressed forward the work of consolidation on the conquered front.
> In the Argonne we exploded a mine which wrecked the enemy's advanced works at Vauquois.
> On the right bank of the Meuse artillery fighting continues actively in the Fleury-Vaux-Chapitre sector. There has been no infantry actions. On the remainder of the front there was no action of importance. We still hold Fleury.

German War Report.

BERLIN, Aug. 19.—The war office report of today says the Germans victoriously resisted the stupendous Anglo-French attack on the Somme front, which was made yesterday, but that between Guillemont and Maurepas the Germans shortened their line somewhat. The statement follows:

> Our brave troops yesterday victoriously resisted with self sacrificing tenacity a stupendous effort on the part of our combined enemies. At about the same time in the afternoon, after artillery preparations which increased to the utmost violence, the British and French masses advanced to the assault north of the Somme over a section of about twelve and a half miles, while considerable French forces advanced on the right bank of the Meuse against the Thiaumont-Fleury sector and against our positions in Chapitre and Berg woods.
> Admit Capture of Trenches.
> North of the Somme the battle raged until far into the night. At several points the enemy penetrated our first line trenches and was driven out again. Trench sections captured on both sides of Guillemont, which remained firmly in our hands, were occupied. Between Guillemont and Maurepas we somewhat shortened our salient line during the night, in accordance with our plans.
> On the right bank of the Meuse repeated French assaults broke down with heavy losses to the enemy after bitter fighting at certain points. In the village of Fleury the fighting still continues.

RAPID RISE IN PRICES OF FOOD ALARMS BRITISH Government Action to Be Demanded—American Speculators Are Blamed.

(By Cable to Chicago Tribune.)

LONDON, Aug. 19.—Black bread and a scarcity of meat are the bugaboos that loom before many pessimistic persons on these islands. Incidentally, American speculators in wheat and the meat packers in the United States are being blamed, in part, for the tremendous rise in the cost of living.

Here and in other large cities in the kingdom mass meetings have been called for tomorrow to demand from the government measures to reduce the price of foodstuffs.

Food Prices 65 Per Cent Higher.

The cost of living is at the highest point since this war began. Everything worth eating is approximately 65 per cent dearer than before the war. Throughout Great Britain there is a strong agitation looking to a definite policy by the government to regulate the price of food.

By an order issued in the official gazette last night, under the defense of the realm act, new powers are given to those regulating the food supply to end the withholding of food products from the market and to prevent the accumulating of stocks of food in excess of normal requirements.

American Beef Trust Blamed.

This order follows closely the charges made in parliament that the American beef trust, so called, is holding large quantities of meat from this market with the idea of boosting prices still higher. But other foreign merchants, and even British, are not exempt from the same charge. For example, the price of Danish bacon has risen to nearly 50 cents per pound here, an abnormal price compared with that before the war.

While many persons in this country believe that wheat speculators in America are putting on the screws, as many hold that gamblers in wheat here are even more to blame for hoisting the price of flour.

Food experts are telling in the newspapers of their experiments with cereals which may be substituted for wheat.

ONE YEAR AGO TODAY IN THE EUROPEAN WAR

Germans officially announced the capture of the Russian fortress of Novogeorgievsk, with 20,000 men and 700 cannon.

German fleet engaged Russian fleet in Gulf of Riga, each side losing several vessels.

Italy declared war against Turkey.

DANISH DISPUTE DELAYS SALE OF WEST INDIES.

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 19.—The decision as to whether the government proposal for a coalition cabinet shall be adopted, and consequently the question as to the acceptance or rejection of the treaty with the United States for the sale of the Danish West Indies, has been postponed for at least a week, and probably longer, as the result of party caucuses in the rigsdag.

The effort to reconcile the parties was made as a result of the direct appeal of King Christian.

"It is under serious circumstances that I have summoned you," he said. "The world war still rages vehemently and nations stand sharply against each other. During past years we have enjoyed the blessings of peace, but uncertainty is still existent for us, as was the case two years ago.

"It is a great task I have given you to try to shake hands in toleration and forget for the time differences between parties. If you succeed, I believe you will have written the most beauteous page in the political history of Denmark, in which it will be recorded that during a time of uncertainty for her each voter was represented in the king's council. I wish you God's blessing for alleviating the difficulties you have to overcome."

RIOT AT 2 BANKS FOR $200,000 AS OWNER SKIPS OUT the depositors' money. It was written to his father, Joseph Silver, of 3540 Douglas boulevard. Max, with his wife and two children, occupied a house at [illegible] Douglas boulevard.

West Side Mob Is Cleared by Mounted Police as Silver's Concerns Fall.

In substance the letter said that he was unable to face the situation. He designated some envelopes which he said would take care of some of the obligations and his family. He left no intimation of where he was going.

AVERS MAX WAS OWNER.

The letter was handed to Julius Moses of Moses, Rosenthal & Kennedy by Attorney Lawrence Fine, who resides in the Silver house at 910 Castlewood terrace.

"Adolph Silver sold out all of his interests to his brother Max about a year ago," said Mr. Moses. "He is in ill health and he has spent the last year in California."

Adolph introduced his brother into the banking business, Max having been employed as a clerk in an establishment at Twelfth and Halsted streets at a salary of $12 a week. Max is said to have mastered "private banking" in a short space of time.

Deposits of the Silver banks were made through the West Side Trust and Savings bank. President Benjamin S. Mayer of the West Side bank could not be reached, but a minor official said that the deposits of the Silver banks had dwindled in the last few months from $70,000 to something around $3,000.

The Silver brothers were not concerned in any way with the Silver-Watkins Shoe company at 724 West Twelfth street, as was rumored early in the evening. The shoe concern is a distinct establishment.

SURPRISE TO EMPLOYE.

Among those who gathered at the Maxwell street banking house was David Napshin, manager of the foreign exchange department.

"The whole thing is news to me," he said. "I came to work at 5 o'clock and the bank hadn't been opened. I never had a key to the place. The only key I know of was carried by Max Silver."

Napshin said he had no idea of the extent of the deposits, but he thought they would sum up over $150,000. Nathan Tallove, teller of the Maxwell street bank, also was dumfounded when he found police guarding the bank.

"I have some wages coming to me," he said. "But I didn't have any idea the bank was in trouble."

Police were called when it was determined by Attorneys Fine and Moses that it would be impossible to throw the banks into the courts before tomorrow morning. First Deputy Schuettler was informed of the situation and told that the foreign element in the Maxwell and Jefferson street vicinities might prove unruly when the facts became known.

Police and detectives immediately were detailed to these two banks. Later in the evening, when the crowd began to swell, reserves were sent, and still later the mounted police were dispatched on a riot call, and the streets were cleared.

FAMILIES FLEE IN AUTOS.

In the meantime Attorney Moses sent word to the families of Max Silver and his father, Joseph Silver, that they had better leave the city before an outbreak could be directed at them. Acting on this advice, Mrs. Max Silver and her small son and daughter, and Joseph Silver and his family were rushed to Argo, Ill., in automobiles. There was no response to telephone calls or personal calls at either of the three Silver residences.

At a late hour it had been impossible to find Jacob Wilson, chief clerk of the Silver banks and the confidential man for Max Silver.

Phillip Hatowsky, a jewelry salesman in business at Twelfth and Halsted streets, told of selling a $600 diamond ring to Max Silver within the last month.

"He called me over to the bank," said Hatowsky, "and I sold him the ring, for which he paid me in cash. At the same time he took me into his office and showed me the biggest pile of gold coin I ever saw in my life."

MANY DEPOSIT BOXES.

It was explained by those familiar with the banking methods in the Maxwell street district that most of the Jewish depositors held safety deposit boxes for which they alone held the keys. It is believed the money kept in these boxes is still safe.

Emanuel Ginsberg of 635 West Twelfth street, a steamship ticket broker, said that Adolph Silver held a responsible place with the Schiff brothers banking concern, and was said to be a man of integrity, but little was known of his brother Max.

At the Maxwell street police station it was said that the real trouble over the bank's closing will not start before today or tomorrow. For this reason reserves are kept ready for another outbreak.

SATURDAY THEIR SABBATH.

"The reason Max Silver did not expect trouble during Saturday," said Julius Moses, "is because most of the depositors are Russian Jews. Saturday is their Sabbath, and their observance ends at sundown. Five o'clock is recognized as sundown, and this was the regular hour for opening the bank."

Among many of the Russians there were complaints that money given to Max Silver never reached its destination in Russia. This story was told by several depositors who called at the Maxwell street police station.

"I gave Silver $50," said one man, who refused to give his name. "I asked him to send it to my father in Russia. After a time I had a letter from my father asking me for more money, saying he had not received any for a long time. I told this to Silver, but he put me off."

It is believed this failure to dispatch money to foreign countries has been going on for more than six months.

The streets in the vicinity of the Maxwell street bank were filled with men and women wringing their hands and talking in broken tones of their lost fortunes. It was said many of the depositors had as much as $300 each.

One group of five Russians, who refused to be named, said their collective deposits amount to $1,800.

Iggard Anderich of 1223 West Madison street said he deposited $285 with the Silver bank.

"I have been three years in America," he said. "I have worked hard for this money and I expected to have enough to buy a little home for my family. I have a wife and four children in Russia and I have been helping them while I saved enough money to bring them to America. Now I can't do anything. I shall have to work three years more."

SAVED TO BUY FARM.

Ivan Gotterligskei, who refused to give his address, said he was trying to earn enough money to buy a farm.

"I had $427 in the bank," he told a reporter. "I was going to buy a farm in Russia and I could have done that very soon and had a home for my family. I have a wife and three children. But they are with me here. I'll have to start all over."

Alexander Cipao said he handed $150 to Silver.

"It comes very hard for me," he said. "My old mother has tuberculosis and I needed every cent to provide for her. I work hard and now I don't know what will become of my mother."

Miss Ida Atkin of 1237 Twelfth street, a 16 year old girl, had $18 deposited in the bank.

"I should like to get the money back," she said, "for I earned it myself and wanted to start a savings account. But I don't need it as much as these poor people need their deposits, and I hope they get paid first."

FAILURE AFTER FAILURE—NO ACTION

"Tribune" Campaign of Ten Years for Control of Private Institutions Cited.

For the last ten years THE TRIBUNE has fought for state supervision of privately owned banks. It has urged legislation and it has asked that action be taken by the city council to curb the operations of the private institutions in Chicago at least.

Nothing has been done. A sign bearing the word "Bank," a few fixtures, a safe, and a hole through which he can reach out and rake in the savings of gullible depositors are all that a man needs to become a banker. They blossom over night, bear fruit in a few weeks, and then flit from sight, leaving widows, fathers, and orphans clutching a few sheets of worthless paper bound in the shape of a bank book.

The police eventually catch them unless they have done well enough to skip the country, and they are brought back to face prosecution. Sometimes they go to jail, more often they go free, but in neither case does the depositor get his money back.

And most of these banks thrive on the southwest and northwest sides in the foreign born districts, where the "bankers" trade on the superstitions and gullibility of the most ignorant of their race.

Hundreds of thousands of dollars are lost each year through private bank failures. In 1912, following the failure of Dr. Kirby's bank, B. F. Harris of Champaign compiled figures showing there had been eighty-three private bank failures in the last nineteen years, representing losses of $2,266,000. Since then the failures have run up as high as four and five a month.

It was following the Kirby failure, in which about $900 was left out of $150,000, that THE TRIBUNE renewed its vigorous campaign for supervision. A statewide poll taken of national, state, and private banks showed that more than 83 per cent were in favor of supervision. Out of 916 replies, 762 favored supervision and seven were noncommittal.

A poll of the legislature also showed that body favored supervision. At the same time the matter was brought up in the city council, and the corporation counsel held that the city was empowered to pass ordinances regulating privately owned banks. However, action by both the legislature and the council died a sleepy death.

During 1913 there was little agitation, as only nine failed here then. But in 1914 the private institutions began popping like so many bubbles in all parts of the city, and by summer nearly a score had failed. It was found then that a cool million had been lost in the few failures of the preceding year. The first three banks to go under in 1914 entailed a loss of $1,000,000.

The bankers began to get busy again and demand legislation. In May, 1914, Ald. Irwin R. Hazen introduced a resolution in the council asking that the judiciary committee be given a free hand to draft regulations for private banks. Thirty-eight aldermen voted it down. A subcommittee was appointed to draft an ordinance covering the subject, however. Private bankers assailed it and argued before the committee until the measure went up in a puff of smoke.

Since then nothing has been done.

Some bankers come, some bankers go, and much cash is gone forever.

THREAT OF DEATH

Russian Secret Society, Loser in Bank Failure, May Avenge Losses.

George Borgia told a reporter for "The Tribune" that he is the secretary of a Russian secret society and that $750, the funds of the society, were deposited with the Silver bank.

"That money is the hard earned savings of my comrades," he said. "It will be death for the man that stole it. He will not live to tell the tale if he has robbed me and my comrades."

G. O. P. GOVERNOR RACE IS HOTTEST IN PARTY HISTORY

Bitter Downstate Campaign Near End, with All Claiming Lead.

The Republican fight for the governorship has leaped to a stage of ferocity and bitter activity that is making a new record in Illinois politics. Old timers are now willing to admit that this campaign, with a little more than three weeks to go, has displaced the famous soap box primary riots that wound up in the deadlocked state convention of 1904 as the high water mark in factional feeling.

The two colonels—Smith and Lowden—have just about ended their downstate campaigning. Both will enter Chicago this week for a hand to hand battle in every ward in town. Senator Hull has another week outside of Cook county. While he is finishing the counties the Chicago organization, led by Charles S. Deneen, is putting in its hardest licks in his behalf.

Primary to End Bad Feeling.

Strange as the statement may seem to be, the battling Republicans from the candidates down to the precinct workers are a unit in claiming that the bitterness will end with the Sept. 13 primaries. All profess loyalty to whatever state ticket is nominated and the claim is general that the primary contest will have no ill effect upon the national situation and that Illinois is good for a 200,000 plurality for Hughes and Fairbanks.

How They Line Up.

At this stage of the game, with the downstate campaign practically completed and with the Chicago fighting men just issuing from the trenches, the situation, as viewed from each of the three gubernatorial headquarters is about thus:

HULL.

Senator Hull started late. He has had to encounter solidified organization support for Lowden in many counties and has entered others where he had no organized strength of his own. He has been helped materially downstate by the open support of the Anti-Saloon league.

His publicity campaign has been extensive. The charges made therein, which have shaken Lowden in some sections, have contributed much to the general excitement. Mr. Deneen and Roy O. West, in charge of his Cook county campaign, have formed a city wide organization that they claim is ready for anything that may come along.

SMITH.

"Col. Smith has been "going it alone," and has been campaigning for a solid year. Reports have been displayed privately at his headquarters which tend to depreciate materially claims in other camps that the big Republican counties are to be delivered bodily to one or the other of the three candidates.

He has pounded for the last week for the labor vote and has used effectively in the downstate that he is the only candidate not tied up with a Cook county faction. His managers claim to be able to develop a big surprise in the quantity of Smith strength that will be displayed when he gets to going in Chicago.

LOWDEN.

Col. Lowden's managers, downstate and locally, are supremely confident. They claim that they have the party organization in 90 per cent of the downstate counties, and it is conceded that they have twenty-six of the thirty-five Chicago wards and most of the country towns, as far as the regular organization is concerned.

Col. Lowden has refrained from personalities in his downstate speaking campaign. His first big Chicago meeting will be at the Auditorium Thursday night. Chicago and the downstate cities are plastered with Lowden publicity. His friends do not see how he can lose.

CLAIMS OF HULL CAMP.

From the Hull headquarters Roy O. West gave out this statement:

"A detailed survey of the week's campaigning in central Illinois shows that the Hull cause is now growing by leaps and bounds and the Lowden campaign is steadily sliding. Everywhere Senator Hull was met by Progressive Republicans, former Progressives, and workers for good government generally, who not only promised their support, but volunteered to help by rallying others to our cause."

Smith in Chicago Thursday.

Col. Smith will open his personal Chicago campaign next Thursday. The first meeting will be at the Garrick theater at noon that day, and after that the downstate candidate will devote virtually all his time to Chicago.

"It is becoming more and more plain every day that Col. Smith is the choice of the downstate Republicans for the governorship," John C. Ames said in reviewing the situation. "His downstate canvass has been the most successful that Illinois has seen in years. The people of farms and of the towns, and the downstate workingmen have shown an interest in his campaign that would not be believed by those not in touch with conditions."

Lowden's Big Meeting.

The big Lowden meeting of the week doubtless will be one announced for the Auditorium on Thursday evening, under the auspices of the recently organized Frank O. Lowden Business Men's association, of which David R. Forgan is president and Gordon Ramsay, secretary. Mr. Forgan will preside. On the platform will be the other officers—Vice Presidents John V. Farwell, George M. Reynolds, Frank W. Gunsaulus Charles G. Dawes, Arthur Dixon, John F. Smulski, Edgar A. Bancroft, Wallace Heckman, Alexander H. Revell, Samuel M. Felton, Arthur D. Bevan, and W. T. Fenton.

Tickets can be obtained at the office of Secretary Ramsay, room 1134 Otis building, 10 South La Salle street.

NUTSHELL POLITICS

Jottings on National, State, and City Candidates and Events.

Col. Frank O. Lowden, in addition to his Chicago speeches this week, will speak at the Piatt county fair at Monticello on Wednesday, in Du Page county on Friday, and will wind up his downstate campaign at Martinton, Iroquois county, Saturday.

Senator Morton D. Hull will close his downstate campaign with a whirlwind campaign through central and southwestern Illinois, on the following schedule: Monday, Carthage; Tuesday, Quincy; Wednesday, Edwardsville, Alton, Jerseyville; Thursday, Carrollton, White Hall, Winchester, Concord, Beardstown; Friday, Jacksonville, Havana, West Havana, Lewistown, Canton, Peoria; Saturday, Eureka, El Paso, Chenoa, Bloomington.

Medill McCormick, Republican candidate for congressman at large, will be in Will county tomorrow. Tuesday he is at Toluca; Wednesday in De Kalb county; Thursday in Winnebago county. Next week he will go to Maine to campaign for the Republican national committee.

Secretary of State Lewis G. Stevenson has received many proffers of support from automobile owners, who like the way he has handled the interests of motorists in the official conduct of his office.

Eight and one-half tons of paper will be needed for printing the one and one-quarter million sample ballots that the regular Republican organization will send out. Assistant Secretary Emil J. Wentzlaff, it is announced from headquarters, has obtained the necessary supply in the open market and the ballots will go out on time. Thomas J. Healy, chairman of the publicity committee at Deneen headquarters, has secured paper for a million and a half ballots for his faction.

Wayne B. Wheeler of Washington, D. C., general attorney for the Anti-Saloon League of America, was the principal speaker at the opening of headquarters last night for M. P. Boynton, who is seeking the Republican nomination for congress in the Second district against Representative Mann. Mr. Wheeler's chief indictment of Mr. Mann was his failure to support the amendment for national prohibition, but he also said that Mr. Mann's record on all public questions shows the time is ripe for a change.

Adolph Marks, who was a candidate for the Republican nomination for attorney general about the time of the Peoria convention, is working for the nomination of Senator Barr and has sent out a statement in Barr's behalf. He is Republican state committeeman from the First district.

Organization endeavor of all factions and parties will be directed on Wednesday to getting out a full registration of all unregistered voters. It is the only day of registration prior to primary day.

The candidacy of Charles F. White, Republican, for secretary of state, was endorsed at a meeting of real estate men held yesterday in the Cunard building.

Albert J. Flynn, Democratic candidate for state auditor, has issued a protest against the use of the American flag by political candidates.

John M. Glenn, secretary of the Illinois Manufacturers' association, has issued a "Who's Who for the Legislature," containing a list of the 687 primary candidates for senate and house, their addresses, and their occupations. The association is making no recommendations.

George F. Skleba, secretary of the Twenty-sixth Ward Frank L. Smith Republican club, has notified Edward J. Brundage that the club has indorsed Mr. Brundage for attorney general. The Thirty-fourth ward regulars also indorsed Brundage.

Among the visitors at Dunne headquarters at Hotel Morrison yesterday was "Kid" Donnelly, a champion boxer of many years back. He had letters from Vice President Marshall and Senator Lewis.

ASKS FOR VICE INJUNCTION.

Samuel P. Thrasher, superintendent of the Committee of Fifteen, filed yesterday another petition for an injunction in the Circuit court seeking to restrain Jacob M. Eisenberg and other unknown lessees of the premises at 32 West Twentieth street and 1939 Archer avenue from "continuing to maintain the premises" as disorderly houses.

DUNNE TO TAKE UP SOLDIER VOTE SESSION AT ONCE

Governor Expected to Call Legislators When He Learns Views.

Gov. Dunne will be back from the Mexican border tomorrow or Tuesday and the first matter that will be brought to his official attention is the advisability of summoning a special session of the Illinois legislature to pass an emergency act by which Illinois soldiers now on duty may vote on Sept. 13 and Nov. 7.

Nineteen state senators and sixty-three members of the house of representatives are openly pledged to attend such a special session, if one is called, and there is every indication that practically unanimous sentiment of members of the general assembly is favorable to rapid action.

Newspapers Indorse Plan.

The downstate newspapers, almost without exception, have given editorial indorsement to the plan, as suggested by Representative Medill McCormick, who is taking a census of legislators to crystallize the sentiment, so Gov. Dunne may have a line on how the lawmakers feel about it.

The political committees, state and county, are for the proposition, regardless of party. Chairman Fred E. Sterling of the Republican state central committee, has sent a strong plea to Gov. Dunne for action. Chairman Arthur W. Charles of the Democratic state committee is expected to make personal recommendation to Gov. Dunne that the session be called forthwith.

View of Gov. Dunne.

Gov. Dunne has made no statement with respect to the matter since the declaration given to THE TRIBUNE on the eve of his departure for the border camps, when he said: "I shall give to the subject my most earnest consideration."

While touching elbows with the Illinois troops at San Antonio and Brownsville it is believed that he has become convinced that there is little chance that the boys will be home before the November election and certainly not before the September primary.

There is every ground for belief that Gov. Dunne when he looks over the replies from members of the legislature to Mr. McCormick's request will not delay in issuing the call. It may be that the call will be issued this week for a session to be held at Springfield next week.

New Replies Received.

Mr. McCormick announced the following list of members of the legislature who joined the affirmative column in replies received by him yesterday, [R] being Republican, [D] Democrat, and [S] Socialist:

A few have suggested that the "absent voter" proposition that was before the last regular session should be included. Objection to this is heard on all hands, for fear of complicating the issue and precipitating a special session that might last for two weeks or more.

SENATORS.

D. T. Woodard (D.),
P. W. Abt (R.),
E. J. Hughes (D.).

REPRESENTATIVES.

The total of affirmative replies now stands:

ONLY A WEEK OR TWO OF MARRIED LIFE FOR ADELE.

Actress Tells Judge Walker She and Actor Husband Separated—Month After Wedding.

Adele Rowland's married life lasted a brief week or two, according to her testimony before Judge Walker yesterday. The musical comedy actress, whose real name is Mrs. Clara P. Levy Ruggles and whose divorce action against Charles Ruggles caused a mild stir in the loop, came from New York to testify.

Miss Rowland and Ruggles were married on March 26, 1914. Miss Rowland testified that they separated a month later. Miss Rowland came into some publicity last spring when she was named in an action brought by the wife of Conway Tearle, a New York actor.

Ruggles, who is an actor in California, did not appear to contest the suit and the decree was given on his default.

ALD. DE PRIEST EXPLAINS HIS INTEREST IN "PANAMA."

Admits He Went to Front for Levin and Says He Did It Because Negroes Have Jobs in Place.

Oscar De Priest, Negro alderman from the Second ward, yesterday told how he "went to the front" to obtain the restoration of the license of Isadore Levin's Panama café, 3501 South State street.

"I asked Chief Healey to restore the license and I'm not ashamed of it," he said. "There was no immorality in the café. The report against it was made by two prejudiced policewomen who saw Negroes and white people mingling in the café.

"I make no secret of my motives. Levin employs about forty Negroes and it isn't every day you can get jobs for colored people."

COL F. L. SMITH CLOSES HIS DOWNSTATE CAMPAIGN.

Urges Voters of Mattoon, Charleston, Paris, and Other Towns to Shun Chicago Squabble.

Mattoon, Ill., Aug. 19.—Col. Frank L. Smith of Dwight closed his big downstate campaign tonight with speeches here and at Charleston, county seat of Coles county. He had great Saturday audiences at both places, as well as at all stops for the day, which included Paris, Oakland, and several smaller places.

At Paris, where Charles F. Hitch, editor of the Beacon and clerk of the United States District court, has recently declared for Smith, he was given a particularly enthusiastic reception.

"Never in its history has the Republican party had a better opportunity to win a splendid victory in Illinois than it has now," Col. Smith said in his speeches today. "I urge the voters not to throw that opportunity away by getting mixed up in any Chicago factional contest over Cook county offices. Stick to Republicanism and have nothing to do with factionist candidates."

HUGHES THRILLS CROWD BY APPEAL TO PATRIOTISM

Repeats Demand for Efficiency in Government — Forced Into Labor Struggle.

BY CHARLES N. WHEELER.

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 19.—[Special.]—The Hughes meeting in Oakland this afternoon was one of the best he has had on his tour. More than 10,000 persons crowded into the new civic center auditorium and 2,000 couldn't get in. His Americanism and efficiency stand deeply stirred the crowd.

"There is a fine American spirit in this country," he said. "If any one doubts it let him make the sort of trip I have been making. If any one thinks we have lost the indomitable spirit of our fathers let him go through this country addressing American audiences and he will find that the spirit of '76 and the spirit of '61 is still the spirit of 1916."

Hughes talked tariff and preparedness and was cheered for his advocacy of the Republican doctrine. He declared that the Democratic half hearted support of the tariff commission didn't mean anything, for the Democrats stood for tariff for revenue only and that didn't require a tariff committee.

Criticizes Wilson Administration.

Criticizing the Wilson administration he said:

"I judge the administration not by its words, but by its deeds. I judge the administration by the quality of the men it has put in office."

He declared again that incompetent men had been given political jobs by the Wilson administration as a reward for political service.

"I am opposed," he said, "to invisible government. I want visible government competently administered not only by those selected by the people but by those appointees of the elected officials who represent the competent intelligence and talent of American communities."

He asserted that the government of the United States could not be properly conducted by mixing politics with business, with preparedness, with the maintenance of international honor, or with other administrative functions of government.

"When you start out to be military, be military and not political," Mr. Hughes said.

Forced Into Labor Struggle.

Hughes got into another jam today. This time it was the union and nonunion bosses who made his stay here unpleasant. He was forced to eat luncheon at the Commercial club, served by nonunion waiters, who had replaced the union men, with pickets for the union howling on the outside.

Hughes had told the political bosses of both factions he would not meddle in their strife, and then he was dumped right down into the center of a labor row at the Commercial club.

It was the more aggravating because he had come direct from the Union Iron works plant, where he had addressed several thousand workers, declaring for a getting together of employer and employe and advocating both the conservation of children and women and the establishment of old age pensions.

Johnson After Crocker.

The Keesling-Crocker old guard crowd would not give in to the unions, and they jammed the program through, forcing Hughes into one of the bitter labor disputes stirring San Francisco. At the same time Gov. Johnson was down in the south end of the state ripping the political hide off National Committeeman Crocker and his aids. He has got Crocker's 'goat.'

From a factional standpoint Hughes will be glad when he shakes the dust of California from his shoes, although he was beyond this squabbling and believes the rank and file of the state are not concerned much about the personality of the local bosses, but view with him the transcendent national outlook.

Champions Laborers' Causes.

While being forced to have his meals served by strikebreakers at the wealthy and powerful Commercial club, he struck some hard licks for the rights of the workingman at the iron works.

He declared that men who work in the mills are entitled, not as a matter of favor but as a right, to the best safety appliances obtainable.

"We should get away from the idea that what is done for labor is a favor," he said. "Labor in asking proper protection from hazardous employment is asking only its right. I am here to see that justice is done. I am here to see that the right thing is done.

"I stand for old age pensions. That is not a favor, but a right. I stand for compensation, for a better understanding. There isn't a difference in this country that cannot be adjusted by a fair and impartial investigation of all the facts. The trouble is we don't get down to the facts. I am opposed to turmoil. You can't get proper wages out of turmoil. You ought to have proper wages based on the facts. I stand for facts."

PAPER SHORTAGE WORRIES COOK ELECTION OFFICIALS.

See Scarcity of Dyes to Make Ballots of Various Colors, as Required by the Law.

County Clerk Robert M. Sweitzer and Dennis J. Egan of the board of election commissioners are worried. The September primaries are approaching, and of course ballots must be provided in spite of the scarcity of paper.

There is considerable speculation on the part of Mr. Sweitzer and Mr. Egan as to where the ballots of different color are to be procured and as to how much they will be able to pay. The election commissioners must order more than 3,500,000 ballots. That the paper will cost much more than previous years is evident, for Mr. Egan's secretary states that print paper has advanced over 200 per cent. Then, too, on Monday paper will be advanced 2 cents a pound.

"This paper problem is a serious one," said Mr. Egan's secretary. "With the wood pulp cut off from Russia, and the dyes not coming in from Germany, paper has gone sky high. The statute demands that the ballot of each party be of a different color. This year I believe the Democratic primary ballot will be 12x24 inches, the Republican 12x28 inches, and the Progressive and Socialist about 12x12 inches. The women's ballot will be 8x10 inches."

"I am up against it, too," said Mr. Sweitzer yesterday. "I doubt much whether I shall be able to secure paper long enough for the primary ballot."

Man's Head Taken from Lake.

The head of a man was taken from the lake yesterday at the foot of Thirteenth street. Boys swimming in the lake saw the head and notified the South Clark street police. It is supposed to have been from some medical school.

G. O. P. CAMP ON 'HIGH GEAR' FOR WESTERN FIGHT

Hert Orders 'Full Speed Ahead' as Organization Is Perfected.

"Full speed ahead!" is the order that Western Manager Alvin T. Hert issued to the Republican organization making the campaign in the west for Hughes and Fairbanks.

Final touches are being placed upon the preliminary arrangements at the Conway building headquarters. Mr. Hert, who was summoned from New York for an important conference of the party managers, is expected to return to Chicago tomorrow morning.

Men have been picked carefully for places of responsibility in the headquarters organization. Physical details of the seventh floor of the Conway building, all of which is to be used by the Republican workers, are being pushed to completion rapidly, under the supervision of "Dave" Owen, sergeant at arms of the western headquarters staff. By Thursday Mr. Hert expects to be going under a full head of steam.

Hert Gives Review of Campaign.

Before departing for New York Mr. Hert issued this statement of conditions at the end of the first week of the campaign:

"At western Republican national headquarters we are just about all set to put in motion the liveliest, most energetic, and thoroughly organized campaign that the states in the Mississippi valley and westward to the Pacific coast ever have had mapped out for them.

"By Aug. 25, the mass of detail necessitated in preparing an extensive headquarters staff will have been completed and the real business of the campaign will be started.

"Coöperating completely and harmoniously in the organization of the departments and bureaus and in the apportionment of the work that is to be accomplished are the men who have been appointed to the campaign committee by Chairman Willcox.

No Question of Loyalty.

"There can be no question, judged by the evidence of the week just closed, of the loyalty and the aggressive activity of the men of the Republican organization and of the men who were conspicuous in the Progressive party, in behalf of the election of Hughes and Fairbanks.

"I may predict with safety that within two weeks the west will be aroused to the results of a fighting campaign organization that will be on the job every minute."

Adjoining national committee headquarters have been established the organization of the Republican national congressional campaign committee. John C. Eversman, secretary, is in executive charge.

"We will work in thorough harmony with the national committee and its western managers at every stage of the game," Mr. Eversman said.

HIS HORSESHOES BRING LUCK TO POSTMASTER CAMPBELL.

When String Breaks on One of His Collection He Expects to Turn Job Over to Somebody Else.

Postmaster Daniel A. Campbell is superstitious. His superstition runs to horseshoes. He has a collection of them, which he has picked up all over the country—each adding to his luck, he says. He has a shoe hanging over his desk in his private office. Another hangs by a string over the door in the outer office.

"Yes, I've seen the postmaster run out between wagons on the street to pick up a horseshoe," said Frank Stewart, an employé. "He has enough to fill that little room back there. One of them he brought home all the way from Georgia.

"We started to take them all down once when Mr. Campbell thought he was going to leave the office, and now just the two are left. He says that when the string breaks and lets the one over the front door fall his time will come and somebody else will be postmaster."

Fire Causes $5,000 Loss.

AN ANNOUNCEMENT of Unusual Importance to Every Merchant, Manufacturer, Contractor or Farmer

$2.50 per day will now buy a guaranteed One Ton Truck built by a responsible manufacturer.

It Will Earn $8 or $10 Per Day for You Doing Any Kind of Work, or It Will Save You That Amount in Your Hauling Cost

You can, therefore, pay for this truck out of the money it saves you, besides cut your hauling and delivery costs in half.

This is the first opportunity the small merchant, manufacturer or farmer has had to buy a reliable one ton truck backed by such a well-known, dependable manufacturer on such easy terms.

This wonderful proposition is only made possible through the ingenuity and enterprise of the Redden Motor Truck Company, Detroit, Michigan, applied to the product of Henry Ford's tremendous resources and facilities.

The Redden-Ford ONE TON TRUCK is built for truck service. It is not a so-called "light delivery wagon" with thin pneumatic tires and light axle, but is a husky one ton truck with solid truck rear axle, springs, wheels and truck tires, so constructed as to utilize the wonderful Ford engine as the power plant.

This Redden-Ford Ton Truck combines all the well-known efficiency and economy of the Ford motor with the sturdiness and strength of the "Redden-Truck-Maker"—which is virtually a ton truck less the engine and front axle.

The "Redden-Truck-Maker" is built by truck experts of the best materials obtainable, and is so designed that when combined with any Ford (new or used) it forms a complete guaranteed one ton truck, so constructed that all the load is carried on the solid steel truck axle, wheels and truck tires, thus relieving the Ford, and simply using the Ford engine as a power plant, geared down to proper truck speed and conditions.

The "Redden-Truck-Maker" only costs $350.00 f. o. b. Detroit. With it you can convert any Ford into a reliable truck in a few hours without in any way altering the Ford rear axle.

If you have no Ford we can purchase one for you, or we will sell you a Redden-Ford truck complete with any type body on a small cash payment and the balance at $2.50 per day.

It costs about the same as a team of horses and will do four times the work.

Its cost of operation is about the same as a Ford pleasure car, and only about one-half of that of the ordinary ton truck.

Hundreds in use all over the country, let us send you a list of enthusiastic owners.

Redden-Ford One Ton Truck

IMPORTANT NOTICE TO DEALERS: We own the EXCLUSIVE LICENSE under Cook Patent No. 1,180,475, which absolutely controls the manufacture of attachments for converting pleasure cars into trucks. All others are infringers and will be proceeded against accordingly. We have already sued one prominent Chicago manufacturer as an example and will proceed against others immediately. If you are a dealer don't take chances selling or using infringing devices.

If you sell the "Redden-Truck-Maker" you are not only backed by the Cook Patent, but also by our half a million dollar capital — that's your protection.

Automobile Agents, Carriage and Wagon and Farm Implement Dealers are making big money selling the "Redden-Truck-Maker," because every farmer, merchant or manufacturer can be shown how he can cut his haulage or delivery expense in half. Wire us today for agency proposition.

MISSOURI MOOSE LEADER BOOSTS WILSON POLICIES

Judge A. B. Nortoni, in Chicago After Talk with President, Criticizes Hughes' Stand.

Judge Albert D. Nortoni, Missouri Progressive chieftain, who, with Bainbridge Colby of New York, Mathew Hale of Massachusetts, Francis J. Heney of California, and other Bull Moose leaders, has affiliated with the Democratic national committee for the reelection of President Wilson, conferred in Chicago yesterday with Senator Thomas J. Walsh, western Democratic campaign manager.

Judge Nortoni, who was the Progressive nominee for governor of Missouri in 1912, came to Chicago from Washington and New York, where he and his Progressive associates lunched with President Wilson and Vance C. McCormick, chairman of the Democratic national committee.

Nortoni Issues Statement.

The publicity bureau at western Democratic headquarters gave out the following statement from Judge Nortoni:

"Gov. Hughes does not seem to grasp the spirit of the Progressive movement. The fact that he used his influence when governor of New York against the income tax amendment and vetoed the 2 cent fare bill indicates clearly that he is not imbued with Progressive ideas. Progressives naturally view with approval the successful operation of the federal reserve act and look with favor upon the creation of the federal trade commission which they recommended in their 1912 platform.

"It goes without saying that all Progressives favor a national child labor law, and credit must be given President Wilson for the recent enactment of that measure, because without his influence it would not have been acted upon this session. Then, too, the rural credits law is one of the most progressive measures ever enacted by congress.

"Gov. Hughes will fail if he attempts to make the tariff an issue in this campaign. All three parties declared for a scientific tariff commission in their platforms this year, and it is idle for Gov. Hughes to urge a blanket policy of protection when the tariff board may find after scientific investigation that protection will only be needed in specific schedules.

"What Progressives most desire is to take the tariff out of politics, and this a scientific nonpartisan tariff commission, such as advocated by President Wilson, will do."

Calls Wilson Right on Railroads.

Judge Nortoni indicated particular interest in the efforts of President Wilson to settle the threatened railroad strike. He asserted that he heartily approved the president's position that the proposition of an eight hour work day is not a question for arbitration.

"The eight hour principle is statutory law in practically every state," said Judge Nortoni. "It has been on the books in Missouri since 1867, the year I was born. A matter that is universally settled by law or accepted as right and just in the minds of the people should not be submitted to arbitration.

"If the railroads could force arbitration on such an issue the liquor interests, with equal propriety, could demand that the question of enforcing the Sunday closing law should be submitted to arbitration, even though that law has been on the statute books for year. Just because men have worked ten hours or have been forced to labor longer than they are required to do by law is no reason why a question of recognized right should be submitted to arbitration. In my opinion, the president's position cannot be successfully attacked."

QUESTIONS RUBLEE'S RIGHT ON FEDERAL TRADE BODY.

Gallinger Assails Position of Wilson Appointee After Nomination Is Rejected in Congress.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 19.—[Special.]—A resolution inquiring by what authority of law George Rublee continues to perform the duties of a member of the federal trade commission was introduced in the senate by Senator Gallinger of New Hampshire.

Rublee was nominated for the federal trade commission by President Wilson, but no action was taken by the senate on his nomination. The president gave him a recess appointment and when congress reconvened renominated him.

After some weeks his nomination was rejected by a majority of one at the instance of Senator Gallinger, who claimed he was personally objectionable. The president has named no one in his place and Rublee has continued to perform the duties to which he was assigned originally by virtue of his recess appointment.

Painful Swollen Veins Quickly Relieved and Reduced

Mrs. R. M. Remler, of Federal, Kansas, writes an interesting account of her success in reducing a severe case of enlarged veins that should be encouraging to others similarly afflicted. She suffered with badly swollen and inflamed veins [in fact, one had broken] for more than seven years before she became acquainted with Absorbine, Jr., and used it. Absorbine, Jr., was faithfully applied for several weeks, and to quote from her letter: "The large knots in the veins left, it was all nicely healed, and has not bothered me since."

THOMPSON OUSTS LORIMER FRIEND

W. G. Gregori, Ex-Senator's Brother-in-Law, "Fired" from City Hall Job.

CONGRESS FIGHT ECHO.

William G. Gregori, a brother-in-law of William Lorimer, was ousted from the city pay roll yesterday on orders from Mayor Thompson.

Mr. Gregori was told that his support of Lorimer for congress in the Sixth district disqualified him for the position of third assistant superintendent of streets, which he has held for about a year. The salary is $3,600.

The city hall forces are backing Arthur W. Fulton for congress in the Sixth despite the fact that Mayor Thompson used to be affiliated with the Lorimer organization.

Put Out in Rapid Fire Order.

Mr. Gregori was put out in short order. On Friday he was first notified that he would have to quit by David W. Clark, vice president of the board of local improvements and Thompson ward committeeman from the Thirteenth ward. This notice was "confirmed" later by Superintendent of Streets August Miller, and Mr. Gregori quit yesterday.

Mr. Gregori has no complaint to make and he took his dismissal philosophically.

"It's part of the political game," he said. "Mr. Clark told me it was embarrassing to the administration to have me in this position, so I was let out.

Long Lorimer's Friend.

"I have been supporting Lorimer. I have been his friend for years. As far as other offices are concerned I have been suporting the administration candidates. I am still secretary of the Thirteenth Ward Republican club, I think."

Mr. Gregori and Mr. Lorimer married sisters. Prior to his entering the city service Mr. Gregori was nine years execution clerk in the sheriff's office. While no information was given out as to Mr. Gregori's successor, it is considered probable he will be selected from the Sixth district.

Held on Embezzlement Charge.

Albert Sizer, 1521 Elburn avenue, formerly a deliveryman for the Hub, was arrested on a charge of larceny by embezzlement yesterday on complaint of Frank Richmond, house detective for the store. He is alleged to have collected $30 for goods delivered and failed to turn in the money to his employers.

SPEAKER CLARK OPENS IN MAINE; ASSAILS HUGHES

Shot His Bolt, Missouri Man Says—Praises Work of Wilson Administration.

Brunswick, Me., Aug. 19.—Champ Clark, speaker of the house of representatives, opened the campaign in Maine for the Democrats today with a bitter attack on Charles E. Hughes and praise for the Wilson administration.

"Mr. Hughes has made enough speeches to enable intelligent persons to form something approximating a correct judgment as to his opinions on current issues," Mr. Clark said. "He has shot his bolt, but failed to hit the bull's eye.

Ridicules Hughes' Speeches.

"His speeches may be not unfairly summed up as 'querulous carpings' at the splendid record of a Democratic congress and a Democratic administration. Here and there out of a vast multitude of things he finds a few of minor character which he deems unsatisfactory to him—which even if wrong have no more to do with the tremendous problems with which a mighty people are wrestling than have the potato vines of Aroostook county, Maine, to do with the majestic flow of the Mississippi river.

"He endeavors to make an issue of the separation of E. Dana Durand from the payroll as director of the census. I know Mr. Durand. He is an estimable gentleman, but he had no vested right to the office which he held.

All Favor "Americanism."

"Mr. Hughes says that he is in favor of 'undiluted Americanism.' So are we all, God be praised! He is not peculiar in that respect."

Dies After Train Struggle.

Henry Grunewald, a farm laborer, who suffered a broken back when he was thrown from a moving freight car near Shelby, Ind., while struggling with another farm hand, died yesterday at the county hospital. The identity of his assailant is not known to the police.

DR. BEVAN GIVES REASON FOR SUPPORT OF LOWDEN.

Physician Believes Reform in State Charities Will Follow Victory for His Candidate.

Dr. Arthur Dean Bevan, in an interview yesterday, gave his reasons for supporting the candidacy of Col. F. O. Lowden for the Republican nomination for governor. Dr. Bevan said:

"There is a matter that lies close to my heart, and that is an earnest desire to see politics taken out of all medical state charities. It is time to put an end to the sensational scandals that have disrupted the efficiency of our state institutions.

"This is an age of specialization, therefore let us place at the heads of our several charitable departments medical experts eminently qualified to direct them. The unfortunates of Illinois have too long suffered at the hands of politico doctors, who have sapped the efficiency of the state's charities to enrich themselves at the public's expense.

"I have known Frank O. Lowden for years. He is a believer in systematic specialization in business. It is only consistent to expect, therefore, that under his leadership, politics and expert medical service will be divorced and Illinois' state charities will reach their highest degree of usefulness. That is why I strongly favor his nomination and election."

SEEK WOMAN AFTER DEATH

Police Believe She Can Explain Attack Which Caused Death of Italian.

Michael Moro, an Italian living in Highland Park, who was struck on the head, supposedly with an iron rod, as he left a saloon near Harrison and South Sangamon streets early yesterday with a woman, whose name was given as Mrs. Mary Keating of 318 South Sangamon street, died at the county hospital yesterday of a fracture of the skull. Mrs. Keating disappeared. The police believe a jealous suitor was the Italian's assailant.

KATE ADAMS LAW INVOKED

Jacob Eisenberg Hit by Injunction Suit to Close Levee District Property.

A bill asking an injunction under the Kate Adams abatement law against Jacob Eisenberg, 175 West Jackson boulevard, as owner of the buildings at 82 West Twentieth street and 1939 Archer avenue, was filed yesterday by Samuel P. Thrasher, superintendent of the Committee of Fifteen. The buildings, the bill says, are being used for disorderly purposes.

SHERMAN FLAYS GOMPERS AS A LABOR PARASITE

Senator Reed Defends Workers' Leader from Illinoisan's Bitter Attack.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 19.—[Special.]—Senators Sherman of Illinois and Reed of Missouri engaged in a bitter debate in the senate today over the merits of the attack made by Senator Sherman several days ago on Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor.

Senator Reed criticised Senator Sherman for assailing Gompers. He became so bitter that Senator Gallinger, the Republican leader, called him to order. Senator Sherman told the senator he would answer Reed in his own time. When Reed concluded Senator Sherman took the floor and made an even more vigorous attack on Gompers than in his earlier speech.

Cites Gompers' Activities.

Senator Reed intimated that Gompers had never engaged in political activities.

"I know something of Mr. Gompers' activities," Senator Sherman said. "I know that a hundred thousand letters bearing Mr. Gompers' signature were distributed in Illinois blacklisting me; he saw fit to mark for slaughter in the election of 1914 every senator who voted contrary to his orders."

Senator Sherman declared Gompers a "parasite upon organized labor" and "a creeping, poisoned ivy on the structure of the entire world."

"I draw a distinction," he said, "between those who represent enlightened organized labor and those who prostitute their movement."

Paints Gompers as Czar.

The senator told the senate that during his long service in the Illinois legislature he had never been attacked by any legitimate union man for his actions.

"Not one word was ever heard until Mr. Gompers took it upon himself to destroy senators in this body who refused to take his orders," he said.

Senator Sherman declared Gompers a bluffer and a coward. Senator Reed arose and asked why Senator Sherman didn't accept his challenge to a debate.

Senator Sherman replied he wouldn't debate any question with "any man whom he detested more than the American skunk."

Senator Sherman invited Gompers to settle in Illinois and run for the senate, just to give the people a chance to show what they think of him.

"If he doesn't like Illinois," said the senator, "he has an open field of forty-eight states."

ECHO FROM THAT VICE RAID ON GRAND BOULEVARD FLAT.

Roderick Robertson Corrects Errors in Report of Mrs. Pressman's Wrath Toward His Household.

Because Mrs. Estella Pressman, one of the women arrested in the raid on an apartment at 3516 Grand boulevard, believes that the maid at 3518 Grand boulevard wrote a letter "tipping off" the place another series of mixups has occurred. It was reported that Mrs. Pressman visited the apartment of Mrs. Roderick Robertson of 3518 Grand boulevard after she had called her on the telephone and threatened her.

As a matter of fact, there is no Mrs. Roderick Robertson. Roderick Robertson, a widower, whose household consists of a 12 year old daughter, her governess, and a maid, lives at 3518. Mrs. Pressman scared the maid, in the absence of the governess, until she called the police. It is believed Mrs. Pressman was seeking some one else in the same building.

Police Captain Healy said last night that the household goods at 3516, where the raid took place, were packed up, and he understood they would be removed tomorrow. It was in this raid that two "members of the South Shore Country club" were arrested. Their identity is still a mystery.

COOK STOVE

In this revolutionary device the electric heat is applied inside a fireless cooker. THE HEAT DOESN'T ESCAPE INTO THE KITCHEN any more than the electricity escapes through the insulation of the electric cord with which you connect the cooker to your [illegible]

CHEAPER THAN GAS

This is the only device ever perfected which CONCENTRATES ALL THE HEAT OF COOKING IN THE FOOD. Therefore it is not only BETTER and EASIER and MORE CONVENIENT, but it makes cooking with electricity CHEAPER than cooking with gas.

LABOR SAVING

There is no preliminary cooking of the food nor heating of [illegible]. You simply place the food in the cooker, close down the lid and turn on the current. When the proper temperature is reached you turn off the current and the cooking continues without further expense, because all the heat that has been created is INSIDE with the food and can not get out.

There is nothing complicated about it. In fact it is the [illegible] simple form of cooking ever devised.

BETTER COOKING

Food is more delicious when cooked this way, because all the natural juices are retained, not converted into vapors and odors.

Hudson Now Holds World's Greatest Hill-Climbing Record

Makes Fastest Time Up Pike's Peak

No hill-climb or mountain test in the world equals that imposed on motor cars that race to the summit of Pike's Peak. A Hudson Super-Six Special made the best time of more than 20 contestants to the top of America's most famous mountain, over the longest, steepest, highest travelable road in the world.

The start, at a mile and three-quarters above the sea, is higher by far than is the altitude of the finishing line in most hill-climbs.

The finishing point of Pike's Peak is almost two and three-quarters miles above sea level. In the twelve and a fraction miles of the course there are 60 turns, and the rise is almost one mile high. There is no place where the car is not climbing.

The high altitude affects the power efficiency of the motor and water boils at such low temperature that motors cannot be cooled as they are in lower levels.

Hudson Fastest Time

The Hudson climbed up this winding steep road to the "Top of the World" in 18 minutes, 24 seconds. Its time was 2½ minutes faster than the next fastest car.

This feat now gives to Hudson practically every worth-while record. In speed—when 102.3 miles an hour was attained at Daytona; in endurance—when 1819 miles were covered in 24 hours, with a stock Super-Six chassis we established marks not likely soon to be equaled.

Now we have added to these the greatest of all hill-climbing feats. In it we have shown the endurance of the Super-Six.

Others Failed

Motors of some of the most famous racing cars in the world were unable to withstand the strain of that climb and so did not get to the summit.

It is constant hard pulling all the way and more than three-quarters of the distance must be made in second speed, even with specially geared cars.

In addition to mere climbing, as is required in all hill-climbs, here is added the difficulties of carburetion and cooling.

The altitude that affects one's breathing so much that even the strongest man can stand only the least amount of physical exertion, has a similar effect in reducing the power of the motor.

We made that record in a contest in which were entered, as described by a Denver newspaper, "Fours—Sixes—Eights—Twelves and Super-Sixes."

And, as in all tests in which they have been entered, the best performance was shown by the Super-Six.

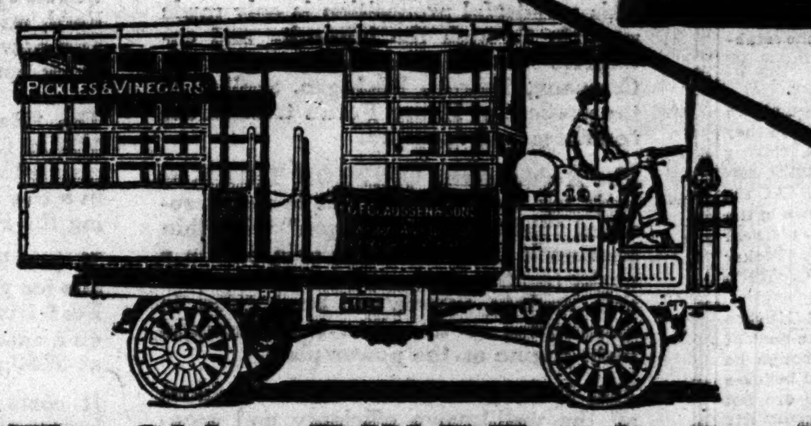
The Truck That Is Always Young

FWD



The Oldest F-W-D Trucks Can Be Fitted With the Latest F-W-D Improvement

Here is science in truck manufacture. F-W-D design is so standardized that the latest 1916 F-W-D improvement can be attached to the F-W-D built one, three or seven years ago.

F-W-D design was right from the start. Drive on all four wheels is the final answer to the demand for an on-the-job-every-day truck, that will last indefinitely, traverse any road, keep out of the repair shop, cut gasoline, oil and tire expense to the bone.

No essential changes have been made in the original model. Because the design was correct—developed after months—years—of the hardest road tests. But occasionally a device can be added that will improve the truck in some detail of its operation.

If you want that device you can have it put on your truck whenever you get ready. That's why F-W-D trucks are always young.

This is just one of scores of important characteristics that places the F-W-D in a class by itself.

Let us prove in your hauling how different and how much better the F-W-D is.

Every wheel of the F-W-D is a drive wheel. No idle wheels. The front wheels climb over bumps, they climb out of ruts and holes. They absorb their own strains instead of transmitting them to the frame and mechanism.

That's why F-W-D lasts years longer than other trucks.

Again—tire wear is distributed over four wheels. Single tires on all four wheels. One-third saving in first cost. Double tire mileage.

That's just one economy. In addition F-W-D Trucks save gasoline; pick up faster at street crossings; thread traffic more rapidly; brake on all four wheels—don't skid—stop quicker, reducing possibility of accidents; keep ON the road and OUT of the repair shop.

'SOLDIER FUND' TO ESTABLISH BASE HOSPITALS

Chicago Red Cross Decides on Disposition of Major Portion of $250,000.

A little more than two months ago the Chicago chapter of the American Red Cross issued an appeal for funds to meet the emergency presented by the mobilization of Chicago regiments of the national guard and their departure for the Mexican border.

"Two hundred and fifty thousand dollars is needed from Chicago now, whether or not war is declared," read the appeal. "More—much more—will be needed if there are protracted hostilities, but $250,000 must be had at once."

The fund was obtained, and nearly $200,000 is now in the hands of the organization. About $50,000 is due in unpaid pledges and these are being redeemed daily.

$30,000 Disbursed.

Inquiry as to the disposition of the amount was made at Red Cross headquarters yesterday by a representative of THE TRIBUNE. It developed these facts: Of the emergency fund, described nine weeks ago as "needed now," $30,000, or about 12 per cent, has been spent. This has been devoted to a continuation of the relief work among needy families of Chicago guardsmen which THE TRIBUNE inaugurated in its "soldiers' fund" before the troops had left the city.

Nothing has been spent for the direct benefit of the soldiers themselves except a nominal amount appropriated for the purchase of electric fans for a San Antonio hospital.

Since the issuing of the appeal for funds "needed whether or not war is declared," it has been determined that little or nothing is to be spent for the direct benefit of the soldiers unless a state of war with Mexico exists.

If there is no war the hospitals to be equipped with the bulk of the fund will be held in reserve by the Red Cross, to be used in the event of any national calamity, such as the Galveston disaster

Base Hospitals Great Need.

"The public is entitled to understand what is being done and we are glad to explain," said John J. O'Connor, director of the Red Cross central division.

"In the first place, it was not our intention to appeal for money to be used exclusively for the immediate situation on the border. The Red Cross has long felt the need of having base hospitals ready for any emergency in the United States. Europe taught us that. Not one nation had them ready, and the situation that resulted drove more than one surgeon insane when he saw how helpless his people were.

"The sending of the troops to the border, of course, brought this need nearer, so we issued our appeal and naturally emphasized the leaving of the guardsmen. If the impression was given that the money was for the soldiers—especially the Chicago soldiers—and the Mexican situation alone, it was a mistake.

"The money has been set aside in a separate fund and all officers commanding troop divisions from Chicago have been asked to send word as to anything that may be needed. The requests have been small.

How Money Is to Be Spent.

The items for which the fund is to be used, according to present plans, are:

Four base hospitals, costing $25,000 each	$100,000
Four field columns, costing $16,000 each	64,000
Aid of dependent families and supplies for sick and wounded men	86,000
Total	$250,000

The base hospitals, to be used only in the event of war or a national calamity, include complete equipments of beds, X-ray and operating outfits, and the like, each hospital equipment consisting of three carloads or paraphernalia, to be shipped to any point in the country where they may be needed.

Aid for 600 Families.

Between 500 and 600 families in Chicago are receiving aid from the only portion of the fund that is now actually being spent. This is going to go on as long as it is needed, and is involving an expenditure of between $12,000 and $15,000 a month. The remaining item is for medical supplies, which are now being prepared by groups of Chicago women and are to be stored in Chicago for use in any emergency. Between $20,000 and $25,000 will be required for this.

In addition, the Red Cross is holding itself ready to meet any small needs of the soldiers as may be reported by troop commanders and approved by the fund committee under A. A. Sprague II., chairman of the Chicago chapter. Several such requests, says Mr. O'Connor, have been rejected.

Recent Appeal Quoted.

The Red Cross appeal, issued in June, which Mr. O'Connor said was not intended to apply entirely to the border situation, contained these sentences:

"It is to save the young men of the United States—our boys who have gone from Chicago—from unnecessary suffering and death that the American National Red Cross has, through the Chicago chapter and other chapters, set about organizing hospital corps, base hospitals, field columns, and other agencies of relief.

"Two hundred and fifty thousand dollars is needed from Chicago at once for these and the absolutely necessary supplies and for aid to the dependent families. Now comes the call to the men and women of Chicago, who stay at home to do their share to alleviate the suffering of the sick and wounded.

"Any man who fights for our country and our people is entitled to the best care we can give him. Let us show that Chicago appreciates the spirit of her boys."

WHO OWNS THE LAKE?

This Young Woman Would Like to Know.

The "Tribune" yesterday received the following letter:

Evanston, Ill., Aug. 18.—An incident at the "Wilmette Accommodation beach." A hot night, a big lake, ready for a nice cool dip. Along came a guard, informs me that I cannot leave my clothes (consisting of one skirt) on the beach. Brave young guard tells me that I must check my skirt.

I reached the checking booth and was told that it would cost me 50 cents. Curses! Only 25 cents in my possession. I told the checker 25 cents was all I had with me. My pleading was all in vain.

Back to my bench I went and sat there fully one hour watching the bathers go in and out of the water. Alas! No guard in sight. I made bold and ventured in, regardless of what happened to the skirt.

Splash! Splash! Splash! How glorious the water did feel! Splash! Splash! Splash! More cold water down my back.

Immediately after emerging I was nabbed by my bold, courageous guard. "Young lady, I have warned you, but you have given no heed. Now, you must come with me and make good."

I didn't know whether I was being arrested for leaving my skirt on the beach unguarded or for putting it on over my bathing suit.

The policeman explained the point that they wish to express is the dressing and undressing on the beach, and if I wanted to use their beach in the future I would have to rent a 50 cent locker, meaning I could not use the beach unless I paid the fee. Very truly, yours, SOPHIA B. EVANS, 2146 Asbury avenue, Evanston, Ill.

P. S.—I wrote this article because I think it is highway robbery charging 50 cents a locker. Furthermore, if the guards would handle people in a more polite fashion they could do a great deal more with the Evanston bathers that use their beach.

WILMETTE BEACH RULE EXPLAINED BY MRS. MARTIN

Seek Only to Bar Outsiders Who Have Not Helped Pay for Improvements.

Mrs. George L. Martin of Wilmette, who has been referred to as the "czarina of the beach" because of the protests of bathers that they have not been permitted the ordinary liberties of the lake frontage, retorted yesterday with a statement of her position.

There have been numerous exceptions taken to Mrs. Martin's bathing beach rules. One of these provides that nonholders of bathhouse lockers must pay 50 cents for the privilege of checking their wearing apparel.

"This is true in a sense," said Mrs. Martin last night. "We urge the rule because we do not want persons living outside of Wilmette to reap the benefits of a beach for the extensive improvement of which we have paid.

Permit from Village.

"The beach association holds a permit from the village board of Wilmette to maintain a bath house. The expense of belonging to the association and of enjoying the right to a locker is not great—only $5 for the season. Any one may join the association, and any one may, by paying $5, hold a locker without paying the fee of 50 cents demanded of nonmembers.

"We particularly object to people from Evanston coming in large numbers. Evanston is a city of 25,000. Wilmette has only 3,000 people and the beach is small and suitable only for the people who live here.

No Objection to Bathrobes.

"There is no objection to residents visiting the beach wearing raincoats or bathrobes which may be laid aside while they bathe. The only objection is that against women taking off skirts and dresses and men removing their trousers.

"We want to keep down the attendance so there will be room for everybody. There is no sense in cluttering up a small beach with thousands of people so that none will have enjoyment."

BUSZIN DENIES SLOT "GRAFT"

Knows Asplund Merely as Friend, Says Ousted Investigator.

ERICKSON IS WAITING.

Upon his return to the city yesterday Frank Buszin declared he was innocent of any connection with the slot machine scandal. He admitted, however, that he he is on friendly terms with T. C. Asplund, a slot machine promoter, and with Capt. Thomas J. Caughlin, who is under suspension for permitting the operation of the machines in his district.

Buszin was separated from his position as chief investigator in the city attorney's office by Mayor Thompson along with Alfred O. Erickson, formerly assistant corporation counsel. The mayor said he had information these men had something to do with "protecting" the machines.

"Can't Understand It."

"I can't understand it; I am absolutely innocent," Buszin said. "I know both Mr. Asplund and Capt. Caughlin, just as I know many other men."

Incidentally, Buszin referred to Asplund as a representative of the Mills Novelty company, the concern which manufactured most of the machines.

Statement by Erickson.

Mr. Erickson issued a statement reciting his record and various occasions on which he has been endorsed by reform organizations.

"I reiterate," he says, in conclusion "that I am in no way interested or implicated in the slot machine affair, neither have I offered protection. Though it has caused my whole family untold mental anguish and sleepless nights, I attribute no blame to Mayor Thompson for removing me until I shall be cleared."

DENIES PLACE WAS CLOSED.

Proprietor of New Italy Restaurant Says Confusion Over Name Caused Report.

James Scala, who operates the New Italy restaurant at 61 West Monroe street, informed THE TRIBUNE yesterday that his eating place was not closed as reported in the Wednesday morning papers. Confusion over the name of Bald Mazzoni, who used to run the place, was given as the reason for the mistake.

THERE ARE NO BAD BOYS, CHICAGOAN TELLS MINISTERS

E. R. Colby, at Winona Conference, Finds Good in the Worst Youths.

BY THE REV. W. B. NORTON.

Winona Lake, Ind., Aug. 19.—[Special.]—Some persons will be surprised to learn there are no bad boys. E. R. Colby of Chicago, to whom is committed many of the difficult boy cases coming before the Juvenile court, said today there are no bad boys, in his speech at the boy and religion conference held in connection with the Bible conference here.

He described his experience with one boy who had been placed on probation seven times and had been committed to the parental school.

"I took that boy into the country," he said. "He hadn't been there but a few minutes before the farmer and I saw the boy with his arms around a calf.

"'Tie that boy to that calf,' I said to the farmer. The farmer said he would and promised to give the calf to the boy if he would care for it.

"At home that boy had been compelled by his mother to steal and he admitted that he would never live right so long as he remained with the gang.

Says Boys Are Religious.

"I found another boy with a talent for music. Another is about to enter one of the technical high schools this fall and gives every indication of turning out well.

"The easiest thing to teach boys is religion. Some persons say boys can't understand religion, but I find that a boy who knows enough to do wrong is capable of understanding his religious obligations. No boy is bad at heart."

War Now More Humane.

The Rev. Dr. C. M. Coborn of Allegheny college, who spoke on the phophets, said the charge that the present European war was as cruel as the wars of the ancients is untrue.

"There is a vast difference between the European war and the war in the days of Amos," he said. "However much the people of the warring nations may be mistaken, they at least feel they are fighting for principle and the rights of their respective nations. In the ancient wars the people fought for loot. War is always bad, but we must recognize Christionaity has changed the ideals of warring people in a marked degree."

AVERS SHE WAS MAROONED.

Mrs. Fairbanks Cavenaugh, Asking Divorce, Says Husband Refused Her Fare Home.

That Fairbanks Cavenaugh of 4628 Malden street, office manager of the Illinois Commercial Men's association, has been guilty of desertion and misconduct was charged by Nellie F. Cavenaugh in her bill for divorce, filed yesterday.

Mrs. Cavenaugh says they lived together until September, 1914, when her husband persuaded her to go to Oakland, Cal., for her health.

Mrs. Cavenaugh declares her husband discontinued writing to her and finally announced that he would not send her money with which to return to Chicago. Mrs. Cavenaugh names Ella Lass. She asserts Cavenaugh receives a salary of $225 a week.

RUNAWAY GIRL REFUSES TO RETURN TO 'DINKY' TOWN

Vera Heath, 16, Resists Attempt of Her Father to Take Her Back to Iowa Home.

"I don't want to go home with you," Vera Heath, 16 years old, told her father, Charles Heath of Fremont, Ia., last night after he had traced her from Fremont to the Travelers' Aid society at 1319 West Adams street. "Fremont is such a dinky little town! I do not want to live there. I am going to stay in Chicago and make good."

Vera was taken into custody at the Union station last Sunday and turned over to the aid society, where she gave the name of Irene Davis.

"Vera told us a good story," Mrs. E. L. Meservey of the society reported. "She said her parents died recently, and that she sold the family possessions to get money enough to give her a start in Chicago. We suspected she was a runaway and I kept her at the home and got her a position in a downtown publishing house."

Last night the girl's father traced her to the society's home and her defiance followed.

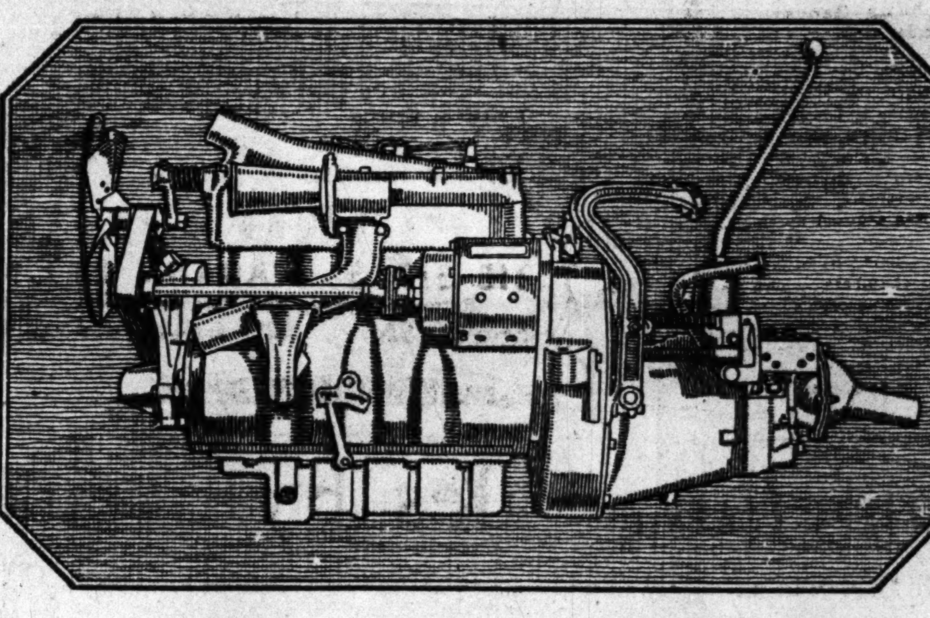
33 4/5 Horse Power



From This Powerful MAXWELL ENGINE

Almost 34 horse-power from this regular stock Maxwell engine!

34 actual, brake horse-power!

Proved by an accurate dynamometer test, made in the Maxwell laboratories August 10, 1916.

There has been a lot of talk about horse-power, and we just want to let Maxwell owners and prospective owners know that in respect to horse-power, as in most other respects, the Maxwell leads by a comfortable margin. Not that we attach such great importance to horse-power. We don't We never have.

Horse-power—abundant horse-power—is only one of many superior features of the Maxwell.

We are selling motor cars—complete motor cars—not engines or horse-power.

Horse-power is a matter that is secondary to motor efficiency and economy.

A giant has no advantage if he does not apply, or wrongly applies, his strength.

Maxwell cars have horse-power—all you want or need—probably more per pound of car weight than any other automobile in the world.

But we don't make any loud cry about it.

Because we have more than horse-power to sell you.

Because you are, and should be, interested in results, the net effectiveness of power.

We challenge competitive tests. We invite comparison.

Because we absolutely know that no car of its class or weight can surpass the Maxwell on speedways, on rough roads, through sand or mud, anywhere.

THRILLS PLENTY MARK OPENING OF "ROUNDUP"

Broncho "Busting" and Other Wild West Feats Stir Big Audiences.

Fully 5,000 persons saw the opening of the Chicago Shan-Kive and Roundup at the old Cubs' west side ball park, Polk street and Lincoln avenue, yesterday afternoon and at night probably twice as many witnessed the exhibitions of broncho busting, steer tying, bulldogging, wild horse racing, and other cowboy sports.

Contestants came from cattle ranches all over the west and were distinguished by numbers, so that the audience could readily name the apparent winners or losers. Some contests, especially the broncho busting and steer throwing, created a sensation.

Rough Riding Contest.

The exhibition began with a congress of rough riders, including cowboys, cowgirls, Indians, Mexicans, Cossacks, Japanese, Arabs, and United States cavalry, led by Col. William F. Cody, universally known as "Buffalo Bill." His entrance between the long line of American and foreign rough riders was the signal for an ovation from the crowd. Here and there throughout the program were interspersed features not entirely of a wild west character. These included performances by troupes of whirling Arabs and Japanese equilibrists, high jumping horsemanship by [illegible] Marantette, trick riding by Ray Thompson and his company of high school riders, and other incidental features.

"Bulldogging" Thrills Crowd.

Probably the greatest excitement was caused by the "bulldogging," which is cowboy for wrestling with a wild steer. In this contest several of the most noted "bulldoggers" of the western country were entered. Ed. Lindsay, fresh from the New York Stampede, where he won the championship for steer throwing, and Bill Pickett, a Negro cowboy from the 101 ranch, Oklahoma, were close contestants for the prize of $500 offered for this contest. Each of them threw the bull in about eleven seconds.

Col. Cody, Joseph C. Miller, J. W. Lynch of Ponca City, Okla., and Burke Burnett, a Fort Worth cattleman, acted as judges for the first day's contests. Their decisions will be announced Sunday night. The roundup will continue twice daily throughout the coming week, with changes in the contests at every exhibition.

EX-WIFE OF MINISTER HEARS OF HIS ROMANCE.

But Mrs. Woolhouse Merely Praises Former Husband and Has No Comment on Coming Remarriage.

Decatur, Ill., Aug. 19.—[Special.]—"I wouldn't do anything to interfere with his happiness," said Mrs. Ida Woolhouse, who, surrounded by three happy children, is trying to forget the unhappiness that ended in her divorcing the Rev. Edgar Woolhouse. She learned today for the first time that he is to marry again.

"Mr. Woolhouse is doing a good work, and I hope he may continue it," she remarked.

Reminded that he had left his Chicago congregation to wed, she had nothing to add to the statement.

"You know, we dislike to have all these things brought up again," she said. "It is hard enough when the court proceedings are printed, and when you are trying to forget after going through the publicity it is doubly hard to have these things recalled again. I hope that it will not be necessary to say anything further about me."

POLICE AND CONSTABLES OF GARY STAGE BATTLE.

Rival Minions of Law Use Clubs and Guns in Fight—One Has Skull Broken.

Gary, Ind., Aug. 19.—[Special.]—Rivalry between Gary police and the constabulary today resulted in another battle, in which four were injured after clubs had been used and shots fired. Constables Henry Prosl and L. Peters and two deputies went to Patrolman William Marquardt's home to serve a warrant, issued by Justice William [illegible], charging obstruction of justice.

Marquardt resisted arrest. In the fight Marquardt sustained a fractured skull and his wife was injured. Peters' arm was broken and Prosl was cut. Prosl and Peters were arrested by the police and held without bail pending the outcome of Marquardt's condition. He may die.

The trouble began when Justice [illegible], displaying two revolvers, defied a squad of police to arrest him while he was holding a night session in the court above his saloon. Since then [illegible] has been conducting raids.

ANNA RUSSELL, OF GAIRDNER NOTORIETY, HELD FOR TRIAL.

[illegible] Involved in Austin Pastor's Affairs Fails to Testify in Detroit When Her Case Is Called.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 19.—[Special.]—Mrs. Anna McCarty, alias Russell, alias [illegible], Chicago "mystery woman," whose adventures with the Rev. R. H. [illegible] Gairdner have attracted considerable attention, was held for trial today in the circuit court on the charge of stealing a silver mesh bag from the daughter of a local tailor.

Mrs. McCarty was not called to testify. Attorney Dalton indicated that his client might claim ownership of the bag. When request that the bag be returned to the tailor's daughter was made he protested, saying: "We may claim this mesh bag. We must prove ownership."

[illegible] Justice Degaw fixed the defendant's bail at $500. Unless she can produce bondsmen she must remain in jail until the September term, which opens next month.

LOAN BOARD TO TOUR THE WEST

Rural Credit Commission to Hold Hearings to Fix Bank Sites.

FARMERS GROW EAGER.

Frank R. Wilson, chief of the division of information of the federal farm loan board, was in the city yesterday to make arrangements for the board's coming tour of the middle west. The board, which consists of William G. McAdoo, secretary of the treasury; Herbert Quick, George W. Norris, Capt. W. A. Smith, and Charles E. Lobdell, will conduct hearings at Lansing, Mich., on Friday, at Madison, Wis., on Saturday, and at Des Moines, Ia., on the following Monday.

At these hearings representatives of farming interests will discuss the administration of federal loans to farmers. Another hearing is scheduled at Springfield about Sept. 21, when the board is on its way back from the western coast.

Farmers Eager to Try Plan.

According to Mr. Wilson, the treasury department has been swamped with letters from farmers who are anxious to know how they can obtain loans from the government. The tour will be made to show the plan of operation.

Under the terms of the bill the federal loan board will establish twelve land banks in the country. Their locations and the districts they will govern have not yet been decided.

The stock of the banks, which are to be capitalized for about $150,000, will first be offered to the public. Then, if it is not all taken up, the government will purchase the rest, and the banks will be ready to advance money to the farmers.

Must Form Groups of Ten.

The law prohibits any one man from borrowing money. Groups of ten must be formed, which will petition the federal bank of their district as a group. The bank will then send appraisers to inspect the farms of the petitioners, and capital will be advanced up to 50 per cent of the value of the lands offered as security.

Among the thousands of letters received by the treasury department from persons who wish to use the new law are many from residents of cities who have saved a little money. Most of these want to buy farms immediately, obtaining the balance of their capital under the terms of the law.

JUDGE WADE MUST PAY FINE.

Speeders' Court Ruler Insistent Upon $10 Being Handed Over Under Order.

There was silence in the Automobile court yesterday when the clerk called for hearing a motion made last Thursday by Attorney James H. Wilkerson that a fine of $10 and costs against Judge Edward T. Wade be vacated. Judge Moran, who is presiding over the Automobile court at present, was aroused by the silence.

"This fine must be paid," he declared.

He went to his chambers, where he called up Attorney Wilkerson's offices. Mr. Wilkerson is in Michigan. Then he continued the motion to vacate until Monday morning, saying:

"This fine must be paid and I will see that it is paid."

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT PASSED BY SENATE.

Republicans Force Amendment to Measure Providing Payments to Injured Federal Employes.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 19.—[Special.]—The Kern-McGillicuddy workingmen's compensation act, which was passed by the house several weeks ago, was passed by the senate today. The measure provides compensation for all federal employés injured in line of duty. A commission of three members is created to administer the law.

Republican senators forced the senate to adopt an amendment that all employés of the commission shall be taken from the civil service eligible list. This amendment is in line with the one which the Republicans attached to the shipping bill yesterday. The Democrats made the concession grudgingly.

An amendment by Senator Cummins of Iowa to prevent the creation of a commission and to leave the administration work to the department of labor was beaten.

Watchman Killed by Train.

Adam Wurster of 8339 South Artesian avenue was fatally injured yesterday when he was struck by a Pennsylvania railroad train. He was a watchman employed by the Dickinson Seed company.

CONGRESS WILL NOT OPPOSE REMODELING OF ARMY BILL.

Chairman Hay of House Military Committee Acquiesces in Revisions Demanded by Wilson.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 19.—Prospects of a congressional row over President Wilson's veto of the army appropriation bill went glimmering today, and the attitude of Chairman Hay of the house military committee was one of acquiescence toward passing the bill with such a revision of the articles of war as the president and the war department say is necessary.

Mr. Hay will not oppose the bill when it comes back from the senate containing the new articles of war, but not the exemption to retired officers, which caused the president to veto the bill.

Chairman Hay today denied that his objection to the exemption article was inspired by former Adjt. Gen. Ainsworth or any other retired officer.

Women Shoplifters on Probation.

Two shoplifters, Mrs. Sophia Sanka of 2005 South Fifth avenue, and Mary Kalmas of 2314 Wentworth avenue, were placed on probation for six months by Judge Beckwith yesterday when they pleaded guilty to charges of larceny. A similar charge against Mrs. Mary Klampa of 736 West Twenty-sixth street was dismissed.

Compelling sales by actual and unusual performance is the acme of salesmanship. That is exactly what the does. You may get away from facts and figures, but you can't deny the evidence of your own eyes.

KING

But the King 8 doesn't ask you to be governed by its past performance alone; it refers to every owner of a King 8 in the country today.

It asks you to investigate its record at the hands of thousands of private owners. It asks you to put it to the most exacting, strenuous tests you can think up.

It asks you to compare it—price, accomplishment, power, stability, economy, beauty—with any other car on the market, then pass judgment and act on that judgment.

We know what your verdict will be, because you, too, will see and approve.

Nowadays you hear much about Sixes—too much.

There is almost as much "Six" talk as there is war news.

There are fifty-seven varieties to choose from—and then some.

America seems to have gone six cylinder crazy.

As a result, people have been fooled; have not used the proper judgment and prudence in buying and consequently thousands now find themselves in possession of very, very inferior automobiles.

If you want the best six cylinder car built; if you want performance; if you want one that knocks the spots out of everything else for gas economy; if you want one whose performance is as smooth as any twelve; that has the getaway and speed of a quail—get an Overland Six.

Thousands in use. Endorsed by six cylinder specialists and six cylinder cranks all over America.

The Overland is a seven-passenger car—beautiful, large, roomy and comfortable. Every convenience.

No other make under $1500 to equal it. Overland price on account of quantity production—$1145. We are the world's largest producers of four and six cylinder automobiles. That's why we charge the least.

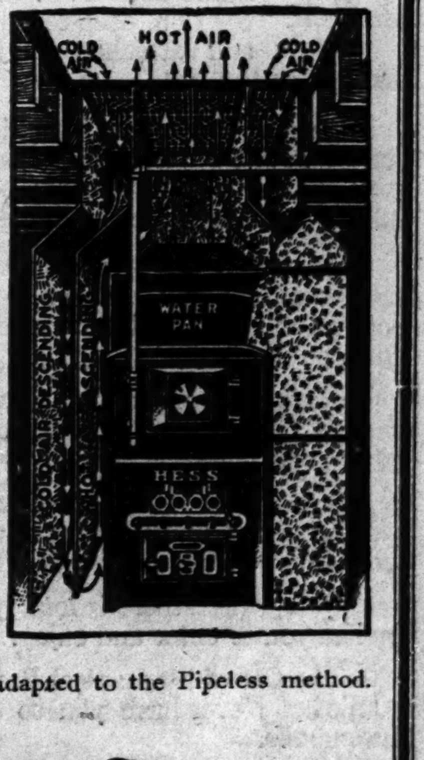
The Hess Pipeless Steel Furnace supersedes the base burner. It costs no more to install; uses less fuel; keeps all the muss and dirt out of your rooms; saves the space a stove would occupy and the labor of carrying coal and ashes. The heat comes up through the center of a big register and the cold air goes down through the ends of the same register, delivering every heat unit and none lost in the cellar. It takes up little space and there are no horizontal heat pipes nor ducts. Simple as a stove; burns any fuel; gas and dust tight, for every seam is welded and sealed up with melted steel; moisture is added to the air, making it wholesome, and the heat is circulated better than with stoves or radiators.

Sold and installed by the makers at factory prices. Easy payments if you say so. Ask for illustrated booklet and estimate. Our estimators will call without charge and tell you exactly what it will cost for your house, and how it would be arranged.



We make other furnaces also, with separate pipes and registers, for houses not adapted to the Pipeless method. Our references include friends and acquaintances of yours.

Upon each new Jeffery Six there appears the device shown at the bottom of the illustration.

It is more than a trade-mark. It is the symbol of mechanical accuracy and refinement—an appropriate identification for the Car of Mechanical Precision.

It stands for the ideals of accuracy upon which the great Jeffery organization is built. And as such it is the owner's guaranty of inherent worth.

The New Jeffery Six

A Long, Low, Hammock-Hung Body—A Motor Without Vibration at Any Speed—Yet, at a Lower Price—$1365

MEET this new Jeffery Six—the Car of Mechanical Precision.

Stand back a bit. Take in the long, fashionably low lines—the rich, deep-toned Midnight Blue finish—22 times painted and varnished—all Jeffery-done—a gala attire that will always distinguish the car.

Bigness and beauty blend in the coach construction of the new Six. Jeffery builders were at their best when this car came into being. The long, sweeping lines, softened by the rich, lateral roll-edges, merge gracefully into the massive-shouldered hood.

It is a stately, impressive car, with that feeling of agile fleetness, so sought after today. There is perfect poise in this deep-chested road-conqueror—long and lithe and low-hung. Instantly, you feel respect, admiration.

Click open one of the generous-sized doors. Set foot on the low, easy entrance step. Note the convenient placing of control units—all for your good comfort.

Step inside. Try the seats—soft, pliant cushions, real leather over real hair—and find the ease of a luxurious library chair. You pass easily from rear to front seats through the ample aisle provided for you.

Everywhere there is loungy, generous roominess—a hospitality that invites you to enter and enjoy.

The Car of Mechanical Precision is winning a new owner, and you admit it. Never have you so completely yielded to the charm of any automobile.

A Lower Price—$1365

You hear the price—Thirteen Sixty-Five!

You are amazed. You had judged much more.

But Jeffery Precision and Jeffery Home-Construction bring you the triumphant new Six at this astonishingly low price.

Actually 93 per cent of the car is Jeffery-built. Virtually no parts are purchased, a Jeffery policy which means much today when parts-makers' prices are higher. Then add greater and even better standardized production with further economies effected by the new and greater Jeffery Company, and this phenomenal value is explained.

Vibrationless Motor—Inherently Balanced Crankshaft

A motor without vibration at any speed—that is the engineers' triumph in the Car of Mechanical Precision. And such extraordinary smoothness, we are free to declare, is exclusive to Jeffery motors.

The inherently balanced oversized crankshaft is largely responsible for the wonderful softness of the motor, and is the result of tireless effort on the part of Jeffery engineers.

Without Vibration

The vibrationless feature of the new Jeffery Six motor is an exclusive development of Jeffery engineers.

The motor is without vibration at ANY speed.

This wonderful softness is largely the result of the inherently balanced oversized crankshaft—Jeffery engineers' contribution to the Car of Mechanical Precision.

All Jeffery motors are subjected to the most rigorous tests given in any factory.

Centaur Motor Company

2246 Michigan Avenue
Chicago, Ill.

Every motor, before being placed in its chassis, is subjected to longer and more severe tests than we have ever seen employed by any other maker.

Performance

You ask a demonstration, and find this car a very savage in power, refined to submission and eager to serve. You feel its stamina in every metal sinew. Every mite of red-blooded power, almost brutal in its vigor, is bridled and docile—ready to serve at your quiet command.

You may glide along as gently as in a gondola while only a murmuring swish reminds you that your motor is at ease. Or, on an inviting stretch, urge on the speedometer until you read 50 and even 60 miles. The same mellow smoothness remains in your engine. And within the compass of these six cylinders there is all the obedient power you will ever want—and more.

Springs that are long and flat and hammock-hung, add to the comfort the soft motor brings. You travel in repose, nerves relaxed and mind at ease.

Service vs. Care

The new Six gives maximum service, asks minimum care. Rugged simplicity distinguishes the chassis construction. The car's honest make-up delights.

It is more than a luxury. It is an investment.

That is why Jeffery cars are almost unknown in the second-hand market. They always bring unusually high re-sale prices.

For Jeffery owners are contented owners.

Doubled Production

Jeffery expansion, bringing doubled production this year, comes without sacrificing the Company's ideals of mechanical nicety.

With this greater output we hope to be able to fill the demand. Still, nothing can be gained by delay. Promptness alone, on your part, in placing your order with us will gain an early delivery for you.

We are ready now to show you the new Jeffery Six.

MOTOR THIEVES SENTENCED TO TERMS IN JOLIET

Judge Thomson Penalizes Edward Coyle and John Manne for Stealing a Car.

HOYNE'S OFFICE IS ACTIVE.

BY HENRY M. HYDE.

Indications multiplied yesterday that the stealing of automobiles in Chicago will be made a less easy and profitable industry. The fact that ten times as many cars are stolen in Chicago as in New York City has aroused all the authorities to action.

In Judge Thompson's court Edward Coyle and John Manne were convicted of stealing a car belonging to Edward N. Winkler and were sentenced by the court to indeterminate sentences of from one to ten years.

State's Attorney Hoyne's office gave out a list of indictments against some eighteen alleged automobile thieves, whose cases have been set for trial in Judge Sabath's court on Aug. 28. Among those indicted are men who are said to have been the brains of one of the big organized gangs of motor thieves. Their cases will be pushed to trial as rapidly as possible and a special assistant state's attorney, has been assigned to handle them.

Deny Auto Man's Story.

The state's attorney's office declares that the complaint and criticism credited to the Automobile Protective association is not based on facts. No less than six assistant state's attorneys have procured several convictions each of motor thieves.

In many cases the convicted thieves have been men under 26 years old and have therefore, under the law, been sent to Pontiac reformatory. But a considerable number have been sent to the penitentiary at Joliet. Some of them have since been pardoned or released on parole, but the state's attorney's office has no control over the pardon and parole board.

Many young desperadoes steal automobiles which they use in riding around the city to commit holdups and burglaries.

Jimmy Perry Gang.

"One of the most desperate of these gangs," says Attorney Hoyne's statement, "includes Jimmy Perry, Frank McErlane, Walter Scott, Eddie Burke, and Claude Rose. They admitted to one of my assistants that they had stolen more than 1,000 automobiles in Chicago alone. These thieves were young men, and when they were convicted by this office were sentenced to life imprisonment. To insure their serving the full sentence we placed them on trial on a second charge, convicted them, and had them sentenced again to life imprisonment. However, they were sent to Pontiac, instead of to Joliet, and I am informed they are now walking the streets of Chicago, having been turned loose by the pardon board, over which my office has no control."

Since complaint was made that the judges of the Municipal court, and especially of the Boys' court, have been unduly lenient in discharging young men charged with stealing motor cars, Chief Justice Olson has written to all the judges calling attention to the seriousness of the situation and urging that stealing an automobile should not be regarded as a boyish prank to be punished with a reprimand.

Twenty Thieves Held Over.

As one result the branch of the Municipal court at the Clark street police station in a little over a month has held some twenty motor thieves to the criminal courts for action by the grand jury. There are almost as many more cases now pending in [illegible] branch.

In almost every case a person charged with stealing an automobile is able to get bonds, and is, therefore, not locked up in jail for more than a few hours. As a matter of common fairness the state's attorney's office gives its first attention to prisoners whose failure to get bonds keeps them confined in the jail pending trial. As a result of this policy the present population of the jail is now only about 130, as compared with 800 or more in the past. But there has been no undue delay in bringing automobile thieves to trial and the state's attorney's office is offering prompt coöperation with all the interested authorities.

For Locked Car Clause.

Instead of proposing to double their present rates for insuring automobiles against theft, it is suggested that the insurance companies could accomplish much more by adding a single clause to their contracts. At present ther eis no obligation on the car owner to lock his car before leaving it unprotected on the streets. A clause which would forfeit the insurance in case a car was left unlocked would, it is thought, do more than any other single reform to lessen the number of thefts. A stricter policy in offering rewards for the return of stolen cars, combined with a relentless prosecution of the thieves, would, it is asserted, also tend to make the "easiest graft in the world" less easy and profitable.

It remains to be noted that over in the municipal garage there were stored yesterday no less than twelve stolen automobiles, recovered by the police, for which no owners can be found. And twelve is about the average of such unclaimed cars from day to day.

Three Adult Infant Paralysis Victims to Give Blood Serum

Chicago's three adult victims of infantile paralysis yesterday volunteered to give their blood for the cure of children in the city and county hospital. The blood will be used as a serum and by its prompt injection into the bodies of the small sufferers Dr. Karl Meyer hopes to cure all who now are his patients.

The adult patients, now at the county hospital, who have volunteered their blood are:

Mrs. Helen Raymer, a bride of 21 years.

Fred Swanson, an athletic young man of 24.

William Febble, 21 years old.

Admit Patients Out of Danger.

Each of these three, according to Dr. Meyer, has passed the critical stage of the disease and no longer is in danger. From each 150 cubic centimeters of blood will be withdrawn, probably today. The preliminary tests have been made and the patients are said to be in a proper condition for the slight ordeal.

After the blood has been withdrawn and converted into a serum it will be administered in injections of five cubic centimeters each. This is a sufficient quantity to care for every patient in the Durand and county hospitals and still leave a little for research work and new cases as they come in.

Dr. Clifford Wells of Durand hospital has been assigned to research work and is understood to be attempting to develop a serum which may be secured from animals as in the case of diphtheria antitoxin and tetanus serums.

Treatment to Begin Today.

Extraction of the blood from the volunteers and the use of serum on the younger patients may begin today. Dr. Meyer takes the view that about the only treatment of the disease which can be called at all positive is the serum treatment. There is no commercial serum to be had.

The county hospital reported that it still maintained its record of but one death from the disease, although a new patient just entered tested all the resources of the medical staff and was not expected to live through the night. The case was an advanced one when it reached the hospital.

Tubercular patients in the county hospital are being moved out to Oak Forest and the wards in the "T. B." building given over to the infantile paralysis cases as they come in. An additional ward was thrown open to them last night.

Acting under direction of President Peter Reinberg of the county board, the hospital authorities are sparing no expense to care for all patients sent them. Dozens of new beds were bought and made ready for the children. More nurses are being detailed to the work.

No Epidemic, Robertson Says.

"The city health department," said Dr. John Dill Robertson, "cannot offer any prophylactic serum treatment at this time. Even if it had the serum it could not force its use except in the event of a real epidemic. There is no epidemic in Chicago as our department maps show. The cases are widely scattered.

"We can only warn against insanitary conditions and flies, which it appears can be carriers of the disease. That is the reason we are coming down so hard on the groceries, bakeshops, fruit stands, restaurants, and similar places. Although the disease is not epidemic, we do not care to take chances, either with it or with typhoid, which is just now much more nearly epidemic."

Health department records disclose that since the fight against infantile paralysis started 300 homes in Chicago have been placed under quarantine.

These 300 are families who were in New York when the epidemic broke out and returned at once to Chicago. On information from New York health authorities the 300 families were kept under observation. About half of them still are under quarantine.

Four New Cases.

Four new cases of the baby scourge were reported yesterday. All the information vouchsafed about them by the health department follows:

BABY GIRL, 7 months old, in the vicinity of 4800 Magnolia avenue.

GIRL, 4 years old, in the neighborhood of 3800 Whipple street.

GIRL, 2 years old, near 3500 Wolfram street.

GIRL, 3 years old, in the vicinity of 500 West Forty-seventh street.

All the new cases are in the county hospital.

According to the health department records there are now fifty-seven cases in the county hospital and six at the Anna Durand hospital.

ROBBERS LOCK GIRLS IN VAULT

Ask Jobs in Pullman Office, Then Produce Pistols and Take $300.

Two armed robbers entered the dining car division of the Pullman office in the Monon freight house at Taylor and Federal streets yesterday, and after taking $300 from George Fritch, the treasurer, they locked him and two women in a vault, ran to the street, and were driven away in an automobile in which waited a third member.

The treasurer and Miss Lyde Baker and Miss Elsie Smith were in the place when the highwaymen entered. Miss Baker has charge of the linen used on the Pullman trains.

"Hand over that money," they ordered, displaying revolvers.

While one kept a weapon directed at the trio the other seized the cash box.

"March into that vault," directed one as the other continued to cover them with a revolver. His companion swung open the huge door. They complied and the robbers slammed the door and spun the combination.

Pedestrians saw them jump into the waiting car and speed away. They drove east in Taylor street and were swallowed in the mass of traffic.

Twenty minutes later Floyd Borger, the manager, heard the imprisoned treasurer and women pounding on the vault door. He released them. They reported the affair to the South Clark street police.

One of the men, Fritch said, applied for a position at the place. Shortly afterward the other asked for a position as third cook. Both were told there were no vacancies. Before the robbery another man, thought to be the third member of the party, asked for a job.

"I recognized the two as the same men who sought jobs," Fritch told the police. "It all happened so quickly we were too frightened to resist or shout."

WHO WILL VOLUNTEER TO GIVE BLOOD TO SAVE GIRL.

Kewanee Doctor Tries in Vain to Get Serum to Use in Baby Paralysis Case in His City.

There's a 6 year old girl, Goldie Sidemen, at Kewanee, Ill., whose physician asked all Chicago to help save her yesterday, and Chicago couldn't. She has infantile paralysis and must have the serum used to combat the disease, which is made from the blood of those who have been cured of it.

Dr. Washburn of Kewanee telephoned to Edward Park, a druggist at 3733 North Robey street, for the serum. Park tried every known source in Chicago, and when they failed he called THE TRIBUNE. If Goldie gets the serum, there's chance for her life; if she does not, there is none. If some Chicagoan who has had infantile paralysis will call upon Mr. Park, Goldie can get the serum. The process is painless.

TAKEN ON PANDER CHARGE.

Central Hotel Owner Arrested on Complaint of Girl That He Beat Her.

Joseph Farris, owner of the Central hotel, 35 South Clark street, was arrested yesterday on warrants charging him with operating a disorderly house, assault and battery, and pandering. Miss Margarite McCoy signed the complaints. She showed bruises on her face and body, where she said Farris had struck her.

WARNING TO PARENTS

Health Chief Points to Need of Safeguarding Health of School Children.

DR. JOHN D. ROBERTSON, health commissioner, yesterday issued an appeal to parents to take every possible step to safeguard the health of Chicago's 450,000 children who will be starting to school within a few weeks. He urges coöperation with the school physicians and nurses to discover defects and remedy them. In part his appeal reads:

"Do you, mother, appreciate that the brain of your child may be tremendously handicapped by a faulty stomach, weak heart, flabby muscles, diseased kidneys or liver, or a dozen other disorders or bad habits?

"Do you know that a very large percentage of school children suffer from physical defects which, if discovered and treated, can be entirely cured?

"We want to make it plain that these serious disturbances often begin in slight ones. One ear may be affected, not noticeably, because the hearing of the other is good. Attention would save it.

"Adenoids and tonsils are common sources of deafness and other disorders which removal would prevent.

"Strained eyes produce headaches, peevishness, inattention, and inability to learn. Proper glasses would stop it.

"It is as important to have the child's teeth attended to as those of the adult."

PARENTS WARNED TO KEEP CHILDREN IN THE COUNTRY.

New York Health Board Issues Advice as Infantile Paralysis Wanes—Baltimore Woman a Victim.

New York, Aug. 19.—Mrs. Douglas Gorman of Baltimore, who has been ill for two days at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edmund S. Nash, at Rye, is suffering from infantile paralysis, it was learned today. Her husband is a nephew of the late United States Senator Gorman of Maryland.

The health department today issued a warning to parents who are out of the city with their children advising them to remain away as long as possible. It was pointed out that in Brooklyn particularly the epidemic appears to be burning itself out, and that if a large number of children were brought back now the result might be serious.

The total of new cases in Greater New York for the week ending today was 912, as compared with 1,151 for the previous week, while the number of deaths was 226, as compared with 301 last week.

PISTOL CAUSES BEACH PANIC

Negro, Believed Deranged, Flourishes Weapon at Bathers at Thirty-sixth Street.

More than 200 bathers at the Thirty-sixth street bathing beach were thrown into excitement yesterday by the sight of a large Negro who stood on the shore flourishing a revolver. He was arrested. He gave the name of William Jamieson, Douglas hotel. A box of unused cartridges was found in his pocket. The police believe the man is mentally unbalanced.

BANKER SELIGMAN IS ILL.

Long Branch, N. J., Aug. 19.—[Special.]—James Seligman of the banking firm of J. & W. Seligman of New York is critically ill at his Ocean avenue home. His physicians have given up hopes of his recovery. Mr. Seligman is in his ninety-third year.

STRANGE STORIES AT AUTO INQUEST ROIL HOYNE'S AID

Perjury Inquiry Planned After Witnesses Deny Knowing Two Extra Women.

WHAT DID THEY DRINK?

Strange ignorance or perjury marked Coroner Hoffman's personally conducted inquest into the death of Miss Maud Marchant, killed in an automobile accident early Thursday morning on Milwaukee avenue road.

Four men and one woman who took part in the ride appeared as witnesses at East Chicago avenue police station yesterday. All admitted what they had denied privately, that two other women besides Miss Marchant and Miss Mabel Hemmig of 932 Rush street were in the party. But all declared they did not know who the two women were.

"This is a farce," he said to Coroner Hoffman. "These witnesses are shielding two women. They know who they are and are not telling the truth."

"I shall make a thorough investigation of this case," Mr. Baker said in the state's attorney's office. "If I find these witnesses have deliberately told an untruth under oath I shall take the matter up with State's Attorney Hoyne with a view of laying a charge of perjury against them before the grand jury."

Witnesses "Discuss" Testimony.

Charles H. Walker, one of the party, said that before the inquest all the witnesses had held a prearranged meeting in the Conway building. Mr. Baker attempted to prove the testimony was "framed" at this meeting. Mr. Walker would not admit this. He said it had been "discussed."

The verdict was that Miss Marchant came to her death in an unavoidable accident, due to the dense fog. The jury recommended that the police make a further effort to establish the identity of the two other women.

Coroner Hoffman's attempt to get descriptions of the two unknown women brought out ludicrous responses from Mr. Walker and Dr. R. W. McClintock, another of the party. Mr. Walker said neither was young. He thought both around 35. His descriptive effort reached its climax when he said both women wore hats.

Dr. McClintock said one woman wore a straw hat and the other a long tan coat. He said both were young.

Hair Hanging Down Back.

W. E. Murray, manager of the House That Jack Built, where the party had something to drink at 1:30 in the morning added an illuminating touch.

"One of the women had her hair hanging down her back," he said. "She looked as if she had just come from some bathing beach. The other ran up to me and asked if they could have some music and dance a little. I told her we were about to close up for the night. Both women were between 25 and 30."

Here's What They Say.

Here is what the witnesses said about the two mystery women:

Dr. R. W. McClintock, 4842 North Paulina street, with offices in the Marshall Field annex—I have absolutely no idea who they were. I tried to get the information from Mabel Hemmig, but she said she knew of no way. As I understand it, Miss Marchant ran into them by accident at State and Madison while waiting for us to arrive with the two automobiles. They were friends of Miss Marchant and she alone knew anything about them.

Otto J. Schach, garage owner, 664 Wrightwood avenue—I had never met any of the four women before. I haven't the least idea what the names of the two unknown women are. I was introduced to them, but paid no attenton to their names.

Some More of the Same.

John H. Kanitz, newspaper circulator, 3827 Pine Grove avenue—I never before had met any of the women in the party. I heard one of the two unknown women addressed as Florence. I did not hear the other's name mentioned. When we took Lester Newman to the Lake View hospital the two women got out of the car and said they were going home. They took a Broadway car. That is the last I ever saw of them.

Charles H. Walker of the real estate firm of Paisley & Walker, 1125 Bryn Mawr avenue—I heard Miss Marchant call one of the women 'Flo.' I don't know anything about the two women who disappeared. I had never met any of the women in the party before. Miss Marchant and Miss Hemmig were friends of Lester Newman and the two unknown women were friends of Miss Marchant.

And Some More of the Same.

Miss Mabel Hemmig—While Miss Marchant and I were waiting for the party at State and Madison, two girls walked up. Miss Marchant knew them, and introduced them to me. She asked if they wanted to go for an auto ride and they said yes. I don't remember their names. One was called "Florence" or "Flo." When the men in the automobile arrived, Miss Marchant introduced the two women to Mr. Newman, Mr. Kanitz and Mr. Schach. They were introduced at the House That Jack Built to Dr. McClintock and Mr. Walker, who were in the other car.

Dr. McClintock said both the unknown women were slightly injured. One complained of an injured shoulder and an inability to raise her right arm. The other was slightly injured about the hips.

What Did They Drink.

Dr. McClintock reckoned without his host when he testified:

"Nobody had anything to drink. To my personal knowledge, Mr. Coroner, there was not a drink served in the House that Jack Built, the only place we stopped."

According to the testimony of the others, Dr. McClintock had a seltzer lemonade; Mr. Kanitz, a lemonade; Mr. Walker, nothing; Mr. Schach, a glass of water and a lemonade. Miss Hemmig didn't say what she drank.

Then along came Mr. Murray, manager of the roadhouse, and said that a bottle of beer and a gin fizz were among the drinks served.

"Nothing to Drink All Night."

It was brought out by the testimony of Dr. McClintock and Mr. Walker that Otto Schach, just after the accident, with the dead and injured lying all about, burst into laughter and, walking to the car with his hat at a rakish angle, said:

"Ain't it a pippin?"

"He was out of his head," explained Dr. McClintock, "and was suffering from hysteria due to shock."

"Don't you think it might have been due to liquor?" asked Deputy Coroner Kennedy.

"No," said the physician emphatically. "He had had nothing to drink all night."

At What Speed?

All testified that the car, which was driven by Mr. Schach, was running about seventeen miles an hour. The details of the accident seemed to indicate it was traveling at a much higher speed. It ran into a ditch at the side of the road in attempting to avoid a collision with a machine traveling in an opposite direction, turned a complete somersault, crashed through a barbed wire fence, and alighted right side up twelve feet the other side of the ditch in a field.

A deposition was read from Lester M. Newman, 5611 Kenmore avenue, who is now at Henrotin hospital, having been removed from the Lake View institution. He, too, denied knowing the names of the two unidentified women.

NEW CASES OF TYPHOID TRACED TO VACATION TRIPS.

Health Department Warns Tourists to Take Treatment to Prevent Disease Before Leaving City.

Sixty per cent of the cases of typhoid fever reported during the week were contracted while the victims were out of the city, most of them being on vacations.

After compiling the figures yesterday Health Commissioner Robertson issued a special warning to tourists and vacationists. Dr. Robertson said that the disease is chiefly contracted from food and drink, and he advised all vacationists to take the anti-typhoid treatment before leaving the city. Persons who are unable to pay for the treatment may obtain it free at the Iroquois Memorial hospital, 23 North Market street.

Dr. Robertson also advised automobile tourists to carry with them calcium hypochlorite tablets for treating drinking water. The tablets may be obtained at the health department, with full directions as to their use.

POLICE SERGEANT SHOT TRYING TO SERVE WARRANT

Charles H. Jannison Wounded in Hip When He Goes to Home of Man Accused by Wife.

Sergt. Charles H. Jannison of the Sixteenth precinct was shot in the right hip last night when he attempted to serve a warrant on John Kreider, 9947 Avenue J. Kreider's wife, Evelyn, charged nonsupport. When Jannison entered the house, Kreider met him at the door and inquired his business. Jannison produced the warrant and Kreider drew a revolver. There was a struggle in which Jannison was thrown to the floor. Then Kreider is said to have shot, wounding the sergeant in the hip.

Jannison was taken to a hospital after Mrs. Kreider had notified the police of the shooting. Kreider escaped.

ILLINOIS TROOPS REPAIR DAMAGE

Militia Has Strenuous Night with Storm Blown Tents; All Safe in Camps.

BY SIDNEY WILLIS.

San Antonio, Tex., Aug. 19.—[Special.]—Illinois militia at three points were busy today salvaging personal effects, equipment, and live stock from last night's storm. Seven of the newly erected mess tents at Camp Wilson were flattened to the earth.

The First brigade at Landa Park; the Second brigade camped at Ten Mile hill en route to Leon Springs, and the Illinois field artillery on the ordnance range of the government reservation, were punished almost equally by the storm.

Gen. D. Jack Foster of the First brigade lost his tent, and Gen. Henry R. Hill, commanding the Second brigade, slept while the water swirled about his cot. Col Sanborn's tent was flattened. Col. Moriarty's aids recovered his tent from the top of a hackberry tree, and Col. Garrity had to use a pup tent after his own was blown down.

Small Tents Flattened Out.

Most of the pup tents were ironed flat by the storm. At Landa park many of the men climbed into the trees. The men of the Second brigade at Ten Mile hill suffered the worst pummeling. Their pup tents were snapped away and the rain made a mud wallow of the slough in which they were camped. Provisions were spoiled by the rain in all camps and the men got by today on emergency rations.

Despite the ferocity of the wind and the confusion of camps being lifted bodily at night, there were no accidents so far as present reports show. Home folks would have felt proud of the courage the Illinois men showed during the storm and their industry in cleaning up the debris. Hungry, wet, tentless, and tired from the night's tussle with the rain, they went about tidying the camps.

Troops Safe at Brownsville.

Dallas, Tex., Aug. 19.—Wireless messages from Brownsville today stated that the 30,000 national guardsmen there and in the vicinty are safe. No loss of life resulted from the hurricane in that region. The Illinois troops found refuge in houses in Brownsville.

Gen. Parker at Fort Brown, Brownsville, notified Gen. Funston that only comparatively slight damage was sustained in the army camps.

At Laredo practically every tent of the 9,000 soldiers there was blown down. At the target range, eight miles southwest of Laredo, where 1,200 members of the First Missouri infantry are at practice, 600 shelter tents were blown down. Work of reconstruction of the camps was immediately begun today.

Only Ten Known Dead.

Withal south Texas is counting its annual storm experience the luckiest in years. While the property damage and crop destruction probably will mount into the millions, only ten known dead have been reported. These perished when the small steamer Pilot Boy was wrecked on a bar off Port Aransas late yesterday.

First communication with Corpus Christi showed that no great damage had been done to the city and that there were no fatalities there.

Dunne Party Reaches Houston.

Houston, Tex., Aug. 19.—Gov. Dunne of Illinois and his party arrived here tonight after their train had been delayed ten hours during last night's storm.

The party left Brownsville early yesterday afternoon, before the gale struck the Texas coast.

EXPERTS STUDY CHEMICAL BOOKS

Shortage of $50,000 Alleged Against T. H. Bibb, Secretary Victor Company.

Expert accountants were busily engaged yesterday in going over the books of the Victor Chemical company in the Fisher building for the purpose of checking up an alleged shortage found in the accounts of Thomas H. Bibbs of 4546 Kimball avenue, secretary and head bookkeeper of the company for a number of years.

It was reported Friday night a warrant charging embezzlement had been obtained for Bibbs' arrest by Walter B. Brown, general manager of the company. Mr. Brown denied, however, that a warrant had been obtained.

Shortage of $50,000?

According to a story in an afternoon paper the shortage was estimated at close to $50,000. It also stated that the employé under suspicion owns real estate worth about $20,000 and other property which would amply cover the shortage. It also stated that the employé had been separated from his wife and had spent large sums of money on three other women, for each of whom he had purchased an automobile.

"Mr. Bibbs has been a trusted employé for a long time and has been favored with a handsome salary by the company," said Mr. Brown. "I do not think the discrepancy in the accounts will come anywhere near $50,000, or even half that amount, although we shall not know the exact amount for a week or so. There has been no warrant issued, and Mr. Bibbs is not in custody. In fact, he was at the office today helping the accountants go over the books.

Ignorant of Family Affairs.

"I have heard of no trouble that he has had with his wife, and as far as I know they are still living together.

"It is the custom of our firm to have the books audited at the end of each fiscal year, and this year we found some things which we thought demanded an explanation from Mr. Bibbs. He is under a heavy bond, and we do not stand to lose anything in any event.

"I have promised not to reveal the name of the bonding company, and can say nothing further, save that it is one of the largest in the city. I do not think a warrant has been obtained by the bonding company as yet because representatives have been at the office every day that they have been checking up on the books."

The Price-Waterhouse company accountants are going over the concern's books.

"Mr. Bibbs has been with us for eight years and was always a good, faithful worker," said August Kochs, president of the concern. "I've understood he is worth $50,000, and I have no detectives watching him. I don't know what the bonding company is doing."

BATHERS SEE YOUTH DROWN

Earl Ballinger, 17 years old, of 3618 Rokeby street, was drowned yesterday afternoon when swimming in the lake at Aldine avenue about 150 yards from shore. Other bathers heard his cries and risked their lives in an attempt to save him. He disappeared beneath the water, however, before they could reach him. George Evans of the yacht Miami, anchored near, recovered the body.

Garbage Law Violators Fined.

Fines of $5 and costs each were imposed by Justice of the Peace John F. Boyer yesterday in the cases of seven residents of the suburb arrested for violation of the garbage law. They were John Inch, Joseph Jazotka, Kramer Krakowski, Michael Kuklovicz, John Shaw, Andrew Welman, and George Gelos.

WEIGLE ON BAIL; ASKS CHANCE TO REPAY SHORTAGE

Bank Teller Says He Has $40,000 Securities to Liquidate $7,289.

HIS BRIDE STANDS BY HIM.

George W. Weigle, the athletic young receiving teller of the Harris Trust and Savings bank, who confessed to a shortage of $7,289.23 in his accounts, obtained a continuance and his release on $15,000 bonds yesterday when arraigned before Judge Gemmill in the South Clark street court.

Attorney T. S. Chapman, representing the bank, asked that bonds be fixed at $20,000, but Attorney Charles E. Erbstein, counsel for defendant, suggested $15,000 and Mr. Chapman made no objection. Bonds were signed by Henry Weil, real estate dealer at 1035 East Forty-seventh street, who scheduled property valued at $32,000, and by Jacob Miller, a real estate dealer at 1883 West Twelfth street, who scheduled $10,000 worth of property.

Wife Gives Up Her Auto.

Mrs. Weigle was not in court, but earlier in the day had visited Attorney Erbstein's office and announced her intention of standing by her husband.

Mrs. Weigle sold her automobile in the morning and placed an ad in the Sunday papers for the sale of her furniture. She said they would give up their $100 a month flat which her husband had been renting on a salary of $150 a month, and would move elsewhere. She appeared to be confident her husband would be able to make restitution and escape prosecution.

"I'm going to stick by him until the end," she said. "He has always been too good to his friends, looking out for their interests when he should have been looking out for himself. Now he's got to learn to think of himself, and I'm going to help him learn."

Wants to Repay Sum.

"They have always treated me fairly at the bank and I'm going to be on the square with them," said Weigle. "I am eager to make restitution. This all started through friends of mine giving me bad checks to cash. There were three of them, but I do not want to say who they are now."

"I certainly would tell," Mrs. Weigle said.

"Well, one of them is a man named Muller," he said. "I won't say who the others were, but I think this fellow Muller has got it coming."

How He "Covered Up."

Weigle said he had started taking the bank's money back in 1914, but had successfully covered up by a system of taking one depositor's money to pay back the shortage in the account of another.

"The receiving teller at the Harris Trust keeps no book," he said. "He simply accepts the deposit slip and the money and at the end of the day simply balances up slips and cash. It is easy to put both the slip and the money in your pocket. The only time the shortage would show would be at the end of the month, but by that time I had entered the slip and replaced the cash by taking the deposit of some one else."

It became known that Attorney Chapman and G. P. Hoover, one of the vice presidents of the bank, conferred with Assistant State's Attorney W. G. Duval before taking out the warrant. Mr. Duval said the August grand jury, which has adjourned, will reconvene on Aug. 28 and that in all probability the case will be presented to it for speedy action. The date for the hearing in the Municipal court has been set for Sept. 19, however.

JILTED BY GIRL 16, MAN, 45, KILLS TWO AND HIMSELF.

Waupaca, Wis., Tragedy Follows Farmer's Receipt of Mystery Letter from Another Young Woman.

Waupaca, Wis., Aug. 19.—Jilted by one girl of 16 years and with a mysterious letter from another girl in Ohio to whom he was supposed to be betrothed, Bert H. Drew, aged 45, a farmer living eight miles from here, this afternoon ran amuck.

When his career of death was ended he had killed Elizabeth Luft, the girl who refused to marry him; her mother, Mrs. Adam Luft; had fired five shots at the girl's crippled brother, and had killed himself.

The girl's invalid father, sick in a room overlooking the lawn where the shooting took place, was not molested.

The letter which apparently started the man on his death dealing rage was from Miss Edna Dratt of Akron, O. He had destroyed it before the shooting today.

According to the best information, Elizabeth Luft, when she had heard of the Akron girl, told Drew not to bother her longer. This morning the letter came and the tragedy followed.

FIRE CAUSES $40,000 LOSS.

Flames Rage Three Hours in West Side Manufacturing Building Before They Are Checked.

Fire which raged [illegible] hours last night in a five story manufacturing building at 1460-1468 West Kinzie street did damage estimated at $40,000. The contents of the upper three stories of the building, occupied by the Levie Shoe company, were destroyed. The second floor was unoccupied and the first floor, where some slight damage was caused by water, was occupied by a cabinet making concern.

THERE was abundant evidence of the presence of that annual visitor, "midsummer dullness," in the real estate market last week, for the business of the week was of a limited volume and of a generally unimportant character.

Building projects of various kinds and transactions in manufacturing property were the most important features of the week, although business property in the downtown district, as well as outside, was represented by several interesting transactions.

There was one deal in the downtown district, the purchase by Silas H. Strawn from Speed S. Goodloe et al. of the property at 173-75 North Michigan avenue for a reported consideration of $125,000. The lot fronts 30 feet with a depth of 130½ feet and is improved with a five story and basement building. The property is located just north of Randolph street. H. V. Wood of H. O. Stone & Co. represented the purchaser and J. A. Blett the seller. It may be said, also, that progress is reported in several good sized deals, some of which should be closed during the next few weeks.

Sharp Building Decrease.

The building showing made is of special interest in view of the fact that a sharp decrease is shown in the number and cost of the permits issued by the city building department as compared with the corresponding period a year ago.

Some of this undoubtedly is due to the continued hot weather and the consequent dullness in the real estate market, but there is reason to believe that much of the falling off is due to a reaction from the excessive and abnormal activity which has prevailed during the last year and a half or more. Attention was called last week to the falling off in building operations, as evidenced by the report of the city building department, and the falling off is much more pronounced during the week just closed.

Two Big Building Projects.

Probably the most interesting transactions of the week were those involving the erection of two extra high grade fireproof apartment buildings in the exclusive "Streeterville" district on the north side. Special interest attaches to one for the reason that the land it is to occupy in Walton place, east of Lincoln Park boulevard, sold at the reported rate of $500 a front foot.

It comprises 100x107 feet, north front, and was sold by the Chicago Title & Trust company, trustee, E. B. Woolf, a real estate broker, taking title for a reported consideration of $50,000, made up of an incumbrance of $9,500 and revenue stamps amounting to $40.50, indicating that $40,500 was paid for the equity.

It is stated the lot will be improved with a high grade fireproof building of eight stories, containing sixteen apartments of six and seven rooms, with three baths, showers, sun parlors, sleeping porches, etc., which are expected to rent at $300 a month.

The cost of the building is placed at about $350,000. An innovation in the building will be the filtered water system and refrigeration. W. B. Langmore represented the seller and Roy J. Friedman of E. B. Woolf & Co. the purchaser.

Big Flat in De Witt Court.

The other transaction involves the erection of a $300,000 building at the southwest corner of Chestnut street and De Witt court. The building will be erected by Frederick Becklenberg, the builder, on a lot 100x107.25 feet, which he has purchased from John A. Bloomingston for a reported consideration of $50,000.

Mr. Becklenberg gave back a part purchase money mortgage for $20,000, bearing 6 per cent, and paid $10,000 in cash. White & Tabor, who were the brokers in the transaction, traded this property last week to Mr. Bloomingston in part payment for his property at 1923 Michigan avenue.

There also were a number of deals involving the erection of cheaper priced apartment buildings, which are considered in another part of this page.

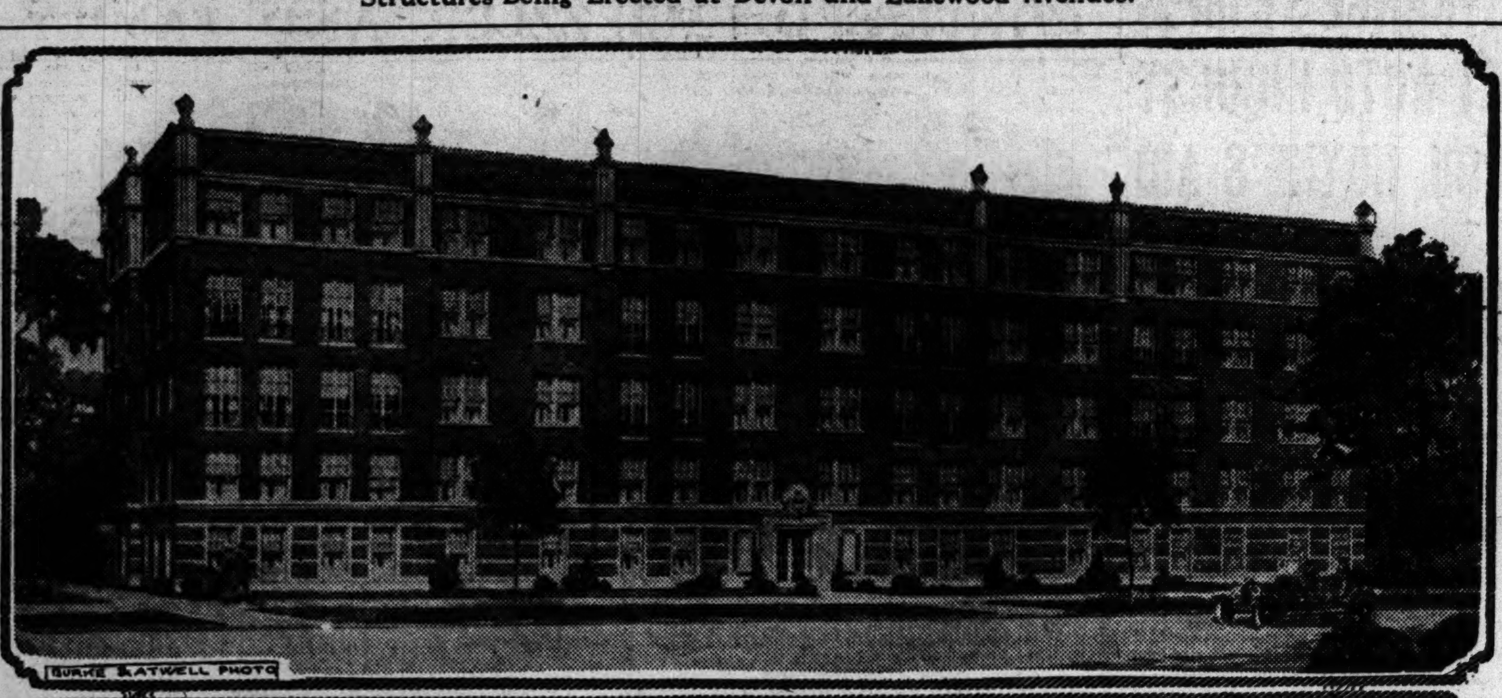
FORD MOTOR COMPANY BUYS LOCATION ON NORTH SIDE.

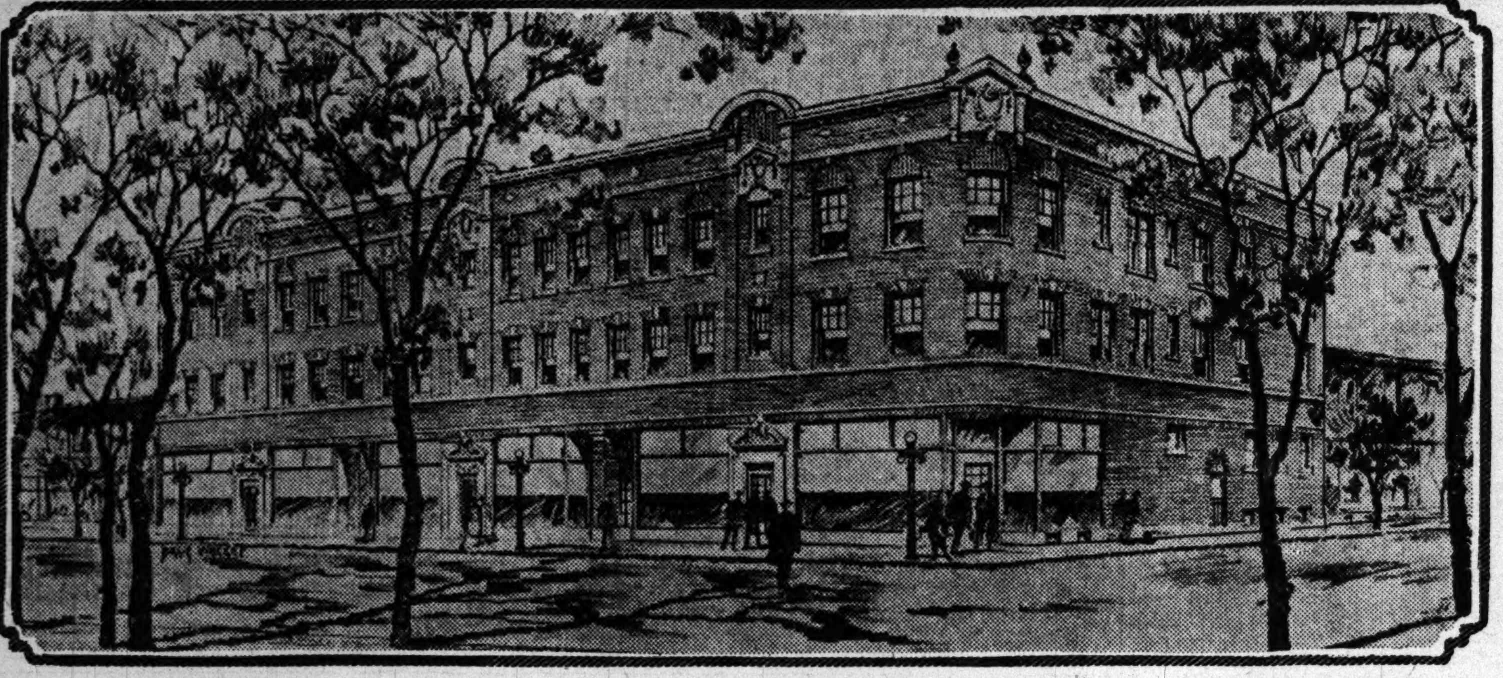
The Chicago Title and Trust company was grantor in a transfer to the Ford Motor company reported during the week, the property comprising the premises 4411-25 Broadway, being the southeast corner of Fair Oaks street and Broadway. Fair Oaks is a new street, just dedicated, extending from Broadway to Hazel street, and is one block south of Montrose boulevard, at the intersection of Sheridan road and Broadway. Work on the new street has just been started and will be completed in ninety days.

The property acquired by the Ford company comprises a frontage of 102 feet on Broadway and a depth of about 300 feet on Fair Oaks street. The consideration is stated to be $60,000. Sprague Moore, who was the broker in the present deal, sold the property in February, 1915, for a reported consideration of $28,000 to a purchaser whose name was withheld, the Chicago Title and Trust company taking title.

SOME MODEL FLATS GOING UP

Shirley Apartments Nearing Completion in Drexel Boulevard Are Shown in Upper Picture—Below Is New Structures Being Erected at Devon and Lakewood Avenues.





AN exceedingly attractive apartment building, to be known as the Shirley apartments, is nearing completion at the southwest corner Drexel boulevard and Forty-second street. It is being erected by A. Irving Jordan, will be four story and high English basement structure, and will cost approximately $135,000. It will contain fifty-six apartments of two rooms, each with a bath. Each apartment will be equipped with a disappearing bed, dressing closet, and breakfast room and kitchenette combined. S. W. Straus & Co. have underwritten a bond issue loan of $90,000 at 6 per cent.

An attractive store and apartment building is being erected by John Hammer at the southeast corner of Devon and Lakewood avenues to cost about $100,000. It will occupy a lot 125x100 feet and will contain six stores, three offices, and twenty-four apartments of two, three, and four rooms, with shower baths and all conveniences. It was designed by Architest Carl A. Westerlind and will be handled by Sontag Bros.

TRADING SLUMPS IN APARTMENTS

Largest Figure in Any Transaction for Week Only $90,000.

Apartment house property made a poor showing last week. The largest figure reached in any transaction was $90,000, while the movement of medium and cheaper priced properties was on a smaller scale than for a long time. Many negotiations are reported pending, but buyers show a decided disposition to hold off, and deals are reported exceedingly hard to put over.

The big deal of the week covered the property at the northeast corner of Kenwood avenue and Sixty-fourth street. The building, which occupies a lot 100x165 feet, contains twenty-four apartments of four, five, six, and seven rooms and is said to have a gross annual rental of nearly $12,000.

The property has been sold by Albert Silverman to Theron P. Cooper for an indicated consideration of $90,000, subject to an incumbrance of $55,000. James A. McLane & Co., represented the purchaser and E. B. Woolf & Co. the seller.

One of the high grade six apartment buildings in the block between Forty-seventh and Forty-eighth streets on Ingleside avenue, which were erected by Sherman T. Cooper within the last two years, comprising the property at 4719-21, has been sold by Alzina L. Cram to Kurt Rosenthal for a reported consideration of $40,000, subject to an incumbrance of $21,000.

The purchaser conveyed in part payment the business property at 4018-24 Cottage Grove avenue, for a reported consideration of $36,000, subject to $17,000. Sidney L. Stein & Co. and Joseph R. Young were the brokers.

APARTMENT CONSTRUCTION LEADS BUILDING PROJECTS.

Despite the fact that the total cost of the permits issued by the city building department for last week amounted only to $683,100, as against $2,680,800 for the corresponding week a year ago, there was an unusual number of building projects announced, covering all classes of structures.

Apartments were, of course, in the lead, and outside of the two big fireproof structures planned for Streeterville, there were many announcements made of medium sized structures to be erected. They were mostly in connection with land purchases.

A north side deal with a building feature covers the property at the southwest corner of Melrose street and Broadway, with a frontage of fifty feet on Broadway and with a depth of 150 feet on Melrose street. It has been sold by John L. Flannery to Milton S. Plotke for a reported consideration of $12,000.

It is announced that Mr. Plotke immediately will improve with a three story building containing twelve four and five room apartments and three stores on the corner. The cost is placed at about $40,000. John B. De Voney & Co. represented all parties to the transaction.

DOWNTOWN DEAL LEADS BUSINESS PROPERTY SALES

Outside Store Structures Figure in Some Fairly Large Transactions.

Business property made a fairly good showing with one transaction in the downtown district and several fairly good sized outside deals. The showing as a whole, however, was hardly up to the average of late.

The downtown deal covered the property at 173-75 North Michigan avenue, just north of Randolph street, referred to elsewhere on this page.

A west side lease covered the property at 714-28 West Van Buren street, between Desplaines and Halsted streets. The ground dimensions of the property are 161x161, extending through to Boston avenue, and it is improved with a four story and basement building containing 124 apartments of five, six, and seven rooms, with seventeen stores on the ground floor. The building is stated to have a gross annual rental of over $24,000.

Under Fifty Year Lease.

The property has been leased by Robert L. McElroy of New York City to John Refakes for a term of fifty years at a reported annual rental of $6,000 for the first year, $7,000 for the next four years, $9,000 for the following five years, $13,000 for the succeeding ten years, and $15,000 for the remaining thirty years of the term. Total term rental is stated to be $659,000, which is at the rate of $13,000 a year. It is stated that Mr. Refakes will remodel the building extensively. The lease was negotiated by Stedman & Soelke.

The property at the northeast corner of State and Thirty-sixth streets, lot 99½x119 feet, to elevated road, has been sold by Frederick H. Bartlett to J. J. Jordan for a reported consideration of $30,000. The purchaser, it is stated, will improve with a three story store, office, and flat building with a garage in the rear, to cost about $80,000. Anderson & Terrill were the brokers.

Sale in Sherman Street.

The property in Sherman street, seventy-nine feet south of Polk street, lot 39¾x106 feet, east front, has been conveyed by Amelia M. Schultz to the Chicago Title and Trust company, trustee, for an expressed consideration of $19,800.

A deal in South Chicago property comprised the premises at the southeast corner of Commercial avenue and Ninetieth street, which has been sold by W. L. Kavanagh to Max Draeger for an indicated consideration of $33,000, subject to an incumbrance of $20 000. The lot fronts 55 feet, with a depth of 140 feet, and is improved with a four story store, flat, and hall building.

Record has been made of the transfer by Morris Victor to Max Dolinsky et al, of the property at 2341 West Adams street, 24x155 feet, north front, with store and flat improvements, for an indicated consideration of $27,500, subject to an incumbrance of $25,000.

Leases and Loans.

Outside of the leases of space in the wholesale district reported by Albert H. Wetten & Co. there was little doing in business leases during the week in the downtown district. There were a few leases of outside business space, but as a whole the week's showing was not of an encouraging character.

Wetten & Co. leased for the Seipp realty trustees to Edward [illegible] Strauss & Co., Schoenfeld, Yatter & Co., F. W. Rauch, Meyer Thread company, and other tenants, space in the building at the southwest corner of Market and Van Buren streets, aggregating 100,000 square feet, at a term rental of $125,000.

For John V. Farwell to the Smith-Wallace Shoe company and Dessauer & Co., space in the building at the northwest corner of Market and Adams streets, and to M. A. Eiseman & Bro., store at 124 South Market street, for a term of years, at a rental of $58,000.

Sidney C. Edenburg leased for J. Lebovitz to the Harry Shoe company the store at 6311 South Halsted street for a term of ten years at a reported term rent of $30,000; also for Joseph Strauss to Wolf & Solomon the store at the southwest corner of Lincoln avenue and Melrose street, for a term of ten years, at a reported term rent of $51,100; for William Reiss to Ben H. Arkin, the store at 1267 Milwaukee avenue, for five years at a reported term rent of $22,500.

The New England Mutual Life Insurance company has made a loan of $44,000, ten years, at 4½ per cent, to the Catholic bishop of Chicago, secured by the church, school, and convent property of the parish of St. Bonaventure, at the southeast corner of Diversey parkway and Marshfield avenue. McMahon & Hoban represented the Catholic bishop and R. D. Hill & Co. the insurance company.

Walter J. Greenebaum of Greenebaum Sons' Bank and Trust company has this to say regarding certain features of the mortgage loan market:

"It is doubtful how long the 6 per cent rate on real estate bonds will continue. Personally I am of the opinion that any reaction after the war will have a tendency to maintain the high rate of interest. On the other hand, increased building when the cost of construction is lower will help to stabilize the high rate, for there will be a greater demand for funds.

"The interest rates for commercial purposes, short time money, does not affect local first mortgage rates. The former has varied from 3 to 7 per cent during the last two years, while the latter has shown only slight fluctuations.

HARVARD SCHOOL TO HAVE NEW HOME ON SOUTH SIDE.

Record has been made of the transfer by Greenebaum Sons' Bank and Trust company to the Harvard School Building company of the property at 4731 Ellis avenue, 67x291.8 feet, west front, for $20,500. This is preliminary to the construction of a new home for the Harvard school, and is the culmination of a movement started some time ago by graduates and friends of the school to secure for it a new and better home. The building company, composed of many prominent Chicagoans, will finance the construction of the new building, which is expected to cost about $70,000. It is expected to have it completed in time for the opening of the spring term of the school next year. The school, which had its start about fifty years ago on Sixteenth street, near Indiana avenue, has for a number of years occupied the old Warren Leland homestead at the northeast corner of Drexel boulevard and Forty-seventh street

ARMOUR PURCHASE SETS NEW HIGH PRICE RECORD.

The price paid by Philip D. Armour III. for part of the tract he recently purchased near Lake Forest was revealed during the week. It sets a new record in real estate values for Lake county. For six acres the consideration was $35,000, or at the rate of $5,833 1-3 an acre. Eight years ago Daniel W. Voltz purchased the tract, which lies on the Green Bay road just north of the northwest corner of the village of Lake Bluff, for $3,000, or less than $500 an acre. By his sale to Mr. Armour he made a profit of $32,000.

FACTORY SITES CUT BIG FIGURE IN WEEK'S TRADES

Several Transactions in Manufacturing Districts Involve Building.

Manufacturing property cut a conspicuous figure in the week's market, most of the transactions also involving important building undertakings.

A west side deal of special interest was the purchase by the Hughes Electric Heating company, manufacturers of electric ranges, ovens, and miscellaneous heating devices, who have been located at 215 West Schiller street for the last four years, through J. J. Harrington & Co., of a tract of 111,000 square feet of ground located between the Baltimore and Ohio Terminal railway, West Taylor street, Fifty-sixth and Waller avenue. The consideration is not disclosed, but it is said to have been about $33,000, which is at the rate of about 30 cents a square foot.

A noteworthy transaction in the Clearing district was the exercise of an option of purchase by Harry D. Crooks, owner of the Chicago Storage and Transfer company, of the three story and basement mill constructed building at 5801 West Sixty-fifth street. The building occupies a plot of ground containing 33,000 square feet, which sold at $3,300, while the building sold at $62,000, making approximately $65,000.

Charles B. Scoville is to erect a two story brick office building and a one story steel constructed factory building, 65x200 feet, at the northeast corner of Hoyne and Bross avenues, which he has leased to the Gage Structural Steel company.

MERCURY DROP DUE TOMORROW; HEAT KILLS TWO

Return of High Temperatures Causes Suffering for the City's Poor.

Two deaths, a number of prostrations and further suffering among the poor were caused by the new heat wave which came upon Chicago yesterday when the thermometer registered 93 degrees at 2:30 p. m.

There was a slight relief later when a lake breeze swung in upon the city, but this was dissipated and heat again prevailed.

Baby Enmark, 3 weeks old of 2517 Wabansia avenue, was the first victim. The baby died of heat prostration. John Carroll, 683 Milwaukee avenue, died in his home after a heat stroke.

According to Forecaster C. L. Mitchell the heat of yesterday will continue through today and tonight, but "fair and cooler" is the prediction for tomorrow.

"The temperature will be in the 80s on Monday and the mercury will drop to below 80 after Monday. There is hope in a storm in the Dakotas, which is expected to reach Chicago in another twenty-four hours."

Fort Smith, Ark., was the hottest place in the country with 100. In Baker City, Ore., the temperature was 38.

The bathing beaches again were the centers of attraction. Early yesterday thousands began their pilgrimage to the lake. A rumor that the water at Clarendon beach was impure was disposed of when a report was made by Supt. C. A. McGhee, showing that an analysis of the water proved it fit to bathe in.

Report by Charity Workers.

An appeal for more funds to relieve sufferers of the hot spell is contained in the report of the United Charities for July. In describing conditions the report says:

"Iceboxes do not form part of the equipment of a home. Food supplies, such as butter, milk, meat, etc., spoil in a few hours. Between the extremes of heat in summer and cold in winter many families living on the narrow line that separates them from dependency find themselves continually falling over into the latter state and being compelled to ask aid the year round.

"We must have more money at once to relieve hot weather distress," said Bernard C. Roloff, financial secretary. "If the United Charities had been obliged to drop its work among its 3,800 families in July, it would have created as much of a crisis almost as another Eastland disaster."

Killed by Train.

Andrew Kuaels of Melrose Park was crushed to death yesterday by a Northwestern railway train at Twenty-third avenue, Melrose Park.

OBITUARY.

MRS. FFRENCH STARTS HOME WITH BODY OF HUSBAND.

New York, Aug. 19.—[Special.]—The widow, four daughters, and two sons of Charles J. Ffrench, member of the Chicago board of education and publisher of the Musical Leader of Chicago, who died Thursday afternoon, after his leg had been amputated following injuries received while alighting from a Sixth avenue car on Tuesday evening, started today for Chicago with the body of Mr. Ffrench.

FLAGS TO FLY HALF-MAST.

As a committee of the whole, members of the board of education will attend the funeral of the late Charles Ffrench, it was decided upon at a special meeting in the board rooms yesterday.

President Loeb announced he had ordered flags of all schools to be raised at half mast for thirty days in honor of Mr. Ffrench. The school board offices will be closed during the hours of the funeral.

The Irish Fellowship club, of which Mr. Ffrench was a former president, held a meeting yesterday at Hotel La Salle, and made arrangements to meet the body when it arrives from New York today and attend the funeral, which will be held Tuesday morning from his late residence, 5850 Harper avenue, to St. Thomas' church.

JAMES E. O'KEEFE, 38 years old, who moved from Chicago to Muskegon, Mich., three years ago, died in the latter city yesterday after a short illness. He was born in Delavan, Wis. His widow, who was Miss Margaret Taff of Chicago, a son, and a daughter survive him.

DEATH NOTICES.

IN MEMORIAM.

HOLDER—Mrs. Julia Holder. In loving remembrance of our darling mother, who died one year ago today, Aug. 20, 1915.

OBITUARY.

PRIVATE FUNERAL SERVICES HELD FOR HENRY H. HONORE.

Funeral services for the late Henry Hamilton Honoré, pioneer Chicagoan, who died a few days ago, were held at the residence, 841 Lincoln parkway, by the Rev. James S. Stone, pastor of St. James' Episcopal church, East Huron and Cass streets, yesterday.

The services were private. Only immediate relatives were present. They are: Mrs. Potter Palmer, Mr. and Mrs. Adrian Honoré, Judge Lockwood Honoré, wife, and daughter; Mr. and Mrs. Potter Palmer Jr., Mrs. H. H. Kohlsaat, Nathaniel K. Honoré, and Mrs. Honoré Palmer.

Interment was at Graceland.

THE REV. JOHN T. FEIERTAG, for twenty-seven years pastor of the Evangelican Lutheran Bethlehem church in South Chicago, died at his home, 10556 Avenue G, Friday afternoon. The Rev. Mr. Feiertag was born in Berlin, coming to this country at the age of 29 years. A year later, in 1865, he was graduated from Concordia seminary in St. Louis, and took up a charge in Cambridge, Mich. From there he went to a New York town, taking his South Chicago pulpit in 1882. He retired from there in 1909 on account of ill health. The Rev. Mr. Feiertag was 79 years old. He celebrated his golden wedding last year. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Mary Feiertag, and eight children, Mrs. William Brauer and Carolina, Fredericka, Adelia, John, Henry, Carl, and Fred Feiertag.

FRANK N. CRANE, 75 years old, one of the best known men in western Michigan, a veteran of the civil war, and for twelve years head of the grocery department of Montgomery Ward at Chicago and prominently connected with the Northern Pacific and Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroads here, died at Mercy hospital, in Muskegon, Mich., yesterday, after a month's illness. He was one of the few remaining eyewitnesses of the battle of the Monitor and the Merrimac.

DEATH NOTICES.

BRAUER—Louise Martha Brauer, Aug. 18, 1916, aged 11 years, dearly beloved daughter of Fred J. and Louise Brauer, sister of Esther. Funeral Monday, Aug. 21, 2:30 p. m., from parents' residence, 3546 Wabansia-av., by autos to Mount Rose.

BRIGHTLY—Mrs. Martha Golding Brightly, wife of F. C. Brightly, daughter of Ella L. Golding, at Fort Strong, Mass., Aug. 17. Funeral Sunday, at 2 p. m., at the residence, 433 S. Oak Park-av., Oak Park, by autos to Rosehill.

BROWN—John L. Brown entered into rest Saturday, Aug. 19, 1916, at his residence, 4400 W. Lawrence-av.; beloved husband of Bessie C. and fond brother of Wilhelmina C. Johnson and the late Charles E. Member of Providence lodge, No. 711, A. F. & A. M. Funeral notice later.

BUCKLEY—Mrs. Mary Buckley, aged 79 years, a resident of Chebanse, Ill., since 1857, departed this life at her home Saturday, Aug. 19, 1916, at 12:30 p. m., after a long and lingering illness. Funeral services will be conducted at her late home on Monday, Aug. 21, 1916, at 2 o'clock, and her remains will be laid to rest in Evergreen cemetery.

CLIFTON—Theodore Clifton, husband of Laura T. Clifton, father of Fred T. and Philip G. Clifton, Edna C. Sikes, Mildred C. Woodbury. Burial from residence, 7617 Emerald-av., to Mount Hope, 2 p. m., Monday.

COHEN—Harry Cohen, aged 72 years, of 1261 S. Central Park-av., Aug. 19. Funeral Monday, at Waldheim, from 3660 W. 12th-st.

CORBETT—Sarah Corbett, Aug. 18, 1916, widow of the late Arthur J. Corbett, and fond mother of James W., William, Clive, Alwyn, and Juanita Corbett, Mrs. William Caulfield, Mrs. John Collins, and Mrs. Charles C. Bulger. Big Profits in Motors has joined a few substantial business and financial men in the organization of a new Motor Truck Company to manufacture Popular Priced Motor Delivery Trucks that will sell at a price within the reach of the hundreds of thousands of small merchants that are now waiting for such a motor to replace their present horse-drawn equipment.

W. C. MACK

FOUNDER OF THE FAMOUS MACK MOTOR TRUCKS

? ? ? Are you one of the fortunate investors who bought motor stocks in the big companies of today when they first organized?

If you did you are now enjoying the fruits of your foresight and courage to ACT. If you did not you are now aware of what "might have been." I say fortunate because most people think that the investing of $100 in the original Hupp Motor Company and watching it grow to $16,500 was just good fortune. They are wrong; such an investment is the result of good, hard-headed business sense, coupled with foresight and courage.

Big Profits in Motor Trucks R. C. Hupp, of the Hupp Company, first foresaw the marketing possibilities of the popular price passenger car, and the result was big profits for those who had the foresight to join him at the inception of the Company.

W. C. Mack first foresaw the possibilities of the Commercial Truck, with the result that $2,000 grew into millions in 19 years. He now foresees the immense marketing possibilities of the popular price Motor Delivery Wagon. Mr. Mack now offers you an opportunity such as the early investors in the big Motor Companies had a few years ago. The Motor Truck Industry is yet in its infancy; secure an interest in it now and let your investment grow with the development of the Industry.

Motor profits are so large—the cash and stock dividends paid to stockholders so big—great fortunes from small investments so common that investors now demand Motor Stocks in preference to any other class of investment. Never before has the public been given an opportunity to share in an immense manufacturing industry on such a fair basis and with such assurance of unusual possibilities for big, quick profits.

Metropolitan Motors, Inc. W. C. MACK'S new Company is Metropolitan Motors, Inc. It is incorporated in Delaware with a capital of One Million Dollars; the shares are all common shares, par value $10 each. The stock is fully paid and non-assessable; there is no preferred stock and no bonded indebtedness. All shares have equal voting rights and share equally in all profits.

Operating Company Metropolitan Motors has taken over the established business of the White Star Motor & Engineering Company, including the patterns, drawings, trade name, good will, etc., and will provide enlarged facilities for building the well known White Star line of 2, 3 and 5 ton Motor Trucks. In addition, it is proposed to design and manufacture a popular priced Motor Delivery Wagon.

Popular Priced Motor Truck W. C. MACK is among the first to recognize the immense marketing possibilities of the popular priced Motor Truck. With his brothers, he was a pioneer in America of the Motor Truck Industry. Starting with only $2,000, in 1892, the Mack Brothers developed a three million dollar Motor Truck Company in 19 years. Every one has heard of the well known Mack Motor Truck. If you haven't, ask your nearest friend about it or talk to any Motor Truck owner. What Mack did for the Mack Brothers Motor Car Company I believe he can do for Metropolitan Motors. Success breeds success. The men handling Metropolitan Motors are successful men. This is your opportunity to join hands with success.

I offer for immediate sale, subject to withdrawal without notice and advance in price,

Metropolitan Motors Common Stock (Par Value $10) at $4.00 Per Share.

I can deliver only a limited block at this price, as this is the organization stock.

The rush to secure an interest with Mr. Mack in this new Company of his has been so great wherever this announcement has been made that this first issue at $4.00 has almost gone, and this may be your last opportunity to buy Metropolitan common at $4.00. You can forward check or money order at the rate of $4.00 per share for the number of shares you want, or you can fill out the coupon and let me send you full descriptive circular, catalogue and full information regarding the investment in the Company. Fill out and mail coupon today.

$100 GROWS TO $16,500

Had you invested $100 in the original shares of the Hupp Motor Car Company you would have received in cash dividends in seven years $4,816. In addition, you would have received stock dividends of $4,000, which, on a book value of approximately $15 per share of $10 par value, were worth $6,000.

In other words, $100 worth of Hupp Motor Car Company stock returned to the original investor from 1908 to 1915 $10,816. Since that date the common stock of the Company has again increased to $6,500,000, and it is now stated that an original investment of $100 has now grown to $16,500.

That is not an isolated instance by any means. Investments of $100 in such Companies as Chandler, Reo, Chalmers, Paige, Detroit, Federal Motor Truck and Kelly-Springfield Motor Truck are said to have returned to the original investors comfortable fortunes.

Enormous Profit in Trucks
$1,000 Grows to $68,280

Had you invested $1,000 in Federal Motor Truck when its capitalization was but $25,000 your stock would today, by reason of stock dividends, have a par value of $15,000. Federal is said to be now paying 40% per annum on par; therefore you would now be enjoying an income of $6,000 per year from your original $1,000 investment. Your cash dividends up to Jan. 1, 1917, would have been $8,280 and your stock today would certainly be worth four times its par value, or $60,000, showing you a total return from your $1,000 investment of $68,280. This should convince you of the extraordinary profits in the motor truck industry and of the importance of getting in at the very beginning!

The margin of profit in the manufacture of Motor Trucks is very much larger than the profit in passenger cars. Where the manufacturers of passenger cars figure the profit on each car at $100 or a few hundred dollars per car, the production of the White Motor Co. in 1915 shows an actual profit of $1,070.

The increase in the volume of business should give to the motor truck industry the same immense profits that the passenger automobile companies have made during the past few years. The White Motor Co. earned 54.3% on its capital in 1915, or over $8,640,000. Profits for this year are now estimated in excess of $10,000,000.

Regardless of the merits of other automobile securities, I advise the purchase of Metropolitan today. I urge all clients and readers to act immediately, as the price is on the eve of advance.

Again the race test tells the truth about cord tires.

AGAIN the Speedway writes the Supremacy of Silvertown tires. Again the race test tells the truth about cord tires.

Thundering merrily along on the wings of super-speed—Silvertown Tires—far ahead of all competitors, Dario Resta in his Puegeot captured the Chicago Speedway Grand Prix.

Attempted rivalry but revealed the futility of competition with Silvertown, and established it as the one real cable cord tire.

The true cable cord tire, only, stood the scorching friction of the 100-mile an hour pace.

Goodrich Silvertown Tires

And their DURABILITY won all the way. The prize winners bowled down the stretch in a procession of Silvertown equipped cars.

Resta won because his car with Silvertowns had more speed and 50% more resistance against tire trouble.

The Grand Prix crowned Silvertown, the tire without a rival.

The big automobile racing classics at Chicago, Indianapolis, New York, Omaha, Minneapolis, Sioux City and Des Moines were all won on Silvertown Tires.

The tires that pass through the Speedway ordeal of fire, are the tires that will carry you free of tire trouble over city streets, or over country roads.

"Our Country! In her intercourse with foreign nations may she always be in the right; but our country, right or wrong."
—Stephen Decatur.

THE DISORGANIZED UNITED STATES.

Mr. Hughes' opponents console themselves in the opinion that the Republican candidate is not making a vigorous campaign and that he is not raising issues which interest the people. That opinion needs the assumption that the nation cannot be aroused to interest in its government, and does not care and cannot be made to care whether national affairs go ahead well or badly.

Mr. Hughes is vigorous enough in showing that the Democratic administration has been inefficient and wasteful during a period when the country was protected from the worst consequences of inefficiency and waste by the war in Europe.

We have not had to meet competition because our competitors have been too busy killing each other. When that stops the protection which has guarded the United States will be down and the United States will be pulled into the world again.

A government which is not operating on right principles and by right methods will be unable to meet the situation which is bound to be created. People who think that present conditions will continue to exist are in a fool's paradise. If they think that the future will not require a different kind of administration in the United States, they are ill prepared for the shock they will get if the United States be not given a different kind of administration.

America has been through two sheltered years, and if it mistakes the causes of its good fortune, it has lean and difficult years ahead of it.

To meet these lean, difficult years, to keep them from being lean and difficult, it is necessary to have a practical government. Mr. Hughes has advocated the budget system for national expenditures, and to the pleased astonishment of his friends, has made that interesting.

Men who knew how important it was for the nation to organize itself properly for the fierce competition it must meet were afraid that it would be impossible to make the details of national necessity take form in the people's thought. The budget versus the pork barrel is an uninspiring subject. It is the greatest misfortune of some of the subjects which ought to interest the nation that they are so bald.

Mr. Hughes made the subject of appropriations interesting. He even made the subject of civil service interesting. A man who can do that is making a vigorous campaign. Gradually, we think, the plight of the United States will take form in the imagination of its people.

Here is a protected nation which is about to enter the world. Its entrance cannot be delayed. It has escaped conditions of life as they are encountered elsewhere. It is about to encounter them. It must meet the competition of highly organized nations, organized now as they never were before. They cannot afford, in their present danger, to permit stupidity, waste, and irresolution to govern them. They cannot indulge in rhetoric and vaporings. If they did they would be overrun by enemies. They must be efficient.

With every important nation in the world except the United States organized as the Standard Oil company is organized here, the United States has not changed its shabby, shiftless ways, and we do not believe it will change them unless it gets out from under the control of a party which does not believe in strong and efficient centralized government.

Mr. Hughes is making his campaign on ideas of preparation for the conflict into which the United States must go, organized or unorganized, efficient or inefficient, strong or weak. If we try to go through the next few years in the fashion we have gone through the last few, the United States will suffer and, we fear, severely.

We cannot, safely, have such things as pork barrel waste, breaking down of governmental agencies by "deserving Democrats," breaking down of national institutions by officials who do not believe in the purpose of the institutions they control.

We cannot have money wasting congressmen ignoring national needs and flabby sentimentalists directing the practical affairs of government. The United States must tighten up its government. We must get some Standard Oil efficiency into the management of the country. We do not want Standard Oil policies, but we need Standard Oil practicality in support of good policies.

This is the most wonderful organization in the world and it is an American organization. We do not like the way it has met competition in the United States, but we have not objected to the fashion in which it has gone into world competition. The United States is going into world competition against perfectly organized nations, and unless it reconstructs its government, the defeats administered to the United States in that competition will be felt in every home.

Mr. Hughes is making his campaign in urgence of thorough preparation for national trial, a preparation which will not overlook details and will not ignore the weak places.

A strong nation cannot have its resources dissipated to please congressional districts or its offices filled to reward "deserving Democrats." It cannot have its diplomatic service broken down by political exigency. It cannot have its tariff protection erected by men who do not believe in a tariff, or its military protection given by men who do not believe in an army or navy. It cannot have its industries regulated by men who do not believe in industries.

If the American voter is willing to think at all, he will be given plenty to think about before Mr. Hughes is through with his campaign. And the next few years of American history will be affected as the voter thinks now.

CORN ON THE COB.

An amiable westerner, who, when he is where he really can enjoy life, commutes on the Rock Island and sits in the smoker, where they tell sad stories of the deaths of kings, was in New York not so long ago and preserved his self-respect and social standing by putting up at one of the taverns designed to preserve self-respect and social standing.

Folk in New York, we thought, were just like folk in Paris, Ill., or Canton, Ill., or Pekin, Ill., just as folk in Constantinople are a good deal like folk in Des Moines, Ia., or Fond du Lac, Wis. But our Rock Island smoker friend found a difference that was not merely a superficiality of geography. He could not get corn on the cob.

He might have corn in any other fashion he chose, but he might not have it on the cob. He might have it deviled, cheesed, or tomatoed, frozen in cream or hot with tamales. He could have corn in every fashion except the fashion in which corn at this time of the year comes to the table. He could not have corn on the cob because it would be improper.

When this lament had full explanation, doubt as to the future of the American democracy really gained a footing in optimism.

New York is the plate glass window through which the world looks to see what are the artistic displays of the United States. Corn on the cob is the one artistic contribution, aside from Poe and Henry James and Whistler, that America has made to the world.

Poe, Whistler, and James are dead, but corn keeps on growing on the cob. Golden bantam at this time is a lyric drawn singing from the earth by the sun. It must be eaten on the cob or it cannot be corn.

For dinner it must come willingly from the small but sturdy stalk in the cool of the evening, about such time as Arcturus stands overhead in the last color of the sun. And ten minutes from the time that it has been picked from the productive stalk it must go into the bubbling pot and five minutes thereafter come out to convince men that they are dead and seated as gods about the tables of Olympus.

The sweet sacs of this perfect food are at the root of the kernel and to get their sweetness the tooth and tongue must search for them.

When New York taverns say that corn may not be had upon the cob they divorce New York from the appetent life of the United States and make that city a thing set apart and cursed. Call it Peking and give it nothing but rice.

CROP IMPROVEMENT.

It is quite possible that the district attorney and the federal trade commission, aided by a grand jury, will turn up enough evidence to make a respectable showing to the effect that certain northwestern milling interests are taking a flyer in wheat and that they are not through with the price yet. But there is something more to be gotten out of this flare-up than the bagging of a few speculators who are playing around the fringe of the market.

The simple fundamentals are that there is a natural shortage of grain and a heavy demand. The rise in price and the sharp speculator are only by-products of the situation. We should be dealing only with minor results if we applauded the district attorney for twisting the necks of the spectators and then went on whistling.

There has been an insufficient production of wheat the world over to meet the demand, partly as a result of unfavorable weather conditions, but probably more because our producers were not or did not put themselves in a position to recoup their losses in winter wheat with gains in spring wheat and did not use the best available forecasts of the condition of their seed.

Pessimistic predictions were heard as much as nine months ago, when the surveys showed inferior material for seeding. Later, when the predictions proved up and it became evident that the winter wheat crop would fall far short of doing its share toward another billion year, the warning was sent out to double up on the spring planting. The net results, so far as shown by as accurate information as we have, were an American crop reduced one-third as compared with the previous year, a Canadian crop off 136,000,000 bushels, and the European crops the poorest of a generation. In addition, three seasons of the Russian harvests are locked up behind the Dardanelles. The United States had an exportable surplus of 300,000,000 bushels last year. This year it is cut to 90,000,000 bushels, with the crops of the consuming nations poorer than last year.

The measures to be taken and the methods to be adopted for permanent results do not give much space to sporadic lunges against the market. If larger crops can be insured and regulated so as to come along with some degree of certainty, the market will take care of itself with some help from the government.

Germany and France were producing 18 and 19 bushels to the acre in 1881. In 1913 Germany produced 35 bushels and France 20 bushels. The United States averaged 13.8 bushels and the yield of winter wheat in Illinois averaged 10 bushels to the acre. This suggests intensive cultivation.

But even if intensive cultivation is not thoroughly practicable in some parts of the country, there is another effort, looking to the standardization of production, worth attention. It intends to guarantee the winter wheat against all but unwilling weather conditions by adapting, fanning, treating, and testing the seed. Then, if the prospects are dark for the winter yield, its efforts are redoubled and the processes repeated for the spring planting.

The grain exchanges themselves, through their "crop improvement committee," are talking seed and soil and county organization everywhere. That, and not roping in speculators, will produce more wheat and steady the market.

Editorial of the Day.

HOW IT WILL BE EXPLAINED.

[From the Detroit Free Press.]

The present period of war-born business activity will be followed by depression; the cycle always brings reaction, and general collapse will come when the stimulus of war orders is withdrawn.

This thought is becoming common, apparently. One finds it in many magazines and newspapers. The belief has been held by some for a good many months, but it is good to see it gaining general currency. Foreknowledge leads sometimes to preparedness, and there are many ways in which people can prepare for the days of want and idleness if they take thought beforehand.

But if we do have a return to hard times within the next two or three years it is quite safe to predict certain happenings. In case Mr. Wilson is not elected this fall the Republicans will be blamed for the changed conditions and the country will be told that if it had kept the Democrats in power it would have kept the prosperity of their era. And again, if Mr. Wilson is elected this fall the ensuing depression will be treated otherwise. It will, in that case, be called "psychological," and the nation will be assured that it is really prosperous and no one is hungry. That's what happened in the "lean days" period of which Mr. Hughes is reminding the country; it would happen again.

A WOMAN'S HEART.

The average male heart, says an exchange, weighs from ten to twelve ounces. Its average size is about five inches long, three and one-half inches wide, and two inches in greatest depth. The average woman's heart is big enough to take in a good sized man with all his impediments of faults.—Columbia, S. C., State.

LA MARQUISE DE FONTENOY

[Copyright: 1916: By the Brentwood Company.]

THE Academy of France has just lost one of its most distinguished members in the person of the Marquis Pierre de Segur, a descendant oof his namesake, who was minister of war in 1780 and marshal of France, as well as head of one of the most ancient houses of the nobility of Guienne.

His son, Henri, a general of the French army, married a daughter of Gen. Count Feodore Rostopchine, governor of Moscow at the time of its capture by Napoleon a little over a hundred years ago and who gave the orders for setting fire to the city at that fateful September night of 1812.

There has always been a controversy as to whether the city was consigned to the flames by Napoleon or by Rostopchine. But the "Memoirs" of the latter's eldest daughter, Natalie Narishkine, printed for private circulation, and which I have had the opportunity of perusing, leave no doubt about the fact of the conflagration having been ordered by the count, his principal agent in the affair being his son, Count Sergius Rostopchine, who was his private secretary; the chief of police of Moscow, named Boker, and a trusted retainer of the governor general, named Voronenko.

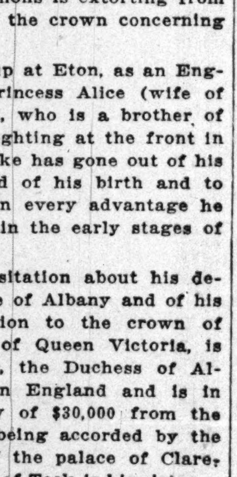
Voronenko was killed by the French while applying the torch to various buildings, granaries, warehouses, and palaces. But Natalie Narishkine, in her book, gives in facsimile a written order of her father on the steward of his property at Moscow, dated 1819, telling him to pay 5,000 rubles to the widow of Voronenko.

Gen. Count Rostopchine never regretted what he had done and extolled Voronenko and those others who had lost their lives in setting Moscow aflame as patriots whose names deserved to be recorded in gold on the pages of Russian history.

For he rightly held that by setting the city on fire, and especially by putting the torch to the great metropolitan granaries, where the supplies for the winter had been accumulated, the continued sojourn of the French army in Moscow was made impossible, separated as it was by so many hundreds of miles from its base of supplies.

It is difficult to understand why so much fuss should be made in the house of commons at Westminster over the demand for the deprival of the reigning Duke of Saxe-Coburg Gotha, of the Duke of Cumberland, and of Prince Albert of Schleswig-Holstein of their English honors and of their places in the line of succession to the throne of Great Britain.

Both the Duke of Cumberland and the reigning Duke of Saxe-Coburg Gotha have been expelled from their membership of the Order of the Garter; and their prospects of ever becoming next heir to the throne of England are so exceedingly remote that they are hardly worth considering.



The old Duke of Cumberland, who on being banned from the Order of the Garter was at the same time deprived of his commission as general of the English army, has been under restraint since the beginning of the war, it is said, and has not been able to take active part either in the military operations of the central powers or even to give official expression of sympathy for the Germans. His wife is the youngest sister of Queen Alexandra.

With regard to the Duke of Saxe-Coburg Gotha, he undoubtedly deserves the measures the English house of commons is extorting from the government and from the crown concerning him.

For, although brought up at Eton, as an English boy, a brother of Princess Alice (wife of Prince Alexander of Teck, who is a brother of Queen Mary and who is fighting at the front in the English army), the duke has gone out of his way to denounce the land of his birth and to congratulate the kaiser on every advantage he obtained against England in the early stages of the war.

The only reason for hesitation about his deprival of the title of Duke of Albany and of his remote rights of succession to the crown of England, as a grandson of Queen Victoria, is that his widowed mother, the Duchess of Albany, makes her home in England and is in the receipt of an annuity of $30,000 from the British treasury, besides being accorded by the English crown the use of the palace of Claremont. Princess Alexander of Teck is his sister.

As for Prince Albert of Schleswig-Holstein, he has, in spite of his German citizenship and the intimacy of his relations with the reigning house of Prussia, purposely refrained, ever since the beginning of the present war, from taking up arms against Germany's foes and, with the kaiser's authorization, has remained all along in Berlin to succor the English sick and wounded who have been taken prisoner.

He has no English peerage but merely an English order of knighthood, namely, the grand cross of the Order of the Bath.

And here, too, the fact that his elder brother lost his life while fighting under the British flag in the Boer war and that his mother is the most kind hearted, philanthropic, and popular of all the princesses of the reigning house of England (namely, Princess Helena, sister of Edward VII.) might have served as an excuse for refraining from taking any steps against him.

They are steps which in the case of the Duke of Saxe-Coburg Gotha and of the Duke of Cumberland will require special legislation by both houses of parliament and by the crown at a juncture when every moment of the time of parliament is needed for business of a far more serious and important character to the British empire.

The Asquith cabinet has allowed itself to be badgered by certain members of parliament into taking up the matter and of promising to take steps to deprive these three princes of their English honors and prerogatives.

But it seems rather useless; it can serve no weighty purpose and is merely destined to give great pain and sorrow to Princess Alexander of Teck, to her mother, the widowed Duchess of Albany, to kind hearted Princess Christian of Schleswig-Holstein, and to Queen Alexandra, who is greatly attached to her sister, the unhappy and sorely tried Duchess of Cumberland.

DIET OF CHILDREN OVER 1 YEAR OF AGE.

THE amount of food a person should eat is determined by his weight and age, the amount of work he does, the season of the year, and in some small part by the efficiency of his digestive and nutritive apparatus.

Since a good part of the food eaten goes to make heat, the fuel value of the food eaten in zero weather should be nearly twice as great as that of the days when the mercury flirts with 100. A man doing hard manual labor requires 4,000 calories, as compared with the 2,000 required by a man lying quietly in bed. Other things being equal, the amount of food a person requires varies with the weight, and for at least two reasons the amount of food required per pound of weight, highest in the first year of life, lessens year by year so long as life lasts.

A baby increases his weight nearly 300 per cent in the first year of his life. The rate of growth diminishes each year thereafter. Growth requires food in relatively large quantities. That is one reason why a person requires more food a pound of weight in his first year than at any subsequent time.

A baby takes more exercise, works harder than an older person. Laziness is progressive. It increases from the cradle to the grave. That is a second reason why a baby requires more food a pound than does an older person.

A calorie is the unit of measurement of food value. Protein is the substance necessary for growth and repair of tissues. When we are comparing foods we cannot reckon in gross weights and measures, for foods vary in concentration and in food value. We must speak in calories and grains of protein. This is not so much of a bar to understanding as it seems. There are tables available which show the calories and grains of protein of nearly every food and certainly of each group of foods.

But aside from that people should be willing to learn the values of foods and to measure them accurately, since on such accuracy hangs the welfare of babies and older children, the possibility of the obese becoming thin and of the thin getting fat.

Dr. Knox concludes his paper on "The Diet of Children After Infancy," read before the American Medical association, by agreeing with Prof. Mendel when he asks why physicians take so much care in measuring their doses of drugs, which are administered only occasionally, and so little care in measuring their food prescriptions, which are to be followed daily. Furthermore, Dr. Knox says that if the food of children be accurately measured and allotted a considerable proportion of drugs now freely dispensed can be omitted.

Locke says that a child 2 years of age requires 42 calories for each pound of weight. The requirement for a child 4 years of age is 37 calories a pound; for one 8 years of age, 30 calories. The per pound requirement of a child 2 years of age is nearly one and a half times that of a child 8 years of age.

A child 2 years of age weighing 26.5 pounds should eat food containing 1,113 calories in a day. One 8 years of age, weighing 54.5 pounds, should eat 1,635—only one and a half times the quantity required by the mere baby of 2. The number of grains of protein required by the 2 year old is 1,469, nearly three ounces; of the 8 year old, 2,350, a little more than four and a half ounces.

The chief source of animal protein is milk, white of eggs, and the lean of meat. The chief source of vegetable protein is bread, cereals, peas, and beans.

Knox says that not more than 61 grains of protein a pound of weight should be contained in the daily ration of a young child. Of this one-half should be in the shape of milk, eggs, and lean meat. Children past 8 years of age should not take over 35 grains of protein a pound of weight. The older a person grows the less should be the proportion of his protein obtained from animal sources and the higher that from vegetable sources.

A younger child requires more fat a pound of weight than does an older one. Cammerer gives the proportions as 61 grains a pound for a 2 year old and 30 grains for a 10 year old.

As a child grows older there is an increasing need of starches and sugars, but this scarcely keeps pace with the increasing weight. The minimum requirement of sugars and starches a pound of weight, according to Locke, is 750 to 1,200 grains.

A baby 2 years old should have a quart of fluid a day (drinking water and food). A child of 7 should have three pints.

Knox bases the following diet tables on the foregoing facts:

Hour.	Food.	Amount, ounces.	Protein, grains.	Fat.	Carbohydrates, grains.	Calories.
6:30	Strained cereal	2-3	29	3	154	50
	Milk	8	124	138	170	165
10:30	Milk	8	124	138	170	165
	Zwieback [one piece]		22	23	170	65
1:30	Chicken broth	3	39	...	...	10
	Rice or macaroni	2	22	...	185	60
	Bread [small slice]		30	8	22	75
	Milk	4	61	72	85	83
5:30	Cereal	2-3	23	3	154	50
	Milk	8	124	139	170	165
	Apple sauce, 1½ tablespoonfuls	...	...	4	246	70
Totals			597	589	1,732	958

This is given as a diet suitable for a child weighing twenty-four pounds. The number of grains of protein is 597, decidedly a small amount for a growing child.

Three-fourths of the protein is from animal sources and one-fourth from vegetable. Most physicians would give somewhat more meat and milk, perhaps compensating by slightly decreasing the amount of rice, bread, or cereal. The diet would be a little liberal for a baby 1 year old and a little light for one 18 months old.

Dr. Knox holds, as do most authorities now, that it is better to feed few meals a day and to have long intervals between the feedings. If the baby gets hungry between meals, water will generally satisfy him.

Diet list for a child 2 to 4 years old:

Food—	Amount ounces.	Protein.	Fats.	Carbohydrates.	Calories.
Breakfast—
Cereal	3	43	8	178	60
Egg, boiled	1.4	112	93	...	80
Bread, 1 slice	1	61	8	308	100
Butter	¼	...	108	10	60
Milk	6	93	108	123	120—420
Dinner—
Meat	1	108	46	...	60
Potato	2	31	...	246	75
Green veg.	2	24	39	31	35
[Spinach]	..	54	9	308	100
Bread, 1 slice	1	...	108	...	60
Butter	¼	31	46	92	60—390

Supper—
Cereal	3	43	8	177	60
Milk	6	96	108	123	120
Crackers	..	6	6	46	20
Fruit—apple baked	2	...	...	216	60—260
Totals		693	693	1,863	1,070

In the above list spinach is taken as a type of green vegetable. Any other green vegetable will have about the same food value. It is designed for a child weighing about thirty pounds. The amount of protein is less than most people give. It is less than the amount held to be necessary by others who have written on the subject.

A third diet list is one for a boy 9 years old, weighing sixty-six pounds:

BREAKFAST.

	Calories.
Toast, 3 pieces	75
Butter, ½ ounce	60
Cereal, 3 ounces	75
Egg, 1 ounce	75
Sugar, ¼ ounce	30
Cocoa, 7 ounces	200

SUPPER.

	Calories.
Toast, 3 slices	75
Egg, 1	75
Butter, ½ ounce	115
Milk, 8 ounces	160
Baked apple, 3 ounces	90
	515

Dr. C. H. Smith gives the number of calories in a level tablespoonful of some common foods:

Article.	Calories.
Cane sugar	60
Cream [16 per cent]	50
Butter [a level teaspoonful of butter is ½ ounce and contains 60]	115
Fruit pulp	10
Baked apple	15
Cereals	10
Mashed vegetables	15
Clear soup	5
Puree of vegetables	15
Meat or fish	25
Milk	10
Cocoa	15
Soft custard	20

The calories contained in the following foods are as follows:

1 cracker	30
1 thick slice of bread	75
1 thin piece of toast	25
1 egg	75

Drummond gives the following diet for a child between 18 months and 2 years of age:

7:30 a. m.—Ten ounces milk, with porridge or bread and butter.

11 a. m. [second meal]—Eight ounces of milk and a biscuit.

1:30 p. m. [third meal]—Mutton broth with rice, or milk soup. Mashed potatoes and gravy, with a little shredded fish or finely chopped meat. Perhaps a little stewed fruit.

5:30 p. m. [fourth meal]—About ten ounces milk, with thin bread and butter.

He holds that children usually eat too much sugar, sweets, and starches and too little meat and other forms of protein.

Atwater gives the following comparison between the food requirements of children of different ages and men doing moderate work:

A child of 2 requires three-tenths as much food as a man at moderate work.

A child 3 to 5 requires two-fifths the food of a man at moderate work.

A child 6 to 9 requires one-half the food of a man at moderate work.

A child 10 to 13 requires three-fifths the food of a man at moderate work.

A girl 14 to 16 requires seven-tenths the food of a man at moderate work.

A boy 14 to 16 requires four-fifths the food of a man at moderate work.

HABIT VERSUS HABIT.

A Reader writes: "I saw the article about cure for biting finger nails and believe my experience would be valuable to thousands of your readers. Until three years ago, then aged 32, I was a confirmed victim to the habit, although had tried everything to quit. Then I conceived the idea of quitting by forming a counteracting habit of cleaning my finger nails almost continuously with a nail file. This furnished necessary 'monkeying' with my nails to offset the unconscious habit of putting them to my teeth and speedily weaned me away from the habit, and it was easy to break the counter habit after it had served its purpose. Believe this is the only cure in the world."

REPLY.

Your method is founded upon right psychological principles.

RUSH OF SALIVA.

C. E. S. writes: "[1] What is the cause of a rush of saliva to the mouth, between meals? Experience it more especially in the forenoon.

"[2] What cure, if any, is there for varicose veins in the scrotum?"

REPLY.

1. Is it possible that you get some mercury in your mouth, or phosphorus? Have you amalgam fillings in your teeth? Investigate.
2. They do not need a cure, as the condition is of no consequence.

NOT HARMFUL.

J. J. S. inquires: "Are fruit acids, such as apples, cherries, grapes, gooseberry preserves, or moderate use of vinegar harmful for one suffering with uric acid?"

REPLY.

No. Fruit acids are burned in the body. The resultant ash is alkaline.

VOTING AT PRIMARY.

Polo, Ill., Aug. 11.—[To the Friend of the People.]—I wish to vote at the September primary for a certain Republican for the legislature. Within two years, however, I have voted at primary for both Democratic and Republican candidates in minor offices. Hence I am a splitter, and neither a Democrat or Republican. Can I elect at the September primary as to what party I prefer to vote with or will the fact of my having voted at primary for both Democrats and Republicans debar me from choosing my ticket? Can I, under the circumstances, vote for a Republican at the primary after having split my ticket within two years? INQUIRER.

The primary law simply provides that a person cannot vote at a primary who has within two years previous voted the primary ticket of a different political party. The fact that they have voted the primary ballot also of the same political party within the previous two years does not alter the language or the meaning of this statute.

DENNIS J. EGAN,
Chief Clerk Election Board.

BICYCLES AND SIDEWALKS.

Chicago, Aug. 12.—[To the Friend of the People.]—Is it against the law to ride a bicycle on the sidewalks of Chicago? As I have seen officers stop several boys, why don't they stop those railroad trains that run up North Clark street on sidewalks? Have the owners of those cars a license to use public property for such purpose?

J. H. ALEXANDER,
8224 California avenue.

Municipal code 2324: No person shall drive, push, or draw any horse, wagon, cart, bicycle, or other vehicle over any public sidewalk, or use, ride, or drive any horse, wagon, sled, or sleigh thereon unless it be in crossing the same to go into a yard or lot where no other suitable crossing or means of access is provided, under penalty of not less than one dollar nor more than ten dollars for each offense.

NOISES ON A RAILROAD.

Chicago, Aug. 11.—[To the Friend of the People.]—Please see if something can be done to stop the unnecessary noise every night that takes place on West Kinzie street between North Hamlin avenue and North Crawford avenue on the Chicago & Northwestern railroad track.

N. KING, 443 North Avers avenue.

General Superintendent G. B. Vilas of the Chicago and Northwestern Railway company advises that instructions have been issued to all engine men to discontinue the use of the whistle and engine bell in all cases except where it is absolutely necessary.

ADVISE PROCURING DIVORCE.

Chicago, Aug. 10.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—A native of Canada came to Chicago in 1905 and married an American a year later. He deserted her in a few months. The deserted woman returned to Canada and has resided there since 1906. She has never heard from her husband. What legal steps are necessary for her to take to enable her to marry again in Canada? W. T. B.

She should get a divorce. We strongly advise her not to remarry in reliance on the presumption of death.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

PURCHASE BY A MINOR.

Chicago, Aug. 9.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—About three weeks ago I sold a motorcycle without misrepresentation and allowed purchaser to ride it before buying. He now requests that I buy the machine back from him, and says if I do not, he can take the matter to court and sue me because he is a minor. Kindly advise me whether or not he has a case against me. C. K.

Has the minor paid you for the machine? If so, he is entitled to his money back upon returning the machine to you. A minor can disaffirm any contract he makes unless the contract is for food, clothes, etc.

DIVISION OF AN ESTATE.

Appleton, Wis., Aug. 8.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—An unmarried man in Iowa dies, leaving as nearest of kin a half brother and sister and a niece and nephew by a brother deceased. No will being left, how will the property be divided? HIRAM.

The half brother and sister each take a third and the nephew and niece divide the other third.

RECORDING QUIT CLAIM DEED.

Alamogordo, N. M., Aug. 7.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—Please inform me whether a quitclaim deed made out in 1912, but not recorded until July, 1916, is good. Is there a time limit in which a deed must be recorded in Illinois? P. W.

There is no time limit for recording.

OSTRICH, NOT CAMEL, FOR PROHIBS.

Blue Island, Ill., Aug. 15.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Hearty disgust is mine over the anti-defense plank in the platform of the Prohibition party. For many years I have been a voter of the party. But the ostrich fatuousness revealed in the aforesaid plank means that my ballot next November will be marked for Hughes.

The charge is sometimes made (incorrectly, I am sure) that the Prohibition party is largely made up of mollycoddles and sissy-men. That silly anti-defense plank makes it harder for a disbeliever in the accusation to disprove it. I understand that the national chairman of the Prohibition party is a member of the Society of Friends, that religious organization which stresses the doctrine of nonresistance. It is a suspicion with me that Mr. Hinshaw's influence had no small part in the insertion of the plank protesting preparedness. Would that he could read a certain section in Franklin's autobiography. In that great book is pictured clearly the plight of the Quaker legislature of Pennsylvania, when the state was threatened with Indians. It was forced to appropriate funds for military purposes, even though this was done with a wretched subterfuge to evade the real issue. Franklin deliciously relates the story of their amusing, yet serious, dilemma.

Instead of the camel another denizen of the desert should be used to symbolize the Prohibition party. Its "ostrich optimism" demands that the giant foolish fowl be employed.

EX-PROHIBITIONIST.

SOUTHERN CONTROL.

Chicago, Aug. 17.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Referring to your editorial, "Southern Control," in today's TRIBUNE, you say, "We are not waving the bloody shirt in raising this question. . . . It is not a matter of opinion effected by prejudice. . . . The north has romanticized about the south. Dixie is the most popular air the north knows. Robert E. Lee has been adopted as one of the nation's heroic characters. Any city in the north would yell itself hoarse if the surviving men of the confederate army would parade its streets."

When a president at first refuses to attend a G. A. R. memorial, yet at about the same time is to be the chief speaker at a confederate service, when the attorney general glorifies the Ku Klux Klan in a public speech, when every important committee in both houses of congress has a southerner for its chairman, and when one hears such ante-bellum treason as was spoken in congress in the debate on the Juvenile court bill and other questions last winter, one realizes that Washington was as much the capital of the confederacy in 1916 as was Richmond in 1862.

WILLIAM F. BREWSTER.

SINGLE TAX AND ENGLISH LAND.

Chicago, Aug. 14.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Alfred Russel Wallace, speaking of the single tax principle said: "A great land owner may legally convert his whole property into a forest or hunting ground and expel every human being who has hitherto lived upon it. In a thickly populated country like England, where almost every acre has its owner and occupier, this is a power of legally destroying his fellow creatures; and that such a power should exist, and be exercised by individuals, in however small a degree, indicates that as regards true social science we are still in a state of barbarism."

England owns today nearly two-thirds of the dry land of the earth and all the oceans. C. E. COOK.

A CABLE OF OUR OWN.

Chicago, Aug. 17.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—The richest land on the globe must accept beggars' crumbs as to cable news. Two years ago the only cable independent of Great Britain was cut. No steps have been taken by any enterprising American, individual, corporation, or syndicate, to lay one of our own; no encouragement by the national government to that end. William Imperator, alias war lord, et cetera, but otherwise counselor, initiator, protector of enterprise, commerce, and general welfare of his people always deleted by the American mind, were he an American, and had he his residence in the White House in Washington, would have had a cable laid long ere this. Do not blame the British. Wake up the Americans.

WILLIAM RAPP.

FLOUR PRICES.

Chicago, Aug. 15.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Your paper, as well as all others in Chicago, has given considerable space in the last few days to the recent advance in the price of flour. It is true that one or two of the leading mills of Minneapolis have advanced the price of their flour, but you should not take their action to be the only price at which flour can be obtained. I represent several mills in the winter wheat states. One in St. Louis has authorized me to offer for sale in the Chicago market the very best grade of flour, used by the bakers, at $6.80 per barrel delivered in Chicago. J. A. BUSHFIELD.

COURTS AND THE STRIKE.

Chicago, Aug. 15.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—John W. Walsh suggests that the courts of the United States prevent a railroad strike by simply forbidding the railroad employés to strike. Why don't [illegible] suggest that the courts shall order the railroad companies to comply with the wishes of the men instead? If the courts can do the ordering why can they not order the corporations just as well as the men? Why always [illegible] working people? JOHN [illegible]

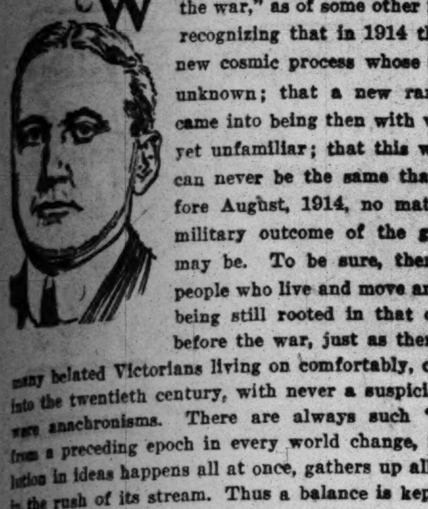
BEFORE THE WAR

By Robert Herrick



WE say and write unconsciously "before the war," as of some other far off world, recognizing that in 1914 there began a new cosmic process whose result is yet unknown; that a new range of ideas came into being then with which we are yet unfamiliar; that this world of ours can never be the same that it was before August, 1914, no matter how the military outcome of the great conflict may be. To be sure, there are many people who live and move and have their being still rooted in that old world of before the war, just as then there were many belated Victorians living on comfortably, complacently into the twentieth century, with never a suspicion that they were anachronisms. There are always such "holdovers" from a preceding epoch in every world change, for no revolution in ideas happens all at once, gathers up all individuals in the rush of its stream. Thus a balance is kept, a method of checking off and comparing growth, with the blend of new and old.

I am tempted to believe that a majority of Americans today are still living persistently, blindly in that archaic world of before the war and may never wake in this life to a realization of the tremendous cataclysm that is fast eradicating their old world, preparing the way for something utterly undreamed of by men a short decade ago. After a few cursory glances at the headlines, a few perfunctory phrases about "that terrible war," which they feel vaguely somebody ought to stop as they might feel that a dog fight on the next block should be stopped, such American men and women settle down to their daily routine of business and pleasure just as if the very fabric of life were not once more in the loom of fate and surely destined to be spun in quite another pattern than that of "before the war"! They repeat to themselves the lying platitude about "history always repeats itself," and dream placidly of a society getting and spending in which their sons and daughters will enjoy the privileges that they are now laying up for them by their prudence and industry.

Peace will come some day soon, they think, when they will be able to take that deferred trip abroad to see what ancient landmarks of Europe may have been spared, to be "personally conducted" over the great battlefields, and to moralize on "all the young lives uselessly sacrificed," the treasure spent, etc. The family income may vary for some years according to investments that have been made or according to the prevailing rate of interest upon capital. Times may be "bad" or "good" for a term of years. But the essential realities will remain the same to them, getting and spending, working and pleasuring.

Such minds acquire no new general conceptions. They lack the imagination to apply new facts. They must wait another generation or two until the new has been transformed to the commonplace by use and wont before they will accept it.

NOWHERE do I find this tendency toward ignoring the new more evident than in my own realm of literature. Each week I scan the booksellers' lists in hope of discovering something of imagination that will prove to be the fruit of the world agony of these two years. But apart from the professional "war literature," mostly of a purely journalistic interest, I find little that would indicate anything had happened recently in the world's history. Especially here in America—but also in England—the old stream of inane stories flows from the presses, not repressed even by the high price of print paper, during these war months. How can the authors pound them out—these tales about ranches and girls, about millionaires and girls, about quaint New England "characters" and questions of personal conduct? It would seem to prove that literature does not herald world changes in thought and social beliefs, but follows laggingly behind, a long way behind, at least a generation behind.

Last night I was reading or rather skipping languidly through the pages of a thick volume chronicling the thoughts and acts of a girl in a Vermont village who remains a spinster. Hawthorne or E. P. Roe, perhaps, might have taken a livelier interest in those placid pages. One of the most read books of the recent winter—I judge from the printed advertisements—is concerned with the trials and tribulations of an American wife trying to express her personality through the media of husband and children. The freshest of the best sellers is the story of a self-made man from Arizona. And English novelists are still turning out those thick, competent volumes about nobodies. I might go on with instance after instance of the ignoring of the present by popular writers.

For if one were to omit the journalistic and controversial war books he might read straight through the voluminous grist of the year's literature without becoming aware that there is a great war in progress. It may be said that these books are the product of before the war times, coming belatedly onto the market. It cannot be so in most cases, for nowadays the time elapsing between production and print is rarely longer than a half year. This year's crop of literature was seeded last summer.

THUS we are still being fed with before the war ideas. In that strange period of before the war the two dominant interests of literature seemed to be Sex and Society (I mean the one with the capital letter). Sex attractions and repulsions, sex complications, sex regular and irregular, the woman question, etc.—those were the absorbing themes of novelists and poets, little and big, and to a lesser degree the social aspirations of men and women, their personal ambitions in this common venture of living.

Intense individualism—that was the mark of post Victorian writers (if you will permit me to generalize pedantically) which characterised the product of those before the war days. Everybody was absorbed in his or her own fate, his or her own "personality." And it is that note of purely personal absorption that seems so strange to me in the novels now appearing. Here in America we seem to maintain the fiction still that the paramount interest of everybody is the individual achievement, not the fate of the whole—state or race or world. Our conception of life remains highly individualistic. But this intense self-centeredness contrasted with the tragic absorption of Europe in its vast drama appears petty, trivial, and frankly our literature seems petty, concerned with the doings and feelings of beings of no importance whatsoever to themselves or to the world at large.

Suppression of this intense egotism, of an exaggerated and abnormal interest in the individual, which results socially in all kinds of excesses and degeneracies, was the first sweeping accomplishment of the great war. Life no longer to the mass of Europeans is an affair of their own private success or failure: they have become merged in the larger common life of their kind. And this new conception of life, as not merely a personal affair, but an objective universal affair, must one day appear in our literature, must affect the reactions of our imaginative creators. For not even sheltered and isolated America can escape forever the tidal surge of human experience.

THE suppression of an excessive individualism, then, I take to be the first great spiritual lesson of the war. A fresh and, I believe, deeper perception of what reality is must be the second. We have been so long accustomed, especially in our comfortable land, to the expectation of a continued easy existence, of an increasingly complex and smooth running civilization, that we never question its worth, its validity. Pullman trains, motor cars, telephones, steam heated hotels, and Sunday newspapers, among numerous other things, have so grown into our conceptions of living that a world without them would seem to most Americans unbelievable, impossible.

But a good part of the world is now realizing that this padded existence which we have inherited and developed is not fixed in the nature of things, is not eternal, may be swept out of being in a few hours. Once the passions of men are let loose against each other their complacent civilizations crumble into smoking ruins. And new realities emerge from the smoke of battle, when human beings are stripped of the toys with which they customarily occupy themselves—realities of feeling, of thinking, of believing. Loyalty, devotion, effort, fixed purpose, and will take the place of drifting sensation. From the wreck of the accustomed men must build new habitations for their souls. There is proof enough that European peoples are providing themselves with this new equipment of realities. But Americans? Not yet!

AT least that is what one might infer from the imaginations of our writers. They are dressing their puppets in before the war clothes, living on still in a world that has largely slipped from beneath our feet. There are evidences of an uneasy consciousness that something large should come to us Americans through the greatness of this war epoch, specifically to the arts. The other day I received the ambitious prospectus of a new magazine to be "devoted to the Seven Arts," in which it was stated vaguely that the United States will take the leadership of the world in creation, etc.

Before that comes to pass we must realize what has happened to the world since August, 1914. Bottles of the fashion before the war will not hold the strong new wine.

THE RUSSO-JAPANESE AGREEMENT

By Alexander S. Kaun

THERE are a few dissonances in the nearly unanimous rejoicing of the Russian press over the recent conclusion of an entente with Japan. The Petrograd organ of the Constitutionalists-Democrats, Riech, whose editor, Prof. Paul Miliukov, is well known as a warm friend of this country, has not joined the enthusiastic chorus of the panegyrists of "Russia's historical ally, the powerful Britain of the east."

Unfortunately the editorial pages of the Riech immediately after the declaration of the Russo-Japanese agreement presented eloquent blank columns, a customary phenomenon in the oppositional press since the beginning of the war. Riech finally came out with a reserved statement about the motives of Japan as expressed by her leading politicians and journalists. The renewal of the Anglo-Japanese alliance in 1910 has left the Japanese publicists dissatisfied with the stipulated obligations of their ally in case of complications on the Pacific.

The inevitable conflict with Japan's most dangerous rival, the United States, would not bring Japan the active help of her ally. In the best case Great Britain would remain neutral, "which would not be enough." Among the Japanese political circles the question was put definitely: The island empire needed "safety in the rear."

Since the outbreak of the war, and the resultant shiftage of political conjunctures, the discussion of the question has grown more urgent and outspoken in tone. Sin Nippon, the organ inspired by Count Okums, has vigorously advocated a formal union with Russia, "mutually useful and necessary for the purpose of solving the complex problems in China and in the Pacific ocean." Riech analyzes Japan's attitude toward these two questions.

The "first part of the program" was launched in Japan's ultimatum to China and has been partly realized in the agreement between the two countries, signed on May 26, 1915. For the illumination of the second question Riech has made a study of the "materials gathered from numerous conferences of political parties and from press articles in Japan."

Nippon's territorial acquisitions on the continent of Asia are not satisfactory; the political and industrial interests of Japan demand the possession of the Pacific islands as an outlet for the surplus in population and as strategic points for the control of the roads to Chinese markets. For this purpose Japan must overcome the resistance of the United States, to block her way to China, to weaken her influence on the Pacific ocean. Riech quotes the second article of the Russo-Japanese agreement, which obligates the two countries to mutual support in cases of aggression on the interests of either party in the far east. The organ of the opposition gravely requests the publication of all articles of the agreement, "in order to disperse the vague apprehensions."

The mysterious resignation of Foreign Minister Sazonov, "on account of ill health," which followed suspiciously close upon the ratification of the agreement, has aroused very meager comment and considerable blank space on the pages of the oppositional press, notably in the Riech. The semi-official Novoe Vrema, known as the weathercock of the governmental policy, published a somewhat belated editorial on the occasion of the Russo-Japanese festivities at Yokohama. After a general review of the circumstances which brought about the rapprochement between the two countries, the editorial concludes with the following remarks:

"It remains to ask: Has Russia not ceded some vital interests in the far east? We have no positive answer to this question. In the published text of the agreement (it is not named alliance, although in substance it forms a real military defensive alliance) there are no definite indications in this respect. But the Japanese press is asserting that the agreement is accompanied by a supplementary clause, according to which Russia has ceded to Japan a portion of the Eastern Chinese railroad between the river Sungari and the station Khulanchen, and, besides, Japan has received the right of navigation on the Sungari on equal terms with Russia.

"We have no official confirmation of the claims of the Japanese press, either on the part of our government or on the part of the Japanese. Under the existing conditions there is nothing extraordinary about the probability of those assertions. If the region through which the mentioned portion of the Eastern Chinese railroad passes is considered to belong to the sphere of Japanese influence, then the cession of that portion to Japan is quite logical. The same may be said concerning the equalization of navigation rights on the Sungari, which is the dividing line between the sphere of influence of Japan and that of Russia."

Riech is informed from an English source that the ceded portion is about seventy British miles long. The northernmost station of the railroad is four miles from Sungari; the branch crosses the most fertile region. The immediate result of the cession will be the discontinuation of the competition between the Eastern Chinese and the Southern Manchurian railroads for getting the freight for Vladivostok (the Russian line) or for Dalny (the Japanese line).

The Sungari will be the border line between the agreeing parties. An officious Japanese statement indicates that in view of the almost equal distance from the Sungari to Vladivostok and Dalny there will remain no reason for a "detrimental and unnatural tariff war" between Russia and Japan.

SOLDIER AND COUNTRY

By Maj.-Gen. Leonard Wood

Following is presented Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood's address to the cadets at Camp Washington, Fort Terry, on July 26:

I HAVE just come down from the other camp, where fellows a year or two older than you are doing the same general kind of work, but a little bit more, as you will be doing in a year or two. I have been delighted to see how well you have done. Your drill, close order drill, has been particularly good. The marching was also particularly good. Glad to see that you are getting straightened up.

There is one thing I must try to impress upon you—to so carry yourself that everybody will know that you have been at one of these training camps. When a man speaks to you stand up straight, look him in the eye, and answer straight out. When you move, move with promptness and exactness. And when you salute, salute as though you liked it, with a snap in it, with a punch in it. There is nothing so frightful as a sluggish salute.

I saw a young man at Plattsburg try to work a combination of salute and scratch himself at the same time. It is that kind of a salute or any kind of a salute which is not formal, sharp, and snappy, that gives an impression of slouchiness. So brace up, and remember that your stomachs are not to be carried as the most advanced part of your anatomy. Do as Capt. Koehler said: "Pull up your chest and have a look at it." Very few of you have ever seen it.

Straighten up so that when any one sees you they will say: "There is a boy who looks as though he had been at Plum Island." Get the bearing, get the snap, get the habit of doing things promptly, and so conduct yourselves when you get home that everybody will say there has been tremendous improvement coming out of that camp. This is the general impression made by all the camps. I haven't seen a college president or the master of a large school who has not said that the work has done a lot of good, and I find in the homes, too, that everybody is tremendously pleased with the work.

Now, you boys are here with a very serious purpose in view, and that purpose is to prepare yourselves to discharge effectively your duties as soldiers if you ever are called on to be a soldier, as effectively as you discharge your citizen's duties on the civil side. Your soldier duties are just as important. You want to remember, never mind who tells you to the contrary, that there are some things in the world worth fighting for, and when a nation has nothing worth fighting for its race is run. There is no exception in history nor will there ever be.

This whole question of national defense comes down to a very simple proposition. The first question is, have you anything worth defending. Country, God, institutions, convictions, anything? Of course, if you haven't anything, then your time is wasted in doing anything of this sort. But all strong people and people who are worth living have something worth defending, and if you have something, you must ask yourselves, "Have we the training and the arms to defend ourselves with?" And the last question is, Are we intelligent enough to realize that without training, without organization, and without equipment, we cannot meet men just as good as we morally, physically, and intellectually, who in addition to these qualities have organization, training, and leadership.

Now there is nothing peculiar in the American people that makes them especially good soldiers—certainly nothing so effective as to make them fit to meet equally good men who are trained. You want to remember that this country has never had a war with a first class power which it waged alone. It never had such a war and it knows nothing of such a war. In the revolutionary war we had France with us at the most critical time.

You boys who have studied your histories know that the volunteer system failed in the revolution, failed miserably. We had to go into the market and buy men by excessive bounties, and at the end we had about one-third of the men under arms that we started with. The whole system fell down. There was no adequate response because there was no proper sense of individual obligation.

In the war of 1812 how many of you have had it impressed upon you that the greatest soldier of war, who lived at that time—that is, Napoleon—was engaged in war with England, which then as now was engaged in a life and death struggle with the greatest military power of that age? She paid us very little attention and made no serious effort in this country, and so it runs all the way through. The volunteer system, while the spirit is fine, has been an absolute failure in every war.

At the end of a year of the civil war the volunteering had almost stopped in the south, and at the end of a little more than a year largely so in the north. We had to resort to compulsory draft. Then we had other vicious practices. We had the practice of buying substitutes, than which nothing more infamous is conceivable in war—that a rich man should be able to buy his own exemption from service.

Now we have had the militia system always. It has always been a failure—not because the men are poor or the officers poor; they are just as good as any other portion of the population; but the system is defective. We feel that the state militia must eventually belong to the federal government absolutely and without any conditions whatever. You see the difficulties we have had in mobilizing so many men on the border.

In this great eastern department, with 72 per cent of the militia of the whole country in it, we have in four weeks gotten 54,000 men on the border, and that is all. These men are largely recruits and there are many untrained men. Just think how puny this is from a nation of 100,000,000 people. Under a good organization and under a system like that of Australia or Switzerland we could probably have in eight or ten days 1,000,000 men, well equipped.

We do not want a large standing army, a great big enormous professional army, but one such as is recommended by the general staff, big enough for the garrisoning of the Philippines, where we are doing one of the best pieces of uplift work that any country has ever attempted; and much remains to be done. We want adequate garrisons for the Hawaiian islands and Panama and Porto Rico, and a small garrison in Alaska.

You see the country is pretty large—it runs from the Carribean sea almost to the coast of China, and it means that we have to have a well trained professional army to garrison it in time of peace, and at home we must always have troops enough for a training nucleus and of coast artillery twice as many as we have at present. That is a permanent army that is doing the every day police work. Back of that we must have an army made up of the men of the country. No country has ever yet turned out more than 50 or 52 per cent of its men as physically fit to bear arms.

A million men in our country are coming to age every year, which means that 500,000 men a year are coming of age which are fit to be soldiers. Even those other 500,000 men have got to have some kind of training. They, too, should go through this training, getting discipline and certain benefits from it. They will be able to do something, drive ambulances, make ammunition and engage in the preparation of supplies. There will be a place for all of them.

Now when we talk of organization we do not mean an army and navy alone, but we mean the industries of the country, the resources of all sorts. All the rest of the world which is represented by the great nations is characterized today by one word—organization. We know nothing of organization in this country. At the end of a year and a half last April, after a year and a half of effort, we began our first shipment of rifles abroad. A year and a half before we could turn out our first small shipment of the European rifles because we had no organization of our industries, could not make high speed tool steel, because we had not tungsten and certain other things, such as antimony, which were needed, and we staggered along for a year and a half before we turned out supplies in any quantity. We want organization of our industries. Chemistry plays a great part in modern war. All our nitrates come from Chili. If we lost sea control we would be out of the production of ammunition, not next week, but almost at once.

In the terms of modern war organization means success. Among other things we are just beginning to make optical glasses. The first great piece of optical glass in this country is not a year old. All those things have got to be done. You must make your war supplies at home, or have something that you can use so you have got to organize all your industries in every line, mechanical, chemical, industrial, and everything else.

And then get down to the training of your men. In a democracy the basic principles on which democracy rests, always has rested, and always will rest, is that equality of obligation which goes hand in hand with equality of opportunity and privilege. If you have all the rights of a citizen you cannot elect to volunteer to let some better man assume your share of the obligation. It is share, and share alike, the good things as well as the bad, up to the limit of your physical and mental capacity. That means universal military training, not universal volunteer training. There is no such thing. No more than there is universal volunteer paying of taxes. How many taxes would be paid, even if they were to be devoted to the best of causes, if they were purely voluntary? How many men are going to serve in time of war if the service is purely voluntary? The history of our country shows only a small number will serve—never enough.

There is no certainty in a volunteer system. It is a gamble pure and simple, because it means no preparation. You cannot wage war successfully today without preparation. War today comes on like an avalanche, not like a glacier; it comes immediately. And all great countries are ready. There is no time for preparation in modern times. War comes almost instantly. Sea control is a great measure of defense, but it is not absolutely secure.

We want a good navy and a good army, and a citizenry trained to arms just as the Swiss are trained and Australians are trained. They have done it as part of the school system. The murder rate of this country is 124 per million men, as against twelve in Switzerland and fifteen to twenty in the rest of Europe. Lack of discipline, lack of self-control—all those things which you get from this kind of training—would diminish our criminal rate. If we could put the whole youth of this country to this kind of training for a few years we could cut our criminal rate down to a much smaller one. We would improve our economic conditions 30 per cent. Through habits of self-control and better physical conditions it will make for a much more useful citizenry.

All you fellows who think the country belongs to you and not you to the country are mistaken. You belong body and soul to the country always. You are part of the country and one of the many parts that make the whole of it. Your country right or wrong. You must follow the rule of the majority, and when the country decides upon something we must all follow it. We want to establish a condition of general training, if we are going to be ready.

We want you fellows to get your training before you are 21, and then be held on the active list probably until you are about 30. Such an arrangement would give us about four and one-half million available men. Some foolish people have said that we could raise 1,000,000 men between morning and night. A few of us have been sitting up night and dry trying to raise 54,000 in four weeks, and we have had a hard time to do it. You find that you cannot do this great thing without preparation. You cannot do it without time. You cannot meet men just as good as yourselves without training. You are part of the country and in a democracy you must remember equality of obligation goes hand in hand with equality of opportunity. This is a big thing to remember. You cannot trust to anybody else.

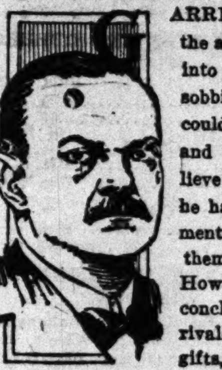
There is another result which comes from this general training, this working together, shoulder to shoulder, and that is—it tends to make America a real melting pot, a melting pot which will turn out a homogeneous mass, a mass of real Americanism. This working together shoulder to shoulder is the strongest kind of an influence obliterating the distinction between Jew and Gentile, rich and poor, upper and lower social classes. It tends for national solidarity, to make us think in terms of the nation, rather than in terms of the individual.

You young men are the beginners in a great movement, a movement which is going to end in the establishment of universal military training. I hope to see each year greatly increasing numbers of you in camp. The movement is gaining tremendous impetus and will soon sweep over the country.

MAJ.-GEN. LEONARD WOOD.

SPHINX IN WHISKERS

By Edward Goldbeck



GARRICK made a great hit by reciting the alphabet to an audience which melted into tears while he was thundering or sobbing senseless sounds. Mr. Hughes could probably recite Poe's "Ulalume" and very many people would firmly believe that he was delightfully lucid; that he had uttered very interesting and momentous opinions, and that he had given them an all-embracing political program. How have I come to this extravagant conclusion? It is not that Mr. Hughes rivals the English Roxius in histrionic gifts, but for the well known psychological fact that we all are apt to hear what we want to hear and what we expect to hear. Some German-Americans, victims of this sort of self-delusion, inform me that the candidate's views about neutrality satisfy them and that it seems time to join forces with his followers. In a highly flattering overvaluation of my influence they want me to "Come out for him."

The suggestion is natural, as hardly any German-American can be foolish enough to vote for the impossible Mr. Wilson, the rhetorician whom Tennyson has characterized so scathingly:

"Most delicately, hour by hour,
He canvass'd human mysteries
And trod on silk, as if the winds
Blew his own praises in his eyes,
And stood aloof from other minds
For impotence of fancied power."

As Mr. Wilson is impossible, perhaps Mr. Hughes' friends are telling him that he does not need to worry about the German-American vote and that it will go to him anyhow. But this is not so absolutely sure, since many of these voters, afraid of falling from the frying pan into the fire, might seek refuge in abstinence. We want to know the man for whom we shall vote, and it may safely be supposed that the "natives," too, would like to get the candidate's ideas about our right to sell noncontraband goods to neutrals, about our correspondence with Europe, and about the formidable blacklist.

UP to now Mr. Hughes looks rather sphinxy. The proclamation that he stands for undiluted Americanism may mean anything and nothing. It does not distinguish him from Mr. Wilson, who will say, "Shake hands; so do I!" As during the last two years most of us have been busy repeating self-evident truths, as f. i., that we are all Americans and patriots and willing to live and die for this great country, it would be a nice change now to do some specializing. It is not necessary that Mr. Hughes should speak about corpses—Huerta is dead and the Lusitania is sunk—but we should like to hear him talk about living issues and personalities.

The letters which some authors sent to the candidate the other day requesting him to explain himself about concrete problems seems to me a very praiseworthy document. It may be embarrassing for the candidate, but that is just what we ought to be at the present moment—our most important business now is to be embarrassing. Let us embarrass Mr. Hughes and probably he will grow before our enchanted eyes and prove a man whom we can entrust with the place at the helm. Before his nomination the dignity of his position obliged him to sphinxiness. Then—let us be frank!—he was imposed on the country, which knew nothing about him but that he had proved years ago a courageous and clever investigator of intolerable abuses. This record as an executive was unknown or forgotten. He had been out of politics for years and not a few serious minded people thought it rather humiliating that a man should be nominated who was almost a blank. In times of undisturbed quiet it might not have mattered so much—although mistakes committed in so-called quiet times sow the storm—but in a period like ours it seemed terribly risky.

HOWEVER, as Mr. Hughes had the reputation of being blessed with the "judicial mind," we choked our scruples and waited for his first speeches. We were hoping that these speeches would give us something more than oratory. With that we have been surfeited. Mr. Wilson has demonstrated its emptiness. So we want Mr. Hughes to shower on us as much definite data as possible and, since his personal views are of the highest importance, we would like to know them as soon as possible and in the most precise form.

If Mr. Hughes is not able to speak out about the momentous issues which occupy us in this hour of danger and uncertainty he will not win the confidence of the nation and it will be easy for his enemy to repulse his half-hearted attacks. Criticism of situations which have vanished long ago is as useless as moutarde après diner. Open your heart, dear sir, and tell us what you would do now, if you were president, with regard to the questions we mentioned. There has been a good deal of talk about the terrible consequences of "secret diplomacy," and this nation at least seemed resolved not to stand for it any longer. So the excuse that you cannot give yourself away will not be of any avail. You hesitate? A sly smile is creeping into your whiskers? We cannot have a sphinx elected.

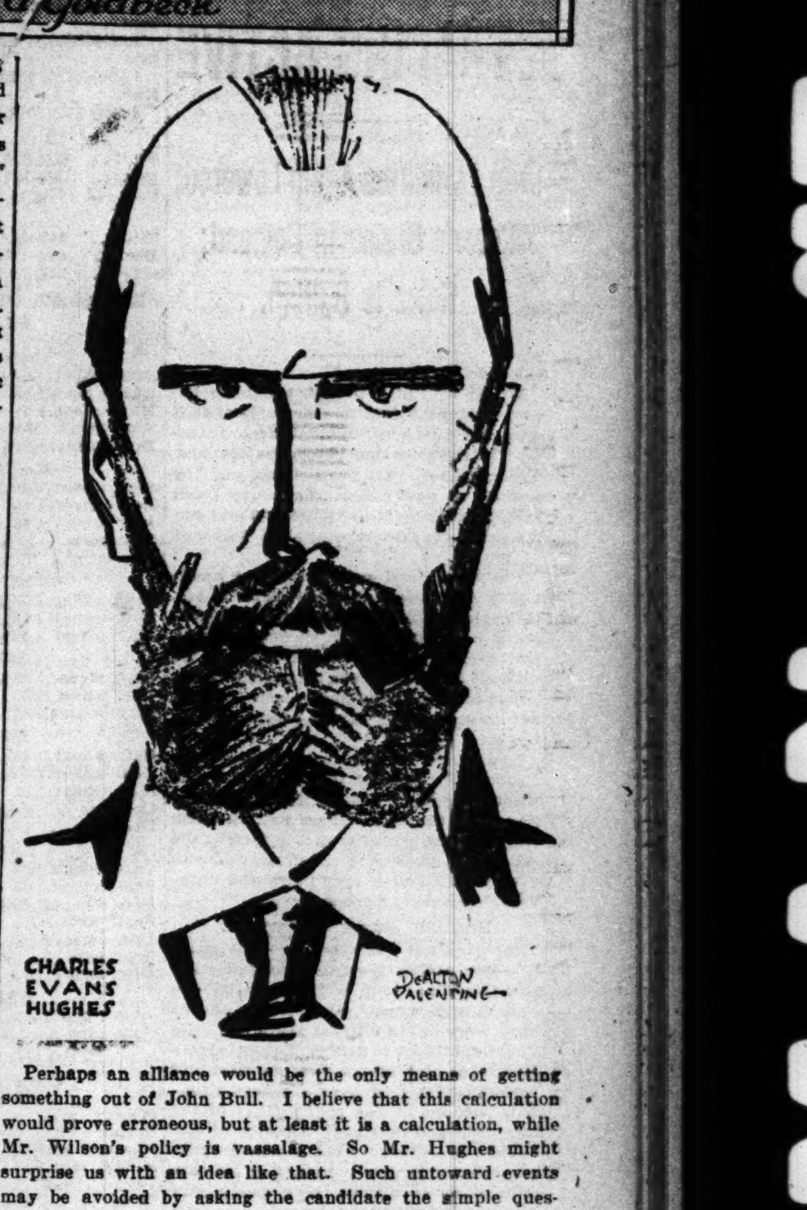
THE day after his inauguration Mr. Hughes may spring on us the idea of an alliance with England. The plan is in the air; it has been discussed—rather bashfully—in the papers and there are a good many people who approve of it. One might even say that after all we have done for England such a step would be only logical—the official acknowledgement of an existent situation. Up to now we have given again and again, and we did not receive anything but more or less brutal kicks. (It is true that Mr. Morgan has doubled his fortune, but what does that mean to you and me? In his penury he will probably go on scattering his father's collections.)



Perhaps an alliance would be the only means of getting something out of John Bull. I believe that this calculation would prove erroneous, but at least it is a calculation, while Mr. Wilson's policy is vassalage. So Mr. Hughes might surprise us with an idea like that. Such untoward events may be avoided by asking the candidate the simple question, "What stand do you take towards England?" Let him answer this question in plain terms and we shall be able to act accordingly. Nobody thinks of bothering him with silly hypothetical puzzles, but we ought to know his opinion about the conditions which are confronting us. If he does not say, "England's attitude in respect to our mail and in the blacklist matter is unbearable and we must make her change it at any cost," then he is not the man we need, for then his Americanism is diluted to such a degree that his blood looks bewilderingly like water.

MR. HUGHES has made many good points in his speeches. But he has shirked the principal issues. Maybe he has saved them to build up a climax. A man of his gifts can hardly imagine for one moment that it might be possible to evade these topics all the time. The impression would be pernicious. It would be pussyfooting of the worst kind. Teddy would have to veil his face. A man without moral courage could not become president. And moral courage is the very quality in which Mr. Hughes' friends see the keynote of his character. Up to now he has talked about civil service, diplomacy, waste, efficiency, patriotism, etc., but we all have done that. We have all said the same things about pork and the necessity of a budget and capital and labor. Mr. Wilson has said all that, too, and very glibly. From a man who has studied public life for thirty years and who is going to rule the nation we expect more. Mr. Wilson is abstract, Mr. Hughes ought to be concrete; Mr. Wilson is vacillating, Mr. Hughes ought to be direct. Instead of theories we want methods, instead of generalities we want details.

It is a pity that these things must be impressed on Mr. Hughes; it would have been wonderful had he taken the initiative and inaugurated a new manner of speaking to the masses. I feel convinced that his first speech would have been a triumph, for if it is true that large audiences fly for bulky catchwords it is no less true that they instinctively prick their ears the moment a man gets away from platitudes and speaks common sense. Most orators labor under the impression that they have to treat the masses like children. This is a mistake—if you do not believe me, read what John Stuart Mill has said about the matter—waiving the fact that it is a sin against the democratic faith.

IF anybody, Mr. Hughes should be the man to adopt the new style of political oratory, and there are symptoms in the speeches he has made up to now that he will sooner or later leave the old grooves and give the people bread instead of stones. But, as it is, the situation is distressing; Mr. Wilson is a minus and Mr. Hughes an X. Only, if Mr. Wilson is a minus as a statesman he is of very positive value as a politician and a campaigner. To out-Wilson Wilson is impossible; tactics demand to be "different."

The German-Americans do not expect pro-German views from Mr. Hughes. They do not make any propaganda for an alliance with Germany, and they are convinced that the fatherland can take care of itself and does not need our help. What they expect is a declaration of independence addressed to England in friendly but unmistakable terms. This they demand and they will work for until they get it. Goethe said on the battlefield of Valmy: "From this day begins a new period." That is what the German-Americans say now. A new period is beginning in which it will be impossible to neglect German-American opinion. It will be impossible, because this opinion will represent undiluted Americanism.

NEW HIGH PRICE IN WHEAT MART; TRADING ACTIVE

Crop Estimates Again Lowered; Coarse Grains in Demand; News Is Bullish.

Wheat sold at new high levels for the crop yesterday in a further bulge of 4¼@4⅝c, and bullish sentiment was more rampant at the close than before the advance. Trade was of vast proportions, and the buying so heavy that the heavy profit taking sales were absorbed without appreciably checking the upward tendency of prices.

Foreigners and exporters were again heavy purchasers of wheat futures, and it is believed that they already hold a generous proportion of our surplus wheat in this manner. Cash wheat has been so difficult to buy and such big premiums are asked for it that the foreigner is insuring future supplies by making purchases in the pit.

News from abroad was bullish in tone. Broomhall's reports indicating that the trade over there now appears willing to recognize the tremendous cutting down of the spring wheat crop as a fact, at the same time displaying much nervousness over the Canadian crop news and unfavorable yields in Europe.

English Buyers Alarmed.

It would not surprise the trade much if some action toward commandeering the Canadian crop were taken by the British government, and rumors of this kind were again current yesterday. Le Count continues to send bad reports from Manitoba and states that farmers are becoming alarmed over the seed situation because of the poor quality of the new crop and decreased supplies of old. Thrashing returns from North Dakota are coming in freely now, and indicate even worse conditions there than generally believed. Yields are running so poor that in many instances thrashers refuse to work on a percentage basis and demand flat pay for their labor.

B. W. Snow in a special report to the trade says the spring wheat crop indication is for 143,000,000 bu. against 226,000,000 bu July 25 and 352,000,000 bu a year ago. He estimates total wheat crop at 596,000,000 bu. against domestic feed and seed requirements of about 610,000,000 bu.

Australian Offers High.

Liverpool spot wheat was 3@4d higher and the cargo market there was 1s 9d higher for Manitoba and 2s 3d higher for winter wheat. Broomhall says that Indian and Australian offers are still above an export parity, while unfavorable weather is holding back native offerings. Cash wheat here followed futures closely and local shipping sales of 30,000 bu were reported. There were reports of a large export business at the seaboard, but no figures were given out.

Seaboard clearances of wheat and flour were 817,000 bu. Primary receipts totaled 12,445,000 bu for the week, compared with 9,178,000 bu a year ago. Local wheat receipts this week were 2,680,000 bu, while 2,461,000 bu were shipped.

Big Jump in Corn Price.

Corn was also a runaway bull market, prices reaching highest levels in over twenty years and closing 1⅝@2c higher than previous resting spots. Buying was general and led by the larger local bulls. The advance in wheat was a factor and the trade was also much impressed with the Snow report showing indication of 2,565,000,000 bu corn, a reduction of over 300,000,000 bu from his figures of July 25 and over 550,000,000 bu less than raised last year. Longs sold corn freely on the advance, but this had only moderate reactionary effect.

Cash corn was 1@1½c higher with sales made as high as 91c. Shipping sales here were 5,000 bu. Liverpool spot corn, ½@1d higher. Local receipts of corn this week, 1,010,000 bu, while 1,309,999 bu were shipped. Primary receipts for the week, 2,830,000 bu, against 2,891,000 bu a year ago.

Oats Work Sharply Higher.

Oats were higher with other grains, closing figures showing gains of ¾@⅞c. As in the other pits the buying was general in character and much of it was in the way of short covering. Offerings were principally by longs, who wished to take profits. Hedging pressure was lightest in some time. The sharp advancement in prices for barley and corn is impressing the trade.

Cash oats were 1@1½c higher, with shipping sales 120,000 bu, including 35,000 bu for export. Sales of 400,000 bu oats were made to go to store. Local receipts of oats this week, 8,438,000 bu, against shipments of 2,860,000 bu. Primary receipts for the week were 13,452,000 bu, against 8,220,000 bu a year ago. Seaboard clearances were only 6,000 bu.

Pork and Lard Higher.

Hog product also displayed much strength and closed with pork and lard showing substantial advances. Buying was based on the higher grain markets as well as the bulge of 10c in hog prices at the yards. One of the big packers sold September pork on the advance but offerings generally were rather small.

Trade in cash product reported as good and local meat shipments this week totaled 19,744,000 lbs, against 15,056,000 lbs a year ago. Lard shipments were 8,478,000 lbs, against 3,661,000 lbs last year. Western markets received 432,500 hogs for the week, against 346,000 a year ago. A run of 36,000 hogs is expected here on Monday.

Rye Market Higher.

Rye was ½c higher, with sales of No. 2 at $1.18½ and No. 4, $1.15. Receipts were 12 cars.

Barley ruled strong. Malting was quoted 85c@$1.10 and sold 90c@$1.08; feed was quotable 75@84c, and sold 80c; mixing was quoted 80@85c, and sold 85c; screenings were quoted 50@68c, and sold 66c. Receipts, 47 cars.

Timothyseed was quiet. March, $5.50, and cash lots, $4.90@5.00. Cloverseed was steady, with cash lots quoted $8.00@10.00.

Duluth flax closed 1½@2⅛c higher. Cash on track and September, $2.17½; November, $2.19, and December, $2.17. Minneapolis was 1½c higher, with cash on track, $2.16½@2.20½; receipts were 14 cars. Winnipeg closed 2½c higher; October, $1.97¾, and December, $1.97½. Receipts, 11 cars.

NEWS AND GOSSIP OF BOARD OF TRADE

Above $1.50 for December wheat there was an enormous trade yesterday. Profit taking was heavy, but there was continued heavy absorption of wheat right up to the close. In addition to the general profit taking there was also considerable selling against the daily and weekly offers, this selling checking the advance, temporarily at least. Sentiment is becoming more bullish daily and the confirmation of the most sensational claims of damage is producing a big change in the public attitude. Snow's figures showing a total crop less than the actual domestic requirements for bread and seed proved a revelation to many traders who have been of the opinion that thrashing returns would show more favorable conditions than the early reports indicate. Ordinarily extravagant claims of damage to the crops have to be revised when the actual returns begin to show up. This year the reverse is true and the first damage claims sent in that were rigorously censored look mild in comparison with most recent reports. Stocks of old wheat that a few weeks ago were thought a burden are now being regarded as decidedly valuable property and there is little wheat being offered, either new or old.

Cash sales of wheat were small here at 30,000 bu, but the sales did not measure the extent of the demand so much as they did the limited offerings. Country owners are asking high prices, and all reports indicate greatest difficulty in buying wheat at any figures. Premiums were fully maintained in all markets and at Winnipeg No. 1 northern was quoted 5½c premium over the October, indicating that Canadian buyers are becoming much alarmed. It was regarded as significant that receipts at Winnipeg showed a sharp falling off, only 268 cars being in, against 551 cars a week ago. Cash corn prices were 1@1½c higher, and oats also 1@1½c up. Sales of corn were 50,000 bu and of oats 95,000 bu. Country sales of corn increased a little on the bulge, but there was no difficulty in placing the corn. Car shortage is restricting shipping business east to a considerable extent. The export inquiry for corn is fairly active and oats are being taken right along, according to seaboard reports.

B. W. Snow has compiled a special report on the crops as of Aug. 14, received replies from a large number of correspondents. The summary of these reports is the most bullish crop news so far given out. The spring wheat crop condition is placed at 44.7, with yields from thrashing returns so far averaging a little over 8 bu per acre and indicating a total spring wheat crop of only 143,000,000 bu, with 89,000,000 bu for the three northwest states. This more than confirms the radical reports received recently. The total wheat crop is placed at 596,000,000 but, or 14,000,000 bu under estimated domestic requirements for bread and seed. Much of the spring wheat raised will run only 45 lbs to the bushel. The corn condition is placed at 69.4 indicated yield, 2,565,000,000 bu, against 2,872,000,000 bu July 25. The report shows extensive losses in the big corn states, while the losses in Kansas, Oklahoma, and Missouri are extremely heavy. The report had considerable effect in stimulating buying of both corn and wheat.

The government corn bulletin for the week ending Aug. 15 has some interesting comments on corn conditions. It shows that rains above normal from Aug. 1 to Aug. 10 usually means a better than normal crop. If the rainfall was deficient in that period with high temperatures, the crop generally is below normal. Charts accompanying the article show an excess of moisture during the period named in the greater part of Iowa, about half of Nebraska, central and southern Illinois, and most of Missouri. The sections deficient were Kansas, Oklahoma, northern Iowa, and northern Illinois and South Dakota. Southern Indiana had excess moisture, while the northern part of the state was deficient.

Canadian reports indicate much anxiety in regard to having seed enough for next year. But little of the wheat raised this year will be good enough for seed purposes and in many sections the old crop wheat, which was of good quality, has been pretty well cleaned out.

Receipts inspected yesterday: Wheat, 96 cars; corn, 60 cars; oats, 509 cars; rye, 12 cars; barley, 47 cars. Hogs estimated for Monday, 36,000 head, and for all next week, 130,000 head.

Gus Thor Thorson made application for membership on the board of trade and Pleasant P. Williams posted a membership for transfer.

Prices for special brands of spring wheat flour have been advanced 20c per barrel, to $8.50.

A new top was made for memberships, one selling at $4,725 net to the buyer.

Minneapolis wheat stocks decreased 10,000 bu. for one day.

Insurance Stocks Liable to Loss.

Some recent events call the attention of investors to the need of care when placing their funds in insurance stocks. The strict supervision which all the states exercise over insurance leads many people to believe that these stocks are not subject to the ordinary risks of business. In Illinois, at least, this is true only in part. The state guards the interests of policy holders, but pays little attention to stockholders.

The greatest risk to the investor is in the organization period. Between the time when a company obtains a charter and the day it gets a license it is under no supervision whatever. It is not even required to make reports of its financial condition. The investor who buys shares at this time intrusts his money absolutely to the hands of the promoters. It behooves him to be sure that they are capable business men, experienced in insurance and in the handling of large sums of money.

After a company receives a license the state insurance department examines it from time to time and receives and audits its annual reports. The laws of Illinois do not, however, vest the superintendent with power to enforce his recommendations. If a company's capital is found impaired the state official can recommend economy, but cannot require it.

When depletion of assets has gone far enough to threaten the policy reserves the superintendent can apply to a court to close out the company. Such a case has arisen recently. Apparently the loss to stockholders will be total. Had the insurance department been authorized to take charge when it found the capital impaired part of this loss would have been prevented.

Twin State Gas and Electric.

G. H. F., Platteville, Wis.—The Twin State Gas and Electric company serves a number of small towns in Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, and one or two in New York. It is controlled by the Middle West Utilities. It has outstanding $3,207,300 of bonds and $808,200 notes. Of the bonds, about $900,000 are small underlying issues, $1,040,000 are under a refunding mortgage due in 1926, $1,046,200 are under a refunding mortgage due in 1953, and $300,000 are debentures. The first refunding mortgage is closed and is prior to the mortgage of 1953. Gross earnings in 1915 were $543,821, net $248,664, interest is reported at $136,269, but this seems to be too small. Dividends of 5 per cent a year are paid on $1,250,000 of preferred stock, and formerly 3 per cent was paid on $1,500,000 of common. Recently no reports have been made of common dividends. The underlying bonds are safe investments. The junior bonds are only fairly well secured.

Virginia Carolina Chemical.

L. J. C., Milwaukee, Wis.—Virginia Carolina Chemical earned 10.4 per cent on its $27,984,400 of common stock in the fiscal year ended May 31 last. This compares with 7⅛ per cent in the previous year. The total surplus was increased to $13,175,377. Evidently the company can resume dividends on common stock, which were discontinued in 1913. There is $20,911,818 of preferred stock outstanding, on which 8 per cent cumulative dividends have been paid to date. The net working capital shown by the balance sheet is somewhat larger than the funded debt, which amounted to $17,761,320.

Brief Answers.

R. R. H., Oak Park, Ill.—The Burlington, Cedar Rapids and Northern consolidated 5s, outstanding to the amount of $11,000,000, are secured by first lien on 998 miles of road and a second lien on 300 or 400 miles. This mileage is now part of the Rock Island system. Although the Rock Island is in the hands of receivers, these bonds are an underlying issue and appear to be well protected.

H. F., Evanston, Ill.—Colorado Fuel and Iron has paid only 8¼ per cent on common stock in its twenty-four years of existence. The last payment was in 1902. There are 30 per cent of accumulated unpaid preferred dividends, but as the amount of preferred stock is relatively small this is not a serious handicap on the common.

W. E. B., Fort Wayne, Ind.—There is little market for American Telephone stock. Some shares were offered a month ago at 50.

Hog market at Chicago yesterday was full of activity and receipts of 9,000 head found a prompt outlet at an advance of 10c over Friday's closing figures. A top of $10.90 was made and several loads reached the price. The bulk of the supply cleared at $10.15@10.60. Pigs were slow, with lightweights at $9.00@9.25, and strong weight lots up to $9.50@9.75.

Final quotations made hogs largely 20c higher than a week ago, with prime lightweights at an advance of 30c and the rough mixed up only 10c. The average of all hogs here this week was placed at $10.25, or 20c higher than last week's average. Receipts for the week aggregated around 135,500 head and shipments totaled about 20,000.

Hog purchases for the day: Armour & Co., 2,100; Swift & Co., 1,500; Wilson & Co., 1,200; Morris & Co., 500; Anglo-American, 700; Hammond, 800; Western Packing company, 700; Miller & Hart, 500; Brennan Packing company, 700; butchers, 600; shippers, 2,000; total, 11,300; left over, 2,500.

CATTLE.

Cattle market finished the week in a strong position, with beef steers 10c to 25c higher than a week ago and cows and heifers 10c to 15c up. Gains in values were made in the face of a substantial increase in receipts for the six days, and predictions at the close were that still higher prices were due to be made, in spite of the fact that values now are fully $1 higher than at the low time in July and within striking distance of the best level of the year to date. Beeves topped the week at $11.10, against $10.85 the previous week and $10.25 a year ago. The bulk of the good killers made $8.75@10.25.

Cattle at seven western markets for the week, 189,900, against 181,800 the preceding week, 153,100 a year ago, and 164,000 two years ago. Total for 1916 to date, 4,667,000, against 4,137,000 the same period in 1915.

SHEEP.

Increased receipts and apathy on the part of local packers caused weakness in the market for sheep and lambs this week, and most of the supply cleared at reduced prices. A noticeable improvement was shown in the shipping demand for fat sheep and lambs, however, and this was regarded as promising for a broader trade in the coming week. Local packers' stocks are not believed to be large, and a better demand from that source is expected. Lambs this week topped at $11.25, against $11.50 last week and $8.85 a year ago. Sheep sold up to $8.00, against $8.25 last week and $6.25 a year ago.

Par Value Shares, $10.00 Each

Remember, that this Company is in the hands of experienced, successful automobile manufacturers, and its Board of Directors includes successful business men, known from one end of this country to the other. They are a going concern, making cars right now in their own factory, and could have booked orders for 10,000 cars for their first year's delivery.

An estimated earning available for dividends of 20% per annum on the stock is based on a production of only 2,000 cars annually.

We believe that the Company will see such a demand for the "Bour-Davis Six" that a production of 20,000 cars per year can be readily sold. Take out your pencil and figure the profits yourself, and figure the price this stock will soar to. Make up your mind how much of this Bour-Davis Motor Car Company capital stock you want and act quickly.

We are all sorry we did not buy Ford stock when it was being hawked about the country. In our opinion Bour-Davis Motor Car Company capital stock today is a better buy than Ford stock was when it was offered for sale.

Remember, the men handling this enterprise are all successful men. "Success Breeds Success." This is your chance to join hands with SUCCESS. DO NOT OVERLOOK IT. Also remember in purchasing this stock you are buying the original Treasury stock of the Company, and not some officer's or other person's stock who wishes to unload.

Officers and Directors of the
BOUR-DAVIS MOTOR CAR COMPANY

CHARLES J. BOUR, President. Chairman of the Board of National Railway Advertising Company. Vice President of Chicago, Duluth & Georgian Bay Transit Company.

C. F. STEWART, Vice President. Formerly with Studebaker, Maxwell, Hupmobile and Buick Companies.

R. C. DAVIS, Operating Director. President of the Chicago, Duluth & Georgian Bay Transit Company.

W. F. FRENCH, Director. Formerly in wholesale shoe business.

W. J. HARAHAN, Director. President of Seaboard Air Line.

A. A. GLOETZNER, Consulting Engineer and Production Manager. Formerly with Westinghouse, Olds, Krit, Owen and Chalmers Motor Car Companies.

STATEMENT FROM CHAS. J. BOUR, PRESIDENT.

Demands for the Bour-Davis cars have poured in to us from all over the world and the entire output of this year has been disposed of to dealers in only five cities, who are ready to honor sight drafts, with bill of lading attached, upon arrival of cars.

We have refused enough orders to cover five times our year's output, and the entire output of 1917—judging from present indications—will be sold before the first 1917 completed car leaves our factory.

The Bour-Davis Company is capitalized at only $500,000. Our output during the period July 1, 1916, to July 1, 1917, will be in the neighborhood of 2,000 cars.

We will say that the profit on each car is $100 net after paying all expenses, although we know it will be more—a profit of $100 on 2,000 cars would figure a profit of $200,000 for the year, which would pay an enormous dividend on the $500,000 worth of our capital stock.

Remember, every dollar of expense is carefully itemized by ourselves and our engineers. We know what this car can be built for and we have actually built cars for that price and have contracts in advance to provide for the materials.

The officers and directors of this company are experienced business men of high standing in the business world, many of them officers and directors in other successful corporations. They are men of honor and integrity whose characters will bear the closest scrutiny.

They join me in asking that every prospective customer make the most rigid investigation of the company, its organization, its product and its prospects.

Yours very sincerely,
CHAS. J. BOUR.

Tremendous Opportunities for Big Cash Dividends

We absolutely advise our clients, and the readers of this article, to invest in this stock. We feel that it is one of the best investments that have been offered the public in years. We are proud to have our name associated with this concern, as we have found upon investigation that all those connected with this firm are strong, honest, successful business men. Remember, this is stock in a going concern. What could there be to make this proposition stronger? It has a factory in active operation; it is building cars; it has its entire output sold to reliable dealers; it has received a tremendous ovation from the public, and it has honest and efficient management.

OIL PRICES CUT TO CURB OUTPUT; SUPPLY LIMITED

Production Outlook Is Good in All Fields—Decline in Storage Stocks.

Recent reductions in the price of crude oil and refined petroleum products have aroused considerable discussion in financial circles relative to the present condition of the oil industry and its bearing on oil security values. Oklahoma and Kansas grades of crude oil have been affected the most, the price declining from $1.55 a barrel on July 24 to 95c, and reductions have been made in other fields, although the cuts so far announced have not been as extended as in Oklahoma. Gasoline prices in most parts of the country have been reduced 1c a gallon and in some districts several cents have been taken off.

The present price cutting movement came as a surprise to some interests in the oil industry, and many explanations have been forthcoming. The first conclusion was that there was an overproduction. A careful survey of the situation, however, shows the crude oil in storage is being steadily drawn on to supply the requirements of the various refineries.

Big Interests Check Expansion.

A more reasonable explanation seems to be that an overproduction was threatened, and in order to avert such a catastrophe the big interests in the industry decided to discourage new drilling in the oil fields. In any event, it is generally believed the oil industry is in a strong position, and, no matter what may be the temporary effect, the lowering of crude oil prices should help to sustain the prosperity of the industry.

This opinion is reflected in the heavy buying of the Standard Oil stocks in the last few weeks, some issues establishing new high records. There has been an especially good demand for the refining company shares, with Standard Oil of Indiana stock one of the strongest features on reports of record breaking earnings and "melon" prospects.

Independent refining company shares have not recovered so quickly, but in most cases have held steady. Among the independent there is more than ordinary interest in Midwest Refining.

Midwest Company Prospering.

This company operates in the Wyoming fields, having refineries at Casper and Greybull. Adjoining its Casper refinery the Standard Oil of Indiana operates a plant, where it treats residual products of the Midwest company. Recently the latter increased its quarterly dividend rate to 2 per cent, and it is predicted extra dividends will soon be declared as a result of large earnings.

The Oil City Derrick's statistics show that oil held in storage by pipe line companies July 31 amounted to 96,826,815 brls, only about 3,000,000 brls more than at the beginning of the year, notwithstanding big production, which several weeks ago was running at the rate of 800,000 brls a day, with record consumption. Of the oil in storage close to 88,000,000 brls was held in the midcontinent field, which has been the main source of the enormous production in this country. The midcontinent field was responsible for more than half of the 800,00 brls a day. Since July 24 60 cents a brl has been taken off the price of mid-continent oil.

Tobacco Earnings Increase.

An increased amount was carried to surplus by the Tobacco Products corporation. The showing for the year ended June 30, 1916, as compared with the calendar year 1915, makes the surplus 3.3 per cent on the $16,000,000 common stock, as against 2.6 per cent in 1915, and is:

		Increase.
Int. and divs. rec.	$963,262	$102,949

Surplus	534,715	102,949
Previous surplus	738,487	18,602
Total surplus	1,273,202	121,552

Gold Production Unfavorable.

Less than the expected production is reported by the Alaska Gold company. The average recovery has been only about $1 per ton of ore, where $1.50 had been looked for, and the costs have been around 71 cents per ton.

It is figured earnings about meet expenses and interest on the bonds with little besides. Company officials are now en route to Alaska.

Forecast Increased Earnings.

Officials of the Edmunds & Jones company assert earnings for the last six months of the current year will run ahead of those of the first six months by 60 per cent, thus making the yield on the common stock 9.30 per cent.

The regular quarterly dividends of $1 on the common and 1¾ per cent on the preferred stocks are payable Oct. 1 to stock of record September 20.

Chicago Stock Exchange.

Trading in stocks on the local exchange was limited to moderate quantities of less than a dozen securities. Changes were not particularly notable. Sales of Quaker Oats were at 342 to 345, the low being the opening and the high being the closing price.

There were sales of 150 shares of Hart, Schaffner & Marx at 150, and nearly 200 shares of Sears-Roebuck at 202 at the opening to 203½ at the close. Swifts sold at 145 at opening and close, but in midsession sold off to 144½.

Bank Clearings Far Ahead.

Chicago bank clearings for the week ended Aug. 19 made large gains over the figures for the corresponding period last year, probably as large as any increase registered during the season. The figures for the week were $382,973,509, a gain of $93,121,476, or 32.1 per cent, over the same week in 1915. The figures:

CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO—Second week of August gross increased $5,358; from July 1 gross increased $350,008.

NEWS OF THE FINANCIAL WORLD

The Norwegian-American line expects to take possession of its new pier next month, having rented the same from the City of New York at an annual rental of $75,000 per year. The line now operates seven steamers between New York and Bergen, Norway, and also a large sailing vessel for carrying coal from Newport News to Norway, owing to the difficulty in getting coal from England. The stock of the Norwegian-American line, according to the last quotation on the bourse at Christiania, is $150 per share, the par valut of which is $54, or 200 kronen in American money.

In its figures for the year ended June 30, 1916, the American Hide and Leather company shows the largest year in its history. Net profits over all charges were $1,642,991, or equal to 12.60 per cent on preferred stock and 5 per cent was paid on account of dividends in arrears. In 1912 the company earned 7.38 per cent on the preferred and paid no dividends.

The Tonopah-Belmont company's net profits for July were $107,000, compared with $116,847 in June and $72,459 in July of last year. Jim Butler net earnings for July were $25,124, compared with $22,829 in June and $30,750 in July last year.

All of the predictions of good earnings for the Texas company were fulfilled in the showing which it gave out yesterday. The company earned 37½ per cent on its $37,000,000 stock, as compared with 21.3 per cent earned on $30,000,000 the previous year. Current earnings are expected to continue for 1916 the splendid showing made.

Officials of the Pullman company say there is no truth in the report of their erecting a steel car plant at Mingo Junction. The story as it reached the street was that the new plant would involve the expenditure of several millions of dollars and give employment to 5,000 men. The story came from Steubenville, O.

Service to the orient has been resumed by the Pacific Mail and the stock was yesterday strong in recognition of the improved business outlook for the company. Insiders were buying.

According to report of Controller of the Currency Williams, national bank reserves on June 30 were 23.86 per cent, as against 24.60 per cent May 1 and 25.26 per cent on June 23.

Withdrawal of $200,000 gold coin was made from the subtreasury for shipment to Cuba.

COFFEE AND SUGAR.

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—The market for coffee futures was very quiet today and fluctuations were correspondingly narrow. Talk of rather free offerings from Brazil seemed to restrict buying, while there was a little trade selling at prices a point or two under last night's closing figures, with December selling at 8.70c and March at 8.84c. The market opened unchanged to 2 points lower and closed at the same level. Sales, 3,750 bags. Aug. and Sept., 8.65c; Oct., 8.67c; Nov., 8.68c; Dec., 8.69c; Jan., 8.74c; Feb., 8.79c; March, 8.83c; April, 8.88c; May, 8.92c; June, 8.97c; July, 9.01c. The spot market was quiet. Rio, 7s 9½d; Santos, 4s 10½d. No change was reported in cost and freight offers. The official cable reported no change in milreis prices in Brazil and a decline of 1-32d in Rio exchange on London. Brazilian port receipts 58,000 bags; Jundiahy, 40,000 bags. Fine weather was reported in Sao Paulo, with temperatures ranging from 45 to 88 degrees. SUGAR—Raw and refined closed. Futures: September sold 4.70c, closing 4.73c; Oct., 4.70c to 4.66c, closing 4.65c; Dec., 4.48c to 4.47c, closing 4.47c; March closed 4.03c and May 4.10c.

CHICAGO, Aug. 19.—SUGAR — Following prices were quoted by wholesale dealers per 100 lbs: Cut loaf, H. & E., $8.53; powdered, standard, $7.33; standard cane, granulated, $7.33; best granulated, $7.13; extra C, $6.88; canary, $6.63.

RAIL CRISIS HAS INFLUENCE.

New York, Aug. 19.—Wall street's keen interest in the railroad labor situation subordinated all other considerations and developments during today's two hour session. Trading was light and exceedingly narrow, some of the active issues remaining unquoted.

Rails were slightly reactionary, as was to be expected under the attendant circumstances, and United States Steel rose and fell within fractional limits.

Marines lost more of yesterday's early advance, the preferred denoting constant pressure on its extreme decline of 2 points. United Fruit also yielded a part of its spectacular gain, but the backwardness of marines and fruit was more than offset by a new high record for Atlantic, Gulf, and West Indies at 72⅛ and an extreme gain of 5 points for Pacific Mail, the rise being coincident with that company's resumption of transpacific service.

Banks Show Cash Gain.

Rails and investment stocks were at lowest prices just before the close, when the financial district received word that the Washington conference had as yet been without definite results. Irregular gains were registered by fertilizer shares, Pullman, Sears-Roebuck, Mackay companies, Mexican Petroleum, and tobaccos, but these were devoid of significance.

The bank statement was of interest chiefly because of the large actual cash gain—over $27,000,000—with an increase of almost $25,000,000 in reserves. Mercantile agencies reported a continuance of activity despite prevailing uncertain factors.

The day's bond dealings were extremely light, with a steady tone. Government bonds unchanged on call.

Mercantile paper, 3¾. Sterling—Sixty day bills, 4.71⅝; demand, 4.75¾; cables, 4.76½. Francs—Demand, 5.90½; cables, 5.89¾. Marks—Demand, 72 5-16; cables, 72⅜. Kronen—Demand, 12⅜; cables, 12½. FEDERAL BANKS ADD TO GOLD

Washington, D. C., Aug. 19.—Gold reserves of the federal reserve banks increased about $6,000,000 during the last week, according to a statement of the banks' condition Aug. 18, issued today by the federal reserve board.

SUIT ATTACKS FORECLOSURE OF FRISCO RAILWAY SYSTEM

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 19.—Confirmation of the sale of St. Louis and San Francisco railroad was opposed in a petition filed in the Federal District court today by the Mississippi Valley Trust company of St. Louis and the Peabody Coal company. This is the second suit to be filed in opposition to the confirmation of the foreclosure sale.

The petition asks that the terms of sale be so modified as to provide for the full payment of unpaid considerations either in cash or in prior lien bonds of the new company. The Mississsippi Valley Trust company has a claim of $110,000 against the Frisco and the Peabody Coal company a claim of $163,600.

The Frisco was sold at foreclosure last month, but the sale has not yet been confirmed by the Federal court. Consequently the road still is in the hands of the receivers.

Graft Retrial Denied.

Abe Shapiro and Jack La Bow, convicted recently by a jury in Judge Thomson's court on a charge of conspiracy in connection with the collection of money from disorderly resorts on the north side, yesterday were denied a new trial.

A FINAL WARNING!

I warn you—this is the last call.

This sale of brand new $1550 Six-53 Chalmers seven-passenger touring cars at $1195 will come to an abrupt end Monday evening at 9:30.

It has been a success from every angle.

Buyers of this bargain are congratulating themselves because after thoroughly testing out this Six-53 Chalmers they have found it a more satisfactory car in every way than they had anticipated.

I am more than satisfied with the outcome of the sale. It has enabled me to clear my floors of this lot of warehouse-worn cars to make room for $5,000,000 worth of new 1917 3400 r. p. m. Chalmers which are coming in at the rate of 600 per month.

There are still a very few of these Six-53's on hand.

At the rate they are going now they won't last long.

For you, who have wanted a big family car, with an abundance of "pep" and go, this is the car you should own.

When Milady looks at it she gasps in admiration. The molded fenders, lustrous coach finish and graceful lines make it a thing of beauty.

And it's a roomy car. Is there anything more enjoyable than riding in a car in which you can stretch out—even when there are seven passengers? There's lots of leg room and the width of the seats is not to be overlooked either.

Hills, straightaways, congested traffic, mud and sand all look alike to this high-spirited animal. It answers the slightest touch—performing magnificently under any conditions.

But why go on—it's the biggest motor buy in America at $1195.

I invite you to make me prove it.

Now—I've told you all about this sale and repeated it day after day. If you don't take advantage of this clearance sale of automobiles it's your loss.

The store is open to-day from 8 a. m. to 10 p. m. Bring the Mrs. with you. She's keen for bargains. She'll know that this big, roomy Six-53 seven-passenger $1550 Chalmers touring car at $1195 is a bargain not to be duplicated soon.

When she sees it she'll give your coat tail a tug that means, "There's the car we want."

For the last time—you can buy a new $1550 Six-53 seven-passenger Chalmers touring car, with a Chalmers' new-car guarantee and Harry Newman service intelligently rendered with great good will, for $1195.

It's a $2000 value.

But you can buy it for $1195 TO-DAY.

BY J. C. BURTON.

Dario Resta spent a most pleasant and profitable afternoon at Speedway park yesterday. He played six holes of golf, joy rode seventy miles, added $5,000 to his obese bank roll, and took possession of the Speedway Grand Prix gold cup for one year.

Some afternoon! Some Resta!

Jimmy Valentine, the world's greatest peterman, never stumbled against a softer graft than did the Peugeot driver on the Maywood course. After running away from the field in the first twenty mile elimination heat and seeing his most dangerous rival, De Palma, eliminated by fate, Resta took the fifty mile final and the spoils, purse and trophy, that belong to the victor.

Resta averaged 100 miles per hour for the half century, his time being 29:52:49.

Second Place to Lewis.

Dave Lewis, driving the Hoskins special, took second money after tenaciously hanging on to the tail of the victorious Peugeot all the way. George Buzane was third with a Duesenberg, Frank Galvin fourth with a Sunbeam, and Wilbur D'Alene fifth with a Duesenberg

Fifty seconds lost in making a tire change on the twentieth lap cost Galvin third place.

From the second the five aspirants for the gold cup and $10,000 in prize money were sent away Resta's victory was as certain as death, taxes, and a fight with the wife after a night of gin rickey terror in the loop. Dario was clothing in his kidding khaki. He was teasing his rivals on every lap, knowing that his invincible Peugeot was several seconds faster than any other car giving brave but futile chase.

Lewis' Lead Shortlived.

From starting signal to checkered flag, Resta surrendered the lead only once and then on the sixteenth lap, when Lewis stepped on the throttle of the Hoskins Special and passed the Peugeot. The Italian regained the lost ground on the next circuit of the course, however, and was never headed or in danger thereafter.

With the exception of D'Alene's lagging Duesenberg, the cars were well bunched for the greater part of the fifty mile drive, Galpin and Lewis putting up a sensational battle for second place until the former was forced to stop at his pits on the fortieth lap to change a flat front tire.

Average Time of Winner.

Resta's time and average for the intermediate distance of the final heat are as follows:

Distance—	Time.	M.P.H.
Ten miles	6:06.14	98
Twenty miles	12:05.24	99
Thirty miles	18:08.60	99
Forty miles	24:02.40	100

The chase after the gold cup probably would have been more sensational and hard fought had De Palma been a challenger, but he failed to survive the first twenty-five mile heat. The Mercedes, like the Peugeot, ran true to form. A most temperamental thing of steel, it developed irreparable engine trouble after covering only two laps, and refused to hum a German song of hate thereafter.

Small Crowd Views Race.

At 2 o'clock, when the band started jassing and the song pluggers hurled their first vocal shrapnel across the speedway, there were not enough spectators in the huge grandstand to make a respectable mob for a cinema spectacle. Neither were there many automobiles parked in the infield, and as a dividend producer for the promoters the meet could not have associated with the war brides of Wall street.

The speedway management claimed the attendance was 7,000 and that a small profit was cleared. There was

SIEGEL BREAKS 50 YARD RECORD IN A. A. U. SWIM

BY WALTER H. ECKERSALL.

Going fifty yards in :24 4-5 by use of the crawl stroke, Abe Siegel of the Illinois A. C. yesterday broke his Central A. A. U. swim record of :25. The event was held in connection with the open A. A. U. events staged by the South Shore Country club in the course at the foot of Seventy-first street.

When the Central A. A. U. outdoor swimming championships were held at Put-in-Bay, the tri-color natator negotiated the distance in :25. According to E. C. Brown, president of the South Shore Country club and former president of the National and Central A. A. U., Siegel's mark will stand as a record in open water.

Rivals Impede Each Other.

When Siegel hit the water there were five timers in row boats at the finish. The race was a nip and tuck affair between the winner and Kenneth Huszagh of the C. A. A. Each interfered with the other during the entire distance, but Referee Brown said each was equally to blame, and the contest was declared legitimate by the referee.

Siegel and Huszagh hit the water at the same time. Each employed the crawl stroke, and there was little to choose between them for half the distance. After each had interfered with the other in the last twenty-five yards, Siegel got the best of the fouls and won by a scant foot.

Siegel also captured the 100 yard swim in easy fashion, winning two of the three events staged for men.

Miss Greenberg Wins Race.

Miss Blanche Greenberg of Hyde Park High school won the women's fifty yard swim. She defeated some of the fastest mermaids in Chicago, but failed to lower the record of :32 2-5, made by Miss Thelma Darby of Indianapolis. Miss Barbara Dunning of Sinai Social center was second and Mrs. Charles L. Brown, wife of the former Illinois A. C. plunger, was third.

Miss Greenberg, who stroked the distance in :44, was the only one of the three contestants to hold her course. Miss Dunning and Mrs. Brown swam out of their lanes, got tangled up with the rope on the side of the course, and had to be urged on by other swimmers to finish. Miss Greenberg won easily.

The only other race was the 220 yard swim, which was won by Augustus Seeger of the Hamilton club. Richard Mayer of the C. A. A. was second and D. L. Jones of the Illinois A. C. third. The winner covered the distance in 2:52 2-5.

Divers Give Exhibitions.

W. P. Heyn, Central A. A. U. diving champion and runner up in the national event held a week ago, and A. Kretzer of the Missouri A. C. of St. Louis gave interesting exhibitions of diving from the high board. Mrs. Charles L. Brown rode a board tied on the end of a launch in another interesting stunt known as aquaplaning.

RACES FOR GIRLS SATURDAY

Two races for girls, a fifty yard dash for contestants under 17 years of age and a seventy-five yard sprint for young women over 18, are on the card for the second annual meet of the Luther league next Saturday at Sears-Roebuck Y. M. C. A. field, Kedzie avenue and Arthington street. A rule by officials requires that the girl contestants wear gymnasium suits.

Twelve other events are on the program, ten for men over 18 years and a [illegible] yard dash and a half mile run for boys.

Entries will close at a meeting of the committee at Room 1301 Masonic temple tomorrow night.

In the Wake of the News

By RING W. LARDNER

THE DIARY OF A SIREN.

AUG. 13.

WELL diary here we are at Macatawa, Myrtle Killen and I, and we have two whole weeks to stay here but of course we can go on to somewhere else if we do not like it here, but I am sure we are going to like it here or at least I am for all I want is a quiet time and not be bothered with members of the opposite sex and problems they are always bringing up. I suppose Myrtle was surprised at my conversation with her on that subject coming over on the boat last night. There was a couple of nice looking young gentlemen on the boat and Myrtle remarked on how clean cut looking they both were.

"Yes," I replied, "but the question of men does not trouble me any more."

"What is the idea?" replied Myrtle.

I could not explain to her on account of haveing promised Lennie to not mention our engagement, so I merely said:

"I am tired of men and have come here for a rest."

"I bet you have a man on your staff before we have been at Macatawa two days," she replied.

"I would take your bet only it would not be fair," I replied. "It would be like stealing, for I have made up my mind and can not be shaken in this determination."

"All right," she replied, "you can turn them all over to me."

She smiled as if she was talking in jest, but I knew she meant her words in earnest for Myrtle is really man crazy and poor girl has never had much luck in secureing their attentions. Well she may have all the men she can get to look at her as long as they leave me alone to my thoughts and the problems that have come up to trouble me in the past few weeks.

AUG. 15.

Went in batheing down on the beach this A. M. and would of had a glorious time only for Myrtle who has got the idea that a beach was made for a place to indulge in flirtation and if she had her way would never grasp the opportunity to enjoy the exilarating effects of the water so long as there was men around to talk to. Luckily or rather unluckily for she poor girl there was no chance for her to pick up a masculine acquaintance though the two good looking young men who was on the boat as well as several others looked at me several times and would of spoken to me had I of given them so much as a glance of encouragement but I am not one of those kind of girls that picks up acquaintance with strange young men at a summer resort and at all times I insist on a formal introduction but at present would not even allow that on account of my resolve to make my stay here a real rest. Recieved a short note this P. M. from Lennie. He is back in Chicago with the nine and I imagine his feelings was hurt by me going away from the city at this time, though he was to proud to mention it, but I can not help it as this is the last vacation I will take before I enter on my life work as his helpmeat and besides I am doing nothing to which he could find any exceptions. Also recieved a post card from poor Ray.

AUG. 16.

Spent the A. M. mailing post cards to my real friends in Chicago. Also sent one to Ray as I see no reason why I should not give him what little pleasure is possible under the circumstances.

While I was writeing the post cards Myrtle said she would wait for me on the front porch and imagine my feelings when I came down to find out that there was two men sitting with her the same two that had given me those glances on the boat and down on the beach. Myrtle got up and introduced them to me and as a matter of politeness to her I had to bow to them and then sit down and chat but I did not allow the conversation to engage in personalitys. Their names are Fred Bolton and Chas. Sargent. The latter is the best looking of the two, Mr. Bolton haveing a weak mouth. Mr. Sargent seemed to forget all about Myrtle the minute I joined their little party.

This P. M. while I was reading the Cosmopolitan Mr. Sargent and Mr. Bolton and Myrtle all came strolling up to where I was sitting and Mr. Sargent asked me would I go over to the club and dance with him tonight. I was on the point of refusing when Myrtle said I must go because Mr. Bolton had already asked her and she had accepted. So there was nothing for me to do but accept out of fairness to Myrtle, but I must give her a good talking to when she comes upstairs to dress.

BASEBALL AVERAGES

Batting averages of American and National league baseball teams will be found on page 12 of the drama section of this paper.

WORLD'S HURDLE RECORD BROKEN IN COAST RACE.

San Diego, Cal., Aug. 19.—One world's record was broken, another was equaled, but not allowed, and several far western records were bettered in the A. A. U. track and field meet at the stadium today.

John Norton of the Olympic club of San Francisco was credited with breaking the world's record in the 220 yard low hurdles on a curved track. His time was :24 1-5, one-fifth of a second faster than the record formerly held by Fred Kelley of the Los Angeles Athletic club.

In the 120 yard high hurdles Kelley equaled the world's record of :14 4-5 seconds, but knocked over a hurdle.

JAP TENNIS STAR BEATS JOHNSTON FOR CASINO CUP

Newport, R. I., Aug. 19.—Ichiya Kumagae of Tokio, oriental tennis champion, furnished the biggest sensation of the season today by wresting victory from William M. Johnston of San Francisco, national champion, in the finals of the annual Casino cup tournament. It was a brilliant five set match, in which both experts went to the limit of their skill to achieve the mastery before the amazing steadiness and endurance of the oriental champion gained him victory, 6—1, 9—7, 5—7, 2—6, 9—7.

The victory gives Kumagae a leg on the Casino cup, the trophy put up last year when R. Norris Williams II. of Philadelphia was the first time winner.

Johnston and Clarence J. Griffin, national doubles champion, later in the day were defeated in the doubles final by Wallace F. Johnson and J. J. Armstrong of Philadelphia, 4—6, 6—2, 6—1.

Kumagae Wins by Steadiness.

Kumagae began the first set with an exhibition of placing which the Californian could not equal. The Japanese placed his long shots from the back court, hitting the dropping balls with a topping stroke and rarely getting an "out."

In the second set the national champion lost his service and when the Japanese followed with a love game it was apparent that Johnston was worried. He was not sure of his own placements, and Kumagae's driving line shots seemed to puzzle him when he attempted to take the net.

With the games five to three against him, Johnston showed a flash of brilliancy and brought the games to five-all by wonderful shooting to deep court. In the end Kumagae's persistent steadiness gained the advantage, as Johnston, who was tiring, kept cutting the ball off too short to the net, and the Jap won the frame, 9—7.

Johnston in Fast Rally.

Johnston made a good beginning the third set. He stuck to the net, crossing Kumagae's drives and keeping him on the run. He led 5—2 in games, but the Japanese rallied and deuced the score at 5 all. Johnston won the set, 7—5, by smothering his rival. The fourth found Johnston still working with good effect. He ran up a 3 to 1 lead, and, by variations of pace and a good back hand, won the frame, 6—2.

Kumagae continued his unruffled play, whiel the American showed signs of weariness and took his time to get into position between the rallies. The Jap took the set by winning the fifteenth and sixteenth games.

Old Time Crowd at Match.

A gathering reminiscent of the old days of national championships on the Casino courts thronged the stands and thrilled with excitement over the varying fortunes of the players. The sky was clear and a hot sun beat down upon the courts, to the disadvantage of Johnston, who appeared to feel its effects more than his adversary.

The point score of the match follows:

FIRST SET.

Kumagae ....5 2 4 7 5 4 4—31 6
Johnston ....3 4 1 5 3 1 1—18 1

ZIM BEATS GIANTS IN ELEVENTH, 3-2; EDDIE CICOTTE TAMES YANKEES, 3-1

Ed Collins, Jackson, and Felsch Produce Three Tallies in Fourth.

GLEASON BACK ON JOB.

BY I. E. SANBORN.

New York, Aug. 19.—[Special.]—By bunching three rapid fire hits in the fourth inning the White Sox achieved a victory over the Yankees today in the opening game of the series by a score of 3 to 1.

Those three swats came in quick succession off George Mogridge, a former south side southpaw, who gave the Rowlands a lot of trouble in every other inning he pitched. They were helped out by a loose throw to third from Lee Magee's wing and by a long loft to right field.

White Sox Batting Heroes.

Edward Collins, Jackson, and Felsch were the lads who pounded out the telling singles, and Fournier delivered the elongated fly. Felsch's drive was the turning point of the game, for it came with E. Collins and Jackson on the runway, and was the provocative cause of Magee's costly heave.

Cicotte pitched airtight baseball in eight of the nine innings, and probably would have shut out the Yankees but for an accident in the eighth inning. Miller led off with a liner over second base, which hit the ground and hopped past Hap Felsch for three bases, paving the way to the only New York run. It also unsettled Cicotte temporarily, and he had a tough time getting through that round. A single and two passes followed the scratch triple, and Rowland had both a right and a left hander on the warming pan to relieve Cicotte, but the knuckle ball expert worked out his own salvation.

Gleason Back with Sox.

Kid Gleason, who came back as coach for the White Sox after nearly two seasons of retirement, was the life of the party. His familiar ginger was scattered all over the lot and he gave Germany Schaefer a hard battle for popular favor.

The White Sox would have broken up the game in the second if a good play by Fournier had not gone wrong. Felsch started the inning with a walk and Jacques was up to sacrifice, but Baumann played right on top of the plate for the expected bunt. Fournier took a toe hold and tried to soak the ball past him. Instead it went straight at the third baseman, who managed to pinch it and had an easy double play on Felsch at first. Another double play wrecked an opening which the same Baumann gave the Sox by throwing Cicotte's bounder wildly to first in the third inning.

How Game Was Won.

The fourth brought the break. E. Collins led with his second single. Jackson hoisted a Texas leaguer back of second and it fell just out of Peck's grasp. Instead of sacrificing, Felsch mauled a single over second, driving in E. Collins. Magee tried to get Jackson going to third, but the ball shot under Baumann and let Mr. Joe score, Felsch going around to third, from where he registered the third tally on Fournier's long wallop to Miller.

That was all for the Rowlands. They made only one more hit off Mogridge in the next four innings before the southpaw gave way to a pinch hitter in the eighth, letting Shawkey finish. One more safety was garnered off Robert.

Cicotte pitched the Yankees out with two hits in seven innings and one of those was due to a blunder by Fournier, who went after a bounder that would have been easy for Collins and let Walters beat it to first.

Yankees Make Only Bid.

But in the eighth there was a crisis. Miller's scratch triple, which bounded away from Felsch, precipitated it. Walters followed with a noisy single, scoring Miller. Mullen went to bat for Mogridge and walked. Magee laid down a sacrifice, putting the two Yankee runners where a single would tie the score. Cicotte tried to work High on bad balls and passed him, filling the bases.

Rowland had several conferences with Ray Schalk, who told him Cicotte still had the goods, so the manager went along with him. Eddie proved it by striking out Peck with the bags loaded. Pipp was implored by 20,000 hoarse throats to make his tenth home run and he tried to, but the ball fell into John Collins' hands a few feet shy of the right field stand. Nothing at all in the ninth.

Notes

Brooklyn's high flying Robins come to the north side today to start a series of four games.

The Cubs won three out of four from McGraw's gang in spite of the fact that Buck Herzog was unable to understand how they could lose a game here.

Jim Vaughn is slated to open the series against the league leaders. Jim Lavender, who has been nursing a bruised arm, is ready to go to the slab again and might be selected.

Jeff Tesreau would have possessed a two bagger which might have sent a runner home from first base in the second if Heine Zim hadn't made a corking bare handed stab out behind third and then got his man at first.

Rollie Zeider had only two chances in left field and both were tough ones. He was in the right spot to pluck a terrific liner by Robertson in the sixth and in the eleventh, he legged it to the foul line and took a long drive from Kauff.

Packard was in a distressing place in the fifth when two scratchy hits and a base on balls filled the sacks, although not until two were out. Herzog was next batter and bounced a nice one down to Zim, which brought relief.

Heine Zim did some furious kicking in the fifth, but the umps stood for it. With Merkle on second and Burns on first, Doyle knocked out a hot grounder, which Knabe took behind second too late for a play. Merkle had overrun third, however, and he shot to Zim. It looked as if Zim had cause to kick when Ump. Eason called Merkle safe.

Notes

New York, Aug. 19.—[Special.]—Three more games here—Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday.

Felsch and John Collins collided in getting under Baumann's fly in the seventh, but not seriously enough to keep Shano from holding the ball.

Umpire Hildebrand was the target for a dozen hot foul tips. One mashed the toe of his gunboat shoe and another nearly broke a wire in his mask.

Tom Davies, a collegian from near Pittsburgh, reported to Boss Rowland for a tryout. He was recommended by Conibear, former trainer of the University of Chicago football team.

Kid Gleason was given a royal welcome when he showed up at the Sox hotel this morning. The veterans of the team expressed confidence that the addition of his cheery spirit was all they needed to cop the bunting, and the younger players caught the enthusiasm from the others.

Immediately after Gleason's arrival became known here, an afternoon paper came out with the story that he was to succeed Rowland as manager next year. This was emphatically denied by Secretary Grabiner of the Sox, who stopped off on his return from a scouting trip. He declared Gleason had reluctantly consented to come back for the rest of the season in response to the argument that his presence might help win the pennant.

"TRIBUNE" BOYS WITH SOX GET GLIMPSE OF BROADWAY

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

New York, Aug. 19.—[Special.]—Norman and Cunningham, the two TRIBUNE prize winners with the White Sox, had their first peek at New York this morning, as they arrived too late to see the bright lights last night, the party being hurried uptown from the station by subway. They inspected the Hudson river first and found it all that the histories assert. They are planning a visit to one of the beaches on the off day tomorrow. Catcher Lapp had Norman pitching to him before the game today and showed him a new thing or two about the art. Cunningham worked at third base during part of the fielding practice.

Drive to Wall Wins Game After Error Puts Run on Second Base.

BOOTS LICK TESREAU.

BY JAMES CRUSINBERRY.

Heine Zimmerman righted many a one of his wrongs yesterday when he delivered a line drive against the bricks in right field in the eleventh inning of the final battle between the Cubs and Giants. Heine's blow drove Leslie Mann home from second base with the run which closed the battle in Chicago's favor, 3 to 2.

Previous to that Heine had swatted a base hit, besides helping materially in producing the tying run in the ninth round, and besides all that he made a couple of daring stops around third base which helped thwart the attack of the Giants, so on the whole Heine was the hero of the day. His prowess probably will stop any further talk of trading him, at least for a while.

Two Out When End Comes.

When the eccentric slugger walloped his eleventh round blow which settled the combat, two men were out, Mann was on second, and Saier on first. It was the prettiest drive of the day, being a liner midway between Robertson and Kauff, and went crashing against the wall, while every one of the 8,000 fans present screamed. Heine ran to first, Saier ran to second, and Mann ran home. No one even went after the ball, as such actions would have been quite superfluous.

Big Jeff Tesreau had given the Cubs a terrific struggle, and it wasn't Jeff's fault that he didn't win the game, 2 to 0, in nine rounds. If Larry Doyle hadn't booted a couple the big spitball hurler never would have been licked. One of Larry's fumbles made the opening for the first run of the Cubs in the second, and his wild throw to first in an attempt to make a double play let the tying run get home in the ninth. In the very first inning Dave Robertson clouted one over the right wall for a homer with one mate on the sacks, and though the Giants never were able to score again those two runs would have been plenty if Doyle hadn't blundered.

Packard and Brown Hurl.

Opposed to Tesreau were Gene Packard and Mordecai Brown, the former staying on the job until the eighth inning, when he yielded his place at bat to a pinch hitter. Barring the home run drive by Robertson in the first round, Packard was just as good as his husky rival and was given much sterner support. From the eighth on the veteran Mordecai hurled in his best form, never being in any great danger, while all the time Big Jeff was growing more and more weary.

However, Tesreau hurled his spitter with telling effect all the way and wouldn't have been downed in the eleventh without the aid of an error by Buck Herzog. Two were out when Mann drove a bounder at the former Red's leader. Buck booted it just long enough to let Mann beat his throw to first base. Jeff followed by walking Saier, then came Heine Zim's crashing blow, which ended the fight.

Cubs Handed First Tally.

For a time Tesreau threatened to hurl a no hit game, as it was the seventh round before a safe swat was recorded off his spitter, and that one was made by Zim. Consequently it looked as if the first inning homer had done enough business. In the second inning the Cubs got their first run without the aid of a hit. Doyle messed Saier's roller to start the round and Zim walked, after which Elliot sacrificed. Saier scored while Fletcher was throwing out Knabe.

In the ninth Jeff weakened, but would have gone through victoriously without Doyle's second blunder. With one out, Mann singled and Saier followed suit. Zim then smashed to Herzog, who shot to Doyle, forcing Saier. Doyle's peg to first for a double play went to the stand and Mann came home, tying the count.

CAL SUSPENDS AL MAMAUX.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Aug. 19.—Al Mamaux, Pirate pitching star, today was suspended for ten days without pay by Manager Jimmy Calahan. Callahan penalized him for alleged intemperate habits which have interfered with his work on the mound. Angered by the penalty, Mamaux tonight declared he might quit the team. He did not deny the charges.

BOEHLING HANDS RED SOX VICTORY BY COSTLY WALK

Washington Discard Passes McNally with Bases Filled in the Ninth.

Boston, Mass., Aug. 19.—Joe Boehling, recently of Washington, making his initial appearance with Cleveland; handed a game to Boston by forcing in a run in the ninth, Boston winning, 2 to 1. Up to the final session Boehling had pitched well, allowing only six scattered hits.

Gardner opened the ninth with a single through center, but was forced on Scott's grounder to Chapman. Cady singled to center, Scott going to third. McNally was sent in to run for Scott, and Henriksen for Cady. Janvrin, pinch hitting for Foster, walked, filling the bases. Then Boehling walked Hooper, forcing in McNally with the winning tally. COBB'S DARING ROUTS MACKS

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 19.—Cobb's clever work on bases in the tenth inning turned today's game in Detroit's favor, 6 to 2. With two out, Cobb got a walk. He stole second by a great slide and then started for third, drawing McElwee out of his position. At the same time Veach hit the ball past the spot vacated by McElwee and Cobb scored. Detroit then hammered out two doubles and a single, which, with two errors, sent in four more runs. Score:

Cuban Stars won two games yesterday in the double bill played at Schorling's park, beating the American Giants, 9 to 6, and winning a seven inning game from the Henry [Ill.] Greys, 8 to 6. The Islanders copped the first battle by outhitting their opponents and then continued the batting spree throughout the second fray. "Hod" Eller, who received a Sox tryout, gave the Cubans their first look at an emery ball in the game against the Henry team and they liked it so well that they touched him for eleven hits. Score:

AMATEURS TO BEGIN PLAY FOR BIG TITLE ON SEPT. 9.

Twelve cities will start play Sept. 9 for the national amateur baseball championship. Chicago will open at Des Moines. At present the city titles are being decided. Following is the schedule:

First round, Sept. 9—Chicago at Des Moines, Dayton at Cincinnati, Akron at Canton, Toledo at Detroit, Columbus at Cleveland, Johnstown [Pa.] at Pittsburgh.

Second round, Sept. 16—Winner at Des Moines and winner at Detroit, winner at Canton and winner at Pittsburgh, winner at Cincinnati and winner at Cleveland.

Third round, Sept. 23.—Winners in two contests first named in second round to meet, while the other winner will clash with the champion of the Southern association.

Final round, Sept. 30—Winners of third round play off for national title.

Cities where later rounds will be played will be chosen by the national amateur commission.

JIM GILMORE BOOSTS FORMER FED PLAYERS NOW IN BIG LEAGUES

New York, Aug. 19.—"Fighting Jim" Gilmore, once the president of the extinct Federal league, believes a majority of the former outlaw ball players who are now in the American and National leagues are making good. Gilmore is now selling paper, being one member of a stationery firm.

When seen today Gilmore was willing enough to talk about the defunct organization and its demise. And Gilmore is happy over the fact that he is no longer president of a baseball league.

"What do you think of some of your former ball players now that they have stepped into the major leagues?" Gilmore was asked.

Boosts Many Former Feds.

"There are several of them who are giving a good account of themselves and proving they were ball players even when they were in the Federal league," he replied.

He mentioned Nick Cullop and Lee Magee, now with the Yankees, and enumerated several others, notably Anderson, Allen, McConnell, Plank, Hendrix, and Packard, pitchers; Wilson, Fischer, and Rariden, catchers; Benny Kauff, Rousch, Mann, Flack, and others.

These, he declared, look like they're going to hold their berths in the majors. Asked particularly regarding Benny Kauff, the formed Federal league head staunchly stood by his fallen swat king.

"I believe Kauff is a great ball player," he said, "and I believe his trouble this year is that he is swinging at bad ones and refusing to follow the advice of McGraw. He always was too eager to swing at the bad ones."

Guards Secret of Loss.

Asked regarding the financial loss the Federal league sustained during its tormented existence, Gilmore smiled and said:

"That's a secret I'm going to keep. We lost money, but we're not kicking, and we're going to let the public have a good long guess at the amount. I haven't told any one and don't intend to."

Gilmore said he was glad to be out of the game. "They kept me hopping like a grasshopper for two years," he said. "She's a great old game, but I'm through. There'll never be another third league if they wait for me to be president. I'm content to sit in a box or bleacher seat and be a fan the rest of my life."

Error by Toney Gives Quakers First Run and Long Battle Results.

Cincinnati, O., Aug. 19.—Philadelphia won from Cincinnati in the fourteenth inning, a batting rally proving disastrous to the locals, who went down to defeat in the second and final game of the series, 6 to 1. Toney pitched remarkable ball, but his error in the second inning was responsible for Philadelphia's run, thereby necessitating the extra five innings. Score:

Pittsburgh, Pa., Aug. 19.—Brooklyn was defeated by Pittsburgh, 2 to 1, in ten innings in the first game of today's doubleheader, but the Pirates lost the second game, 1 to 0. In the first game Pittsburgh scored a run in the third on Fischer's double and Baird's triple. Brooklyn tied the score in the fourth on Myers' triple and Wheat's sacrifice fly. The home team won in the tenth on singles by Schultz and Fischer, coupled with Cutshaw's wild throw.

In the second game the only run scored was by Brooklyn in the fourth inning on two bases on balls, Myers' safe hit, and Cutshaw's sacrifice fly. Scores:

SHAW TAXIS NIP ELECTRICS, 4-2, IN TITLE SERIES

Win First Game of Elimination Contests for Amateur Flag; Protest Halts Other Tilt.

The Shaw Taxis won their first game on the journey toward the amateur championship of Chicago by beating Western Electrics, 4 to 2, at Forty-fourth avenue and Twenty-second street yesterday. Two games in the elimination flag series were originally scheduled, but the game between the Anderson and Linds and the U. S. Ball Bearings was called off because a protest was lodged against the former by the J. V. Farwells. Inability to hit Ed Corey's curves proved the downfall of the Electrics, who got only three safe drives. Rudolph did heavy stick work for the Taxis with three hits. His triple in the eighth scored two runs. The score:

KATHERYN III. CUP WINNER.

Oshkosh, Wis., Aug. 19.—John Buckstaff of Oshkosh sailed Katheryn III. to its third consecutive victory in the annual regatta of the Oshkosh Yacht club. Buckstaff won the historic Felker challenge trophy and the Oshkosh Yacht club's first prize trophy, the feature of the Oshkosh regatta. The winner's time was 1:59:42.

Red Feather, Earl Savage's new Minnetonka boat, was two minutes and a half behind for second place, and Tornado of Minnetonka finished within a minute of Red Feather.

Minnewoc IV. of Oconomowoc lake finished fifth, followed by Aderyn II., Santa, Onaway, Labelle II., Gretchen III., and Mina.

VET BEATS OTHER HIKERS

Placerville, Cal., Aug. 19.—William Samuel Chapman, 70 years old, loafed here today on his transcontinental walk from Baltimore, Md., for a purse of $3,000 put up by the New York Jockey club. He said he could afford to tarry, as one by one he had left behind him three stalwart men between the ages of 25 and 30 years, who found the old man's pace too fast and dropped out at Omaha, Cheyenne, and Salt Lake City. Chapman is from Millington, Conn. He walked all the way from Baltimore over the Lincoln national highway and will resume his journey to the edge of the Pacific on Monday.

SHOWALTER KEEPS CHESS MEET LEAD

SHOWALTER retained the lead in the chess tournament at the Kenwood Chess club yesterday. The two leaders, Showalter and Lasker, clashed yesterday, but as the game was drawn, their standing was not affected.

The defeat of Moorman by both Winter and Gessner, and the victories of Whitaker, Hahlbohm, Gessner, and Winter, brought Moorman down. It was his "bad day." Hahlbohm's consistent play has put him within striking distance of the top, but Showalter's steadiness is discouraging to all aspirants.

Summary of yesterday's play:

Round eleven—Hine beat Walker, Kent beat Schrader, Whitaker beat Ryan, Daniels scored against Palmer by default, Winter beat Moorman, Gessner beat Cobb, Hahlbohm beat Cobb, Erdeky beat Willingham, Lasker and Showalter drew, and the Isaacs-Beckner game was unfinished.

Round twelve—Hahlbohm beat Cobb, Gessner beat Moorman, Winter beat Daniels, Beckner scored against Palmer (retired), Isaacs beat Ryan, Whitaker beat Kent, Schrader beat Walker, Showalter beat Hine, Lasker beat Erdeky, and Willingham and Hoff adjourned their game.

After twelve rounds the standing of the players is as follows:

	W.	L.		W.	L.
Showalter	10½	1½	Hoff	6	5
Lasker	9½	2½	Hine	6	6
Hahlbohm	9	3	Erdeky	5½	6½
Beckner	8½	2½	Kent	5	7
Whitaker	8½	3½	Cobb	4	8
Moorman	7½	4½	Daniels	4	8
Winter	7½	4½	Willingham.	2	9
Isaacs	6½	4½	Ryan	2	10
Gessner	7	5	Palmer	2	10
Schrader	7	5	Walker	0	12

The thirteenth and fourteenth rounds will be played today.

GRAND AMERICAN DRAWS SHOOTERS TO MOUND CITY

Chicago Will Be Represented by Delegation of 33, Including Two Women.

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 19.—Five hundred and sixty-eight shooters, a small army in itself, will compete in the annual grand American trapshooting tournament in this city, beginning Monday morning and lasting through Friday. It will take five days of steady firing at five traps to shoot enough targets to conclude the tournament. The number of entrants is less than that at last year's tournament on the lake front at Chicago, but exceeds all other years since the start of the world's shooting classic.

One of the largest delegations hails from Chicago, which is sending thirty-three contestants. Two women are included in the list of Windy City entrants, Mrs. Harold Almert and Mrs. J. L. Hooper. A score of women will compete in the handicap, all on equal terms and with no privileges denied the men shooters.

Special Events for Women.

A variety of trophies and money prizes will be hung up for the trap stars during the week of competition. There will be events for professionals and amateurs, as the pros will be barred from competition against the simon pures. The former will engage in daily 100 target events, with each day's winner qualifying for a shootoff for a special trophy on the final day. An innovation in the history of the tournament will be a series of fifty bird shoots for women. These will be held on three days of the tournament.

The other big events to be run off include the national amateur championship, national doubles, consolation handicap, national preliminary handicap.

Clarke Heads Chicagoans.

Louis B. Clarke, 1915 champion, who won this title by twenty straight breaks in a shootoff, after tieing with several others at 96 of 100 targets last year, will head the Chicago delegation. Another prominent contestant from the Illinois metropolis will be R. H. Morse, who captured the preliminary handicap last year. The list of entrants from Chicago and suburban towns follows:

CHICAGO—Mrs. H. Almert, Mrs. Joseph L. Hooper, Harold Almert, M. E. Bosley, C. G. Burmeister, F. W. Belknap, J. B. Crawford, W. R. Carman, L. B. Clarke, B. S. Donnelley, Rodney Davis, H. J. Foster, P. J. Graham, C. A. Hardy, Dr. J. L. Hooper, O. H. Hassel, H. D. Hoover, L. C. Huckins, C. W. Irrgang, T. H. Lewis, R. H. Morse, H. H. Otter, W. E. Phillips Sr., W. E. Phillips Jr., John Prugrift, R. R. Palmer, R. V. Raine, G. A. Smith, R. Simonetti, H. W. Shroyer, Ed Silver, C. B. Wiley, H. C. Wolfe.

SUBURBS—G. W. Begeman, Arlington Heights; J. W. Egermann, Naperville; T. E. Graham, Ingleside; Charles Hofmann, Waukegan; W. V. Jackson, Ingleside; P. J. Krueger, Blue Island; H. W. The cigarette sunny Virginia is proud of

The fame of Virginia tobacco is world-wide. It is known as "the tobacco man's tobacco".

And Piedmont is the name of the cigarette that Virginia is proud of. Made of the highest-grade Virginia tobacco—ALL Virginia! Lively and mellowed by Virginia's golden sunshine.

Soon as you light a Piedmont you'll find that charm and zest called character, which only Virginia tobacco can give to a cigarette.

"LAST SHOT WIN" ON GOLF LINKS

GEORGE TURNBULL, professional at the Midlothian Country club during a fanning bee at the time of the Pater-Filius tournament, recalled a famous "last shot" win. One of the events in connection with a tournament at the Waverley Golf club of Portland, Ore., was an approaching contest. Charles Smith had put a ball six inches from the cup, and when W. S. Sample, the last player to shoot, after two ineffective shots from greater distances, stepped to the seventy-five yard mark for his final effort, Smith already had been congratulated as the winner.

Sample's ball pitched on the green and rolled into the cup, giving him a victory of the 1,000 to 1 variety.

ROQUE TITLE TO ED CLARK.

Norwich, Conn., Aug. 19.—Edward Clark of Springfield, Mass., tonight won the championship in the thirty-fifth annual tournament of the National Roque association.

KENNEDY KEEPS DIAMOND MEDAL IN ROQUE PLAY

Washington Park Crack Beats Plummer in Feature of Western Meet.

BY KEENE GARDINER.

Joseph Kennedy of the Washington Park Roque club defeated L. H. Plummer of the same club for the diamond medal in the feature match of the Western Roque association tourney, which came to a successful close yesterday at Washington park. Kennedy, who won the medal last year, won three games in a row from the challenger yesterday after some of the most interesting playing on a local court in years. Last Wednesday each player won a shutout game.

Honors in the first division went to F. C. Turner of Pasadena, Cal., with 306 points of a possible 320. There were ten players in this division, and Turner won nine out of the ten matches he played. W. A. Rounds of Cleveland, O., captured the title in the second division with 293 of a possible 320 points. He won eight of the ten games he played.

In the third division the gold medal went to J. C. Jackson of Kansas City. Because of the large number of entries the Missourian was compelled to play two and three matches a day, and he won the title by excellent play with 352 points of a possible 416. C. G. Carlson of Chicago, a 20 year old player, was second in this division with a score of 342.

The match between Kennedy and Plummer attracted a large gallery. The loser was not in the best form and missed several easy bank and carom shots. On the other hand, Kennedy took long chances by driving at his object ball from one end of the court to the other. He invariably made these shots successfully, putting himself in position to score points. Kennedy's victories yesterday were won by scores of 32—4, 32—4, 32—24.

ST. LOUIS SHOOT TOURNEY OPENS WITH CUP CONTEST.

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 19.—Homer Clark of Alton, Ill., today won the all around contest for the Hercules cup at the first preliminary match of the Grand American trap shooting tournament. E. L. Bartlett of Baltimore won the Hercules championship cup for amateurs. Clark's score was 187 in 200. Bartlett made a score of 185 in 200.

About 200 men from all parts of the country took part. Professionals and amateurs shot in the same event, but the scores were kept separately. The all around trophy is for the highest amateur or professional.

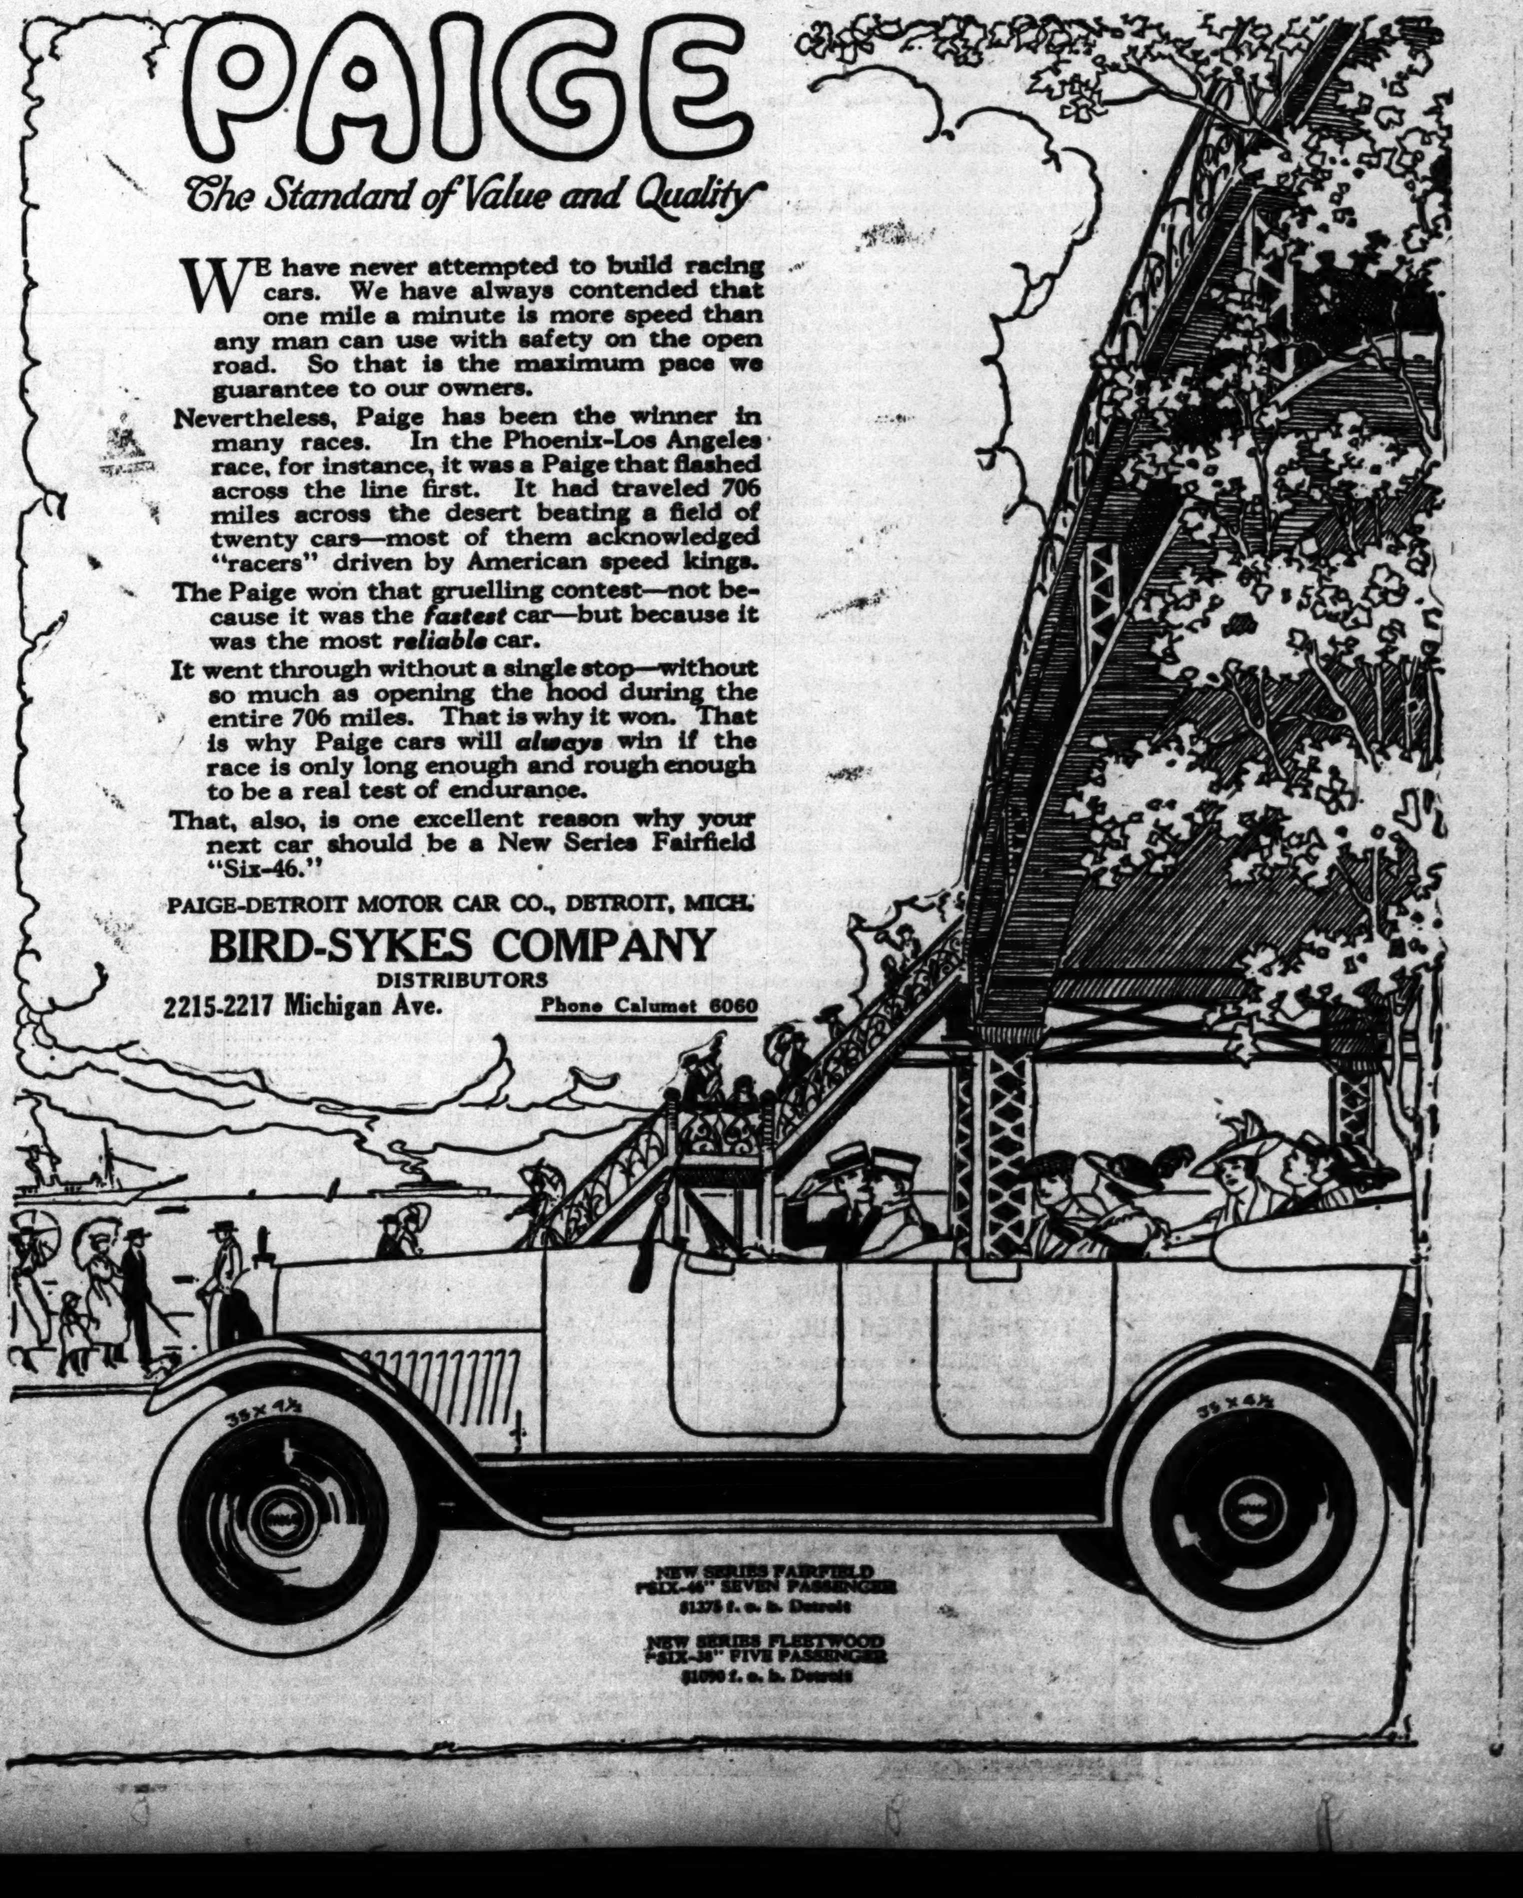
J., Aug. 21-25. The Chicago contingent includes a number of world's record holders, and local contestants are doped to land a number of high places in the championships.



PAIGE

The Standard of Value and Quality

WE have never attempted to build racing cars. We have always contended that one mile a minute is more speed than any man can use with safety on the open road. So that is the maximum pace we guarantee to our owners.

Nevertheless, Paige has been the winner in many races. In the Phoenix-Los Angeles race, for instance, it was a Paige that flashed across the line first. It had traveled 706 miles across the desert beating a field of twenty cars—most of them acknowledged "racers" driven by American speed kings.

The Paige won that gruelling contest—not because it was the fastest car—but because it was the most reliable car.

It went through without a single stop—without so much as opening the hood during the entire 706 miles. That is why it won. That is why Paige cars will always win if the race is only long enough and rough enough to be a real test of endurance.

That, also, is one excellent reason why your next car should be a New Series Fairfield "Six-46."

NEW STARS SPRING UP WITH BOOM IN TENNIS

Season Uncovers Greatest Number of Phenoms in History of Game.

DAVIS BEST OF LOT.

BY JEWETT E. RICKER JR.

[Vice president Western Lawn Tennis association.]

Not since 1909, when McLoughlin, Melville H. Long, and other Pacific coast players made their first serious invasion of the east, have so many players sprung into prominence as during the present season. Hardly a day passes but the telegraph flashes the announcement that a man almost unheard of in tennis circles has captured an important championship.

The tremendous growth of the game is largely responsible for this condition. In fact, during the last seven years, and particularly during the last two years, lawn tennis has made the most remarkable strides in the whole history of the game in this country. The result is that nearly every section is now turning out players of ability and turning them out at a very rapid rate.

East and Coast Hold Lead.

The east and the Pacific coast still maintain their leadership, but the margin is not as great as it once was. Ten years from now, after the National association has had an opportunity to work out its plans for the development of the game, it is probable that even this margin will have disappeared.

Probably the most formidable of the players who have gained the national limelight this year is Willis E. Davis, who claims California as his home and who developed his game in that state, but who for the last year has been attending the University of Pennsylvania.

Two years ago, when R. L. Murray came out of the west and did so well that he was ranked No. 4, Californians kept saying, "Yes, Murray is good, but wait until you see Davis." This remark was occasioned by the fact that Murray, then a student at Leland Stanford, and Davis, who was playing on the University of California team, were great rivals on the coast. From a match playing standpoint they were almost on a par, though Davis, if anything, had the edge. Consequently, when the latter announced his intention of competing in the eastern circuit this year, interest became intense.

Davis Has Made Good.

Today Davis is one of the most talked of men in the tennis world. Without a question he has made good. His first important triumph came in the national clay court championship at Cleveland, which he won in decisive style. Then followed victories in the Pennsylvania state, western Pennsylvania, and Sleepy Hollow tournaments.

In these tournaments he defeated Throckmorton, Church, Armstrong, Doyle, Tilden, Bull, and Garland, among others, his only defeats in sanctioned tournaments having been registered by Church, though in the east vs. west match he lost in four sets to the veteran Karl H. Behr. With Church he also took the eastern doubles title.

Like all of the Californians, Davis' style is extremely brilliant. For the most part he has splendid control of all his shots, particularly so when his decisive style is considered. As a matter of fact, however, Davis makes few half way shots. He almost invariably tries for the "kill," and his game is for this reason unusually spectacular.

Will Rank Among First Ten.

In many respects Davis is Murray's twin. He is almost as hard a worker, his strokes are well varied, and his service—as in the case of all the leading Californians—is remarkably effective. He varies his driving game with a chop stroke that bothers nearly all of his opponents. And, topping it all, is a net game that is on a par with the best. Without much question he will earn a rank well up in the first ten.

Roland Roberts, who also is making his first swing around the eastern circuit, hails from the Golden Gate Junior club of San Francisco. He is hardly more than a boy, though his game is already developed to a fine point. Early in June he captured the San Francisco city championship from a fairly good field and competed later in the Pacific coast meeting. In this latter event he lost to Griffin, 6—4, 6—4, in the semi-finals. At Longwood he put up a hard fight against William M. Johnston, the national champion, losing only after three hard sets, 6—2, 9—7, 6—4.

Roberts Has Great Service.

Roberts is six feet tall and has a very long reach. His service is terrific, his first ball being almost as fast as McLoughlin's. He alternates a straight fast ball with an ugly break service that usually forces his opponent away out of court on the 'vantage side. He also has a speedy and effective forehand drive, modeled somewhat along the lines of that used by Johnston. His volleying also has improved greatly in the last year, as was proved in his match with the national champion at Boston. All his strokes are made with unusual freedom and he is a hard hitter from start to finish. Californians regard him as the best of all the younger coast players.

Ward Dawson, McLoughlin's partner in doubles, has devoted nearly all of his attention this year to that department of the game. He entered the singles at Longwood, but lost to R. N. Dana, and in the recent western championship was defeated by Heath Byford. Though he ranks seventh on the Pacific coast in singles, he is hardly to be considered with Johnston, Griffin, Murray, Davis, and the rest in the singles branch of the game. Dawson lives in Los Angeles.

While the Pacific coast has been developing its new string of players the east has come forward with at least two new claimants to tennis fame. Of these Harold A. Throckmorton, New Jersey and Maryland state champion, is undoubtedly the best. Throckmorton, who, like Roberts of San Francisco, is still in his teens, won the interscholastic championship of the east last year when he defeated Charles S. Garland in a close match in the finals.

This year Throckmorton was easily the sensation of the earlier tournaments, capturing the Maryland and New Jersey titles and winning the Pinehurst and Chevy Chase meetings. He has beaten Mathey, Hall, Murray, Pell, Doyle, Breck, and Garland, showing a vast improvement over his last season's form. He has lost to Davis, Mathey, Murray, and Church.

Though ranked in class 1 [11 to 20] last year, it seems fairly certain that Throckmorton has a chance to break into the charmed circle of the "first ten" this year. He has on numerous occasions shown a game fully up to the highest standards, and is improving almost daily. He is easily the most brilliant eastern player developed in recent years. He is particularly deadly at the net, though his whole game is well rounded out. And, what is more, he uses his head every second.

Garland Also Wins Fame.

Charles S. Garland of Pittsburgh, Yale interscholastic champion, who has twice fought close matches with Throckmorton, is but a shade below the New Jersey star. His most recent accomplishment was his defeat of G. P. Gardner Jr. in the Longwood singles championship, though he lost later to Kumagae, the Japanese champion.

Garland plays a wonderfully rounded game and places his shots in almost unerring style. He is small, as yet, for a tennis player, weighing, it is said, well under 100 pounds. But he is still young and much is expected of him. In fact, stroke for stroke, few are his superior even today.

The other important figure in this year's events hails from the far east and is none other than the much discussed Itchiya Kumagae (pronounced Koomaguy), champion of Japan. For the first time he is touring the United States this year in partnership with Hachishire Mikami, a fellow Japanese, who was formerly well known in local tennis circles, while attending the University of Chicago.

Jap Learns Game Fast.

Kumagae, who is easily the better of the two, is in many respects the most remarkable tennis player the world has ever seen. Three years ago Kumagae, together with all Japanese players, hardly understood tennis at all. In fact, at that time all the players of the island kingdom were using the ordinary rubber ball, of about half the weight of the American felt covered ball, and one that curved and swooped in amazing fashion. In many other respects the game, as played in Japan at that time, was totally different from ours. Moreover, Kumagae had never seen a good player in action and knew little or nothing of the finer points of the game.

Yet in three years Kumagae built up a game that has stood the test against our very best players. Indeed, in the orient he made a splendid fight in 1914 against Elia Fottrell, in 1915 all but beat our national champion, William M. Johnston, at Manila, and then, last winter, twice defeated Clarence J. Griffin in the far eastern tournaments.

Great Record in America.

Coming to this country and playing under strange conditions, Kumagae's record to date is phenomenal. He easily took the New York state championship from a good field and has defeated, among others, Griffin, Miles, and several other of our best men. At Longwood, suffering a reversal of form, he fell before Joseph Armstrong.

Kumagae, who is left handed, plays a splendidly rounded out game, and his placing is, at times, uncanny. He covers the court with great speed and is apparently tireless. He is, of course, short in stature, but that does not seem to handicap him in the least, for he is no shorter than Johnston, Bunny, and many other leading American players.

In the back court he is probably as good, or better, than any man in the United States today, and his net game also is developing rapidly. He plays a very crafty game, playing to his opponent's weakness almost constantly.

Just what he will do in the national championship remains to be seen, but that this little Jap will eventually rank with the greatest players is conceded by every one who has seen him play.

CHICAGOANS SWEEP DETROIT NET FINALS

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 19.—Chicago tennis stars swept the courts at the state tournament here in the three final matches in the doubles. M. G. Ketchum and James Weber of Chicago took the men's doubles from Theodore Lightner and Walter Westbrook of Detroit. The scores were 9—7, 3—6, 6—4, 6—3.

Miss Amanda Falker and Miss Voorhees of Chicago defeated Mrs. W. A. Ellis and Mrs. W. S. Miller of Chicago in women's doubles, 6—4, 6—1.

Mrs. Ellis and Ketchum won the mixed doubles from Miss Buda Stephens of Toledo and J. Westbrook of Detroit, 6—2, 10—8.

PLAN ANNUAL LAKE SWIM TO BREAKWATER AUG. 26.

The third annual lake marathon of the Chicago Amateur Swimming association will be held Saturday, Aug. 26. The course will be from the Sportsmen's club at the foot of Randolph street east to the breakwater, circling the breakwater, and returning west to the start. The distance is somethin govr two miles. Entries close Aug. 24 with L. B. Reitman, room 706, 29 South La Salle street. Prizes will be loving cups and gold medals for the first three places, gold medals for fourth, fifth, and sixth; silver melads for the next four, and bronze medals for all who finish.

Wins Rhode Island Net Title.

Providence, R. I., Aug. 19.—Douglas Watters of New Orleans, southern champion, won the Rhode Island state tennis championship by defeating Russell N. Dana of Providence, former champion, 4—6, 6—0, 6—0, 3—6, 6—4, at the Agawam Hunt.

HAMILTON CLUB NATATOR WINS AT CINCINNATI

Cincinnati, O., Aug. 19.—[Special.]—Flying the colors of the Hamilton club of Chicago, W. L. Wallen Jr. today won the Ohio river championship swim against the largest field of racing swimmers that ever started down the river over the six mile course from Coal Haven, Ky., to the suspension bridge in Cincinnati. His time was :58, clipping several minutes from the record time for the race.

Wallen was hard pressed towards the finish by Michael McDermott of the Illinois Athletic club of Chicago, who finished just forty-five seconds behind the winner. Tom Horrocks of the Carnegie Aquatic club of Pittsburgh, who finished first in the event last year, was a close third, his time being :59. H. Laubis of the Missouri Athletic club of St. Louis finished fourth, in :59:36.

Twenty-eight Finish.

A. Burke, swimming under Christ Church colors, was the first Cincinnati man to finish, coming in fifth. H. Roth of the Cincinnati Gymnasium Athletic club followed. Joe Eich, also of Cincinnati, was next. Of thirty-four starters twenty-eight finished.

Wallen laid far back at the start, while McDermott and Laubis started out to make the pace. Close behind Wallen came Horrocks. When the swimmers had covered one-fourth of the distance Wallen and Horrocks began to move up and soon attained the lead. McDermott, after setting out in front, slowed up somewhat after the quarter post had been reached, but again set out at the half mile and soon overcame the Pittsburgh star. Having disposed of his nearest rival, McDermott set out after the leader.

McDermott's Spurt Fails.

Wallen's lead proved too much of a handicap, and although McDermott made a desperate and sensational finish, Wallen's last efforts held him in good stead and he finished several lengths ahead of his dangerous opponent, amid the applause of the thousands on the bridge and lined along the banks on both sides of the river.

The unusually fast time is attributed to the swift current. While the drift was not as great as a few days ago, yet the swimmers at times had to duck or swerve out of the way of floating logs and the like.

GIRLS OUTSWIM BOYS IN NORTHWESTERN POOL.

Tom Robinson's summer swimming class of 200 pupils staged a water carnival in Northwestern university pool yesterday. There were fifty events, ending with a grand splash and a swim by all present in bathing suits.

Miss Jacqueline Thompson of Evanston, 14 years old, holder of a number of state championship records for short distance swims, was presented with a silver loving cup.

Features were the diving and swimming of Lawson Talkin, 5 years old, and of Mabel Donaldson, 12 years old. Martha Ferguson, 12 years old, won the 100 yard race from a large field of boys and girls of her own age in 2:04 2-5. In the relay race of 600 yards between the girls and the boys the girls won by one-fifth of a second. Their time was 10:30 2-5. There were fifteen swimmers on each side.

West secured four tricks only.

Analysis of Play.

The bid of two no trump was bad, as east would easily have won game at clubs.

West played badly in using the queen of diamonds at trick three instead of the ace, and again at trick four in not allowing the jack of diamonds to win. But he never had a chance to make his contract after the beautiful change the suit signal by north at trick two.

To make this signal a player is usually required to hold the ace of the suit which his partner must lead, and the original suit fully established. North had neither, but a certain reëntry in the king of clubs, while the bidding indicated that west would certainly make his contract and the rubber if north and south played out their four spade tricks.

North was in trouble at trick four, as he could not locate with certainty either the eight of spades or nine of diamonds, but placed the latter as probably with south.

The position of west was pitiful from tricks four to eight, and he may hardly be blamed for not making another heart trick.

The next deal shows farseeing play for the game trick:

Answers to Queries.

Monmouth, Ill.—[To the Editor.]—In progressive auction if four players pass and the dealer plays no trump on fifth bid, what can they count in tricks if they win, also what can the opponent score if the dealer loses? An answer clearing these questions will be appreciated.
B.

Ans.—When four players pass in any kind of auction the law requires the deal to be declared void. To save time many players arrange that dealer plays no trump in such cases, his loss being limited to 50 points.

Toledo, O.—[To the Editor.]—Please tell me through "The Tribune" how an accumulative score is reached. For instance, at the end of the tenth game B is ahead of A several points, but B cannot stay to play the Saturday morning game, while A does remain and is presumably a good plus. Does the top go to A, or is one score divided by ten and the other by eleven?
L. H. B.

Ans.—The highest score wins and the number of games played does not matter.

CHICAGO SWIMMERS WINNERS AT AURORA IN Y. M. C. A. EVENTS

Aurora, Ill., Aug. 19.—[Special.]—Swimmers Coombs, Sherer, and Olson, all of the Central Y. M. C. A. of Chicago, were the big stars of the State Y. M. C. A. meet today. Each won two firsts. Grush of Naperville copped the fancy diving contest and Hudson of Gary was first in the plunge for distance. They were the only two outside the winning team to land firsts. Summaries:

100 yard stroke—Won by Olson, Central; Robertson, Evanston, second; Emely, Aurora, third. Time, 1:43.

440 yard relay race—Won by Central [Fyffe, Coombs, Hafner]; Sherer, Aurora, second. Time, 5:44.

STARS SHOOT PRELIMINARY HANDICAP HERE TODAY.

Trapshooters from all sections of the country, excluding those who live near St. Louis, will take part in the preliminary handicap to be held today at the Chicago Gun club.

L. B. Clarke, winner of last year's Grand American handicap, held in Grant park; L. C. Huckins, L. M. Fetherston, O. J. Crocker, Ben Donnelly of the South Shore Country club, P. J. Graham of Long Lake, Ill.; C. W. Irrgang, and H. B. Spencer are among some of the westerners who wil ltake part in today's event at the Kensington traps.

The early contests will be practice matches, but the preliminary event will start at 2 o'clock. The contestants will sharpen their eyes by shooting at 100 targets from distances ranging from sixteen to twenty-three yards. The field which will start in the Grand American and which will shoot today will leave for the championship traps tonight.

Welsh Likes Steady Drill; Charley White Crowds Work

BY RAY C. PEARSON.

With World's Champion Freddie Welsh, the Britisher who has held the crown for a matter of two years, and Charley White of Chicago, his challenger, on the ground at Colorado Springs for their title battle before the Million Dollar Athletic club on the afternoon of Labor day, it will be interesting to close followers of pugilism to watch the training methods employed by the two scrappers. The reason for this is that each goes about the prepping business in a different way, and judging by their success in getting ready for contests in the past, the same result is reached.

Taking the case of Freddie Welsh first, we find the champion is not what might be termed a hard or strenuous trainer. He does not go in for the rough, mauling sort of work that so many scrappers take. When he is really serious about getting in condition he works for anywhere from two weeks to a month to do it. He doesn't start in at a fast clip, but gradually increases his toil until he believes he has reached the physical perfection desired.

No Boxing at Start.

In the early work done by Welsh there is no boxing to speak of. He reserves that until later. He is strongly inclined to the physical culture idea of getting in shape. He stands in one spot and for many minutes will do nothing more than move his arms at the elbow. This is done to secure strength of the forearm. Then he bends at the knees to strengthen the legs. Next he lies flat on his back on the floor and throws his legs over his head, and follows with other head moving exercises to strengthen his neck.

When it comes time for Welsh to do his boxing he goes about it easily, and unlike a lot of other fighters, does not try to knock the heads off his sparring partners. It can be said that Freddie is really a gentle scrapper to work with, and he never has any trouble in keeping the sparring partners that he engages. He is so smart with his fists that his helpers have little chance to hit him and he never takes advantage of his superior boxing ability to do damage to them.

One Week's Work for White.

Now take the case of Charley White, and we find him directly opposite. In the first place White does not train as long for a contest as does Welsh. Seldom since White joined the big circle of star lightweights has he trained more than seven days for a bout, but in those seven days he certainly gets a world of action. For the coming battle with the champion, which is by far the most important of his pugilistic career, White is lengthening his training by a matter of only three days. He figures that the extra three days will help him more this time than previously because he is scheduled to travel the long route of twenty rounds and also because he will have to work hard to gain endurance in the lighter air of Colorado than in other sections of the country.

The Chicago scrapper is just about as hard a trainer as any boy who ever donned a padded mitt for battle. Everything he does he does hard. When he is punching the bag he spends his time trying desperately to break the rope holding the bag to the platform. But it is in his boxing that he shows the real rough stuff. He engages the toughest sparring partners he can get, and when they are engaged, if they know Charley White, they know what to expect.

Charley Has Iron Jaw.

There is nothing gentle about the way White handles his helpers. He tears into them just like he does when he is meeting a real opponent and drawing down the jack for doing it. He orders them to come right back at him as hard as they can, and he takes many a wallop on his strong lantern jaw, but the punches only spur him on to work faster. It is worth mentioning right here that the Chicagoan has some iron jaw, for he has been hit on the "spot" many a time and by hard hitters, and never even come close to being knocked off his pins.

Unlike the sparring partners of Welsh, the boys who work with White are not lasters. He did manage to keep one of them, Frankie Lynn, for quite a spell, but Mr. Lynn is surely a game bird if there ever was one. Of course the only explanation of why they don't stick with Charley is because he makes it too rough for them by inflicting punishment. On one or two occasions while White was working for a contest in Chicago he had to drop a sparring partner because the man didn't care for the gaff and slowed up. White doesn't want helpers who aren't game.

Nails an Ancient Yarn.

A few days ago, while talking to the writer, White turned loose a bit of information about the dispositions of boxers when in training. For years and years back, or as far as any of the fans can remember, we have heard the talk of how some scrappers grow grouchy when nearing physical perfection. Well, here's White's answer to that dope:

"Did you ever see me grouchy or cranky in a gymnasium? No, and you never will. I'm just as cheerful when I'm training as when I'm not. It strikes me that the mental caliber of the boxer is the same as in any other line, and I don't see why a scrapper should change, just because he's training. Take it from me, that old yarn is [illegible] of bunk."

DARIO RESTA WINNER OF GRAND PRIX CUP IN JOY RIDE RACE

some talk yesterday of holding a speed matinee this afternoon, but last night the promoters abandoned the project after failing to receive a response from the A. A. A. contest board to their request for a sanction.

Chevrolet's Motor Balks.

Louis Chevrolet, the veteran of the field, ran afoul of a jinx in warming up his car, which is a foolish occupation on such a day as yesterday. The motor of the Frontenac was prostrated by the heat and refused to respond to first aid treatment, reducing the number of contenders to eight. Josef Christiaens also had his troubles, a stuck valve in the Sunbeam forcing him to labor in his Stigian garage until a few minutes before the start of the first heat.

At 2:30 o'clock the cars lined up for the first twenty mile heat. Resta's Peugeot, De Palma's Mercedes, Galvin's Sunbeam, D'Alene's Duesenberg, and Lewis' Hoskins Special were in the front row, and Christiaens' Sunbeam, Milton's Duesenberg, and Buzane's Deusenberg in the second tier. Twenty minutes later the eight contenders for the gold cup were sent away.

Dario Resta, the favorite, ran true to form in the first heat, taking the twenty mile brush in decisive fashion in 11:42.61, an average of 102 miles per hour. Frank Galvin was second and Wilbur D'Alene third. Neither forced Resta to extend himself to win.

Ralph De Palma's persistent hoodoo rode with him in this heat and for the umpty-steenth time chortled in fiendish glee. On the third lap, after De Palma had passed Resta in a close fight for the lead, the engine of the Mercedes was disabled and the hard luck driver of them all was forced to dock the German car permanently with a broken piston.

Second Heat to Sunbeam.

Second in the first heat, Frank Galvin finished first in the second twenty mile race, the Sunbeam having the advantage of a car's length over Dave Lewis' Hoskins Special as the victor got the checkered flag. Galvin's time was 11:37.72, an average of 103 miles per hour. He had to hit a fast clip to win, as Lewis pushed him all the way.

While the band syncopated "The Ypsilanti Blues," Dave Lewis put the Hoskins Special through its lethargic paces and, following the precedent established by Galvin in the second heat, took premier honors in the third race. D'Alene was the challenger, but his Deusenberg did not have the speed to overtake and pass the winning car, which covered the ten laps in 12:07.31, an average of ninety-nine miles per hour.

Son of Athens Victor.

Honors in the fourth heat went to George Buzane, the only Greek race driver in captivity. D'Alene did the chasing in this event and proved himself a consistent performer by finishing second for a second time. The descendant of Miltiades averaged ninety-six miles an hour for the ten circuits, his time being 12:27.68.

After making one circuit of the course, D'Alene was permitted to qualify for the final heat. Neither Milton nor Christiens were on the starting line when it was time to run the fifth heat, their cars being hors du combat with valve trouble.

WELSH AND WHITE BEGIN TRAINING FOR TITLE BOUT

Colorado Springs, Colo., Aug. 19.—Freddie Welsh and Charley White today put in the first day of their training on the actual scene of their scheduled twenty round championship bout here Labor day.

White started his program by a ten mile hike over the foothills early today. This was followed by shadow boxing and rope skipping and ended with a six round boxing exhibition with his sparring partner.

Welsh's present efforts toward conditioning will be devoted to building up his strength and weight. He astonished even his friends by scaling 129¾ pounds stripped. From this poundage Welsh aims to build himself up to the 140 pound mark, after which he will gradually reduce to the stipulated weight of 135 pounds.

White, while on a training hike, showed the Colorado guardsmen now mobilized at Golden a new stunt yesterday. Charley paid a visit to the camp and after an impromptu reception and a trial of the new army guns, set out for an endurance march, accompanied by hundreds of militiamen. The guardsmen were pretty well fagged out by the time the challenger finished his workout.

CLUBS TO MEET SUNDAY FOR LEAGUE NET TITLE.

Players from the Sherwood club, champions of the northern division of the Chicago Associated Tennis leagues, and the South Parks team, unbeaten leader of the southern division, will fight it out for the league title on the Chicago Beach courts next Sunday afternoon. Nine matches will be played, six in singles and three in the doubles. The Sherwood club dropped only one match during the season, that being to the strong team of the new Chicago Tennis club.

The Wanderers administered a decisive trimming to the Surface Lines team yesterday on the latter's courts. It was the closing match of the schedule for both. Wanderers won six of the matches and the three chalked against them were defaults. Summaries:

Singles—Art Hubbell, Wanderers, beat Rubens, S. L., 6—0, 6—0. Hal Ingersoll, Wanderers, beat T. Gallery, S. L., 6—2, 6—0. L. Murphy, Wanderers, beat C. Pratt, S. L., 6—4, 6—4. A. Farley, Wanderers, beat Mattinger, S. L., 6—1, 6—1. T. H. McKinley, S. L., won by default from T. Cochrane, Wanderers. E. Meyers, S. L., won by default from O'Brien, Wanderers.

Doubles—Hubbell and Ingersoll beat McKinley and Mattinger, S. L., 6—2, 6—1. Murphy and Farley, Wanderers, beat Pratt and Gallery, S. L., 6—0, 6—2. Rubens and Meyers, S. L., won by default from Cochrane and O'Brien, Wanderers.

BIG DAY AT GAELIC PARK.

Athletic events, bicycle races, football games between the married and single men, tug of war contests, and other events will feature the mammoth open air carnival of the Gaelic Park A. C. today at Forty-seventh street and California avenue. It will be known as their Fielding day and the Irish are expected to turn out in large numbers to honor the founder of the southwest park. In addition to the athletic events there will be speeches, the raising of the Sinn Fein flag of the Irish republic, and exhibitions of fancy dancing.

A GLEANER

Reproduction of a painting by Jules Adolphe Breton

Every week The Sunday Tribune will reproduce in four colors on this page one of the world's most famously beautiful paintings. There will be a brief biography of the painter and a story of the painting. Herewith is reproduced another in the series.

By LOUISE JAMES BARGELT.

"The Gleaner," by Jules Breton. Now hanging in the Luxembourg, Paris. Six feet by three feet. (1827-1906.)

SOLITUDE awakens old memories and revivifies emotions of the past. Jules Breton, communing alone with nature, painted the peasant from the heart of his own experience. He had always enjoyed life and to him its happiness and pleasures made the deepest impressions. He passed his youth in the midst of rustic gayety. He loved the liberty of the fields, and the winds blowing across them filled him with exuberance of spirits. Life was sweet to him and he read others in the light of his own contentment. And through his eyes we look on the existence of the peasant man and woman in its joyous, happy moods.

The school of naturalism, adoring Millet, the master of Barbizon, objected to Breton's conception of happiness in rendering the life of the fields. Naturalists insisted that there were far more ugly peasant women than there were beautiful, and that the drudgery of the fields inspired no poetic liveliness in the humans who toiled in them wearily. Millet, who painted instinctively that which conformed to his character, reflected in his pictures the bitter grinding poverty of his early years. He saw in field labor only strife and suffering and deadly monotony. Each artist, working under the influence of his own temperament and experience, exaggerated his sense of the ideal and created antipodal types of peasants.

"The Gleaner" is representative of Breton. She is handsome in her unaffected simplicity, independent and satisfied with existence as she understands and knows it. Millet would have bent her head and put on her face an expression of utter fatigue and depression. To Breton she is stately, suggestive of the classic days of old. She might have drifted somehow to this Artois field from the Roman Campagna in Nero's time. She is dressed in a way to show her form to its best advantage. Her skirts reveal her vigorous limbs, her open corsage and caught up sleeves show the robust chest and arms bronzed with healthy work. Her face is sensuous, animal. There is not much soul behind the serious eyes. She is just a wholesome animal absorbed in the task of living and finding it pleasant, a decorative figure and pleasing to look upon.

When critics scored Breton for painting women that were beautiful and men who were satisfying he said in defense: "I have the right to choose. I know that there is much ugliness and horrible examples of misery to be found among the peasant folk. But they are accidents and not natural. Reality, after all, is the most plastic thing in the world. For every ugly being there is a beautiful one and there are enough happy moments in life to paint of without putting on canvas the painful and the revolting. Beauty is natural and eternal, and therefore I paint it."

Breton and Millet knew each other well and recognized their widely diverging viewpoints. Millet said once to him: "We are free to follow the furrows we love. You prefer the convolvulus in the wheat and I the rude potato."

Jules Breton was successful in his lifetime. He achieved quick recognition and held the admiration of the public throughout his long life. In color and composition his work is uniformly beautiful and appealing. In "The Gleaner" his picture is suffused with the light and color of the Artois country. This painting was among the first to stamp him an artist of real talent. If it is true that a painting is great in the amount of intelligence it supposes, the intensity of emotion it reveals, and the suggestion of beauty it contains, then the painter of "The Song of the Lark," the "Grand Pardon in Brittany," the "Return of the Gleaners," the "Dance of the Fires of St. John," and the "Washerwomen on the Coasts of Brittany" has produced works of undoubted genius.

Nor did Breton ever depart from the rustic scenes and people he knew so well. Like the simple folk of Grey's "Elegy," "his sober wishes never learned to stray" beyond the charming scenes of Artois and Brittany and the people who dwelt therein.

Another famous painting will be reproduced next Sunday.

GLORIA'S ROMANCE by Mr. and Mrs. Rupert Hughes

Herewith is presented the thirteenth installment of the great George Kleine-Tribune photoplay serial, "Gloria's Romance," written by Mr. and Mrs. Rupert Hughes as the especial vehicle for America's most charming actress of romance, Miss Billie Burke, who, for her services, receives $4,000 a week. See the pictures at the nearest theater showing them and read the story here. Watch for it every Sunday. The pictures will be shown in the leading theaters. A new episode is released every Monday.

SYNOPSIS.

Dr. Stephen Royce and Dick Freneau, an adventurer, love Gloria Stafford, daughter of the multimillionaire. Gloria, lost in the Florida everglades, is really saved by Royce, but Freneau, who also searches, gets the credit by a mean trick of fate. Freneau proposes and is secretly accepted, but Stafford pere makes them promise to wait five years. Meanwhile Freneau pursues his affairs with Lois Freeman Stafford, wife of David Stafford, Gloria's brother, and becomes partner to the broker, Mulry When the five years end, Gloria, out of school, is so matured Freneau doesn't recognize her—a terrible slight. Freneau, however, re-established himself with her and plans a hasty marriage, as he and Mulry need money badly. Lois learns of the intended marriage and threatens suicide rather than witness it. Freneau temporizes—declares he loves her (Lois), but must marry Gloria for financial reasons. Lois believes. David, her husband, by an anonymous letter, learns of Lois' infatuation for Freneau—whose name is synonymous with disgraceful affairs. In fact, Gideon Trask, father of Nell, one of his unfortunate victims, is on Freneau's trail swearing revenge. Planning to test her, David tells Lois he is to be out of town a week—but doesn't go. Meanwhile Lois promises to meet Freneau at the soldier's monument, from where they will go to a Catskill village for a week. Each has damaging love letters in possession. Royce knows of the appointment. To deceive Gloria during his absence Freneau has written love letters, dating them from various cities. Mulry mails them. Freneau goes to the monument. There he is killed. Three men are seen near him. Gloria sees it all from her window. Royce thinks it is merely delirium. The fake love letters begin to arrive and add corroboration to this theory Gloria learns the truth, vows revenge on the unknown slayer, but Royce prevents her from asking aid from the police and newspapers. He thus avoids scandal. Gloria, discovering the deceit of the fake love letters, begins to doubt the quality of Freneau's love. She also suspects Lois, but accepts an invitation to visit her. Nevertheless, Gloria swears to find Freneau's murderer, Royce to the contrary. Gloria, hoping to learn something from Mulry, follows him to Palm Beach, where she saves him from death by drowning. There she also learns from a Seminole Indian that it was really Royce and not Freneau who rescued her five years before. Confronting Royce with this, he still denies it. In the New York night court Gloria runs across Mulry—and Freneau's murderer. Before she revives from a faint he is released. Later she follows him.

TO be miles from home without street car fare is a luxury for the daughters of millionaires. Gloria Stafford would have taken her first experience as a great joke if she had not been devoted to so important an errand. The footpad who stole her handbag stole also her transportation. She felt that she might as well have been lost in the Florida everglades again.

Of course, she could have had protection by appealing to almost any of the wayfarers. But, after her encounter with the pickpurse, she looked on everybody with suspicion. She slipped through the crowded streets and flitted along the deserted alleys on the hunt for the murderer of her lover. She was afraid of everybody and everything, but most afraid o losing that man.

At last she saw him again ahead of her. He was wandering rather aimlessly. He had apparently dropped in at one or more of the little swinging doors that flapped on every corner. Gloria hastened after him, but before she could quite catch up he clambered on a surface car. The conductor had to help him aboard. He was so busy at that task that he did not see Gloria's wildly waved hands or hear her command, "Stop that car!"

If Gloria had caught the car she could not have paid the fare, though she might have given the conductor a nickel's worth of flirtation. At any rate, she missed the car. Several other cars came near not missing her as she stood irresolute in the middle of the street.

Then a taxicab bustled along. Gloria felt more at home. She did not have to pay the taxicab till the end of the voyage. She could probably have the fare charged. From the look of the ramshackle thing she could buy the cab for next to nothing. She told the taxi driver to follow the street car ahead and keep near it, without passing it. The taxi driver was greatly impressed. "What's the game, miss. Are you a lady detackatuff?"

Gloria looked wise and said nothing.

As she hopped in Dr. Royce caught sight of her from a distance. A taxicab was rather conspicuous down there. He wished for another, or a pair of wings.

Then a motor ambulance came along, banging its bell. Dr. Royce had a wide acquaintance in ambulances. He dared to stop this one and ask the interne for a ride.

And so they went—the taxicab pursuing the street car; the ambulance pursuing the taxicab. It was an appropriate place for an ambulance. It was quite likely to be needed. But the ambulance had to turn into a side street before it overtook Gloria, and Royce was compelled to drop off and pursue afoot.

Then the street car that carried Trask stopped so abruptly that Gloria's taxicab shot on past it, almost annihilating Trask as it whizzed by.

Gloria caught a glimpse of Trask leaving the car, grazing the taxicab and reeling down a dark street. She pounded on the glass and put her head out to check her driver. She ordered him to back up. He backed into the very street car that Trask had just left. There was a crash, a tinkle of broken glass, and Gloria was evicted through the broken door.

The chauffeur got down and began the usual wrangle with the motorman and the conductor of the street car; the passengers piled out; a crowd gathered. Two policemen ran up and began to make notes. Gloria tugged at the coat of the chauffeur, but he was too busy to pay her any attention and she had no money to pay him. So she left him and ran after Trask, not entirely sorry that she had saved her fare.

The delay had enabled Dr. Royce to gain some ground, but he lost it again trying to ask the excited chauffeur where his passenger was.

Gloria could see Trask's tall, grizzled head over the heads of the crowd, and she was nearly at his heels when a belated truck, bearing a long steel girder, drove across her path. It seemed to take forever to move by. When at last it cleared the way Trask was almost out of sight. He hesitated before two or three saloon doors and Gloria had retrieved most of her lost distance. Then, suddenly, he turned and dashed into a barroom.

Gloria was headstrong, and she had startled herself with her own behavior, but instinct drew the line at entering such a place. Her eyes were attracted by the sign, "Ladies' entrance" over a side door. She did not know that it led to a large dance hall at th rear of the barroom. She ventured along the grimy corridor until she heard the music and the shuffling of feet.

Then she understood and would have retreated if a brace of typsy gunmen had not come lurching in from the street and cut off her escape. She backed away from them in terror and back into the dance hall—a large, noisy, dirty room, filled with vicious or shabby characters. Couples were dancing in characteristic clinches or sprawling about the tables. Gloria was of such a different sort that her sudden appearance caused a silence. She turned and stared.

A burly ruffian, called Choey, a waterfront beau, smoking a cigaret nub, saw her and, leaving his companion, went to Gloria with admiring enthusiasm, and roared:

"Cheese, kid, but you're chust my style, and chust in time for a toin."

Gloria declined his invitation with terrified thanks and started for the door, but Choey seized her by the waist, whipped her into his arms, and fox trotted away with her. She was more disgusted than afraid. She resisted vainly, pushing against him and struggling. He laughed; the crowd laughed. She struck up at the villain's face, but he held his head too high for her reach and, laughing, whirled her round and round through the crowd.

About this time Dr. Royce was in hot pursuit of Gloria. He had caught a glimpse of her hat, and he thought he saw it turn in at a door. He was almost more angry than anxious. He tried all the doors. At length he reached the dance hall. He glanced at the crowd and felt sure that Gloria could not be there. He was about to retreat when Choey's late companion, Moll, admired him and danced up to him, inviting him to invite her to a spiel. Royce shook his head with polite regrets. And then he saw Gloria—a most astonishing Gloria. She had been so enraged by her captor's insistence that she seized him by the neck scarf and, leaping up, caught him by the hair and dragging his head down slapped his face.

Choey was a believer in the equality of women, and he made ready to return blow for blow. Royce made a wild rush and blocked the attack. He drew Gloria's arm through his and started out.

The crowd stopped dancing and watched. Choey was not in the habit of surrendering. He let out a yell and seized Gloria's other arm. Royce broke his grip by jiu jitsu and flung him off. He fell against a table, upsetting the occupants, who rose and struck at him, then at one another. Choey leaped at Royce. The zest of battle filled the air. Royce put Gloria back of him and met Choey half way. Royce was a college boxer and Choey had a schooling in the east side rings. It was a pretty exhibition of two schools of science. The spectators were of divided opinions and began to take sides.

Men and women quarreled and smote. The whole place fell into uproar. Royce was attacked on all sides. He seized a chair and cleared a space for Gloria. It was wrenched from him. Bottles were thrown. Royce went to his knees and rose with a gash on his head.

Gloria did her best to protect him till he got up, but she was a novice in such scenes. Through a terrific mêlée Royce slowly fought backward to the door. Even the musicians entered the fight. Gideon Trask, never dreaming that he was the cause of it all, watched the battle from the barroom door, through which the aproned barkeepers entered the fray.

Choey's neglected lady friend began to fear for him. She forgave him the slight he had put on her, and when she saw him slip on the wet floor and go sliddering under the feet of the trampling herd she was alarmed for his manly beauty. She dashed from the woman's entrance and down the street to where two policemen stood. She ran up to them, yelling:

"Say, dere's a swell guy in dere moiderin' de whole bunch."

The policemen ran with her, rapping the pavement. One of them stopped to telephone the station for the patrol wagon. Two other policemen galloped in from side streets.

Royce and Gloria had struggled through to the door just as the policemen poured in, at their backs. Royce being the first man they found, they seized him roughly. Gloria interceded with anger and was threatened with a back handed blow. Policemen have to act quickly and vigorously in riots, and these officers were not accustomed to finding well bred young women from good homes in that quarter.

"What do you know about poor Mr. Freneau's death?"

Gloria in Judge Freeman's Court Room ❦ ❦ ❦

All the gang, men and women, including Moll, pointed to Royce and to Gloria as the disturbers of a peaceful gathering. While they yelled and wrangled a patrol wagon rolled into the street and backed up to the curb. The reserves tumbled out. A second wagon was on the way up.

The police began to hustle everybody toward the wagons. Gloria was willing enough to leave the place, but the thought of taking a ride in the patrol wagon was absolutely intolerable. When an officer tried to shove her along she brushed his hand from her arm and snatched off his hat, crying, "Take off your hat when you speak to me."

The officer was enraged, then amazed. He picked up his hat, put it on, took it off, and then bowed to her with mock politeness. Then she went out very haughtily.

The whole crowd was rushed into the two patrol wagons except Trask, who had hidden back of the bar when the officers descended.

As Gloria sat in the wagon clinging to Royce's arm and shivering with shame, a blowzy female with a long feather in her hat leaned over and plucked her by the sleeve. Gloria winced. The crone laughed and said:

"Don't give your really truly name, dearie."

Gloria blushed a little deeper, but she was thankful for the hint, and said so. She advised Royce to do the same, and she set about trying to imagine a good nom de patrol wagon.

It was wasted energy for, though she didn't know it, she was going right back to the night court she came from—going as a guest and not as a spectator. At that very moment the police wires were notifying Judge Freeman that a raid had been made and a load of prisoners was coming. The courtroom was empty.

The judge was taking off his robe when the attendant called him to the telephone. He listened, nodded his head, put up the telephone, and turned to Pierpont:

"We have to wait a little while. They have just raided an east side dance hall."

Pierpont looked at his watch for the unnumbered time and paced the floor, humming: "O, Where Is My Wandering Girl Tonight?"

The old crone had fallen asleep on Gloria's shoulder; her hat feather was tickling Gloria's nose. Gloria and Royce looked at each other. She snuggled close to him for shelter. He was very tender with her. She recoiled, remembering, and said:

"O, I forgot I'm not speaking to you any more."

Royce tried to appease her. She turned her back on him. She hated him immensely, considering how much she liked him. Then the wagon backed up. The police yelled, "All out!" Gloria recognized where she was. She did not know whether to be glad or sad now that she was coming into Judge Freeman's power.

The prisoners were hustled down an alleyway and through an iron door and upstairs like frightened sheep. Then they were herded into a big room of evil odor and appearance. Gloria cowered before the disgrace of being one of the common victims of the law. The law looked different to her from here, and she felt almost a sympathy for the disreputable crowd that had been gathered in with her.

Then she saw Frank Mulry. She had forgotten his existence, to say nothing of the fact that she had abused justice and asked the judge to detain him. Mulry had not seen her when she whispered to the judge. The sight of her now as one of a huddle of such wretches made him question his eyes.

He had fled from the snows of Westchester to the palms of Florida to escape her, and back again, only to be caught in a cell as a fellow prisoner. But Gloria forgot her own dubious position in her triumph. She advanced on him and murmured: "And now, Mr. Mulry, I have got you at last. I want to have a few words with you."

"Sit down," he said, offering her a place on a bench.

"No, thanks," she answered. He rose, and she demanded:

"What do you know about poor Mr. Frenau's death that you are so afraid to tell me?" Mulry could not escape. She would not relent. "Why did he write me those letters before he went away? Why did he deceive me as to where he was going? Where was he actually going?"

Then, in that strange place, inspiration came to Mulry, and he spoke the beautiful lie he had not been able to think of before. He said:

"Miss Stafford, poor Dick had nothing dishonorable to conceal from you. He was ill. His doctor told him he must have an operation for appendicitis. He would have to be in a hospital. He was afraid that if he told you that it would endanger your health. You were so ill then, and so frail. So he concocted that imaginary business trip, and wrote the letters, and as I was going on a journey to our branch offices, he had me mail them. I only learned of his death when I returned."

Gloria almost swooned with joy. The explanation was so like what the Dick she loved would have done that she could not doubt it. It was too beautiful not to be believed. It lighted the whole dingy cell with its radiance. Her love for Freneau came back in a blaze of splendor. She seized Mulry's hand and wrung it. She had much more to say to him, but the police began to yell to the prisoners to come along.

The police told their story and thrust Dr. Royce forward as the chief offender. When the judge saw him he was astounded; and then Gloria emerged and the judge sprang up from his desk. Pierpont leaped from his chair. Of all the places in the world to find his exquisite child!

The judge asked Gloria to explain. She moved around behind the bench. The officer whose hat she had taken off tried to stop her and force her into the witness chair. She slapped at him. He backed away. The judge, smiling, permitted her to march through the clerk's gate and back to his own desk.

Pierpont confronted her, and she paused to straighten her hat and kiss him. Then she shook hands with the gasping judge, drew up a chair, and sat down to explain while the policemen and the prisoners gaped at her. Gloria told her story, rising now and then to point to Choey and the other thugs. The judge tried to keep his face straight as she denounced Choey and described his treatment of her and Dr. Royce.

Judge Freeman calmed Gloria and spoke:

"Miss Gloria, what does your honor wish to have done to this man."

"I think Dr. Royce has done enough to him. Better let them all off."

This was an unexpectedly popular suggestion. The judge pondered. The prisoners pushed forward appealingly. The judge smiled and ordered everybody discharged. They broke into loud cheers. The judge banged his desk with the gavel. The officers cleared the court, pushing the whole crowd out by the spectators' gate.

Dr. Royce was called up to the bench. Pierpont shook his head over Gloria and was cold to Royce.

Gloria spoke: "Don't blame Dr. Royce. If it hadn't been for him heaven knows what would have become of me. It's all your fault, judge, for letting that murderer off. I nearly got him, and I'll get him yet. I've got new reasons to go after him."

Pierpont was too tired to say anything but "Let's go home" or to do anything else.

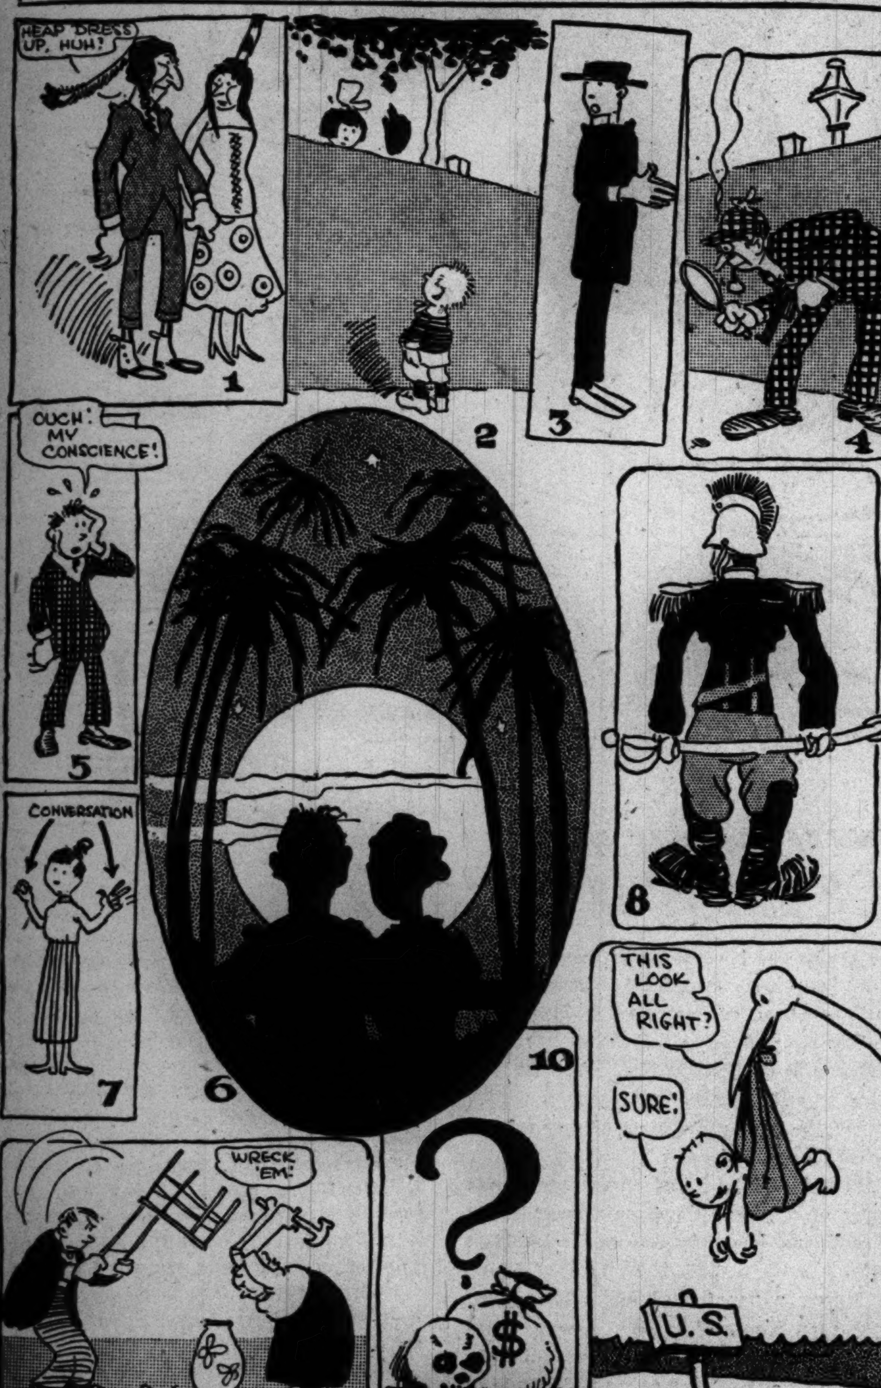
June Daye

JUNE DAYE, whose real name is Vinnie Burns, may be unknown to a lot of you, but the fact remains that she is a vurr' capable little actress, and a sister to Helen Holmes in daring. Miss Daye was only 14 years old when she was discovered by Madam Alice Blache of the Sola company. She is with Lubin now. Since that time, which was about four years ago, she has quite distinguished herself in pictures and has a host of admirers among the younger fans. She has dark hair and eyes and a lovely, fair skin. Not married.

You've Seen Them—What Are They?



WHAT are the names of the productions caricatured below? I'm pretty certain you've seen them all. Every one was a big and widely advertised feature. SOME SUICIDE SLIPS. By Harry J. Smalley.

He takes a plunge in Wall street and the brokers cop his kale, which he has stolen from the bank—he hates to go to jail! He's feeling blue, the rent is due, he dare not face his wife; then he remembers that he has insurance on his life! "Dear Nell," he writes, "I'm doing this because I love you much!" He registers "despair" a bit and then he does the Dutch! There's a suicide clause which makes it void in ev'ry poli-cee; they pull that stuff in the movies, but never in re-al-i-tee!

Big hearted Jim loved pretty Nan; she promised him she'd stick, so he went forth to make his pile, the poor but foolish hick! He went down hill; she married Bill, and Jim became a bum. Blew back to town and found that Nan had copped a happy hum. Says he, "I'll just lay down and die, but she must never know that it is Jim, the corpse they find a-laying in the snow! I'll throw away the only thing she'd recognize, by Heck!" With trembling hands he tears a little locket from his neck. He put the locket in the pocket of his pants, then lay down to die—that's how a director lost his job—you can see the reason why.

In Dead Man's gulch the coach was robbed by handsome Blear Eyed Bill; the victims coughed up all their coin, 'cause Bill was on the kill. He beat it then unto his den up in the mountains grim. The sheriff got a bunch of guys and started after him. I saw the finish of that fight; revolver in his hand, without reloading, Bill shot six—with one gun, understand! "The jig is up, I guess I'll go," said Bill, "before it rains!" He put the pistol to his head, and, blooey! went his brains! A seven shot revolver is a thing I never yet did see; they use 'em down in Movie Land, but never in re-al-i-tee!

VOICE OF THE FAN.

HIS LIKES AND DISLIKES.

Mrs. Mae Tinee: I red your colum every week and I lik it very mush. I am foriner who is in the contry wun year. I go in moving show very mush. I espeshue lik small Marie Pickford, and espeshue hate J. Warren Carrigan. I lik Henry Walthall also. He is very mush grand. I seen him in moving show which is name "Costs," and also "Avanging Conshunse." This is wun grand moving show. Ah, the emoshum who is shon is grand. I seen wun man which is name Wm. Hart, which is man which put quick the pistol and shoot very. He is grand. I also seen the man which is name Arbukel. He is mush fatt. The moving show is grand for the people. I like it very much. Respekful, H. B.

MOMENTS OF INTENSE ANXIETY.

Dear Miss Tinee: I sincerely wish you would print this letter in order that some of these so-called movie operators may see it. Why is it that in the midst of a good picture the picture or film flickers and an empty screen is the result? Then follow moments of intense anxiety waiting for the rest of the picture. Is this caused by careless operating? Besides wasting time it is extremely annoying. I hope in the future it will be dispensed with. I am fond of the "Right Off the Reel" page and earnestly wish you continued success. HELEN S.

NEVER SEEN ON THE SCREEN.

Dear Miss Tinee: You devote a great deal of space to gratifying the curiosity of the people who merely go to see the pictures. Sunday after Sunday, though, I look for something about the more technical side and I never find it. I would like to know about the camera men, the painters of scenery, the film cutters, the operators in moving picture theaters, etc. Don't you think there might be others as interested as I along these lines? REAL FRIEND.

NOT A MATRIMONIAL BUREAU.

Dear Miss Tinee: I would be obliged if you would find a way to put me into correspondence with a young moving picture actress who would consider matrimony. I have lived in a small town, and though the girls are nice they are not enough experienced. I have some money and a home with crimson ramblers crawling all over it. In confidence I inclose my address, but you may print this letter, as some star might see it. Please let me hear from you. DISSATISFIED BACHELOR.

MAE TINEE'S ANSWERS TO MOVIE FANS

"ASK ME! ASK ME!"

TABASCO: I'm glad to receive criticisms. Nothing like a douse of pepper to make a lady sit up and take notice.

S. J. M.: In "The Discard" Betty Brown took the part of Doris. Write to her care of the Essanay company, 1333 Argyle street, Chicago. Y'wekkum.

B. M.: Following is the cast of "Maria Rosa": Maria Rosa, Geraldine Farrar; Andres, Wallace Reid; Ramon, Pedro de Cordoba; Carlos, Ernest Joy; Ana, Anita King; Pedro, Horace B. Carpenter; priest, James Neill. Not a bit of trouble.

REINHART K.: May Allison is 20 years old, 5 feet 5 inches tall, and has violet blue eyes and golden hair. Harold Lockwood is 27 and is 5 feet 11 inches tall. Land, no; I'm not angry! Why should I be?

MUGS: Stamped, self-addressed envelope, please, and I will be mighty glad to send you the printed article I have on photoplay acting.

M. MAN: Nix on the business!

F. A. G.: If you read this column, as you say you do, I want to tell you that your letters annoy me extremely; I have no time to waste on people who write as you do. I shall not answer you again, either in the paper or by personal mail, and I shall destroy every letter of yours that comes in without opening it. You're welcome.

You're Wrapped Up For the Season

BOOSTER: Smile and push! That's the way. And keep your little hammer padded.

JAMES: Not lonesome enough for that.

PEGGY: It was Marguerite Clarke and not Ethel Barrymore who played the lead in "Out of the Drifts." Address Pearl White, care of the Pathé company, 1 Congress street, Jersey City Heights, N. J.

CHARLES D.: The cast of "The Return" is as follows: Ione, Kathlyn Williams; Rutley, Guy Oliver; Pascho, Wellington Playter; Maritana, Vivian Reed; Bela, Sidney Smith; Vaughn, Harry Lonsdale. No, Charles D., I never get tired. Write again some time.

F. S.: If you will send me a stamped, self-addressed envelope I shall take great pleasure in sending you the printed material I have on scenario writing and a list of firms that accept scenarios. I think this may be helpful to you.

ELLA HALL CLUB: If you will write to Ella Hall, care of the Bluebird Universal company, Los Angeles, Cal., she will receive your letter. You are just as welcome as you can be.

KERRIGAN ADMIRER: In "Poor Little Peppina" it was Eugene O'Brien who took the part of Jule Carroll, not Kerrigan, my own true admirer.

JULIA E.: In "The Birth of a Nation" Robert Harron took the part of the youngest Stoneman boy. Mariam Cooper was Margaret Cameron and George Seigman was Silas Lynch. Y'wekkum.

WILLIAM L.: Violet McMillan is with the New York Motion Picture corporation, 1712 Allesandro street, Los Angeles, Cal.

LILROSE T.: Some little flower garden all by yourself, aren't you? I "beg leave" to tell you that the Essanay company is located at 1333 Argyle street, Chicago. You might apply there to the studio manager. I "take leave" to thank you vur much.

S. H. C.: You say I am an "unknown friend"? Yes, in a way. Still, I think you know that I feel I really know the people that write to me. I think the reason you did not hear from your favorite is that you forgot to inclose the stamped and self-addressed envelope. Of course, some of the stars make no attempt to answer correspondents, and again others never tire of writing to their hosts of admiring friends. Try again and do not forget the envelope. No, my child, you are not troubling me. Do write again.

UNHAPPY: I'm afraid you'll never really amount to anything until you learn to concentrate. From your letter, I judge you to be limp, vacant eyed, and perhaps not always clean shaved. I may be wrong, but your letter was such a mess!

ILENE: Lloyd V. Hamilton and Bud Duncan play the parts of Ham and Bud. You did not mention the name of the producing company so I cannot give you that other cast. William Dagman took the part of Freddy in "The Goddess." Fattie Arbuckle's first name is Roscoe. Yes, do write again.

M. E.: Let the gas man examine your meter.

MRS. H.: Lottie Pickford is the wife of Bert Rupp. Billie Burke is married to Florenz Ziegfeld. Yes, I think Dorothy Kelly's eyes are simply grand.

A. M. T. C.: I am the happiest person in the world to know that you girls thought enough of me to name your club after me. Indeed, I shall answer your questions and be glad to. Better write me a personal letter and send your address and see what will happen about the request you made; and don't send any money, for if you do nothing will happen except the money will come back.

Tom Forman received the highest number of votes last week. His picture, therefore, will appear in The Frame of Public Favor next Sunday. Of the other players voted upon, the following six are the leaders: Arthur Hoops, Jackie Saunders, Billie Burke, Dustin Farnum, Alice Brady, and Frances Nelson.

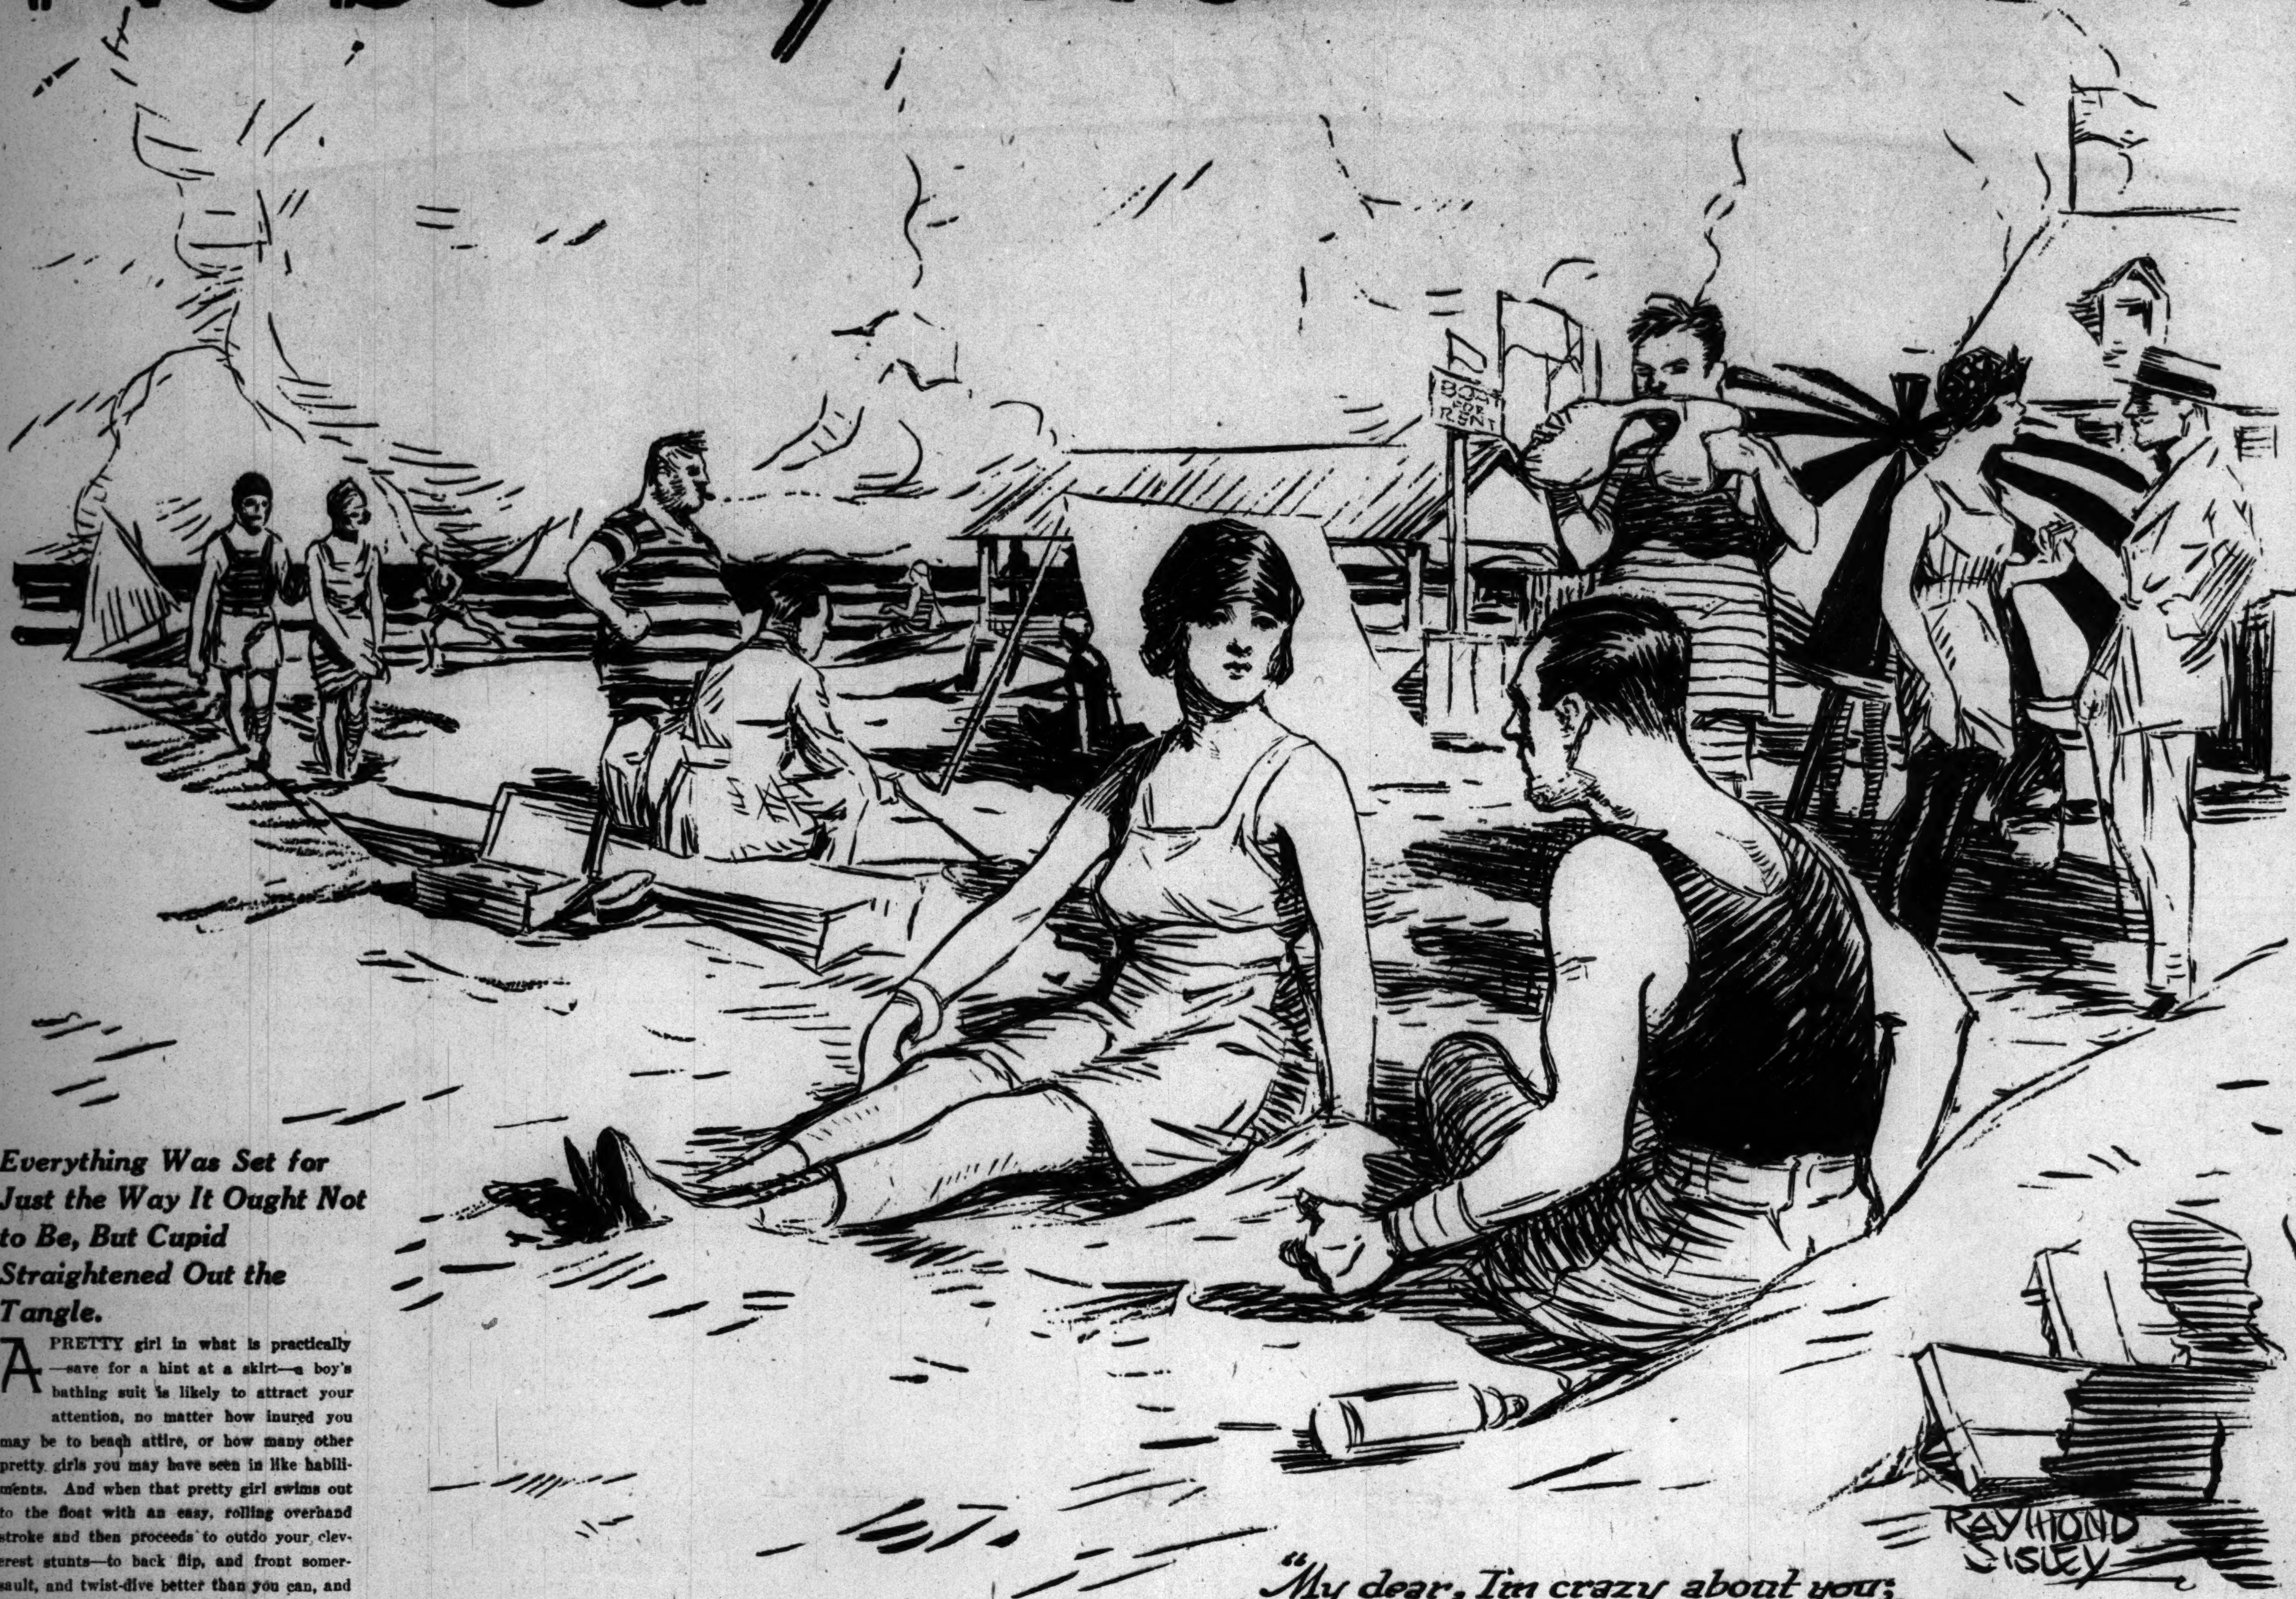
Nobody Hurt ⁘ by BERTON BRALEY



"My dear, I'm crazy about you; I've been looking for you all my life: I—

Everything Was Set for Just the Way It Ought Not to Be, But Cupid Straightened Out the Tangle.

A PRETTY girl in what is practically—save for a hint at a skirt—a boy's bathing suit is likely to attract your attention, no matter how inured you may be to beach attire, or how many other pretty girls you may have seen in like habiliments. And when that pretty girl swims out to the float with an easy, rolling overhand stroke and then proceeds to outdo your cleverest stunts—to back flip, and front somersault, and twist-dive better than you can, and to swim farther under water than you do—well, when that happens your attention is quite certain to become somewhat fixed.

Harrison prided himself upon being able to sit opposite a girl in the elevated for an hour without staring at her; he had developed the city man's impersonal gaze to a point where he could almost have kissed a girl without her realizing that he meant her, but out on this float, rising and falling with the surge of the long rollers, he found that he could not keep his eyes away from the lithe, glowing young creature who emulated and outdid his aquatic gymnastics.

He stared. He watched her as she dove and rose again; he watched her as she posed to dive; he watched her as she sat on the edge of the float dangling her slim silk clad legs in the water; he did more than that—he deliberately tried to catch her eye whenever she looked anywhere near in his direction. He noticed, too, that as often as her eyes turned even partly his way his heart began to thump and pound as it had never thumped and pounded before. His mind resolutely determined to preserve all conventions, his conscience reminded him that he must make no advances, that a gentleman never annoyed a lady whatever the place, the time, or the circumstances, but some subconscious ego nevertheless urged him on and he was about to speak to her when she said, quite casually and naturally: "Can you do the jackknife?"

"Not very well," he said. "I don't seem to be able to make my legs behave and they flop over too far. That spoils the dive, of course, for you ought to go in smoothly and quietly."

"O, dear," she said, "that's just my trouble. I'm so disappointed; I've been watching you dive and do stunts, and you were so expert that I thought you could teach me the jackknife. You know, I don't like to have anything like that beat me—no matter how often I fail I get just that much more determined to conquer."

"If you apply that sort of philosophy to all life," commented Harrison, "you ought to be a success."

"Success!" she exclaimed; "that's for men, not for just a girl. Besides, I don't know whether that sort of obstinacy leads to success or not. If you have picked out a certain thing as your life work, then you must keep on plugging at it until you beat it, I suppose, but if you're wise you'll let some things beat you rather than bother to conquer them. The sort of determination which solves puzzles at the cost of hours of valuable time and the kind of stubbornness which keeps trying a jackknife dive instead of improving one's crawl stroke are a good deal alike. There ain't no sense to 'em."

She laughed lightly with the perpetration of that grammatical crime which was so obviously done with intent and not through ignorance, and Harrison discovered the extraordinary fact that her laughter had an actual effect on the region about his heart. It made that organ feel as though it were filled with champagne instead of arterial blood, and the result was a slight dizziness of an agreeable sort.

Her hand was on the float between them. He put his over it. Startled, she turned her eyes indignantly upon him, only to have the indignation change to surprise and dismay, while a pink blush mounted to the very edge of her rubber cap. Finally she said rather faintly: "My hand. Please. I need it."

"What for?" he asked, driven by that subconscious ego which seemed to have taken charge of him. His conscious self would have apologized profusely and probably fallen off the float and swum home.

"To dive with," the girl answered. "I'm going to try a jackknife."

She rose, walked out on the springboard, teetered a moment tentatively, then, jumping hard against the limber plank, shot almost straight up in the air, doubled sharply at the top of her leap and shot down into the water as neatly as a water rat.

"Hooray, I did it!" she cried, as she came to the surface. "I did it—good-by." And she started toward shore.

Harrison didn't wait to dive; he simply tumbled into the water from the float edge and swam after her. She was a good swimmer, but had neither his speed nor power, and he soon caught her.

"Why did you run away so suddenly?" he demanded.

"Sir," she said, "I do not know you. What business is it of yours?" She turned haughtily away—as haughtily as one can turn in the water.

His conscious ego had regained control.

"I beg your pardon," he said. "I shouldn't have presumed. I won't bother you further." And he swam away, toward shore, with long powerful strokes, never even looking back until he heard a gurgling scream. Providence, it appeared, had given the lady a cramp, and while he knew that cramps were unpleasant and painful ailments, and not infrequently fatal when received in the water, he was glad she had one. For he was the nearest swimmer, and one does not have to be introduced before one rescues a woman from drowning. Nor would it be improper for him afterwards to speak to her. So he shouted loudly, "I'm coming," and arrived quick enough to seize her as she came up the second time. Telling her to be cool, he put her arms over his shoulders and swam in, with her on his back. It wasn't far, but when he touched bottom he lifted her in his arms and carried her in, despite her protest that she was all right and could make her own way.

While there had been only the two of them on the float, there was a big crowd on the beach and inside the life lines, and as Harrison came in carrying the girl they clustered about him.

"Please, please put me down," she pleaded, and he obeyed. To the crowd she cried, "I'm not drowned. Please don't bother." The gathering melted away.

"Now," she said, "I'm not going to be treated to brandy or rushed in and dressed. I just had a little cramp, and I'm perfectly all right. I'm going to sit right down here in the sand and bake in the sun."

"I'll sit with you," said Harrison.

"We-ell," said she, "perhaps you may. But I must warn you I'm an engaged girl."

"I'm engaged, too," said Harrison.

"And you must promise you won't try to hold my hand again."

"I won't promise."

"And you mustn't attempt to make love to me."

"I won't promise that, either."

"O, dear," said the girl, "you've saved my life and I simply can't be rude to you, but I think you ought to promise."

"All right, I'll promise," said Harrison, "but I won't promise to keep my promise. You see, ever since I first saw you I forgot that I was engaged and forgot that it isn't proper to stare at girls, and forgot a man mustn't speak to a girl he doesn't know—so how can you expect me to remember promises——"

"B-but I spoke first," the girl protested.

"I would have spoken if you hadn't," said Harrison. "And now let's sit down in the sand and continue our conversation."

"The safest subject I can think of is fiancés," said the girl. "What is your fiancée like?"

"O, she is tall and willowy, and very beautiful, and she thinks Kipling is vulgar and adores Tennyson, and she hates demonstrativeness and considers it plebeian to kiss in public, even good-by at the train. And she loves opera and dotes on concerts, neither of which fill me with enthusiasm. But though our tastes aren't exactly the same, she's very loyal and sweet, and she dances well—and she's the kind of girl that makes a man swell out his chest when he takes her into a restaurant for dinner."

"Are you mad about her?" asked the girl.

"No, I'm not. But I'm tremendously fond of her. You see, I'd about concluded that there wasn't any of the grand passion in my life, and that it was up to me to find a helpmeet and be satisfied with affection and comfort. So I won her."

"How?" asked the girl.

Harrison hesitated a minute, then he said: "Perhaps I sound like a cad talking this way about her, but you—Lord, girl, ever since I've seen you my heart has been pounding like a triphammer and my affection for her seems like a pale ghost. My dear, I'm crazy about you; I've been looking all my life for you; I——"

Once again the girl drew her hand away, and once again her face was suffused with pink. "I wonder if fiancés are the safest topic," she mused. "You were telling me how you won her."

"O—O, yes," said Harrison. "Why, at first she seemed inaccessible. Everybody said no ordinary poor man could get her. And that put me on my mettle, and—I doggedly stuck to the pursuit until I got her. It was stubbornness or determination, whichever you choose to call it. Like——"

"Like learning a jackknife dive or solving a puzzle?" asked the girl

"Pretty much," he confessed, "only, I was fonder of her than I had ever been of any other girl until——" he reached for her hand again.

"I have a fiancé, too," she said, and he drew back his hand. "He is very handsome, he is rich—quite rich—and quite devoted to me—as devoted as a very busy business man can be. I'd always dreamed romances, and when they didn't happen, and didn't happen, why, I decided, as you did, to take the next best thing. And—and I picked him out from the bunch and won him. He thinks he did it, but it was I. A woman would understand how I did it—a man wouldn't. I wanted him chiefly because everybody said he was girlproof. And I was happy and contented, too, until——"

"Until," breathed Harrison.

"Until I learned that the puzzle wasn't worth the time."

"When was that?"

"Does your fiancée swim?" the girl asked, suddenly.

"No, does yours?"

"No."

They sighed together.

"I think Kipling is wonderful," the girl said, after a while, "and I hate concerts. But I am fond of opera."

"Of course," said Harrison, "I might learn to love opera."

"Congeniality of taste is very important," admitted the girl.

"Important for what?" demanded Harrison.

"O, for—for friendship," the girl suggested.

"For marriage," the man corrected. "But the most important thing for marriage is that a man's heart should pound when he even thinks of the girl, that his lips should thirst for hers, that her nearness should half intoxicate him, that he should find it almost impossible to keep from touching her"—under cover of a little sand hummock the girl had been heaping over her hand he clasped it—"that she should be a flame to his eyes, a leap in his blood, and a fire in his heart. And my fiancée has never been that to me. But you've been that to me since the moment you first climbed on the float—I love you, love you, little lady. Do you love me?"

For answer the girl's fingers, under cover of the sand, clasped his warmly. "Hundreds of men," she said, "have tried to flirt with me, to scrape acquaintance at the beaches when I have been alone. And none of them has succeeded. But I spoke to you—because I couldn't help myself. And if your heart goes any harder than mine when you touch me it will break a rib—and I don't know your name or anything about you, but I love you."

Under the bright sun, in the sight of anybody who might care to look, Harrison kissed the girl.

Then, rather trembling, he said: "My fiancée would never allow anything like that."

"O, yes, she will," smiled the girl, "for I'm fearfully demonstrative, you'll discover. However," she added, "there is still time to consider. Forget that kiss, Mr. Man, if you like, and stop! look! listen! Maybe you don't want me, after all."

"Forget that kiss! I couldn't, and I don't want to. And I stopped, looked, and listened when I first saw you. And I do want you, only—I forgot that the present tense of fiancée was different from the past. Let's go in and dress. Afterwards we'll have dinner together."

"Wasn't it lucky," Harrison exclaimed, when in snowy flannels he sat across the table from the girl in a breeze swept restaurant; "wasn't it lucky that you had that cramp, for I was quite determined not to bother you any more."

"Lucky!" cried the girl, blushing delightfully, "very. As lucky as a gambler who plays with a marked deck. I didn't have a cramp."

When Harrison left Miss Harney at the door of the little flat where she lived with her mother and departed on his homeward way Mrs. Harney met her daughter with commiseration in every feature, as she showed her the afternoon paper containing the story of her fiancé's elopement with a showgirl from the "Yellow Primrose." And she didn't understand why her daughter kissed her so delightedly and did a gay dance about the apartment. Not just then, she didn't understand.

And Miss Helen Peters would not have felt so sorry for Harrison when she wrote him that she had decided they never could marry and be happy, if she had seen him waltzing about his bachelor apartments with his bewildered roommate on receipt of the letter and the registered package containing his ring.

Fate, which usually makes a mess of love affairs into which it meddles, in this case made a complete and workmanlike job of things.

As sometimes happens.

Romeo and Juliet
With a Happy Ending
by Gordon Seagrove

A tragic sequel to the following real life romance is the unconfirmed report, received since the story was written, that the Duke of Brunswick has had an attack of insanity, due to brooding over the fate of a detachment of men whom he was commanding. All of them were swallowed up before his eyes in a treacherous marsh on the Russian front. Since that experience, the report says, he has been a victim of profound melancholia which has undermined his health.

THIS is the story of a royal "Romeo and Juliet," with an ending that was happy in spite of the iron willed kaiser and his implacable enemy, "the vanishing duke." In its way it is one of the notable romances of the continent, where intrigue and politics, diplomacy and noblesse oblige combine with crushing force to annihilate love; because it was a love match pure and simple and as such has always been honored by the German people.

In this drama, which was of international interest, to the courteous though somewhat innocuous Romeo of the Duke Ernest August of Brunswick the former Princess Victoria Louise of Hohenzollern, the only daughter of the kaiser, played a willing and charming Juliet. And in the ancient province of Hanover, famed as it was for the deeds of Henry the Lion, the Duke of Cumberland—"the vanishing duke" they called him—played in his own usurped kingdom a bitter Montague to the more or less conciliatory advances of the German emperor as Capulet.

As to Paris, his part was played, so rumor had it, by a dozen sons of as many royal houses, including Manuel of Portugal, Carl Franz of Austria, and the Grand Duke of Mecklenberg-Strelitz. But the part of Paris was played in vain. And when the curtain had been rung down on this modern drama with its rich background of intrigue and court life it was to disclose a "Romeo and Juliet" devoid of its tear wringing tragedy, devoid of its potions and its sobs and the inevitable death, with the lovers living happily ever afterward, and their warlike parents in the singular and unexpected act of kissing and making up. In fact the love of the duke and the imperial princess had triumphed over everything, and two houses that had been at war for years were again upon an amicable footing.

Feud of Long Standing.

The trouble which resulted in the Hanoverians becoming the weak link in the strong chain of Germany unity began many years ago. It centered about the question as to the succession to the Brunswick throne. In 1866 after the Austro-Prussian war the discussion was acute. Since Duke William was childless the rule would ordinarily pass to George of Hanover, who had been deposed from the throne by the victory of the Prussians, but instead plans were completed for the rule of Brunswick by a Prussian council of regents. Duke William died Oct. 18, 1884, whereupon George's son, in defiance of the regency board's wishes, set up a claim to the throne. This son was Ernest, Duke of Cumberland, afterward to be known as "the vanishing duke."

He was the choice of the people; their wishes were with him to the last man, for he was one of them and resented the iron hand of Prussian rule. Yet the regency board wanted him not, and in this concurrence was lent by the bundesrath, which declared that to allow the duke to ascend the throne from which his father had been deposed would be inimical to the interests of the German empire. In 1885, therefore, it filled the place with Albert, Prince of Prussia.

From that time on the enmity of Duke Ernest smoldered and blazed by turns until it settled itself into a chronic bitterness. For almost ten years he was forced to sit by and see his land, his people, governed by the representative of a man whom he cordially disliked—the kaiser. To the fiery duke his position must have been as hard to bear as was that of his father before him—a deposed king, who died in exile. He saw the throne of Brunswick taken from him and his fortunes tied up with almost no prospect of their being finally straightened out so that they reverted to him. "No wonder he is bitter toward Prussia," people said.

Kaiser Makes Overtures.

Then suddenly in 1906 the ruler of Brunswick died. Here was the opportunity for which the emperor was looking. It had always irritated and displeased him that, of all Germany, Brunswick and the Hanoverians were the weak links. Now he began making overtures to the Duke of Cumberland, possibly with the idea of giving him the throne.

Perhaps the fiery old man resented in his proud way the fact that the kaiser was trying to appease him and make friends. For ten years he had insistently fought for the throne. Now the kaiser, instead of treating him like a man and an enemy, was according him the treatment of a child. It was as if the kaiser were saying: "Here, little man, is the duchy you have been crying for. Dry your eyes and run away and play with it."

Yet the offer did not inflame him as much as it should. He was growing old; he needed Brunswick, and yet when he remembered the oath his father made him swear—an oath of hate against Prussia—he could come to no decision. The kaiser persisted in his overtures. A dozen times arrangements had been made for a conference. Each time the duke promised to wait for the kaiser. Each time the kaiser arrived on time. And each time the duke had suddenly remembered the oath of hate and had gone—vanished on the eve of a reconciliation.

This, of course, infuriated the emperor. In the first place even to meet Cumberland half way was a concession on his part. For there was only one other person to whom he conceded anything, and that was Victoria Louise, just then blossoming into the full beauty of her teens. And when the kaiser became infuriated he acted at once. He dickered no more with Cumberland, but appointed a minor noble to the rule of Brunswick. Thus the breach widened.

Princess Has Many Suitors.

Here entered the unwitting Juliet—the kaiser's daughter, the lovely Princess Victoria Louise. Up to this time she had been more or less sheltered by the unkind privacy of the court, indulging in her games, her books, and her painting, and rarely attending any of the great functions. Now since she was becoming a woman the ban was lifted and she began to circulate in royal society.

Of course being charming and rich as well, suitors in droves danced attendance. They worried her father almost to death; that she might marry some utterly worthless rascal with no power or prestige was the apprehension that never left his mind. She must be watched. Soon after her debut it was hinted that he planned to wed her to the Prince of Wales, despite the disparity of their ages. The young princess was therefore often a guest of Queen Mary of England. But the kaiser had counted without love. Victoria Louise didn't care for the prince particularly, nor for the other royal sons who had paid court. In fact, she didn't care for any one, for she was young yet and in no hurry to rush into matrimony.

Then strangely enough a tragedy took place—a tragedy that was to bring her love. The Duke of Cumberland's eldest son, on his way through Germany to attend the funeral of his uncle, the king of Denmark, was killed in an automobile accident. This was in the spring of 1912.

For several hours his identity was a mystery, but once it was learned it soon reached the ears of the kaiser. At once, despite Cumberland's long standing hatred of him, the kaiser sent his son, Eitel Fritz, to assist in caring for the body. In this he was joined by the crown prince. So for two nights scions of the house of Hohenzollern stood guard over the body of one of a house that had been their enemy for years. Later they saw to its disposition, and, having finished their duties, returned to Berlin.

Juliet Meets Romeo.

When the old Duke of Cumberland heard of this he may have been touched, but he did not show it. But his son Ernest Augustus did, and a few weeks later came to personally thank the kaiser. And of course there he met Victoria Louise.

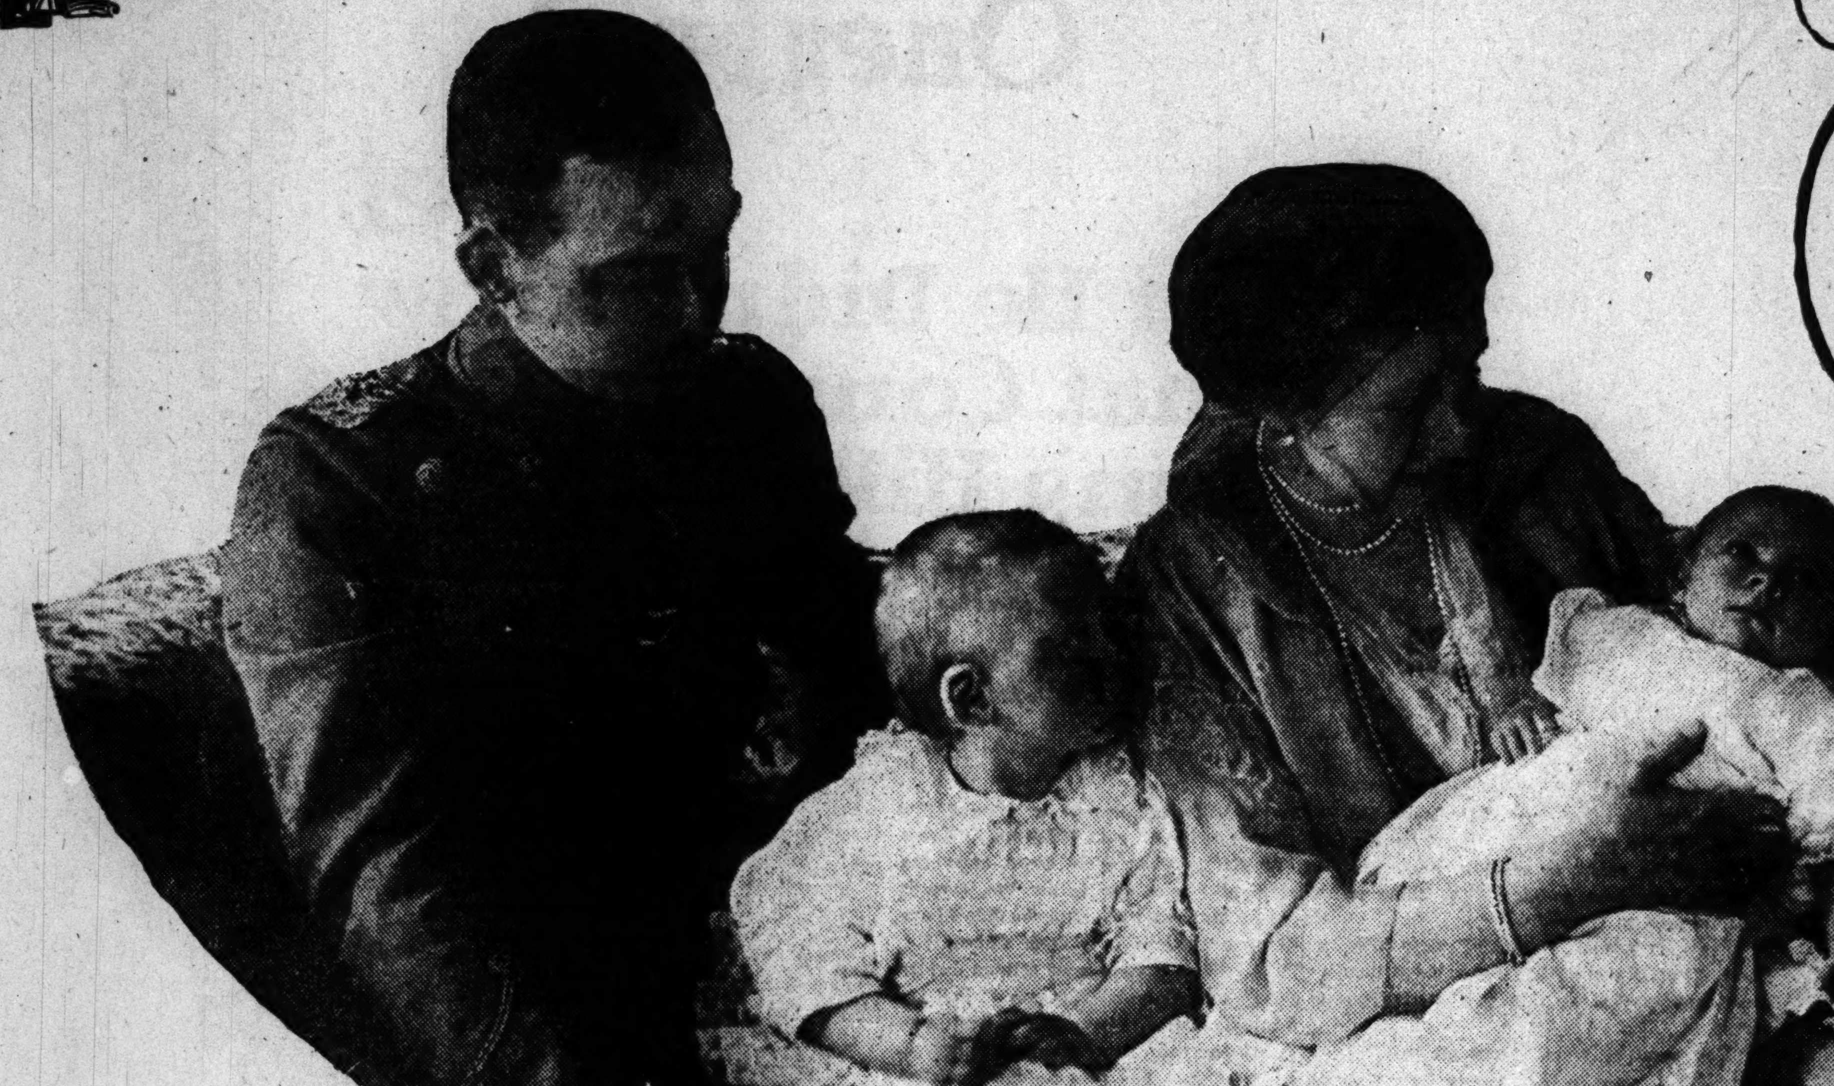
It was just like fate to play a captious trick. And it did. Almost before anybody knew it, Ernest Augustus was madly in love with Louise, for whose hand a dozen men had pleaded. And what is more to the point she was in love with him.

One can imagine how overjoyed the duke must have been to hear of this love match. At the time it was said he couldn't have suffered more if some one had poured hot lead upon his patriarchal back; here he had been spending all his time sneering at the kaiser and vowing his revenge, when all of a sudden his favorite son had the audacity to fall in love with the kaiser's daughter. Truly, it was enough to make less choleric men than Cumberland lose patience.

Two months after Ernest August's visit to Berlin the emperor and empress and the duke and duchess met at Carlsruhe. With the former was Victoria Louise. With the latter was the young Ernest. It was the first time that the kaiser and the vanishing duke had met in many years. Naturally they did not fall on each other's neck. But the empress and the duchess did almost, for they were overjoyed with the turn affairs had taken. It was love, real true, young love that the match represented, and almost immediately they announced the betrothal..

The wedding was quite a wonderful affair. But it was noticed that although the kaiser and the members of his family were warm and active, old Cumberland stood silently and stoically by with a chill demeanor that almost froze the wedding chimes in the pipe organ—it was quite plain that he hadn't forgotten the lost throne of Hanover and his exiled father's wishes. Even after the ceremony, when he danced with his new daughter, he didn't grow visibly cheered, although he thought her a charming girl.

With the marriage the young bridegroom came into his own—the duchy of Brunswick.



The Duke and Duchess of Brunswick with their two sons, Ernest August and George William

The kaiser arranged it. And what a wonderful celebration there was on his entry into his own land! Flags bearing the white horse of Brunswick and the Guelph lion were flung by thousands to the breeze. But nowhere was there the royal banner of the kaiser.

In a way, perhaps, it was a surprise to the latter. Naturally, he supposed that his son-in-law wouldn't bother about Hanover now, but the young Duke of Brunswick, still pretender to the Hanoverian throne, had no intention at the time the war began of dropping his plans to some day succeed to it.

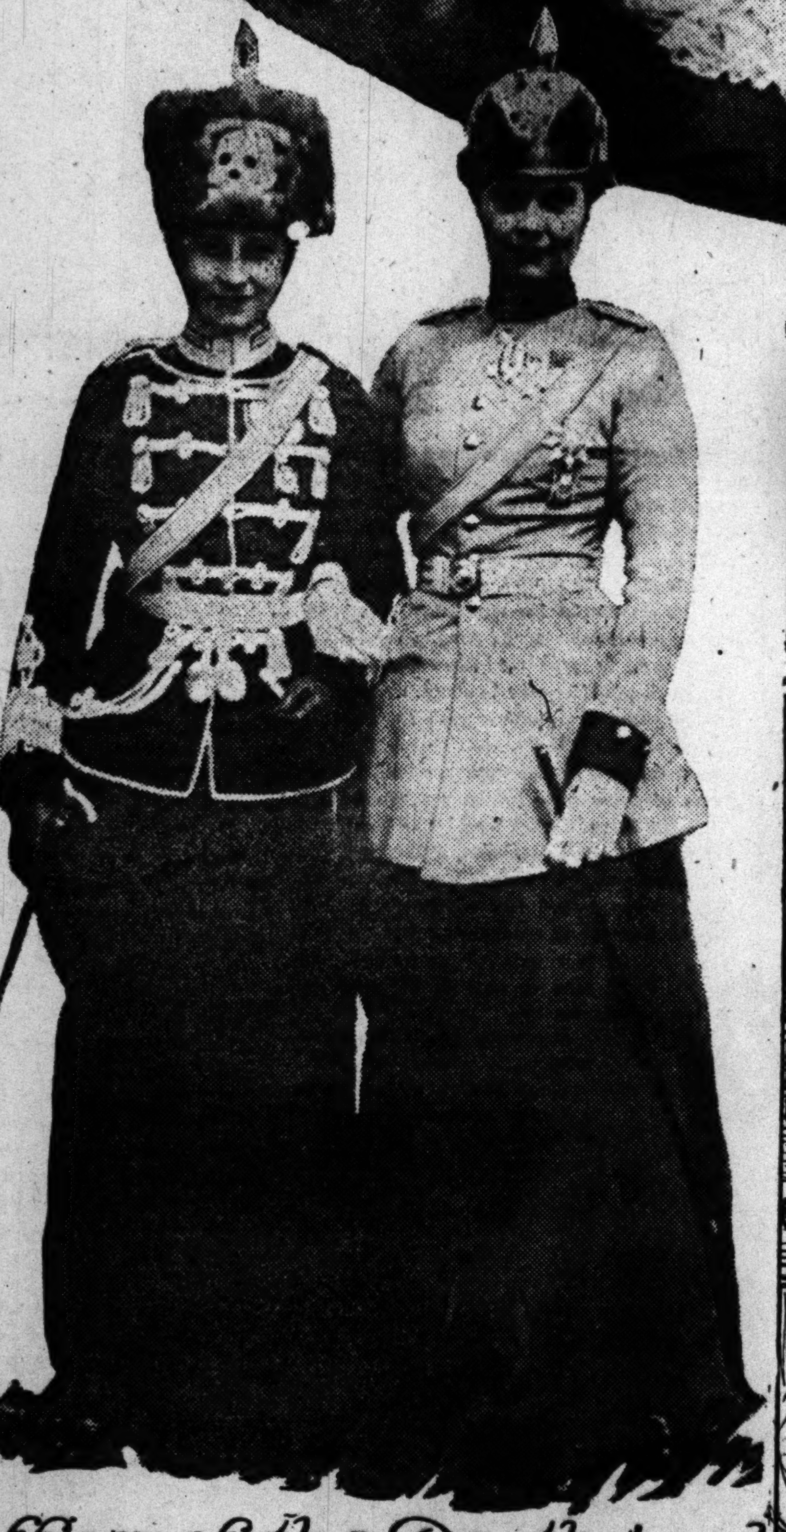
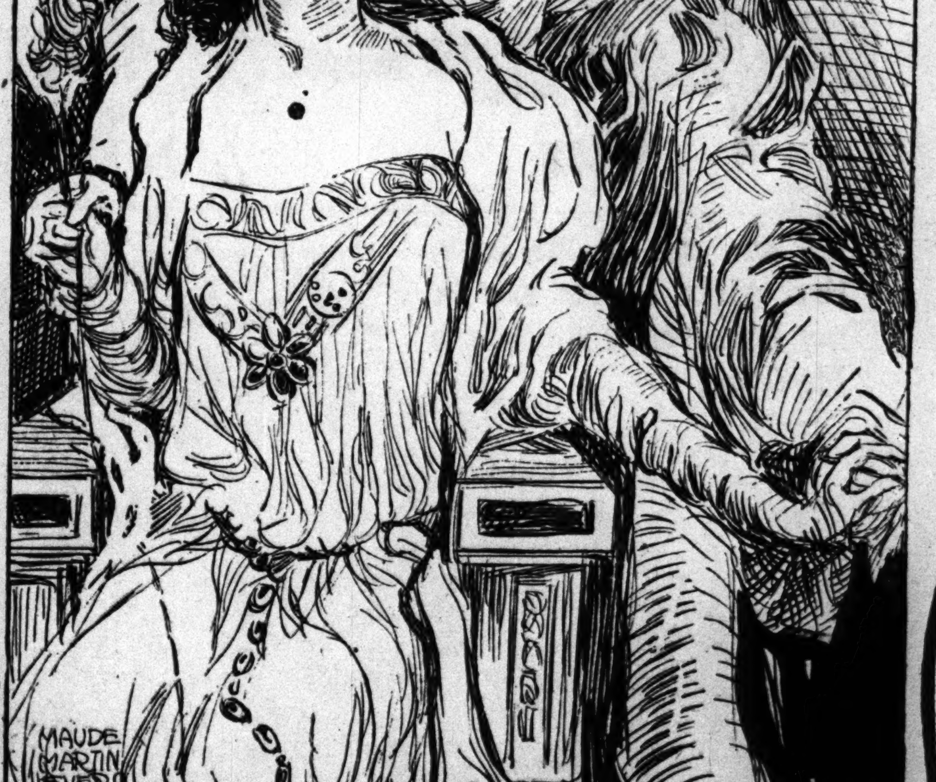
Old Hatred Disappears.

The duke and duchess went to live in Brunswick. Berlin lies but two hours' ride from Brunswick. The fact is significant. The kaiser ran down to see his daughter often. The Duke of Cumberland stopped in as often to see his son. Frequently they met. And each time the barriers began to sink lower.



An officer of the Deathshead Hussars, with her sister-in-law the Crown Princess



Duke Ernest August of Brunswick

Then two sons were born—Ernest August and George Wilhelm. After that the kaiser came oftener. So did "the vanishing duke." And when the christenings of the youngsters took place the last vestige of the old hate was on the verge of disappearance. The old duke was a bit surly, but now even that has turned to kindly feeling.

So, after all is said and done, it is no uncommon sight to see Juliet playing with her two boys while Romeo reads the latest news from the front and Montague grows old happily as Capulet drops in for a hurried "hello" to his grandchildren before he sinks himself in the plans for the next great campaign.

WE WANT THE PONY SQUAD TO MAKE A GOOD FINISH

Said Oney Fred Sweet

But He Didn't Know That Company G's Long Hike Was Going To Be Quite That Long

IT was about the beginning of my second week at San Antonio that I came to the conclusion that soldiering was not wholly a matter of being able to face bullets and shoot bullets back. Perhaps I should have known as much without going away to war to learn it, but it was not until the day of the long hike that there formed in my bean a fixed idea about campaigning.

You see, all the members of the "pony squad" had been watching me closely for some days. Even on the day of the flying ants, the big storm, and the gumbo trails my reputation as a warrior had not suffered. The flying ants had interested me: there was something uncanny about the winged army flying along the company street and suddenly becoming wingless creatures, seeking mates and a home underground, according to nature's intention. As for the gumbo that followed the big rain, of course, it made our quarters sloppy, but we had met the inconvenience with a song. But the long hike——

Well, I am afraid I had bragged a little too much in the presence of the pony squad to which I belonged. Lying about on our bunks after "retreat," with the sides of the tent lifted high enough for us to watch the glorious Texas sunset, I had talked a bit too freely about what I would do with my new rifle when we should meet the Mexicans. Within a thousand yards of me no Mexican's life was to be worth a peso—worth not so much as one of the long, black Mexican cigarets that were finding their way out from downtown.

Outside of our corporal we were all rookies there in the pony squad—the runts of Company G, fast being whipped into shape, but still green. Colfee had been raised in Montana and had taken a couple of trips into the desert out west, so that he was pretty well hardened physically even if new at handling a rifle according to the manual; Jack Meisner, short as he was, was a hard "bird" because on our third day in camp I had seen him lift an entire pyramidal tent on his shoulders and carry it from the quartermaster's department back to our company street; Williams, first in mess line three times a day, was of a thinness that was unchangeable—hadn't I seen him sell his discarded citizen's clothes for two bits and spend the whole amount for tortillas and still long to buy something to eat at the canteen?

We were hardly representative of Company G there in our squad tent located the farthest distance possible from the officers' quarters. The men in the company who had seen service with the "regs" and the Spanish-American—and there was a bunch of 'em—"hurrayed" us a good deal, as they say in Texas, and Sergt. Koop always knew where to find a detail to help around the kitchen or do policing.

"I'll tell ya, fellows," I said the night before the long hike, "we're going to take quite a trip tomorrow morning and whatever happens don't let it be said that any of the pony squad couldn't stand up to the finish. We're going to get heavy marching orders, and that includes the new intrenchment tools that have just been issued."

"Wasn't what we've already carried enough?" asks Meisner in a Sixty-seventh street accent. "Blanket and poncho and shelter half, and stakes and canteen and mess kit and first aid pack, besides our cannon?"

"That's all right," I says. "Suppose we get away by ourselves down there below the border. We've got to have a hotel on our backs and be ready to start it going any place we may have to stop. The thing to do is get used to it now."

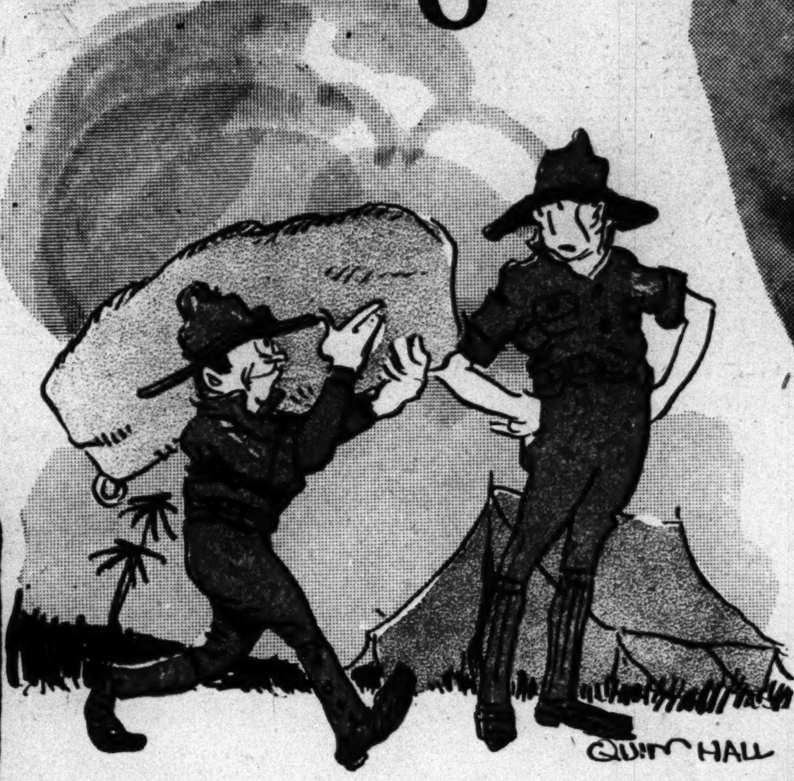
"I wouldn't mind so much," says Williams, "but it seems that every place that equipment touches me there's a vaccination sore."

"You want to forget about all that," I says. "You want to keep hitting the dough right along and follow your file leader."

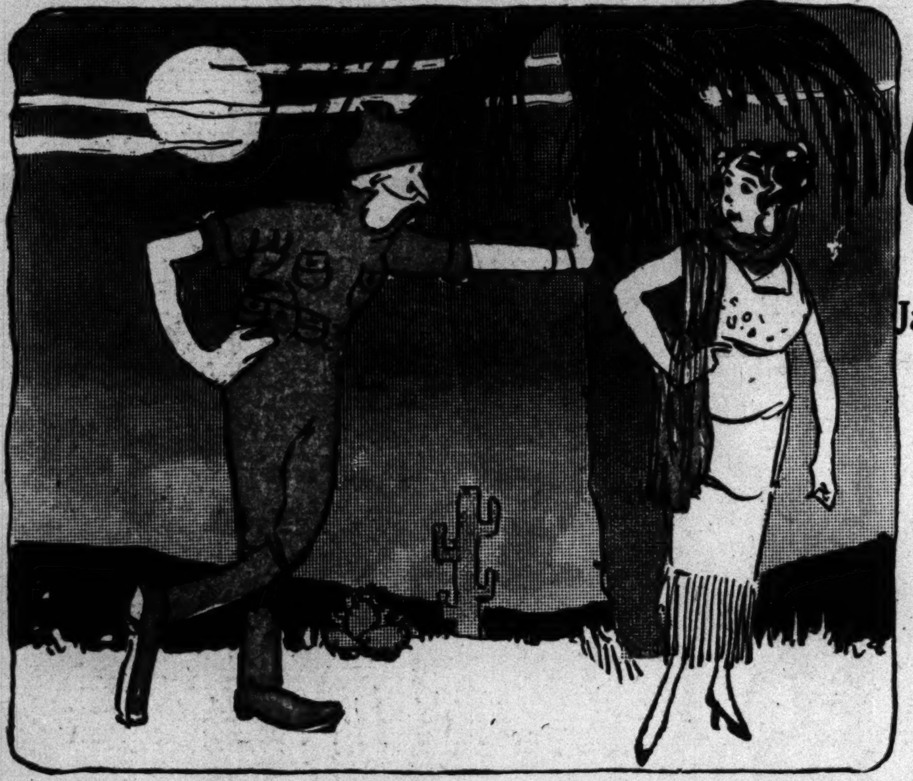
"I don't care how long the hike's going to be, if I could get hold of another quarter I'd take one of those jitneys downtown tonight and take my chances on running the guard getting back," says Williams. "I saw one of the prettiest girls down there the other night I ever saw in my life, even if she was a Mexican. She said she didn't have anything against us boys from Chicago."

"You fellows cut out your talking and go to sleep," says Corporal Dawson. "Tattoo's just blown. Some of you fellows will have to hustle getting your blankets rolled in time to fall in. You saw me blow out the candle, didn't you? Go to sleep!"

We did go to sleep, with the gulf breezes blowing over us. You can sleep at night in Texas, no matter how hot the day. Yet it seemed we only slept a few minutes before the band was out parading. The sun had not yet crept up over the valley when we were hustled out for the "Butts manual."



Jack Meisner, short as he was, was a hard "bird."



I saw one of the prettiest girls I ever saw in my life, even if she was a Mexican.

"It's the day of the long hike," I says to the other members of the pony squad, as we came back to grab our mess kits. "Eat enough so you'll be able to stand it; we want the pony squad to make a good showing."

And we did make a good showing as we joined the rest of the regiment and by columns of fours were led by the colonel out on to the Santa Ysabel road. The band was playing and our colors were flying, and the Mexicans encamped among the cactus along the highway looked and seemed to ponder. Maybe they weren't pondering, but anyway they quit whatever they had been engaged in to watch us pass by.

One mile, two miles, three miles.

Sergt. Stetler, who had been a regular once, says that there is only one way to carry a gun, and that is on your shoulder; but every rookie has a half dozen ideas on this point, and along about the second mile it seemed to me that my right shoulder was the most uncomfortable place in the world for my cannon.

It had been hot when we started, but it kept getting hotter the farther we hiked. I could feel the perspiration coming out through my new army shoes. If it wasn't that the sun was shining I would have believed it was raining, the way the drops of moisture dripped down my face.

"Steady!" sayt Capt. Hopps.

"Don't any of the pony squad drop out," I says.

"A couple of fellows in H just went," says Williams.

"That don't make any difference," I says.

"Don't you butt in ahead of me when we get back to camp at noon and grab those swabs when I want to wash my dishes in the tub," says Williams to me.

"I'm not thinking about mess," I says. "I'm worrying about the pony squad sticking to the finish."

There was a hill just ahead of us. It was a hill that went up, not one that went down. Damn those kind of hills that go up when you've gone a few miles with a hotel on your back.

Half way up the hill the color of the atmosphere began to change. It was changing from purple to black—purple with black spots in it. It was——

. . . .

The members of the pony squad were sitting about me cleaning their rifles for inspection. All my clothes were off and I was sweating under my blanket, and my hair was still sticky from perspiration and cold water that had been doused on my face.

Private Colfee was fanning me with his campaign hat.

"The hike's over, ain't it?" I says. "My head's kind of dizzy, but the pony squad certainly stuck through."

"Stuck through, like hell!" says Private Colfee. "The rest of us did. After all that line of talk you gave us last night, I thought you had a little stuff in you."

"We're all here," I says. "We seem to be all here in the tent."

"Yes," says Private Colfee, "but the only way you got back was on a stretcher. You're a hell of a soldier."

But the only way you got back was on a stretcher.

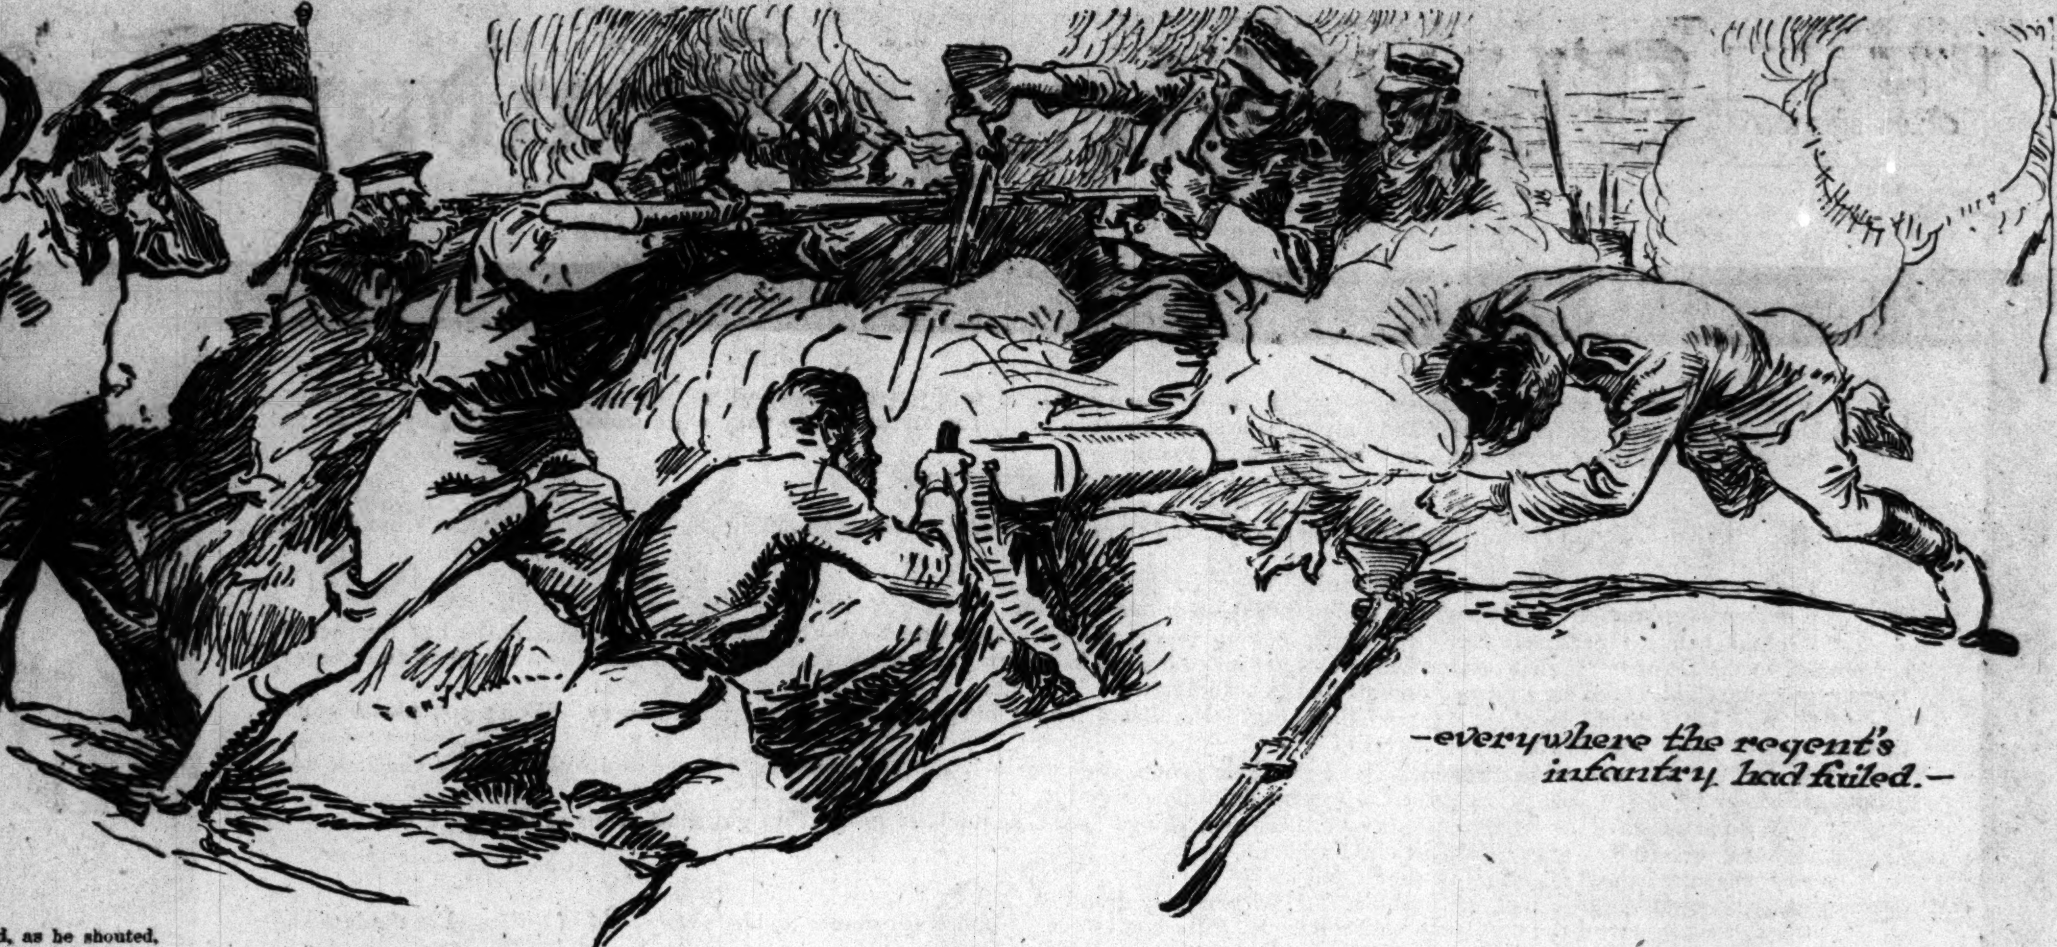
by EDWIN BALMER



—everywhere the regent's infantry had failed.—

Herewith is presented the last installment of a fiction serial dealing with what might happen should European powers, after they had settled their own differences, wage war upon the United States. The author, one of the best fiction writers in the country, has based his story upon a thorough understanding of military, naval, and internal conditions in the United States and upon a sound knowledge of military and economic history.

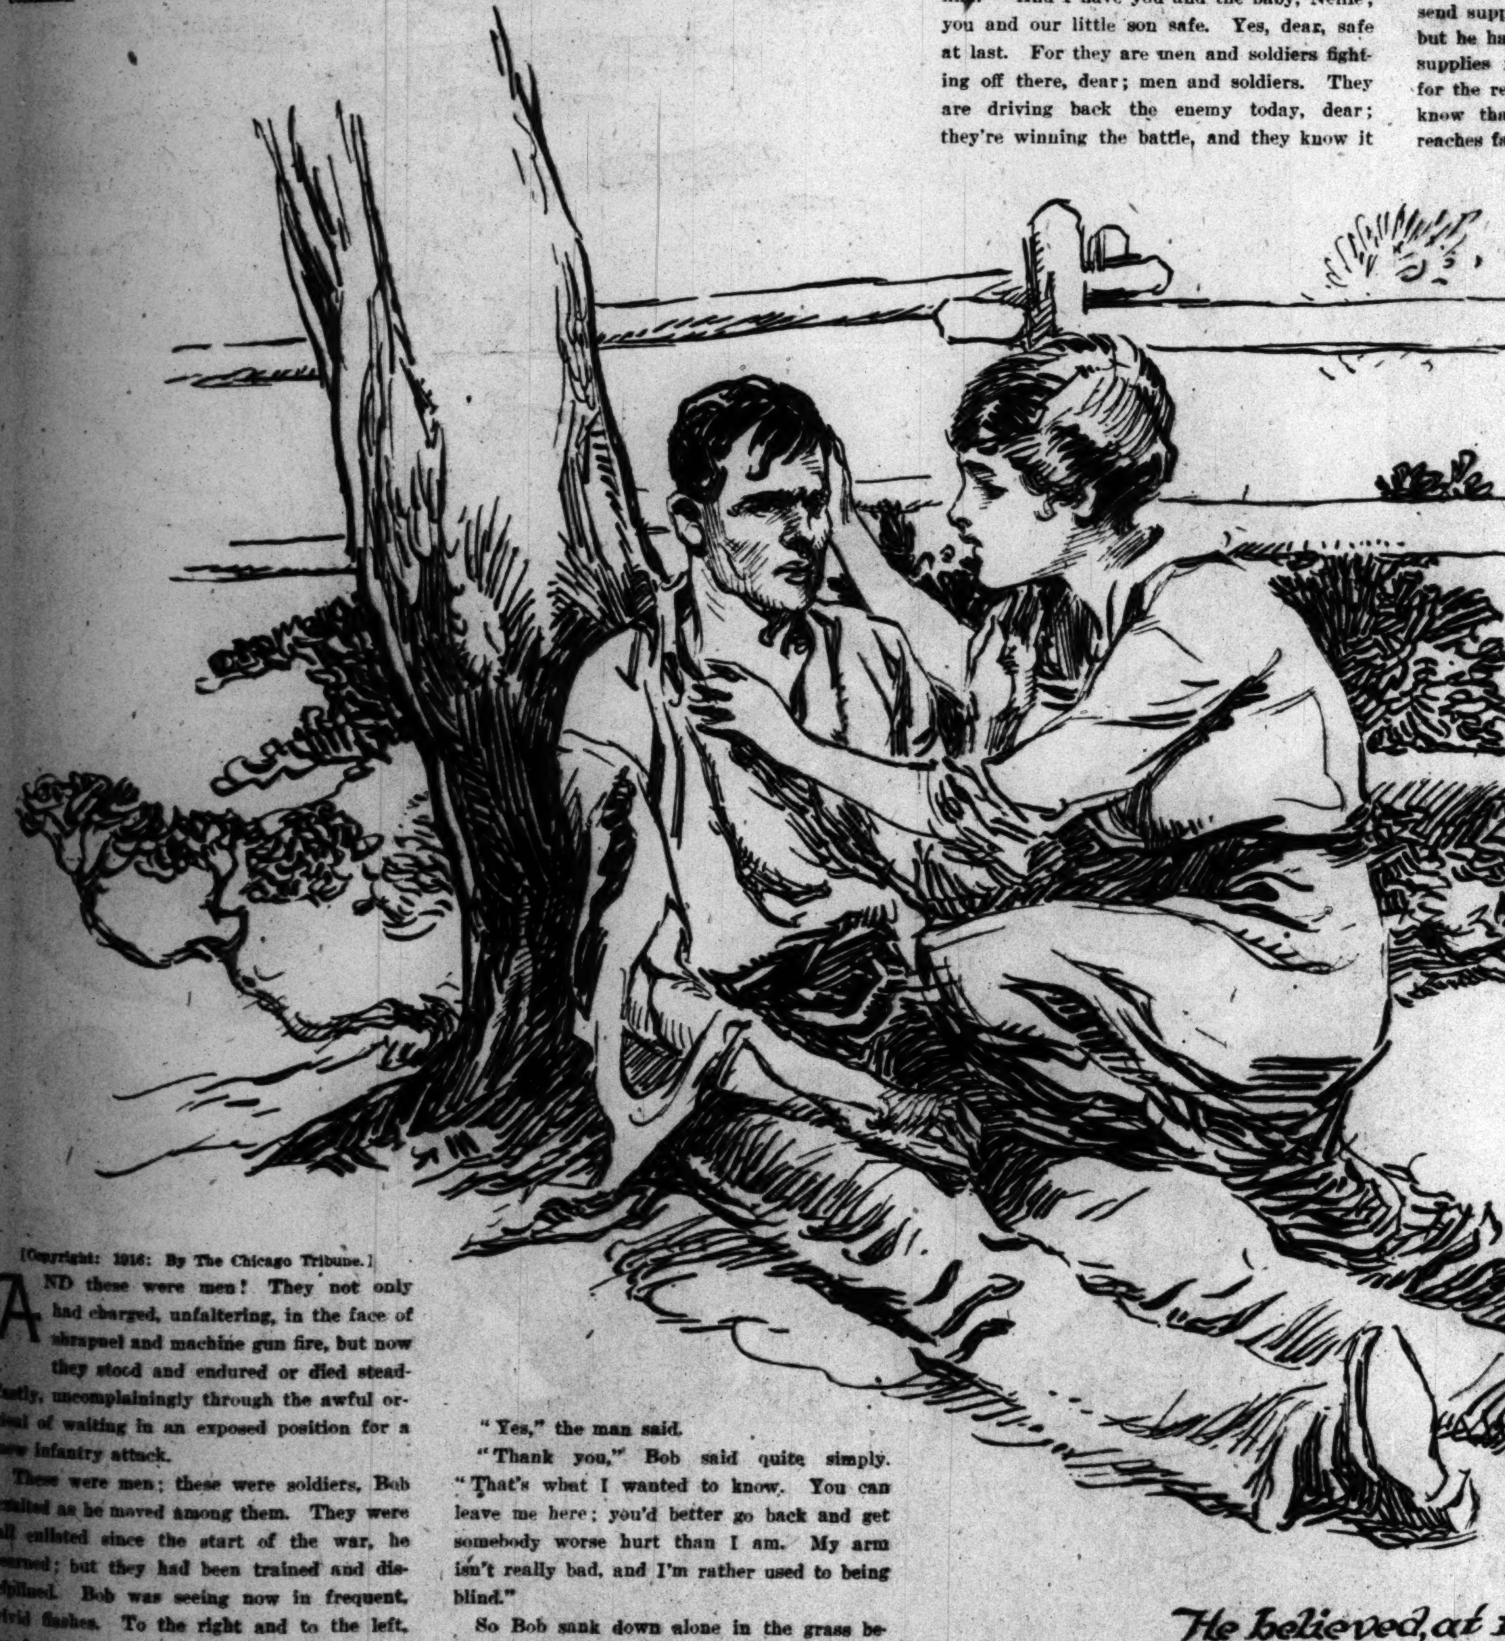
SYNOPSIS.

In Elgin, Ill., live Nathan Ashby, owner of the Ashby Brass Company, and his wife; a daughter, Nellie, married to Bob Wendell, a navy lieutenant; and Jim Ashby, engaged to Agnes Ware. The elder Ashby is the archetype of pacifist, deaf to the warnings of impending danger to the United States. Out of a clear sky a league of former European enemies gives cause of war by sinking an American scout cruiser and proceeds against unpreparedUnited States. In a naval engagement, Bob's ship, the Arizona, is sunk and Bob narrowly escapes death. Jim, despite the break it causes with Agnes, enlists and goes to New York, where he helps in a gallant but vain effort to resist the invaders. Beatrice Logan, a beautiful girl, finds him half dead, puts him on a raft which the tide takes up the river.

Mart Ware, Agnes' brother, changes his commanding officer"s report, thinking the latter's' estimate of the enemy"s numbers is false. The United States army meets the enemy's invaders pushing westward and a terrific battle occurs. Jim, entering a farmhouse, slays three of the regent's officers who have locked up four girls in a room. The girls had turned on the gas to escape the libidinous captors. Jim rescues the girls and revives them; one of them is Beatrice Logan. They rode twenty miles and escaped. Ten days later Jim takes command of a company formed from refugees of his old battalion and men from other Illinois regiments. In a desperate battle, Jim, a frantic madman, compels his men to charge, shooting some who refuse, among whom is Mart. Ashby is wounded and taken prisoner. Agnes finds him in a hospital and he confesses he shot her brother.

Jim is helped to escape by Beatrice Logan. In an aeroplane they start for their own lines. Bob Wendell, by reason of a prisoners' exchange, manages to reach his home in Elgin. He is almost totally blind. The scene of the war moves from Chicago, which the Americans abandon, toward Elgin.

Bob, his sight almost gone, makes his way back to the ruins of the Ashby home. Another great battle is in progress, and Bob, regaining his sight intermittently, joins in it. In a trench where all the officers have been killed he takes command.



He believed, at first, it must be a hallucination;—

[Copyright: 1916: By The Chicago Tribune.]

AND these were men! They not only had charged, unfaltering, in the face of shrapnel and machine gun fire, but now they stood and endured or died steadfastly, uncomplainingly through the awful ordeal of waiting in an exposed position for a new infantry attack.

These were men; these were soldiers, Bob exulted as he moved among them. They were all enlisted since the start of the war, he learned; but they had been trained and disciplined. Bob was seeing now in frequent, vivid flashes. To the right and to the left, as far as he could see, the American line was sustaining itself and, though the storm of shell doubled and redoubled, Bob felt no fear; for it was being held by men now, he knew, by soldiers! And behind them were batteries giving the regent's brigades shell for shell.

Now, at last, the new charge was coming. The thirty-two men in Bob's sector were reduced to twenty-one; six of them were at the machine guns which they had recaptured and turned to the east; the rest stood with rifles ready.

"Battle sight, men; battle sight!" Bob went down his line. "Now give it to them, now! Now!"

That flash in which Bob could see was gone; he was in darkness and stumbling down the trench; but soon he saw again. "Now, boys, bayonets!" He stooped, as he shouted, and caught the rifle from a man who was falling. "Up, boys, and meet them!" And beside him, his men arose. They were barely a dozen now, but toward them only a few of the charging line came on; only two or three of those flung themselves fighting to die upon the American bayonets; the rest surrendered and, falling to knees, begged for mercy. As Bob felt some one pulling him back into the trench—he was quite blind again—the bursting of shells all up and down the line of trenches told that everywhere the regent's infantry had failed and the general had given the task of attack over to the guns again. And so, through that day, the American first line held, and through the night, too. Bob had six men when, an hour before dawn, an American assault passed his position and, charging, broke the regent's line on the eastern slope and turned back one army division in rout.

"I beg your pardon," Bob said to a man who was guiding him back toward the hospital some time later, "but did you say the sun is shining?"

"Yes," the man said.

"Thank you," Bob said quite simply. "That's what I wanted to know. You can leave me here; you'd better go back and get somebody worse hurt than I am. My arm isn't really bad, and I'm rather used to being blind."

So Bob sank down alone in the grass beneath a blasted tree beside a bend in the road. He was quite blind now; there were no longer any flashes which let him see, no longer even a film of sight in which objects floated. The sun was shining, the man had said; Bob could feel it upon his face. But for Bob everything was black; and he knew it would be so to him forever.

It was from beyond this blackness that there came to Bob that afternoon the great dispensation. He was still quite alone and resting—for what he did not know—when he heard Nellie's voice. He believed, at first, it must be a hallucination; but arms about him, her slender, tense, passionate little arms, her lips against his, and her cheeks wet on his cheek, that—that could not be hallucination.

"Nellie!" He clung to her. "Nellie, little wife! My little Nellie, it's you; it's you!"

"Bob! I've found you! O, my husband. I have you! I have you; you—you have come back to me! Look at me; look at me!"

Instead he raised his hand to her face and, as he pressed her cheek again to his and with his fingers felt her features, she realized he was blind. That, she knew now, was always the trouble in the vision of her dreams.

"Nellie, the baby?" he asked.

"A little boy, Bob. O, a little boy so much like you!"

He knew from her voice that the child must be safe, but he had to ask of him. Then he told her of his going to the ruin of the house.

Nellie shuddered. "Father sent little Bob and me away, dear; he stayed there to watch mother."

"So they both were killed?"

"No, dear; father was hurt but somehow saved. Mother—death could have been only mercy to her, Bob."

Far away the battle roared and thundered. Remembrance of that battle line burned through Bob as he held his wife close to him. "And I have you and the baby, Nellie; you and our little son safe. Yes, dear, safe at last. For they are men and soldiers fighting off there, dear; men and soldiers. They are driving back the enemy today, dear; they're winning the battle, and they know it and the regent knows it. They're ready and strong at last and they're going to clear the country back to the sea."

CHAPTER XLIX.

The regent did know; and the oriental general holding the Pacific knew it, too, as the American forces in California simultaneously took the offensive. For, after the two terrible years of defeat and disaster, the American people at last were ready and at last the economic measures which Stone had ordered were beginning to show effects.

The general staff considered these along with the military situation on the fifth day of the battle after the victory of the Americans was assured.

"A detailed and instructive report of the situation of the enemy's forces in the east—treating morals, equipment, and supplies—has come to hand this morning from an escaped prisoner," said the aid to Gen. Stone at American headquarters.

"Who is he?"

"A Capt. Ashby, of volunteers, who was a member of the original volunteer force which defended New York. He fought in both the early important actions and was captured, after being severely wounded, in the action above Cayuga. He was in a prison stockade until ten days ago, when he escaped with the help of certain patriots living in the vicinity. One of these—a girl named Logan—accompanied Capt. Ashby to our lines, having piloted an aeroplane taken from the enemy. She appears to have been most active in going about among patriots in the east and has supplied an admirable estimate of the situation of the enemy's forces in New York state. All the data furnished confirms your opinion, sir, that after this present serious reverse the enemy will be unable to continue his campaign on his present line."

Stone took the report and glanced over it. "I see. The enemy has not only ceased to send supplies from Europe to his armies here but he has been obliged actually to withdraw supplies needed to maintain his forces here for the relief of the situation in Europe. We know that the scarcity in parts of Europe reaches famine; in Asia there is already famine, with all available surplus food supplies in this half of the world."

"Yes, sir."

The door opened; an officer entered with head high, with eyes glowing. "Sir," he cried, "we have just received word that the Argentine republic this morning has pledged us the aid we asked. They have recognized that if this republic is destroyed they cannot endure. They, therefore, have pledged to burn their grain—both the grain in the elevators and that in the field—to prevent it being shipped to or seized by our enemies. Canada adheres to the same agreement. If attempt is made against either country to seize the grain, or if our enemies now refuse to withdraw, Canada and Argentina—simultaneously with us—will destroy all crops."

The chief of staff straightened and brought his shoulders up. His eyes dimmed with tears of which he was unashamed.

"Dispatch to Argentina and Canada," he commanded, "the gratitude of the American people for their adherence to us and inform our enemies, both in the east and in the west, that if they wish their people to be fed to come to us for terms of peace; if they do not, we will continue our offensive on both fronts immediately."

Twelve days later, while the American armies continued victorious and famine spread in Asia and Europe, protocols were signed by both the regent and by the general of the forces invading California. Immediately afterwards the invading armies began to withdraw.

Complete withdrawal required many weeks, during which time the American armies remained at full strength. Only after both coasts were clear were the armies reduced.

It was early in November, therefore, when Capt. Jim Ashby brought Beatrice, his wife, to Elgin. Inquiring for his family, Jim was given an address which took him to a little cottage, before which Nathan Ashby was sitting, playing with a little boy on his knee.

The old man—his shoulders were bent now and he was very gray—got up, with tears streaming down his face, as he saw his son.

"Jim! Jim! You're back safe, and it's all over! Jim! You're—you're all right?"

"I'm all right." Jim embraced his father. "This is Beatrice, my wife, father."

"You're wife, boy?"

"Yes."

"That's good; that's good!"

"I've heard about mother, father," Jim said gently. He stooped and picked up the little boy and kissed him. "This is my nephew, I suppose—Nellie's baby. Nellie and Bob, father—where are they?"

A hail came from within the house.

"They've heard you," said Nathan Ashby. "Come in, Jim and wife; come in. We're all here at home together, at last—all of us that are left. Mother's gone and Barbara's gone and Bob's blind, but the other half of us is here, all right—and that's more than most families can say this year——"

"Jim!"

"Nellie!"

"Bob, old fellow! Bob, this is Beatrice, my wife."

"Fine, Jim; fine!"

"O, Bob—Bob, old fellow, is it only two years ago we sat on the porch and I said war could never come to us?"

It is June, 1937, and from the drill grounds of the University of Illinois 10,000 cadets are marching away to summer maneuvers on the old Fox river battlefield. They will meet there the thousands from the University of Chicago, from Northwestern and Wisconsin, from Iowa, Beloit, and Knox, the tens of thousands from the shops and the offices, from the fields and the farms.

Some of the battalions marching away will finish, this year, their training with the colors, some have still another summer in the field: there are three battalions of boys who are going into camp for the first time.

The first sergeant of Company B of the first of these freshmen battalions is a fine looking boy of 17 and, as the battalion marches past the stands where relatives and friends are grouped in review, many people applaud and point him out as young Nathan Ashby of Elgin.

His full name is Nathan Logan Ashby, and, when he had completed his course in the scientific department of the university and completed also his military training, his father has a place waiting for him at the Ashby Brass works; for, like the great majority of the boys in those battalions, young Nathan is going into business.

He marches strongly and well, though carrying complete campaign kit, and as he passes his mother and father and his younger brother he smiles and holds his head high. Then, just beyond the stands he passes a monument which he, with all the others, salutes. It is a tragic, pitiful group in bronze, a wonderfully executed high relief; it portrays a squad of untrained, undisciplined, but brave and patriotic men sacrificing themselves vainly to stop the assault of soldiers. Below it is inscribed: "To the memory of the men of Illinois who volunteered for our first armies, 1917-1919."

At Annapolis, Maryland, at almost the same hour another column of young men is marching—the class just graduated from the Naval academy—and that day commissioned by the president of the United States as ensigns in the navy. As this column sweeps past, a woman with handsome, nobly formed features, and with head proudly poised, turns to a blind man beside her who wears the uniform of rear admiral of the United States navy.

"Bob is coming, dear," she says.

He makes no reply but closes his hand tightly over Nellie's little hand. He cannot see his son; but young Bob looks to one side long enough to see his father. So he returns to the reviewing stand as soon as the class breaks ranks; and for an hour father and mother and son together go about the grounds. They are halted often, for Admiral Wendell, though blind, is one of the most active members of the naval general staff. Then, besides the official acquaintances, there are personal friends. One of these, who graduated three years before and so is now a junior lieutenant, is the Garry Starnes of this generation and another, of young Bob's class, is smiling little "Stubby" Derr.

The names, as young Bob speaks them, bring back old scenes vividly to Admiral Wendell and he halts, with his son, before the "1917 memorial."

This is a relief of a scout cruiser, the Salem, going down under the fire of a fleet while its commander flashes to the shore warning of the enemy's approach.

"To the officers and men of the navy of the United States of America," young Bob reads the inscription to his father, "who, betrayed by congress, by the president, and the people, went to certain death to defend those who betrayed them."

Nellie holds a little closer to her husband and as he stumbles she guides him tenderly.

"Some of the new members in congress—those who are fighting the new navy bill, dear—have objected to that inscription." Nellie says. "They believe it shows bitterness."

"Bitterness?"

"Yes; one of them moved to have it obliterated, and put instead: 'Dulce et decorum est pro patria mori.'"

Bob nodded as he translated to himself aloud: "'Sweet and becoming it is to die for one's country.' What do you think of it, dear?"

Nellie shivered. "I think they haven't any one near them who's likely to be required to die for the country, Bob, and—and it's getting to be a good many years since 1917.'

ONE pleasant morning the Teenie Weenies left the house boat anchored safely near the shore of the creek and climbed the steep bank in search of adventure. They had only gone a short distance along the stream when they were suddenly startled by a strange voice which sang these very words in a most peculiar tone:

"I'll pick the bones of a greasy goose
If I spend my life in a cal-a-boose."

"O! O! What a dismal song!" whispered the Clown, and the next moment a great, waddling duck stepped into view from behind a bush.

"Tickle my toe if it ain't them Teenie Weenies!" exclaimed the duck.

"What awful grammer," whispered the Lady of Fashion to the Doctor.

"I cannot help my grammar," said the duck, looking reproachfully at the little lady—for, having very good ears, he had overheard her remark to the Doctor. "What chance has one to get an education in a barn yard, associating only with low down chickens and geese? Just answer that." And the duck turned and started to waddle away.

"O, dear, Mr. Duck!" cried the Lady of Fashion, "I-I'm afraid I have hurt your feelings. I am so sorry. Won't you please come back and tell us about your brothers and sisters?"

The duck turned and, as he walked back to the little group, they saw a large tear gather in his eye and roll down his cheek to the ground with a great splash, just missing the Cook, who skillfully dodged it.

"Ain't no brothers or sisters or mothers or fathers or nothing!" said the duck, as more tears gathered in his eyes.

"Are they all dead?" asked the Lady of Fashion.

"No," answered the duck, sadly; "they're all et."

"Eaten!" exclaimed the Lady of Fashion. "How perfectly dreadful!"

"It's all on account of the minister," said the duck. "He comes every Sunday for dinner and he's very fond of ducks. I'm the last and I expect to be et almost any Sunday." And the poor duck burst into tears.

"Please, Mr. Duck," said the Doctor, hoping to get the poor fellow into a better frame of mind by a change of conversation, "please tell us a story."

"I will," cried the duck, shaking a tear off the end of his nose. "I'll tell you the story of the foolish goose.

"Once there was an old fox that used to go about the woods singing this song: 'I'll pick the bones of a greasy goose if I spend my life in a cal-a-boose.' You can bet your life that the geese never lost any time gettin' under cover when they heard that song. Well, there was one flock of fat geese belonging to a farmer that attracted the attention of the fox. He hung around the creek, which was some distance from their pen, hoping that some of them would come down to bathe, but the geese were too wise and they never ventured to the creek while the fox was about "The fox was afraid to come near the geese's pen, so he hung around a big tree that stood pretty near the place and worked out what I call a mighty cute trick. He picked out a silly young fat goose and told her how beautiful she was—what pretty feathers she had—and in a short time he had that foolish thing thinking that she was the most beautiful and wonderful goose in the world.

"'My,' thought the goose, 'I wish I could go down to the creek and see myself reflected in the water. I must be very beautiful, Indeed.'

"Well, sir, it worked just as the fox thought it would. That silly goose ran off down the creek to get a look at herself, and while she stood admiring her reflection Mr. Fox sneaked up and pounced upon her."

"Did-d-d-did he eat her?" asked the Dunce.

"He licked her bones as clean as a pin," answered the duck, looking around at his big eyed audience.

IN some parts of the country summer has been a rather elusive season, lost in the mists and rain that have hung heavily on the treeclad hills and languid lakes. But now that the calendar points us toward cool autumn days the inertia of summer departs and women returning from their sojourn at the mountains or the seaside are eager to discover the trend of fashion. Even before the new gowns make their appearance she chooses her new headgear, for well she knows that a shabby hat or one that has weathered the blazing sun and heavy showers of summer detracts more from the charm of her personal appearance than any other feature of her attire.

In the accompanying illustration many delightful models are pictured for those who would be correctly and becomingly hatted. Among the fabrics chosen for their fashioning are rich velvet, whose beautiful soft pile lends itself so well to many of the new season's models, panne velvet, and hatter's plush. Felt is also used, and while it is not likely that it will meet with as universal approval as velvet, yet the lovely colors in which it appears and its excellent quality will doubtless do much for its popularity.

A beautiful gray felt is favored for the pleasing model at the upper left of the page. The upturned brim slashed in vari-sized segments is edged with silver cord, while the gray feather that droops over it is daintily tipped with silver. The hat to the right shows a clever development in mastic silk velvet. This tam shape is finished with a narrow brim and trimmed with smart bronzed ostrich tips.

A quaint but dressy little hat is depicted at the outer edge of the page. A velvet shape is used for the foundation. Silver tulle is set about the crown and also forms a circular veil. The filmy folds of this cobwebby material are effectively restrained by a band of gray ribbon that marks the base of the crown. An edging of gray ermine defines the height of the trimming, while the veil is prettily embroidered in mauve and black beads, the solitary motif being placed at the left side.

Facing this model is another hat well suited for morning or outing wear. This is originated in pale pink felt and adorned with a band of pink grosgrain ribbon, finished with a prim little bow at the back. About the crown are black velvet motifs, the inspiration of this trimming being found in the barnyard. This style of hat is exceedingly popular. There is a great variety in the motifs used, and these are evolved from different fabrics in various colors, although those in black velvet are probably best liked.

A new feature in the season's millinery is the brim turned up straight from the forehead. On reading this statement one may exclaim, "How unbecoming!" Yet the new models are exceedingly chic, for the upturning is cleverly done and there is usually a pleasing flare at the sides of the hat.

A chapeau that is a smart vindication of the charm of the upturned brim is illustrated at the lower left of the picture. Velvet and felt are combined in this model, the former being used for the facing of the brim. The only ornament on this creation is a handsome steel stickup that marks the center front of the hat.

Another interpretation of this new style is featured in the model that is pictured at the lower right of the page. The crown and upper brim are made of ecru felt, the underbrim, prettily tipped in front, being of a rich bronze velvet. A handsome plume is affixed to the front, the long flues loosely curling backwards on the crown.

Many of the new hats are rather odd in shape. While the range of colors is quite varied, much favor is shown to bright red.

Simplicity in trimming is characteristic of many of the hats, and while this naturally lessens the amount of materials used on such creations, there is no denying the charm of such models.

Numbers of the felt and velours hats for street and sports wear are elaborated with touches of hand embroidery in silk or wool—decorations that take the place of other trimmings.

Wide ribbons, richly embroidered, are used in lieu of the narrow bands that were favored on summer models. Bows are varied in style, flyaway butterfly models being much admired, and these are frequently found on the edge of the brim. Frills of velvet that flare smartly upward are also enjoying a pleasing vogue, and much fur trimming will grace cold weather hats.

The trend toward the empire period in dress is interestingly revealed in the model that is depicted in the illustration on this page. The skirt is ankle length, a decided change from the abbreviated modes that have been so much esteemed of late, and the short waisted bodice supplies another note from the same picturesque era of dress. The gown is made of a rich white faille lavishly embroidered with steel beads and a band of ermine set in scallop style above the bead embroidered motifs. The corsage with its round shaped decolletage is enriched with exquisite point lace, and the filmy sleeves are of lemon color tulle that matches the ribbons primly set about the waist line and the bodice.

Metalized silks are among the well liked fabrics for elaborate evening gowns. Taffetas and satins in many lovely colors are also employed and they are alight with exquisite spangle decorations. Admiration is never lacking for the tulle gowns, and this season many beautiful effects are achieved. Various shades are superimposed, so that delightfully unusual color effects are obtained. Ribbons, too, are used on these dainty frocks, whose fullness is always ample.

The wraps which are worn with these diaphanous gowns are fashioned from rich silks heavily embroidered with metal, or when plain failles are chosen they are usually adorned with high standing collars of beautiful fur.

This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

DURING the week of Aug. 20 the horoscope sign changes from the lion to that of the virgin, and the qualities of those who are born under this influence change accordingly. Aug. 23 and 24 fall under what is called the cusp of Leo and Virgo, so if your birthday comes on those days you will partake of the influences of both the preceding and the following signs.

This is the great motherhood sign and these first degrees unite the force and energy of Leo with the practical nature of Virgo. As a result you will have a great capacity for enjoyment and the faculty of drawing the blessings of life your way. You can mind your own business far better than the more pronounced Virgo type, and do not take offense so easily.

You will make a valuable member of society, always helpful and sympathetic. You love the great outdoors and are tireless when in pursuit of outdoor sports.

If your birthday falls during the week following the 25th the literary ability that so marks this period begins to be markedly apparent. And you will be blessed with a remarkable command of language, will never be at a loss for words, and, what is better still, usually will have something interesting and sensible to say.

Well might your label be "Conscientious." In fact, you have enough and to spare of this much to be desired trait. So it is quite natural that you can easily win the trust of your employer and fellow workmen and the public at large. You will be successful no matter in what walk of life you choose to go, though you may reach the greatest heights as musicians, chemists, public speakers, writers, and editors.

Even though you are rather easily irritated and apt to be blunt, yet the kindly vein that runs throughout your nature takes the sting away from your hasty speeches. People instinctively make a confidant of you, and you seldom tell.

You are extremely fond of music and usually are an expert on some instrument. And, too, you like all that is best in art and poetry. But it must not be mediocre, that you cannot abide. You are a fine judge of paintings and your opinion is often sought for by other critics.

You carry this rather overscrupulous tendency into all the habits of your life; you cannot sleep in a disorderly room; dusty furniture makes you downright "peevish," and you will lose your appetite if there is quarreling at the table.

As a book reviewer you are a wonder; while most people are perusing the title page you have skimmed through and gotten the exact pith of the whole matter, and no error in grammar or expression has escaped you. Hence it is that Virgo folk make the best proofreaders in the world.

The occult and mysterious always appeal to you strongly, and your psychic powers are capable of great development. The deeper currents of thought are what move you, and though you may seem to be changeable in your opinions, in reality your convictions are always settled.

You want the best of everything in a material way, and when you can afford it you spare no money. But, on the other hand, if your circumstances confine you to rigid economy, you will cheerfully adapt yourself to existing conditions and share your last crust with a friend. Then if fortune smiles upon you, every one is the gainer; at all times you are unselfishly generous.

Virgo women are inclined to be hero worshipers, and both men and women make devoted husbands and wives. A marriage of Virgo and Pisces, Feb. 20-March 21, usually results in harmony and happiness; Virgo married to another of its sign is a wonderfully sympathetic union, if each gives up his domineering tendencies; and Virgo and Libra, Sept. 24-Oct. 23, is apt to prove a happy conjugal union.

Your colors are amber, gold, and black; birthstones, sapphire and jasper.

Virgo people will be successful with enterprises begun during the weeks beginning May 10 and Dec. 28, but unfortunate during the week beginning June 21.

Boy Parts Two Chums.

"Dear Miss Blake: I would appreciate it if you would answer the following questions:

"Two girls are fond of the same boy. He seems to like both A and B, but seems to take A home first and B last. Which do you think he is most fond of? B claims the one who is taken home last is the one who is liked the most. Both girls live on the same street. A frets very much when he takes B home. Do you think it was right for A not to speak to this young man because he had taken B home alone one night? A accused B of taking her friend away.

"Now, Miss Blake, will you please settle the disagreement between these two girls? Both are pals, but it seems since this boy came into their mind they had quarrels. The girls are 16 years old. BLONDY."

'Twas ever thus, Blondy, when an ambitious young man tries to make a hit with two girl chums! I don't think the problem of whom he takes home first or last is a deciding feature. You are both so young the infatuation for the boy will, in every probability, be only temporary. I think it is awfully too bad that you girls just don't laugh about it instead of quarrel. Don't break up your friendship over him.

The Fickle Thing!

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a girl of 18, and have been keeping company with a boy two years my senior since February.

"About a month ago I found out that he was also going with another girl and is engaged to her. One evening I told him about it, and since have received very cold treatment at times. Still he denies it and insist on keeping my company.

"Now, Miss Blake, I am not in love with him, but have gone with him as a friend. What shall I do? Still be friends with him? The first girl, it seems, has first rights.

"He is good looking and I am not, but still he seems to care a great deal for me. "C. W."

If it is true that he is engaged to the other girl I would give him a "walking ticket" right away, if I were you. If he is capable of such fickleness he is most unworthy as a prospective husband. As long as you don't care much about him, there is nothing in the world to be gained by continuing his company. You may lose out on other and better opportunities.

She Loves Him Now.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a young girl of 18 needing your advice. For months I frequently went out with a young man, but at that time I didn't appreciate him.

"He has always been a gentleman in every respect, but it bored me whenever he was around. I treated him shamefully, but he still seemed to care for me.

"A few months ago I heard he was going with another girl. I now see my great mistake, but before I couldn't. My folks have always spoken highly of him, but I could never bear to listen to them or take their advice.

"Some of my close friends have told me to call him up and invite him out, but others have told me not to. It is very seldom that I ever see him, but when I do he always stops and talks to me pleasantly. I can't forget him. He is constantly on my mind. I go out with other boys, but care for none like I do for him.

"What shall I do to win him back? I don't want him to think I am tagging him up, but at the same time I want him to know that I now care. JEANETTE."

Are you sure that it is not the fact that the man is going about with another girl that has revived your interest in him? You might drop him a note and ask him to spend an evening with you some time, or you might plan a little party and include him in it. His actions then would indicate to you whether you were to be reinstated or not.

Love at Thirteen.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a girl 13 years of age and in love with a boy of the same age. When we are together he tries to put his arm around me. I will not let him do this. He will not go with me any more for that reason. Am I right? Am I too young to go with a boy? Should I go with him if he flirts with other girls? "ANXIOUS."

I would like to have you by your ear at this very moment, you naughty child. I would revive an old fashioned mode of punishment for you. The very idea of a girl of 13 talking about love and going with a boy! I see where you are going to make a lot of trouble for Doris Blake when you get a little older unless you resolve right here and now to put the boys out of your mind and let your studies and your girl friends take their place.

The Voice of an Enemy.

"Dear Miss Blake: I have been going with a girl for about two years. We have been the best of friends. She has been going with one other fellow. He has been telling her untruthful things about me, and now she won't let me come to see her any more. She treated one other fellow the same way. What shall I do? MARK."

Well, Mark, if I were a man I know what I would do if another fellow were telling my best girl things that were not true. Although I hate to advocate rough treatment in my column, if I were in your place I certainly would, in the language of the street, make that fellow "eat his words." A woman has a lot of respect, you know, for a man who, when he is in the right, stands up for that right and makes other men respect it.

Unsettled Elmer.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am asking you for aid. My girl mentioned marriage to me and I am asking you for advice. I am young and I would like to know whether a fellow can have more fun after he is married or before.

"She is away and wants me to come to see her. She mentioned it to me through letters.

"There is another girl here who wishes me to go with her. She is nearer my age, and is prettier, only not quite as rich, and she is more strict with love and more jealous of a boy. What shall I do? ELMER."

If you happen to strike the right mate, married life is the ideal one. I think you had better not have anything more to do with the girl who is writing you about getting married. It is obvious that you don't love her as much as you love her money. You seem to be in an unsettled state, Elmer, and I think you had better wait until you are a couple of years older before taking such a momentous step.

He Walks Right In.

"Dear Miss Blake: My father's society is giving a picnic and I have been inivted to go. Do you think it proper for me to invite my friend to go with me? As I know no one and am acquainted with no one from that society, do you think it right for him to refuse me? He usually works on Sundays, but do you not think that where there is a will there is a way? Also, my dear Miss Blake, do you think it right for a young man to come visiting any one unexpected? My friend often comes to see me so unexpectedly that many a time he has found me in bed. Don't you think he ought to write and let me know when he is coming to see me? "E. E."

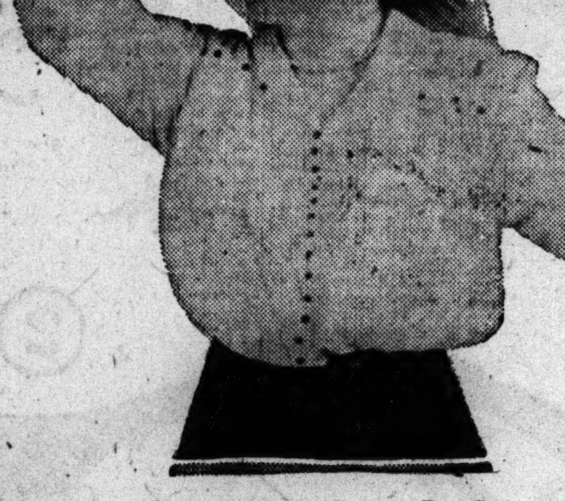
Yes, you might invite the young man to go to the picnic with you if the invitation does not require his purchasing tickets. It would be unreasonable to expect the young man to attend a picnic, however, on a day on which he had to work. Nowadays, it does seem as though a man should understand that a girl would like to be advised when he is coming to see her. It is irritating to be "walked in upon" at any time. I would tell the young man if I were you that you would like to know when he was coming so that you could be ready to receive him.

How I Corrected Miss Hosmer's Dry, Thin and Falling Hair.

By Antoinette Donnelly

Before She Began Treatments a Big Handful of Hair Used to Remain on the Brush.

Now Just the Ordinary Amount of Falling Hair Appears After Brushing.



"Ratting" the Hair, a Too Frequent Destroyer.

This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

"MY scalp feels so clean and full of life. My hair hasn't looked as well in years as it does now. It has a luster I despaired of ever possessing again. And, best of all, it has almost entirely stopped coming out. Also, since the first week I started following the instructions laid out for me I have not had a single recurrence of the nervous headaches that had become almost chronic with me."

So says Miss Hosmer, the model, whose dry, thin and falling hair was the subject of last week's article and this.

There isn't much in the way of accomplishment that cannot be done if the desire and the stick-to-itiveness are there. A fat woman cannot hope to get thing without these two qualities. The same thing applies to a thin woman and her efforts to get fat. So hair troubles will never be corrected without a strong desire to correct them and an equally strong capacity for stick-to-itiveness. Spasmodic brushings and spasmodic applications of tonics and care of the hair will result as unsatisfactorily as an occasional exercise acts towards reducing flesh.

If your hair is thin and dry, as was Miss Hosmer's, you have got to be faithful to the brushing of it morning and night. Five minutes, at least, must be devoted to it if hope of any correction is entertained. First, brushing cleans the scalp. Second, it stimulaes it to activity, and, third, it distributes through the hair the fat of the sebaceous glands of the scalp and gives a beautiful sheen. Some hair authorities contend that brushing the scalp vigorously is the best way of massaging it.

Miss Hosmer's hair was as dry and harsh and lusterless as hemp when I first took her in hand. I insisted on her brushing vigorously for fifteen minutes every morning and fifteen minutes at night. Today there is a most satisfactory feeling of "life" to hair and scalp. The brush she used was firm enough to enable her to exert a degree of force upon the scalp without irritating it.

In addition to the morning and evening brushing of the hair, Miss Hosmer massaged her scalp, using a hair tonic which I shall repeat here for the benefit of those who may have missed it last week: Resorcin, forty-five grains; glycerin, one ounce, and diluted alcohol to fill a six ounce bottle.

Anent shampooing dry hair, there is a fear current that frequent shampooing will remove all the oil in the scalp and damage will be done by the dryness resulting. Miss Hosmer used to entertain this fear and she would wash her hair not oftener than once a month. But I started her in with two shampoos a week, and for four weeks she continued with the semi-weekly shampoo. The fifth week she gave herself but one shampoo and will continue this for a while, gradually increasing to an interval of ten days or two weeks. I found in her case that more oil was fed her scalp by the shampoo stimulating the oil glands and improving the circulation of her scalp. To aid in producing an anti-dry result, the night before her shampoo I had her use the following: One-third teaspoon ichthyol and three tablespoons of castor oil heated and applied to her scalp as hot as possible. Then she tied her head up in a towel and let this application remain on until her shampoo the following morning. I want to warn you that the ichthyol, which is a powerful germicide, is unpleasant to use because of its odor. But it does the work so far as the dandruff is concerned. If you find it too disagreeable, you might rub the castor oil well into the scalp. Ichthyol contains 10 per cent sulphur.

For hair that has been dyed or bleached and the owner wants to get it back to its original color an egg shampoo in which eight or twelve eggs are used is recommended. Apply four eggs beaten up first after you have wet the hair, and rub in well; change the water, being careful to not get it hot, with the result of baked eggs on your head, and then use four more eggs beaten up; a third such procedure if the price of eggs will allow is advised, and then a good rinsing off. No soap is used at all.

Electricity as a local stimulant has value in treating hair troubles. But it must be done under expert supervision or more harm than good may result. Generally speaking, the vigorous daily massage and brushing will be as effective.

In dressing hair, whether it be thin or thick, dry or oily, it is important to make no violent strain upon the roots, as this has a tendency to loosen and cause a falling of the hair. There should be no twists or knots which produce a feeling of discomfort, for such are certain to prove injurious. Ratting the hair to build up the pompadour is a frequet destroyer of hair. It were far better to wear false hair than thus destroy your own pecious locks.

Dry hair needs airing and sunning quite as much as oily. The sunning must not be overdone, however, for too frequent exposure will fade the color. In cases of thin hair this is particularly applicable. But you cannot overdo the airing of the hair. Your scalp needs fresh air. Your hair needs it. So don't bind your hair up in tight braids at night or tuck it under a tight boudoir cap. Let the air blow through it every possible occasion.

An authority declares that systematic deep breathing will soon show its good effects upon the condition of the hair, keeping at bay the blanching specter. This is not far fetched a bit when you remember that the hair must share in the general state of health and that it gets its sustenance from the blood. Loss of hair is associated frequently with disturbances of the physical health, sometimes of minor degree. Sometimes the individuals are highly nervous and overwrought. And, of course, this form of falling hair requires treatment of the underlying conditions and this treatment must be directed to the individual case. But in the meantime the massage and measures of local stimulation I have recommended in my article on oily hair and dry hair will result in a great deal of good.

At some future date I shall write an article on the treatment of gray hair. In the meantime I trust your hair troubles will be as successfully overcome as those of my two models, Miss Hahn and Miss Hosmer. If you missed any of the formulas and tonics recommended, send me a stamped, addressed envelope and I shall forward you the instructions followed by the above named young women.

Answers to Beauty Seekers.

MYRTLE: Horseback riding is a most fascinating and health giving sport. It is extremely exhilarating, for by it the whole body is stirred up from its sluggishness. The open air is invaluable in this sport. The lungs and heart are forced to do more work in a shorter time and so deep breathing adds its benefits.

* *

B. R.: You will have to continue the daily massage of your face and chin to remove the wattles. Go over your face and chin with a good cold cream and massage it for a couple of minutes, ending with a rubbing over of either camphorated ice or plain ice to close the pores. Do this three times a day. Twice a day will answer if you are so situated that you cannot do it in the middle of the day.

* *

MRS. F. H.: A red nose may be caused from indigestion or poor circulation. The only remedy is to exercise to stimulate the circulation, a careful diet, eliminating fried foods, and guarding against constipation. This is an excellent lotion for oily skin: Orange flower water, six ounces; tincture of benzoin, one-half ounce; witch hazel, two ounces. Mix the witch hazel and the orange flower water, shake lightly, and add to the tincture of benzoin. Apply with a piece of absorbent cotton night and morning. Lack of space will not permit me to answer all your questions through this column, but if you will send me a stamped, addressed envelope I shall be happy to write you a letter.

SKINNAY: Strenuous exercise, as necessary for reducing weight, is not advisable in the attempt to put on weight. However, exercises in mild form each day are necessary to increase the circulation of the blood and to whet the appetite. In my process of increasing Helene Barnett's weight twenty pounds in five weeks I had her take a long walk twice a day, either in the morning or afternoon, and before retiring. She walked not less than three miles and many times four and five miles.

LYLE W.: This is the deep breathing exercise I gave Helene Barnett in my work of increasing her weight twenty pounds in five weeks: Stand before an open window with arms at side; slowly raise arms in outward circle up over head until hands touch, inhaling deeply as this upward movement is made; then slowly let the arms fall in outward circle movement back to original position, exhaling as arms are brought down. Do this twenty times night and morning. If twenty times tires you at first do it only ten times until you can do it oftener without exertion, increasing to fifty. I shall be glad to send you any of the articles you missed if you will send me a stamped, addressed envelope.

LOUISE: It is absolutely necessary to wash your hair oftener than once in two months if you want a clean, healthy scalp and healthy hair. The proper frequency of shampooing depends upon the condition of the scalp and the amount of dirt to which the hair is exposed. For the average person once in three weeks is often enough to shampoo the hair. When you lie down for a rest lie flat upon your back, legs straight, arms relaxed at side, head flat.

ADA: A muddy, sallow complexion is usually the result of an inactive liver. In order to excite the liver to proper action take a teaspoonful of olive oil every morning three-quarters of an hour before breakfast. Or you can take the unsweetened juice of a lemon in a glass of water before breakfast.

ALICE: For a journey that takes you over night in a sleeping car, be sure to take a neat kimono or "Pullman gown," as it is often called, of some dark, thin material, so that you can go from your berth to the women's dressing room for morning ablutions. It is wise also to wear it in the berth at night instead of a night gown, as these are rather public couches. If you have room in your valise, take a fresh blouse to put on just before arriving at your destination. A veil tied about your head at night keeps out some of the inevitable dust of travel. The less you eat on a journey the better you'll feel at its end. It's a good time to fast. You are not exercising at all and occasional fasting is good for soul and body.

BROWN EYED BESS: No, I do not charge for my advice. I shall be glad to answer any queries through this column, or write you a personal letter if you will send me a stamped, addressed envelope. All letters which come to me are considered strictly confidential, so have no hesitation in telling me your "beauty" troubles.

* *

BECKIE: Hot vinegar will remove vermin from the hair. Immerse your head in vinegar just as hot as can be borne, and hold it there for five minutes. Then shampoo with a good shampoo. The first treatment generally eliminates the trouble. Tincture of larkspur also is excellent. It can be purchased at any drug store, with directions for using.

* *

WAITING: Tangly hair can easily be combed by taking time to separate the snarls with your fingers. Grasp the comb between the thumb and the first two fingers and carefully draw it down the length of the hair. Two or three gentle efforts of this kind will generally disentangle the snarls without pulling out the hair.

FORTY: The color cannot be restored to gray hair. The roots of the hair are imbedded in the hair follicles and cannot be reached by any fluids applied to the scalp. You might, however, prevent the hair from becoming more gray by taking a course of scalp treatments. The grayness of the hair is due to loss of pigment. The scalp massage stimulates the circulation and promotes a proper flow of blood to the roots and gives them nourishment.

* *

F. G.: Don't commit suicide because your legs are fat. A well proportioned, shapely leg is infinitely more attractive than a thin, bony one. I really think you can have the laugh on all the girls because you are so fortunate. I am sure it is nothing but pure jealousy on their part. Don't stay at home any more Sundays and cry, but just go out and have a good time. Graduation time is not time to be thinking of such a thing; you should be happy in the thought that you have successfully completed your school work and will now be able to do something worth while in the world. In a class of fifty or even less no one in the audience would pay any particular attention to the details of one person's appearance when going up to the stage to receive her diploma. Your stamped, addressed envelope never reached me. I am sure if it had you would have had a nice little letter of reproof long ere this.

ETIQUETTE

by ELIZABETH VAN RENSSELAER

A Modulated Voice.

SHAKSPEARE once said, "Her voice was ever soft, gentle, and low—an excellent thing in woman," but he need not have stopped there, for it is as desirable in a man as in a woman. Nothing is so pleasing to well bred people as a voice that, while it can plainly be heard, is yet low and well modulated.

The barker at the circus, or the vender of patent medicines on the street corner, each loudly crying his wares, may need a strident and ringing voice to notify people of his presence, but no truly careful person needs loud speech to make himself heard.

And while we are bringing this gentle quality to light it might be well to mention that deplorable habit of us Americans of shouting from room to room. When the telephone rings and we turn to find Mary or John or mother or father it would be so much better to use, instead of our lungs, our perfectly capable feet to discover the whereabouts of the person in question. And would not Mary or John infinitely prefer to have a gentle summons after the jangling telephone bell?

Americans are said to have harsher voices than any other people, but can we not try to soften rather than to sharpen them?

E. M. S.: As people are apt to ask only a few guests to house weddings, it is always best to send an answer.

* *

AGNES G.: There are a great many kinds of showers that may be given for brides, but there are none more delightful than a good old fashioned kitchen shower. In this day, when aluminum is so much in style, the array of gifts is pleasing to the eye, as well as being extremely useful. Anything, from a cooky cutter to a bread mixer, would be acceptable, and with such a wide range of gifts the means of every purse can be found adequate. You might ask your friends to come in, leaving their gifts on a table near by, to be opened later. Then set them to hemming cheese cloth dusters for the bride. You can provide the cheese cloth at very little expense, and so you have something for them to do that is easy and interesting. Suppose you offer a small prize for the one who finishes her duster first, and for the one who hems the most in a certain length of time.

Ice cream and cake is plenty to offer in the way of refreshment, and quite appropriate.

By the time your guests depart the bride will have her kitchen partly equipped and a good pile of dusters with which to keep the utensils spotless.

E. B. B.: The correct way to introduce a man to a woman is to say, "Mrs. (or Miss) Smith, may I present Mr. Jones?" To introduce a young girl to a woman simply say, "Mrs. Smith, this is Mary Brown," or "Mrs. Smith, may I present Mary Brown?"

When introducing two men it is enough to mention simply their names, for instance, "Mr. Brown, Mr. Taylor."

Any question on etiquette will be answered if you write to Elizabeth Van Rensselaer, "Chicago Sunday Tribune." If you wish a personal reply inclose a stamped, addressed envelope. Please write on one side of the paper only.

Real Love Stories

This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

Do you know a real love story—one that is stranger than fiction? It is the idea that is wanted. No attention will be paid to literary style. "The Tribune" will pay $5 for every story published. Manuscripts will not be returned. Address Doris Blake, "The Tribune," Chicago.

Playing with Fire.

IN the little village of Claire lived my dear friend and myself. Life had sped happily along for us, until Jim Hughes left college and came home to spend a short vacation with his parents and decide which law office in the great city he should enter.

Anna and Jim were always great friends, but Anna's feeling for Jim had deepened each vacation time, when he came home bringing gay glimpses of the college world. I was older and enjoyed the bright young fellow and his rather earnest conversation and strong viewpoint upon practical things and hoped he would settled down and marry our little faithful friend, who, I was almost sure, loved him in her quiet way.

Anna lived with an aunt, her father, a widower, had been urged to spare one of his motherless flock to this aunt with none of her own.

Life had many hardships for her though, but a happy disposition and light heart helped Anna over her far from smooth path.

This summer Anna's father wished his daughter's company. She must obey. Why would this command come this summer of all times? She came to me with her sorrow. "You know Jim has written me all the year, and I am sure we will be more than friends," she confided with shining eyes. "You keep him with you all you can, that he may not devote all his leisure to Mrs. Kent's niece, who will be here this summer. Her pretty frocks, her city ways, and baby blue eyes will be very appealing the long summer evenings, and with Mrs. Kent's gay hospitality he will never see me again. There is no one else in town to interest him in that way."

My poor little friend—the secret was out. If I could keep him for her I would certainly try. I, the older woman, was proof against his youthful charms. So I promised to devote my time to this fickle youth.

Jim was being useful to his father while resting before his plunge into the great professional world. His father, the village attorney, had political ambitions. This bright son sped over the country roads in his big red car collecting fees and promoting politics a little.

I saw my friend off, and with some doubt as to my power to allure this man from gay youth, invited Jim to dinner Sunday. I easily found the topics of conversation that interested him.

The dinner was a success, and, of course, an invitation followed to drive the next day to a neighboring town. I got myself ready in a becoming automobile veil and coat, studied the sporting sheet, informed myself on leading points of law, the races, and such a ride, such a day as we had; how we visited, the merry jokes, our lunch at a distant country inn. It was evening when we reached home again.

"I'll be over about 8," he said, as I got out of the car; "that is, if I may."

"O yes, indeed; do come," I said, giving him my most expectant glance.

He came. In a transparent, soft affair, most becoming to me, a rose in my hair, a bud for his coat lapel from my garden, I greeted him. We sat long in the moonlight, discussed love and sweethearts, the world and good friends, propinquity and love at first sight.

"Do you believe two people of congenial tastes could spend a summer together and not fall in love?" he asked me, giving me a deep look, as though my reply was the one thing in the world he wished most to hear. That was a fav ite glance of his, and I knew many the sweet girl that could not resist it.

"Certainly," I said.

"Do you believe that you and I could continue, days like today, and ever be able to give them up?"

WALTER STICKNEY

"Certainly," I answered, more positively than before.

With another long look that almost pierced my armor, he said: "I don't believe it; I chaleinge you."

"All right—two months." That was the time my friend would be away.

The compact was arranged and he said, "Good night."

I went into the house gleefully. Jim would not fall into the net laid by Mrs. Kent and her visitor. I would hand Jim over to Anna heart free.

But, alas! The perfect summer was drawing to a close. The two months were over. All his plans for the future we had discussed. In all his ambitions I had encouraged him with all my heart. The winter's reading was planned, lists of books made out. The play best to see. The galleries of fine arts to visit and great masters to become familiar with. How had it all happened? Where was my good resolutions, where my strength of character.

Jim would be with me in a minute. What should I say? How say good-by? There was an unknown weight about my heart.

The quick, familiar step on the walk, the bound upon the porch, a handclasp with such a grip.

"This cannot be our last evening together," he said. "I cannot go away without you. Our lives are intertwined by fate. You are my inspiration, my guiding star. We belong to each other."

I tried to protest. I tried to break loose from those powerful arms. I thought of my friend, but not a sound came from my lips.

How shall I face my friend? J. H.

Before and After Marriage.

The Real Thing.

We live in the country and when he came to see me in our courtship days and found me carrying coal or water he used to vow that when we were married I should never, never carry either one. We had been married seven years and in all that time he has kept his word. My neighbors call him the model husband and so do I—model not meaning in this case a small imitation of the real thing. R. Washed Pans First.

During a recent illness in our family each member was compelled to lend a hand at housekeeping. Whenever brother's turn came for dishwashing the glasses had a dull, murky look. When questioned he explained that the pots and pans were such a bugbear he always washed them first to get them out of the way, finishing up the glasses in the same dish water. MRS. H. A.

He's a Teaser.

It was after our marriage that my husband developed the spirit of teasing. Always and everlastingly he tells of my mistakes in cooking and his sufferings therefrom.

The other evening he was holding forth on the same funny subject when one of the women present took it seriously. "Poor dear," says she, "I'll be glad to teach you how to cook."

I am still mad and I recollect that before our marriage my husband was never known to tease any one—and I'm not such a bad cook, either. M. E.

Better Than Ever.

Before our marriage my husband was truly the grandest lover a girl could ever imagine, and after five years of married life I realize he wasn't half as good a lover before as he is now. Every little thing I wish for he always manages to get way, and if I ever tell him what a d husband he is, he always says: " could I be anything else with you? lieve me, little g it's the sloppy kim so many women wear to breakfast, fact most of the day, that kills a band's love." Truly I have found ou pays to be always neat and keep yo husband your lover. F. E.

Changed His Automobile Manners.

My lover owned an automobile and he always urged me to drive it. I was slow in learning, but his patience was boundless. His words were usually ones of sweet encouragement, like "You are doing beautifully, surprisingly well in so short a time," etc. Since my lover became my husband he has changed his automobile manners. If I shift the gears too slowly he tells me I will never learn to run a car. And the other evening he scared me so I thought I had broken the whole machine when I merely "killed the engine." C. S.

KILL HAIR ROOTS
$5,000.00 OFFER

The only depilatory that hospitals have found it possible to use for removing hair from scalp and lacerated wounds is DeMiracle, the original, antiseptic, sanitary liquid, which proves conclusively that it always has been and is the one perfect, safe and sanitary method for removing hair.

Furthermore, only DeMiracle has the power to devitalize hair. To further substantiate this we will pay $5,000.00 for proof that any paste, powder, or liquid imitation of DeMiracle ever did or ever will kill a single hair root gradually or otherwise.

Remember, others advertise guaranteed but give none. DeMiracle is the only depilatory that has a binding guarantee in each package. DeMiracle is sold in three sizes, 50c, $1.00 and $2.00. Buy a bottle to-day, it works equally well for removing hair from face, neck, arms, under arms or limbs.

All good stores including The Public Drug Co., and Buck & Rayner's six stores sell DeMiracle, or it will be mailed post paid on receipt of price by us.

The truth about the treatment of superfluous hair in plain sealed envelope on request. DeMiracle Chemical Co., Park Ave. and 129th St., New York.

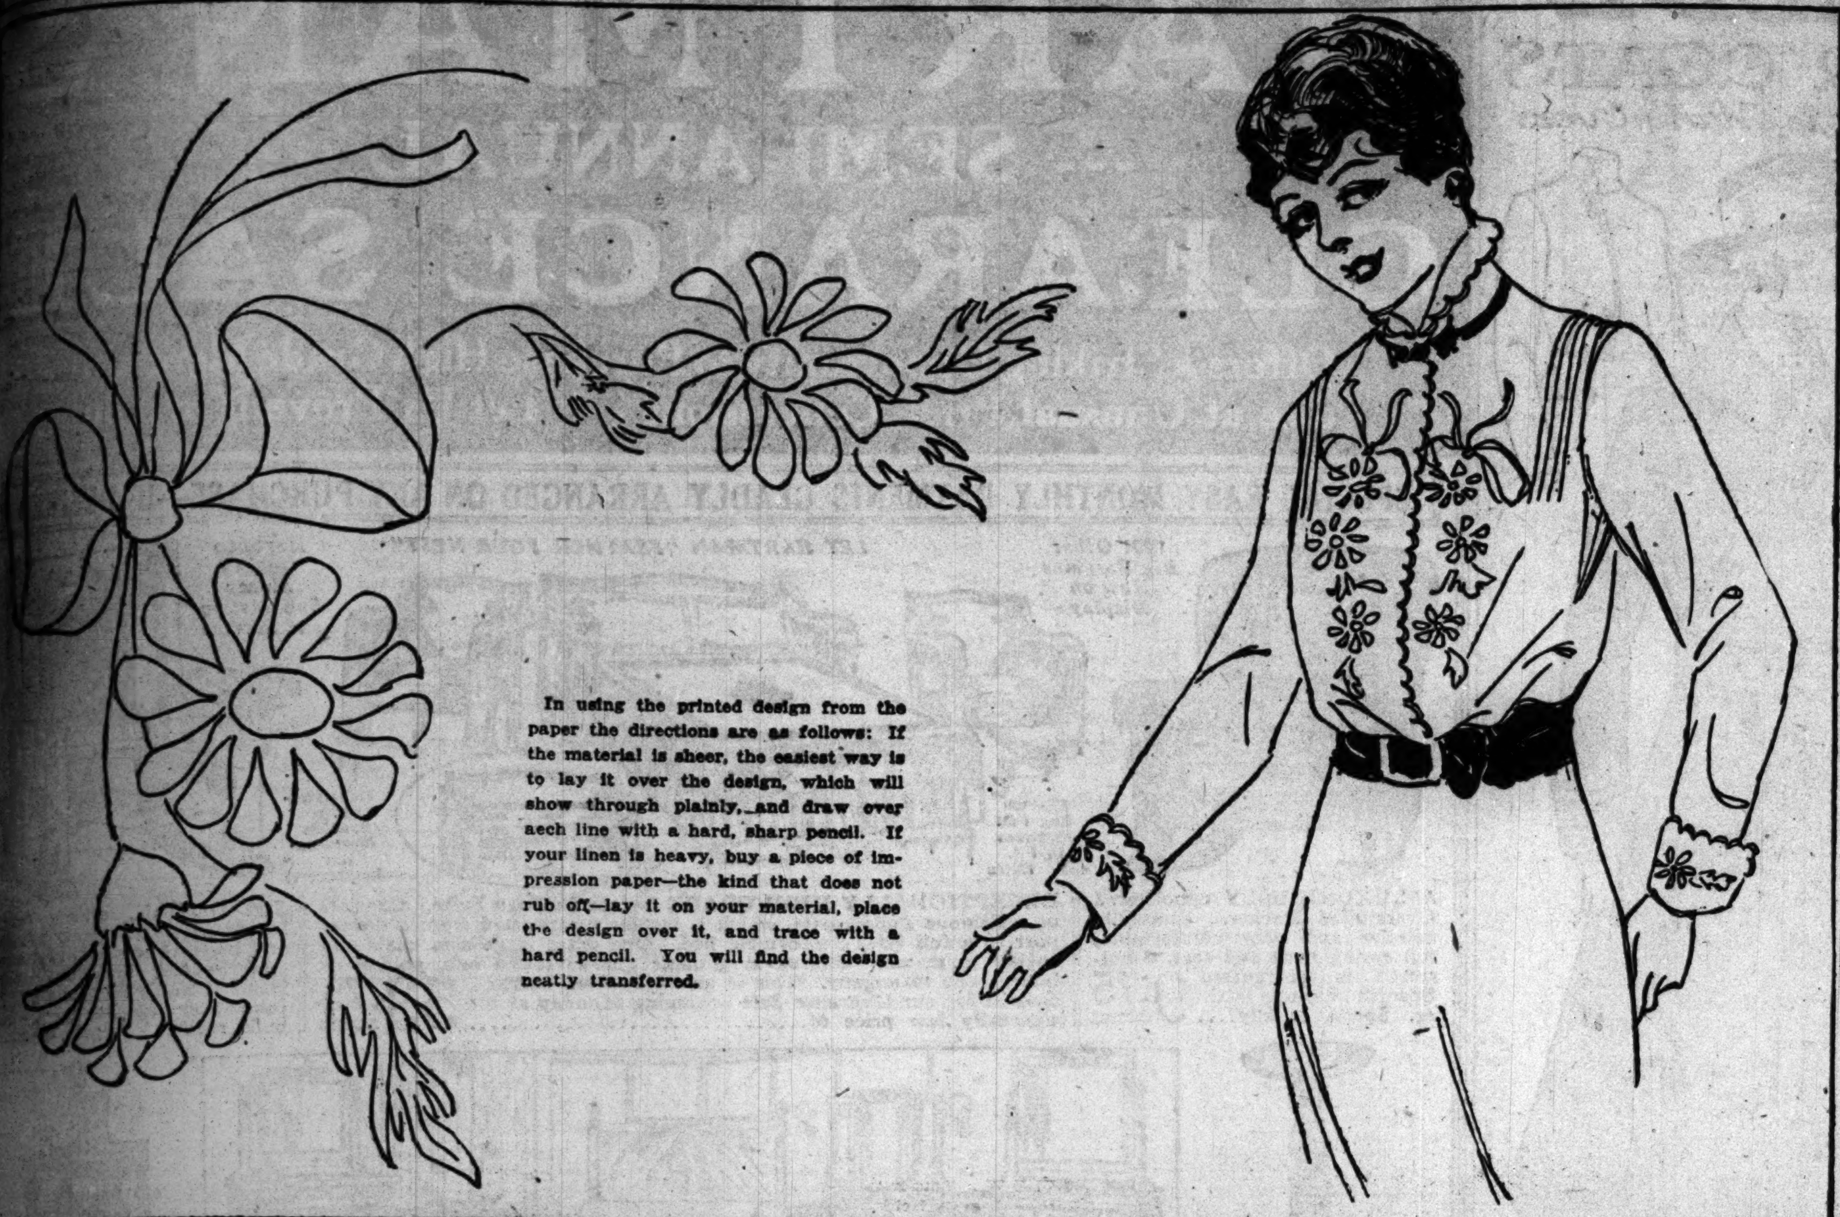
Simple Embroidery Design for Fall Waist.



In using the printed design from the paper the directions are as follows: If the material is sheer, the easiest way is to lay it over the design, which will show through plainly, and draw over aech line with a hard, sharp pencil. If your linen is heavy, buy a piece of impression paper—the kind that does not rub off—lay it on your material, place the design over it, and trace with a hard pencil. You will find the design neatly transferred.

My Most Embarrassing Moment.

"The Tribune" will pay $1 for every letter published on the subject "The Most Embarrassing Moment of My Life Was When ——." Address Embarrassing Moments Editor, "Sunday Tribune," Chicago. Write on only one side of the paper. No manuscripts will be returned.

A Social Blunder.

One evening I went to a dancing party given by a crowd of young men, after which we went to a nearby tearoom for a midnight supper. At the table I sat next to a young man whom I had only met a few times, but with whom I had been having a good time all evening. As I sat down I noticed that there was not a napkin at my place, so I turned to him to ask if he had it. Imagine my embarrassment to hear myself saying, instead of what I intended, "Have you got my nightgown?" E. L. M.

Thought Her Janitress.

While I was waiting with my friend to practice for a high school play a lady came into the room carrying a broom. I thought she was a janitress, so I said, "O, did you want to sweep in here?" Great was my embarrassment when she haughtily replied, "No, I expect to coach my pupils in a Mother Goose play." E. B.

Dropped Her Handkerchief.

While walking down the street one day I met the fellow all girls call a terrible flirt, and one who trinks he can flirt with any one he cares to. He tried it with me and I put up my head and paid no attention, but after a while I dropped my handkerchief. The wind was strong and blowing the direction the fellow was going. I started to run after the handkerchief and finally picked it up while he was watching and grinning fiendishly. He made no attempt to pick it up for me. Can you imagine my embarrassment? I suppose he thought I was willing anyway and used this for a signal. R. M. O.

The Boys and Their Suits.

About sixteen young men and women were seated around a table in an ice cream parlor. The Kansas militia had just returned from a week's camp at Fort Riley, and about six soldiers came in the door, dressed in their uniforms. I immediately said: "O, look! Don't you just love to see boys in their 'union-suits'?" Meaning, of course, uniforms, but somehow the other slipped out. L. W.

She Lost Her Cake.

The other noon hour I decided to try a caféteria, rather than the usual lunchroom. I was decidedly nervous, as I never had experienced the art of juggling a tray full of dishes. And, sure enough! Though I got my dinner all right, I dropped a piece of cake covered with whipped cream. I hastily picked it up, but as I heard the people laugh I became more nervous, got excited, and put the piece of dilapidated cake upon the tray of the man behind me. Well, I just stood there and stammered till he put it back again. Then I went on my way blushing. E. M.

In the Wrong Place.

We had just moved to a new neighborhood when my wife was called out of town, leaving me to "bach' it" among strangers. Perhaps I looked forlorn—anyway, I received a 'phone message from Mr. Smith, inviting me to Sunday dinner.

When Sunday noon came and I saw Mr. Smith (who lived next door) sitting on his porch, I went over, remarking how fine it was to have such cordial neighbors.

After a while dinner was announced and we went into the house, where we met Mrs. Smith. I thought she seemed confused, as she asked us to be seated in the parlor.

She left the room, but came back in a few minutes and we went in to dinner—just a nice plain family dinner.

I enjoyed it all immensely and ate heartily to show my appreciation, but I thought the Smiths ate little for such large, healthy looking people. As the dessert was brought in, Mrs. Smith said, "Mr. Farrell, I can see a man ringing your front door bell. Would you like to go over while I serve the pudding?"

I ran over and there stood a Mr. Smith who lived in the next block.

"Good morning, Mr. Farrell. My wife is getting excited over our dinner engagement. Thought maybe you were taking a Sunday nap, or had forgotten the date."

Ye gods! I had eaten dinner with the wrong Smiths—people who, I remembered now, had to ask my name! No wonder they were not hungry when there wasn't dinner enough to go around.

What did I do?

Well what would you have done? H. S.

A Lesson in Cycling.

The Tribune Cook Book

by JANE EDDINGTON

All recipes have been scientifically tested by Miss Eddington with current market materials and are indorsed by her.

This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

Points on Real Eating.

MILD and soothing enough for the most enfeebled stomachs, and strength producing enough for those who develop the highest kind of health in the rude and raw climate of Scotland, is the barley. Barley water has long been a famous invalid drink, but it is used by the prizefighter as well.

And, by the way, it will do no harm to call attention right here to a very simple lesson in eating that common, every day people never take to heart. Just read about what these men eat when preparing for athletic work of any sort. They take only the nourishing foods that are easiest of digestion. This is a recognition of the fact that digestion is work, often made very hard by lack of thought (and lack of exercise in fresh air), and if a man puts a great deal of energy into that work he has less for his hands or his legs or his fists, as may be.

After such a summer as we have had, there must be many a stomach for which must be prepared some lightest nutrient like barley or rice water, perhaps flavored with cinnamon, if flavoring is imperative other than its own good taste. Never, to my mind, should any of the starchy drinks be flavored with lemon juice. This complicates the chemical problem we call digestion, even if the chemical action is not actually unfavorable. And this is not because lemon juice is not very good in itself.

When our stomachs are not strong, one food at a time presents the simplest digestive problem. When it is mixed with the digestive juices, chemical action begins. If we add another element to the mixture, like fruit or fruit juices to a starch, we have a triangle that may be as hostile in outcome as the eternal triangle of fiction.

Barley porridge is one of the most nourishing of cooked cereals. Its use often comes as a welcome change from oatmeal and wheat and corn breakfast dishes, especially when the latter are served cold. When it is hot it is palatable enough to be eaten without cream or sugar, and therefore is extra good for those suffering with digestive troubles. This presupposes that it is cooked sufficiently and in the right way. Cold porridge is palatable enough for anybody with cream alone. Sugar on cereals is one of the additions that no dietitian indorses. It is very much like adding soft coal to a hard coal fire.

Though it is the stomach that makes the complaints in dyspepsia, it is really the whole body that is miserable and uneasy. Well prepared barley is not only easy on the stomach, but supplies material for toning up the whole system as well as energy. It is the richest of the cereals in mineral content.

Pearl barley is a most economical food because it will go as far as hominy and many ways of using it are to be found in our cook books. Like hominy, it will take up almost eight times its measure of water and if cooked with sixteen times its measure it will yield per cup of raw material one quart of porridge and one thick jelly-like liquid for soups and drinks. Dates may be legitimately added to barley, as to any other cereal, and they make sugar unnecessary, as the long cooking also helps to do, but other fruit soups made with a barley water foundation I would now omit from any dietary.

Barley has especial healing qualities, as well as being easy to digest. Some starchy foods, especially if carelessly cooked, irritate the stomach and digestive canal as a whole, in no small measure, just as beans sometimes do. The latter even render the mouth sensitive and its lining is probably as robust as any part of the tube of which it is the first. Barley is good for those with summer colds in any form, including hay fever, because easy and soothing to mucous membranes, as well as for a long list of what seems like more serious diseases, fevers, bowel troubles of all sorts. It is good for the anemic and convalescent; in short, for any one who needs or wants to get the most benefit for the smallest digestive expenditure.

Barley Porridge.

It is not necessary to add your barely to boiling water, but all the world almost did, and so did I up to two years ago and printed recipes to that effect. Put one cup of washed pearl barley in a kettle with a cover which may be clamped down, add eight cups of cold water and bring to a boil slowly, stirring often. When at the boiling point cover and put over the simmering burner to simmer for three hours. It may be necessary to stir it once in a while. One way to make this unnecessary is to wash it as we do rice to remove the superfluous flour, which is what makes it stick on if cooked. It may be cooked in the fireless cooker overnight. Barley porridge warmed up in a double boiler is as good as freshly cooked, if it has been kept carefully. It must be remembered that all starchy foods in a damp condition quickly ferment in summer temperature.

Barley Soups.

There are no end of ways of making barley soups, the economical mutton broth being the best known. One tablespoon of uncooked barley to a quart of liquid is generally enough for thickening a soup. It is more economical to add cooked barley when the broth is partly done, or when the vegetables are added. With water alone and no meat, but a considerable mixture of vegetables, always carrot and onion, a very agreeable mixture may be made and a safe one for general use in a family of various idiosyncrasies.

Scotch Broth.

The following recipe was given me at a famous Dickens' hotel in England: Take the liquor any mutton has been boiled in and remove the fat when cold. Wash a cup of pearl barley and put it on to boil. When done add to the liquor; also a turnip, carrot, onion, and a little celery. Boil until the vegetables are tender and serve." Grated raw carrot on the top of this soup improves the flavor and adds much to the appearance. There was enough of the stock, probably a large kettle full, so that the broth was thin. A single pound of mutton shoulder, the fat and skin removed before it is cooked in two quarts of water, will flavor a barley liquid sufficiently for a delicate soup, but three pounds are often used. To preserve some of the strength of the meat, which may be taken out and used with a gravy or a curry sauce, saute it in hot fat and add boiling water to cook it. Left over barley porridge may be used for thickening a broth.

Barley Candy.

So-called barley candy usually contains no infusion of barley. A real and deliciously soft barley candy, good for children, may be made as follows: Strain one cup of barley water, add to it two cups of sugar, stirring the two together until they boil, being sure that the sugar is thoroughly dissolved. This will spin a long thread before it cooks at all. Cook until this thread will keep its form in cold water, no matter how finely spun. Pour out on a greased plate or into small molds, using small muffintins perhaps. Stick a skewer into one candy muffin and give it to the child right after a meal for a sucker—his dessert. Do not give it between meals. You can pull this candy if you choose. It is soft and bland without any flavoring. Do not allow to boil up on sides of pan as it will crystallize.

Answers to Inquiries.

A. L. and Others—Mrs. Janet M. Hill's book, "Canning, Preserving, and Jelly Making," which costs $1, has good pickle recipes. Mrs. Hill is one of our leading authorities on cooking, and I have never tried a recipe of hers that was not a success, although she and I might fall out on points in dietetics.

Mrs. J. C. R.—The exigencies of make-up sometimes make it necessary to cut out part of what was written. If you will send me your name and address with the stamped envelope I will send you what was omitted, namely, the outline for you to follow in determining what foods to use. Sorry it happened so.

Some One—Fresh young okra pods are cut up in thin slices and used in salads or alone with French dressing.

How I Won My Mate.

How did you win the love of your mate? What measures, if any, did you adopt? "The Tribune" will pay $1 for every letter published on "How I Won My Mate." Write on one side of the paper. No manuscripts returned. Address Doris Blake, "The Sunday Tribune," Chicago.

No Chance to Get Away.

One summer morning I was riding to work on a bicycle and on my way had to go through a little woods on a narrow path. A short distance ahead I saw a man walking leisurely, reading a paper. As I got closer to him I tried to make him know I was coming by coughing, but he did not, so I thought I would risk getting by without touching him, and would have done so had he not stopped nearer to the path I was on. I threw one arm around his neck and the other around a tree and stopped. You can imagine his astonishment and my embarrassment. He was at the same place next morning and we both had a good laugh about it. Two years later we were married and have been happy ever since. A. M.

She Was Awful Mad.

John says I won him by my bad temper, which he called high spirited.

When I had known him a short time he asked permission to accompany me to a mutual friend's home. I consented, and was rather proud of such a handsome escort.

When we arrived at my friend's home, however, we found an old friend visiting her who was also an old friend of John's. John paid her considerable attention during the evening, which concerned me not at all till it was time to go home.

I was waiting with my wraps on. John was invited into the parlor to look at a book or a picture by his old friend, and there they stayed. I waited till my patience was exhausted. Then, most abruptly, I said good night to my friend and was on my way, as mad as a hatter, before she could protest. It was late, and I was scared, and of course couldn't get a car, but on I marched for twelve blocks to my home. I got there just in time to close the door on my fickle escort.

For months I would not speak to him, and neither would flowers, candy, nor apologies appease me. My nose just naturally went up in the air and my eyes refused to see when he was present.

Finally one evening I spoke to him, and he says he was so afraid that I might not give him another chance that he proposed on the spot. To my great surprise, I accepted. M. E.

MARION HARLAND'S HELPING HAND

by MARION HARLAND

This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

"I NOTICED the offer of G. E. B. in the Corner of embroidery silks and stamped pieces in exchange for flower seeds and crochet lace. I should be glad if you could send my address to her or to some one who has stamped pieces for embroidery or quilt pieces, also books and magazines. I will return the favors with a few flower seeds or crochet edging. I get lonely at times, as I have no children to cheer me, and my fancy work and sewing are my only source of pleasure. I know the Corner has helped other lonely souls, and so I thought I would ask for some reading matter and fancy work, and I truly hope I may be able to return the favor in some way. If you care to have me I will come again and bring some of my choice recipes. MRS. G. H."

I was sorry to have to tell this correspondent that the articles offered by Mrs. G. E. B. had been given away before the above letter came, but I print it here in the sure hope that some one else will respond to her appeal and do something to help drive away her loneliness. I shall be glad to supply her address. The recipes she offers will be welcome.

Tatting for Plants.

"I wonder if there is any one who would be willing to do tatting for me in exchange for strawberry plants. The plants are ready to transplant. I would send material for the tatting to any one who would make it for me.

"MRS. S. H. R."

Such an opportunity as this should meet the wishes of some of our many gardeners and I shall be happy to put these in touch with this correspondent.

Religious Leaflets Wanted.

"I should like the name of the widow in addition to the other addresses I ask for. I might be able to help her a little or send her some cards. I may be inclined to look on the dark side, but I wish there were a little more cheer and good will in our everyday life, such as the spirit shown by the Corner. May I ask if some one has a Bible concordance or an enlarger used in art work and will tell me how to use the enlarger? I should also be glad to get a few religious leaflets that explain the book of Revelation. I will gladly pay postage. In making portieres out of wall paper beads I think kindergarten or basket beads are more serviceable than those made of salt and cornstarch, as the salt absorbs moisture and the beads crumble in a short while. When I make mine I am going to put two basket beads and a kindergarten bead between each pair of wall paper beads. Maybe I didn't have good luck with my paste beads. I made them for a necklace. The widow I write of was asking for something she could do at home so that her little boy could be with her. I have some letters and papers I don't feel able to use just now that I could send on to her.

"MRS. F. E. O."

I am very sorry this correspondent did not send the signature appended to the letter of the widow in whom she shows such a kindly interest. Without that signature I cannot identify her, and I can only trust she may see this letter and let me hear from her again. Will not some one endeavor to grant the wish of Mrs. F. E. O. as to the Bible concordance and papers on Biblical subjects, as well as the enlarger of which she writes?

Scraps for Sewing.

"I live upon an isolated farm, and seldom leave home. I wonder if some of the generous readers of the Corner would send me some scraps of silk, satin, velvet, or ribbon, bits of lace, lace netting, or pieces of fine white goods that could be made into handkerchiefs. I am expert with the needle and crochet hook, and want to make some articles to sell at a country church fair. I can make use of any sort of material and work all sorts of odds and ends up into lovely fancy work. H. L."

Who will reply to this appeal and have a share in helping the country church at its sale? Please write promptly.

Peroxide for Blood Stains.

"I should like the accompanying address of one whom I believe I may do something to help. All suffering is necessary. There is great comfort in realizing that truth while striving to alleviate all one can. A short time ago one of the Cornerites wanted to know how to take a blood stain out of a coat. I meant to write and tell her, but neglected to do so, that peroxide makes it disappear like magic. I thought every one knew that, but all persons have not been around doctors all their lives, as I have. Dear Helping Hand, I love all humanity, and I thank you for the good you are doing. R. B."

I am glad to pass on this appreciation of the work accomplished by the constituency, along with the practical information as to the uses of peroxide. I think I echo the wishes of the Cornerites when I say I only long to do more in the way of alleviating suffering and discomfort.

Letters for Invalids.

"I have recently seen in the Corner the request of a correspondent for people who are willing to write to shut-ins. I have time and would be glad to have you give my name and address to any one who wishes to receive letters—shut-ins, lonely ones, or sick. M. S."

Another Cornerite who does not give the signature of the person who wrote. I can only print the letter with the conviction that applications will soon come for the name of any one who is willing, as is M. S., to go into the business of cheering and comforting.

"Please send me a number of addresses, especially of girls and elderly women, who are shut in and would like to receive a letter or card. H. K."

Another chance for some one to be brightened up by the kindliness of one of our constituency. This address, like that of the writer of the preceding letter, will be sent on application.

Rolled Oats Cookies.

"I think the Helping Hand is wonderful. I read it before I look at the rest of the paper. Several months ago an excellent recipe was printed for cream cookies. I tried it and found the cookies delicious. But I mislaid the paper before copying the recipe. Will it be possible for me to get another copy of it now? I am sending a favorite recipe of mine for rolled oats cookies: One cup of granulated sugar, one cup of butter, two eggs, one teaspoon of baking soda, two cups of rolled oats, two cups of flour, one cup of chopped raisins, and two-thirds cup of nut meats. Mix well and drop by the spoonful in a buttered pan. Bake in a moderate oven. M. O. B."

I am afraid there is no way of tracing the recipe you wish since you do not know the name of the correspondent who sent it in. I hope that printing your request may call forth an answer from some one who has saved the recipe. Thank you for the directions for the rolled oats cookies and also for the stamps you were kind enough to send. All contributions of this sort help along, since many of our correspondents write letters which must be answered and do not inclose postage.

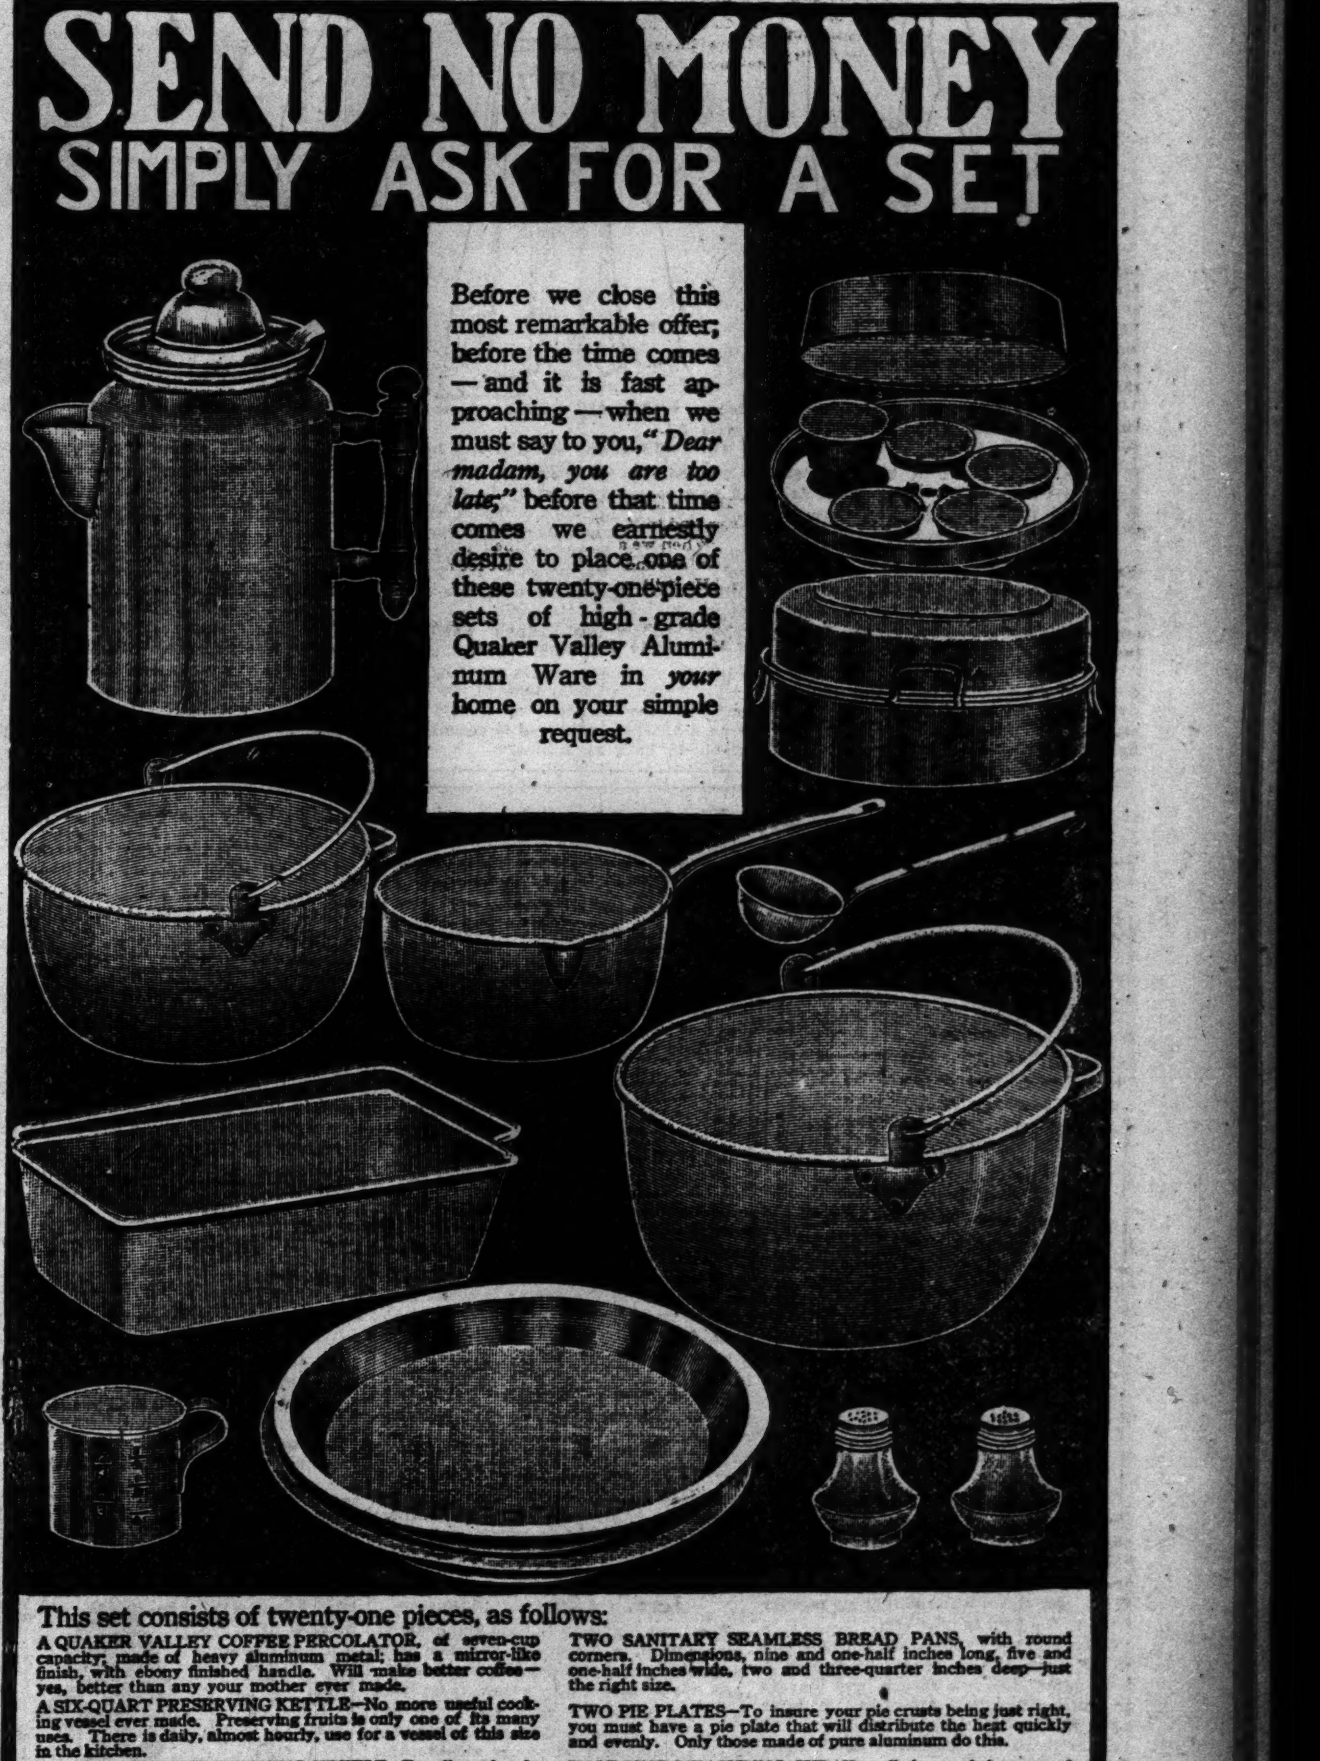
Milk Yeast Bread.

"The Helping Hand reaches so many forlorn ones, and it is a grand thing to feel we can relieve and cheer those in distress. The thought expressed by the lines 'If you have a kindness shown you, pass it on,' has always seemed to me Christlike. I wonder if you care to print this recipe for an old fashioned milk yeast bread: In the middle of the morning take one pint of corn meal, one teaspoon of salt, and one tablespoon of sugar. Sift them and pour enough hot [not boiling] water on the mixture to wet it; put into an earthern vessel until the next morning. Then add a quarter spoon of soda, one pint of scalded sweet milk, and flour enough for a stiff batter. Put into a pitcher placed in a bucket of water as hot as you can bear your hand in and keep at that temperature. In three or four hours the contents of the pitcher will be foamy. Mix with a spoonful of lard and flour sufficient to make a medium dough; knead well, shape into loaves, and when risen, bake. This will take three-quarters of an hour or an hour. This bread is easy to make and is delicious when done properly. M. B."

Good and trustworthy recipes for bread are always in demand, and I am sure this will be gratefully accepted and tried by our housekeepers. The addresses requested were sent by mail. I appreciate the kind words said of the Helping Hand. This passing on of good services is one of the objects we strive for.



SEND NO MONEY
SIMPLY ASK FOR A SET

Before we close this most remarkable offer; before the time comes—and it is fast approaching—when we must say to you, "Dear madam, you are too late;" before that time comes we earnestly desire to place one of these twenty-one-piece sets of high-grade Quaker Valley Aluminum Ware in your home on your simple request.

This set consists of twenty-one pieces, as follows:

A QUAKER VALLEY COFFEE PERCOLATOR, of seven-cup capacity; made of heavy aluminum metal; has a mirror-like finish, with ebony finished handle. Will make better coffee—yes, better than any your mother ever made.

A SIX-QUART PRESERVING KETTLE—No more useful cooking vessel ever made. Preserving fruits is only one of its many uses. There is daily, almost hourly, use for a vessel of this size in the kitchen.

A THREE-QUART PRESERVING KETTLE—Equally as handy as the larger size, every day in the year.

A ONE-QUART SAUCE-PAN WITH HANDLE—An every-day necessity.

A NINE-PIECE COMBINATION OUTFIT—Includes a covered roaster, a double boiler, a steam cooker, five egg poachers, and three pudding pans.

TWO SANITARY SEAMLESS BREAD PANS, with round corners. Dimensions, nine and one-half inches long, five and one-half inches wide, two and three-quarter inches deep—just the right size.

TWO PIE PLATES—To insure your pie crusts being just right, you must have a pie plate that will distribute the heat quickly and evenly. Only those made of pure aluminum do this.

HALF-PINT MEASURING CUP—Has all the good features of a glass measuring cup, and one more,—it will not break.

SANITARY LADLE—Bowl made of one piece of pure aluminum, four and one-eighth inches in diameter; handle is twelve and one-half inches long.

SALT AND PEPPER SET—Handy, attractive and everlasting.

If we could come to your home with this magnificent assortment of Aluminum Ware; if we could set the twenty-one pieces out before you exactly as we have shown them above, and say to you, "Here they are; look them over. They are what you have been looking and longing for ever since you realized the vast superiority of Aluminum Ware." If we said to you that we very sincerely desire to have your name on our list of permanent customers who get all their Home Furnishings direct from the factory, and that we had brought this sample bargain to your home without the payment of a cent, as an expression of this desire to serve you and save you money, wouldn't you then have faith in the sincerity of our motive and the truth of our claim? Wouldn't your reason tell you that we couldn't afford to make such an offer unless it were indeed true? Then please think of us as coming to you in just that spirit and with just that motive thru the medium of this announcement. We want to send this set to your home without a penny down for no other purpose than we have just tried to indicate. Of course, if you are an old customer you are also entitled to the benefit of this offer, for we must play fair with our old customers and treat them the same as we treat new ones; but this offer is primarily to add new customers to our list.

After you receive the set we will give you thirty days to make any tests or comparisons you like. Then if you are satisfied; then if you have found that such a set of Aluminum Ware of equal quality would cost you at least fifty per cent more if bought in a store; then if you feel that a twenty-year guarantee from a company such as ours assures you beyond any question as to quality—then you may remit a dollar a month till the special get-acquainted price of $7.95 is paid. Otherwise you may return the set within thirty days at our expense. And now, before it is too late, sign the coupon and rush it to the mail-box.

Quaker Valley Mfg. Co., 118 Mill St., Aurora, Illinois

P. S.—Parcel-postage to Chicago is only fourteen cents. To more distant points the expressage is almost as trivial, as the set weighs only ten pounds. Send no money with coupon.

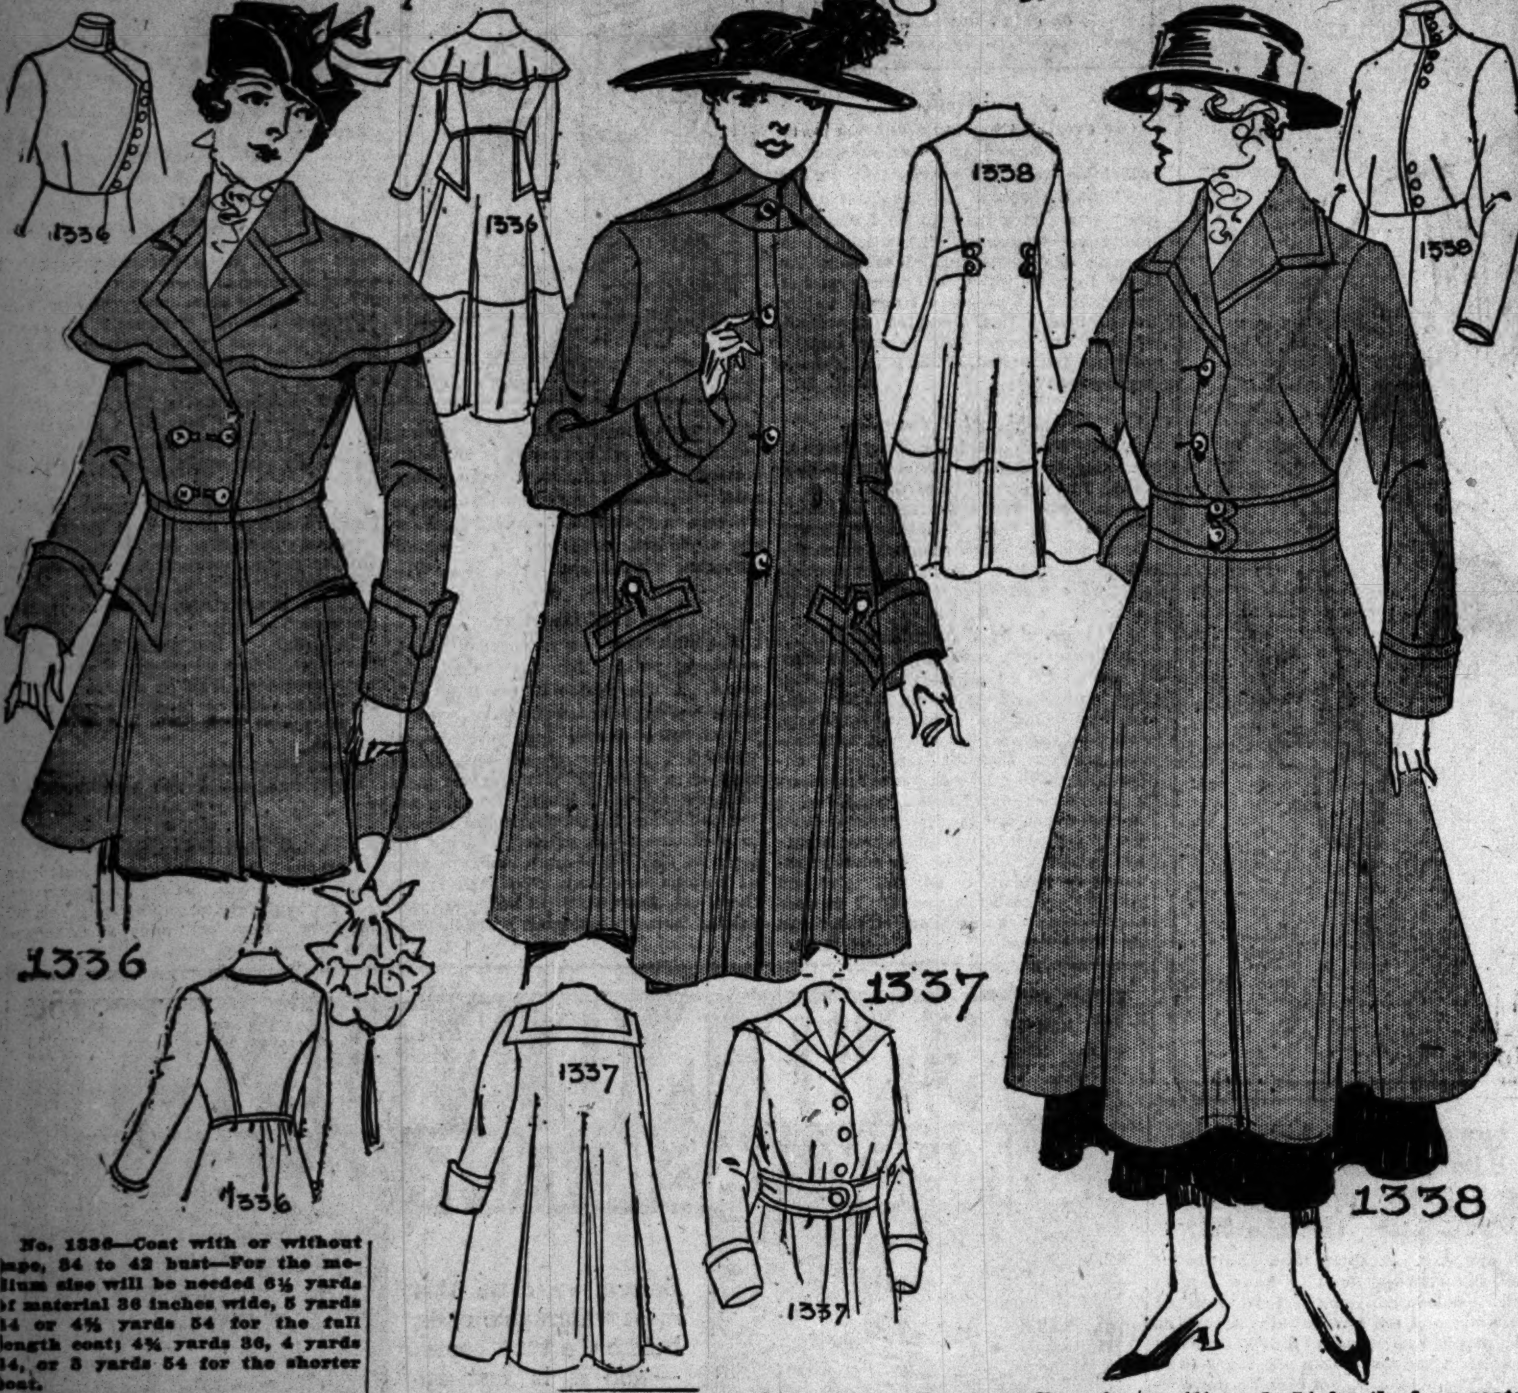
SMART STYLES in FALL and WINTER COATS

Drawn from Special Clotilde Designs by Maude Martin Evers



No. 1336—Coat with or without cape, 34 to 42 bust—For the medium size will be needed 6⅓ yards of material 36 inches wide, 5 yards 44 or 4⅝ yards 54 for the full length coat; 4¾ yards 36, 4 yards 44, or 3 yards 54 for the shorter coat.

No. 1337—Loose coat, 34 to 44 bust—For the medium size will be needed 5 yards of material 36 inches wide, 4⅓ yards 44 or 4¼ yards 54.

No. 1338—Coat with fitted body, 34 to 42 bust—For the medium size will be needed 6⅓ yards of material 36 inches wide, 5¼ yards 44 or 4¼ yards 54 for the long coat; 4¼ yards 36, 3⅓ yards 44, or 3 yards 54 for the shorter coat.

HERE are three of the smartest coat designs for this coming fall and winter wear. They are all different in style, and all of them designed with the practical and the attractive well in mind.

Coat pattern number 1336 permits of a wide latitude in that it may be made with or without a cape. If the wearer inclines to stoutness, she will doubtless prefer the pattern without a cape, but if she is of slender build there is no style of the day prettier than the modish cape effects which are worn so much right now.

Coat pattern number 1337 is one of the new loose styles and will serve almost every imaginable occasion except of course the extremely formal evening function. Fall demands such a coat in every woman's wardrobe, and a winter outfit it not comfortably complete without it.

Fitted bodies are always liked by women. This particular pattern, number 1338, combines the latest cut with the perennially popular lines of the fitted coat. It may be worn as a suit coat or as a separate coat and is equally desirable in both capacities.

How to Order Your Clotilde Patterns.

In ordering a waist the size should be determined by the bust measure. Give the bust measure. In ordering a skirt the size of the hip is more important than the size of the waist, but give both the hip and the waist measure. Ten cents for each waist, coat, or skirt.

In ordering misses' patterns the age should be stated—12, 14, 16, or 18 years. Ten cents for each waist, coat, skirt, or dress.

In ordering children's regular patterns order them by the age of the child. Ten cents each.

Clotilde's patterns are made in New York exclusively for THE CHICAGO SUNDAY TRIBUNE and may be obtained through no other service. It is requested that customers allow one week before making complaint for nonreceipt. An extra 2 cent stamp will allow for letter postage and thereby hasten delivery.

Housekeeping Experiences.

Did you make absurd mistakes when you first started housekeeping? Of course you did. Every bride has. So tell us about it. And if you are a man—well, surely you can remember what your wife did. The funnier the experiences the better. For every letter published "The Tribune" will pay $1. Keep your story on one side of the paper and within 300 words and address it to Housekeeping Experience Editor, "Chicago Sunday Tribune." No manuscripts returned.

She Churned Madly.

Not many weeks ago my brother brought home his young bride. She was a town girl, and of course had never done many of the things that are done on the farm.

One day she heard my mother say that she was going to get the churn in readiness to make butter. It has always been my mother's habit to put water into the churn and let it soak a few minutes before putting in the cream. Bess (my brother's wife) did not know about this. While the churn was soaking my mother went to the field to pick berries.

Bess being a willing girl, thought she would have the butter all made before her mother-in-law's return, and started to churn diligently. About an hour later upon my mother's return Bess said: "I believe there must be butter down there, for I have churned nearly all the time that you were gone." You can imagine her surprise and disgust when she was told that there was nothing but water in the churn. It was quite a joke and Bess was teased quite a bit about it, but she took it good naturedly. Stuffing the Chicken.

She was a school teacher of 30, and she had been married to a business man for about two months. Things had gone very smoothly in the household up to this time—much more smoothly, indeed, than either she or her husband had dreamed possible. At last came a day when she felt that she could serve a flawless dinner to a few selected guests. Her husband was delighted, and so was she. They planned it out together. Roast chicken, they agreed, should be the piece de resistance.

Preparing the fowl for the roasting pan was a matter which consumed but little time. In fact, it seemed to consume too little. Then a horrible thought assailed her—she had forgotten the dressing!

From one small loaf of bread she cut all the crusts. This accomplished, she inserted the loaf whole into the waiting chicken, sewed up the opening, and popped the pan into the oven. Then she heaved a sigh of relief—that had indeed been a narrow escape.

At the proper time she took the beautifully browned bird from the oven, transferred it without a mishap to the waiting platter, cut the strings, and removed the loaf. Her chicken was ready to serve.

If her guests wondered at the absence of stuffing they were far too polite to mention it, and the dinner went serenely on to its close. After the guests were gone her husband wandered into the kitchen where she was putting things to rights.

"Mabel," he said, "why didn't you give us any stuffing with that wonderful chicken?" His wife looked at him in amazement. "Dressing?" she said. "Why, we never ate it at home. I thought it was just put in to keep the chicken in shape while it was roasting. I didn't know any one ever ate it." C. V. F.

Jennie's Little Purchase.

Tom and Jennie were born and grew to maturity in a large city so when they were married and went to a small southern town everything about them was different and there were many new experiences. Jennie strove to practice the little economies that would aid them in acquiring wealth, and she was surely a dainty bit of a housekeeper. One evening she could hardly wait for Tom to return from his business she wanted to tell him of her investment.

A passing huckster with chickens had attracted her attention and she thought how fine it would be and what a saving, if they could have all their own eggs. After some little discussion as to price she bought a dozen, and with pride had them put in a pen that happened conveniently to be on the place. Then waited impatiently for Tom's return and approval of her little investment.

Proudly Tom was escorted out to view the purchase and told of the nice fresh eggs they would soon have.

Tom gave one look—his dear little wife had bought a dozen roosters. E. L. W.

Why the Ice Melted.

My husband often remarked about the enormous amount of ice our box consumed during the first two summer months of our married life, but I have never told him about my placing puddings and other hot dishes in the ice box as soon as they were cooked. Of course the result was that I sometimes ordered ice twice a day. A. G.

Pink Boiled Dinner.

One day shortly after our marriage my husband asked for a boiled dinner. I asked what he meant and he replied: "All kinds of vegetables boiled with a piece of meat." I did as directed and included beets, which resulted in a beautiful pink boiled mess of vegetables and meat. He laughed at me all day. E. B. M.

Does Woman Ever Propose?

Did you ever know a woman who proposed? "The Sunday Tribune" will pay $1 for every letter published. Your name will not be published. Address Doris Blake, "The Tribune," Chicago.

Had the Ring Ready.

One day a crowd of young people were out walking rails on the track. I started to fall, so I cried out: "Take my hand, somebody, quick!"

The young man I had been keeping steady company with drew from his pocket a diamond engagement ring and slipping it on my finger announced our engagement.

We were married in a month to the day and the same crowd that was with us when we became engaged made up the bridal party.

We have been married for about a year and he still claims I did the proposing. I asked him how he happened to have a ring ready and he said he had intended that day to ask me to marry him, but I beat him to it. S. B.

His Money Lasts Longer.

A young man who daily consumed his noon hour "ammunition" in the restaurant where I was employed as a waitress, casually remarked to me one day: "Pay day was yesterday and I am just about broke now. Can you beat it?"

"You ought to let me be your bookkeeper," said I jokingly.

"That's a go!" said he.

I have proved my ability as a bookkeeper, as we have now been married seven years, and he is never broke one day after pay day. A. K.

Before She Thought.

We were on a picnic party, and something was said about an ideal man. Several had been described when Robert turned to Ruth and asked: "What size is your ideal man?" "Just your size," answered Ruth, before she thought how it sounded. But Robert took it seriously, and last week they rented a flat. Robert insists that Ruth took advantage of leap year, and perhaps she did. R. S.

BABY'S CHEEKS MASS OF SCALES

Her Face Was Terrible to Look At. Would Scratch and Cry. Had to Tie Her Hands Up.

HEALED BY CUTICURA SOAP AND OINTMENT

"When baby was four months old her face became very red and rough and the skin cracked and bled. Water oozed out and wherever the water came it would form big scales, and each cheek was a mass of thick scales. Her face was terrible to look at. She would scratch and cry and we had to tie her hands up.

"A friend told me about Cuticura Soap and Ointment and we got them. Now she is healed after using three boxes of Ointment and three cakes of Soap." (Signed) Mrs. Amanda W. James, 36 Moore St., St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 25, '16.

The principal had asked me to keep in at recess all the boys in my grade who had been interested in a burro with a tin can tied to its tail. As I had not witnessed the tragedy I had to depend upon the honor of the boys to remain. To my amazement my best and most timid boy remained with the others. "Why, Glenn," I said, "did you have a hand in this trouble, too?" "Yes, ma'am; but I only had one hand in it. I held the can while the other fellows tied it," said the bashful youngster. H. A. B.

Carl was sent to the store to get some candy for his little brother and himself. He was given two pennies, one for him and one for his brother. While on his way to the store he dropped one of the pennies into a crack in the sidewalk. When he returned his mother asked him for his brother's candy. Carl having thought it over on the way home, spoke up and said, "Why, mother, I am awfully sorry, but brother's penny dropped down in a crack in the sidewalk." J. H. W.

My little grandson had been taught in Sunday school many things that a 4 year old doesn't quite understand.

The other night as he was ready to say his prayers he solemnly unbuttoned his nightie, exposing his chest, closed his eyes, and folding his hands prayed seriously.

On being asked afterward the reason for opening his nightgown he replied, somewhat pityingly.

"Well, my Sunday school teacher told us to always bare our souls to God when praying, didn't she?" Mrs. L. A. B.

The teacher had been reading the story of the Indies to a class of squirmy, restless youngsters, who found a great deal more interest in listening to the invisible automobiles that were chugging past the open windows than in listening to the history of such an abstract subject as the Indies proved to be.

The teacher, in an attempt to find out how much of the information she had been trying to impart had been instilled into their inattentive minds, proceeded to ask questions about the topic just read. A little lad who had found his neighbor's desk much more interesting than his own was the first victim of the bombardment.

"Where do you find the tarantula?" could not be correctly answered without the knowledge of what the insect is, and thus one question could be eliminated.

But Sammy was awake. He replied earnestly, "Behind Burn's fruithouse." E. D.

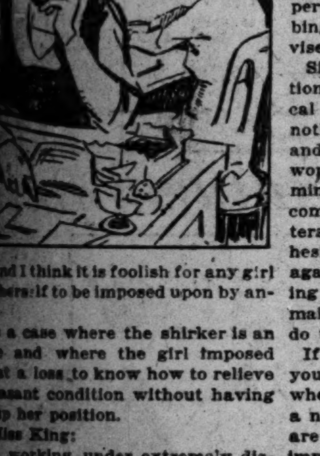
For and By BUSINESS GIRLS

Mary King.

Miss King will be glad to help business girls solve their problems. If you want a personal answer send a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Address Miss Mary King, "Sunday Tribune," Chicago.

The Girl Who Shirks.

WHENEVER I hear a girl who works boast that she takes things easy at the office and doesn't believe in killing herself working I decide that she is a shirker. A girl who does her share of work does not take things easy. In every office or shop where there is a shirker some one has to do more than her share of work. I believe that many girls who fail to do their share are only thoughtless, but they should be made to think of others, and I think it is foolish for any girl to allow herself to be imposed upon by another.



Here is a case where the shirker is an executive and where the girl imposed upon is at a loss to know how to relieve an unpleasant condition without having to give up her position.

"Dear Miss King:

"I am working under extremely disagreeable conditions right now, and I cannot make up my mind what to do about it. My employer is out of the office a great deal of the time, and while he is away, his assistant, a woman, has charge of the office. Every time the boss is away his assistant brings me some of her work to do. At first she did not give me a great deal, but she has added some of the duties to mine from time to time, and now I am doing almost all of her work while she has time to read during office hours and carry on long telephone conversations with her friends. For the past few weeks I have had to work overtime every other night to keep from getting behind with my work.

"I am seething with anger at this woman every minute of the day, and this, with the hard work I am doing, has made me so nervous that I am afraid I cannot stand the strain much longer. I dread giving up this position, which pays me a good salary, as I cannot afford to be without work for any length of time. Yet, I cannot decide to complain to the boss about his assistant. She is my superior, and I may only get a severe snubbing for my pains. What would you advise me to do about it? A. H. R."

Since you feel that to stay in your position as conditions are would mean a physical breakdown, it seems to me you have nothing to lose by going to your employer and telling him that you have too much work to do. If your employer is a fair-minded person he should see that your complaint is a just one and remedy matters. You might tell him that you have hesitated about making a complaint against your superior, and are only doing so because you feel you cannot remain in the position if you are obliged to do the work of two people.

If your boss refuses to do anything for you I think you would be better off somewhere else, even if you have to start in a new position for less money than you are earning now. There is nothing more important to you than your health and you cannot afford to be ill any more than you can afford to be without a position for a while.

The AMATEUR GARDENER

by Eben E. Rexford

This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

All questions relating to the cultivation of gardens will be answered if addressed to the Amateur Gardener, "The Tribune," Chicago. Please write on one side of the paper only.

Some Questions Answered.

MRS. R. T. O. writes: "My fern, which I have had for two years, has been doing well. But the other day, after watering it, I removed the saucer that I keep under the pot to pour off some water that had accumulated there and I found a large worm. I am afraid there may be other worms in the pot and that they will injure the plant. What would you advise?"

If the plant has been doing well and does not seem to be suffering in any way now, I would let well enough alone and wait for futher developments before taking any action. But if, on examination, I were convinced that there were other worms in the soil, I would make application of lime water.

This will do no harm, and if there are worms breeding in the soil it will do good, for it will, if carefully applied and properly prepared, bring about the expulsion of whatever worms may have taken up their habitation in the soil.

In preparing lime water care must be taken to see that you get fresh lime. Air slaked lime is worthless. You can tell when it is fresh by dropping a small piece of it in a little water. If it immediately sets up a sizzling, like soda water, you may be sure that it is fresh enough for your purpose. But if it simply dissolves without any fizz, you will know that it isn't what you need.

In preparing a quantity for application to your plants, take a piece as large as a good sized coffee cup and put it into a ten quart pailful of water. Let it stand until the lime has dissolved. Then pour off the water. There will be a white sediment in the bottom of the pail, but all above that will be perfectly clear.

In applying the water use enough to saturate all the soil in the pot. A small quantity will do no good, as it will moisten a portion of the soil only and the worms will crawl out of that portion into a part that has not been moistened. Aim to use enough to thoroughly impregnate all the soil with the lime quality which means death to the enemy.

You need not be afraid of injuring your plant by using this wormicide, as water will not hold enough of the active properties of lime in suspension to be harmful. It may be necessary to repeat the operation.

VIOLET FAILING TO BLOOM. Mrs. H. G. P. writes that she has an English violet that fails to bloom, and asks me to tell her why it behaves in that fashion, and what to do to make it produce blossoms.

I cannot give the desired information because I have no knowledge of treatment given. I must know how a plant has been cared for in order to form an opinion as to what is wrong with it.

MRS. E. B.: I do not think you would be successful in undertaking to grow lily of the valley, taken from your garden, for sale to florists. This plant is generally grown for winter flowering from roots that have been given special treatment. Most of them are imported from Holland where growers make a specialty of bulbs for forcing. Your query is answered in this department instead of by mail, as requested. You spoke of inclosing a stamped envelope, but none accompanied your letter when it was forwarded to me from the office.

Mrs. B.: "Do you think that soot tea, made by pouring boiling water on soot from the chimney, would prove beneficial to a wilting rose? The source of this recipe is an old book."

I believe the plant would receive no benefit from such an application. I have never analyzed soot, therefore am unable to say what its properties are, but I would expect no benefit from its use. You might try it, however, and satisfy yourself as to its virtue as a plant medicine. If the plant is likely to die, no harm can be done by testing it, and possibly it may be helped by it.

Mrs. Booth: "Will you kindly explain how rose roots are so crossed as to produce a new type of flower?"

New varieties of rose are not produced in that way. They are grown from seed. We often graft varieties on the root, but the type of flower is always the same as that of the variety from which the graft or cion was taken, and there is no union of the peculiarities of either root or cion.

We graft our plants because there are certain kinds which have strong roots and a choice variety which has rather weak roots on its own stock is strengthened by union with stronger wood.

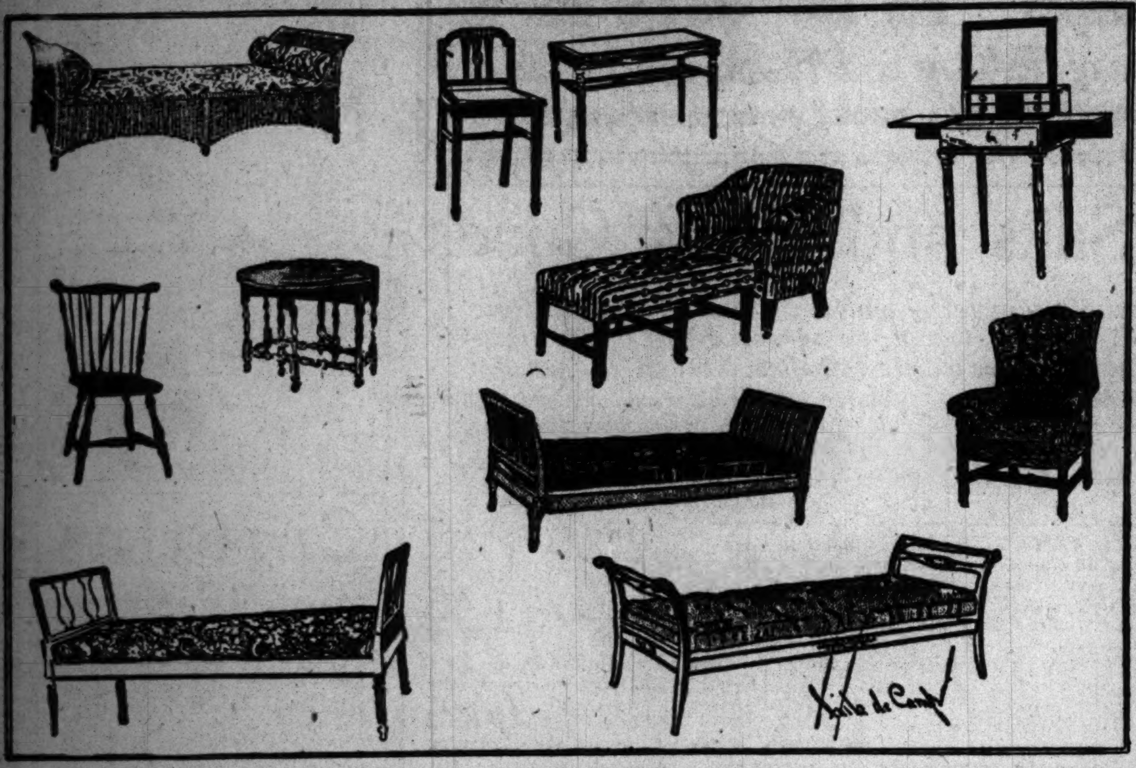
The Home Harmonious

USEFUL IN THE SMALL ROOM

Anita de Campi



Miss de Campi will be glad to assist the home maker in any problems pertaining to interior decorations. Address your letter to Miss Anita de Campi, "Sunday Tribune," Chicago. Inclose a stamped, addressed envelope if you wish a personal reply.

IN planning the small living room it is well to have a definite floor plan by which all that is to go into the room can be measured. Detached pieces seen in stores or studios seldom convey to the mind of the buyer an accurate impression of the floor space they will occupy when placed in the rooms which they are intended to furnish.

One sees a fine big davenport. Suggested for sale with it is a long sofa table to fit against its back. It looks invitingly comfortable, but when it arrives home carries with it a conviction, not so much of its comfort as of its clumsiness. The reason of this is that the davenport, which was a small unit on a large floor space, is a large unit on a small floor space. It is disproportionate.

Now, this mistake could easily have been avoided if the purchaser had carried with her a measured floor plan of her room. The drawing of such a plan is a thing that the veriest amateur can readily accomplish.

The first step is to secure a piece of quadrilled paper, that is, paper that is crisscrossed in blue lines. The crossing of the blue lines will form perfect squares. Let each one of these squares represent a foot. Now measure the length of your room, mark it off with a pencil or ink line, then the breadth. Indicate windows and doors.

Now you have something to go by. Every piece that is considered for purchase can be measured into the little squares inclosed in your floor plan, and the plan will show just how much space is left to move about in after the pieces are placed.

How to furnish a small room so that it will answer as a living room is a problem that will interest a great number of homemakers. A room that looks hopelessly limited in scope may by the selection of furniture carefully measured to space be forced to yield the fullest amount of comfort to every square inch.

A concrete example is always more illuminating than a generalization. Let us take one woman's room—a small office-like chamber that she wishes to convert into a living room. The client is a professional women. The entertainment of a number of young friends is a necessary part of her life. She must then have seating capacity. She has a large number of books and space must be arranged for these.

The room measures 12x15 feet and has three windows, a door, and a mantelpiece to break the wall space. The mantel is a good architectural feature. It is of dull red brick, built low and broad, and is equipped with a fine opening where real logs can be burned. The fireplace then in reality constitutes the central point of interest.

My first impulse was to suggest an upholstered fender bench, but as it was necessary to have something in the room upon which one could "stretch out" during daytime moments of relaxation that thought was abandoned, for it was clear that there would not be room for a sofa and a fender bench. A davenport before the fire, with a long table drawn up to its back, would have focused interest, but quite too selfishly. It would have had an all hog air, of turning its back to the rest of the room completely.

There was no question of backing up a davenport to the wall opposite the fireplace because the one unbroken wall space across from the mantel was reserved for book shelves. So the solution became a day bed in front of the fire, as it could be sat upon from either side and hospitably turned its back to no one.

Where a maximum of comfort is desired in a minimum of space I know of no one piece of furniture more satisfactory than the day bed. It is such a comfortable compromise between a bed and a sofa, often, indeed, being pressed into service as a night bed for an occasional guest. It is made like a narrow bed with a head and foot of equal height, quite low. Bolster shaped cushions, supplemented, possibly, by other cushions, are placed at the ends, so that one may lie upon it either way.

But to continue with the furnishing of our room. The bookcase was built in. Since it was treated as a part of the room it was painted old ivory, to match the wood trim of the room. It could have been treated as a piece of furniture, in which case it should have been of mahogany.

Space limitations necessitated the desk being small, with a small, low chair before it. The desk chosen was a new type combination desk and dressing table. The back of the little mirror that is shown standing, when it is laid forward face down, forms a writing slide. The chair before it should have a low back.

In one corner is a big, comfortable wing chair. Another upholstered chair has with an oblong stool the height and width of the chair seat, so that the two pieces drawn together form a sort of chaise longue. A little reading table stands conveniently astride the width of the chair. The stool on casters can be pulled about easily and used elsewhere in the room.

The center light, an ugly combination gas and electric ceiling light, has to be sacrificed, as it is unsightly, and it has the illusory effect of making the small room look smaller. Side lights, simple candle brackets, will be placed at either side of the mantelpiece. When the change in wiring is being effected several baseboard outlets will be placed in the room, so that extra table lamps can be plugged into these. If this is not feasible a good old fashioned student's lamp will be placed on the small gate leg table near one end of the day bed. One more small chair will station itself near the window at the other side of the fireplace, and the window at our center wall space will have a padded window seat.

Now let us see how many persons this small room could seat. Three on the window bench, four on the day bed, one on the big chair, two on the other chairs, and one on the stool.

MRS. M. L.: With a Chinese rug nothing is lovelier than Chinese Chippendale furniture. Have several chairs in your room of Chinese brocade. Another style of furniture that is lovely with Chinese rugs is the teakwood. Black lacquer is also used with excellent effect.

Answers to Inquiries.

MRS. O. C. H.: Have the curtain rod about two feet wider than your windows. Have casement curtains on rings on this rod so that when you pull them back they will pull clear away from the window and not obstruct any of your light. Upholster your cushion that you are going to use on your cedar chest with cretonne to match. Choose a pattern with a light ecru ground.

* *

MRS. A. M. C.: I would advise your getting Klearflax rugs in some neutral color. It seems to me that the wicker would be just as nice left the color it is in your room. Do not get small rugs, but one to nearly cover the whole floor. Get sunfast for your draperies. Cleaning window shades at home is a rather hazardous job. You will be safer to put them in the hands of a professional cleaner. Use sunfast for your sunroom curtains. Set the lower stick up in a tuck an inch wide, about eight inches from the bottom. Then scallop the part that hangs below this and trim it with fringe.

MRS. D. W. B.: There is a certain soft beauty in calcimine that would correspond better with the pastel shades that you describe in your rug than any other style of finishing would. Panel your walls with a little wood molding and calcimine over the whole thing the lightest shade of blue that is seen in your rug. This, of course, is supposed to be a grayish blue. Use silk draperies for your windows either in solid light blue or in blue and gray stripes.

MRS. E. W. S.: A method that is sometimes resorted to for privacy in connection with French doors is to have a long pole across the doors on the side that does not open in. On this pole a portiere is placed and just drawn closed when one wishes privacy. The doors themselves may then be trimmed with panels of lace and gauze, or may be left uncurtained. Let your curtains come just to the window sill.

MRS. E. Y. C.: Use striped sunfast for your bed cover, making a slip cover of the same to put on over the head and foot of the metal bed. Let your spread be extra long, so that it will tuck over and under the pillow at the top. Trim all with fringe in two shades of the colors used on the spread. Lambrequins and side draperies of the same would be in good taste.

* *

MRS. J. A. D.: I believe that Japanese prints would be lovely on your walls and should harmonize exquisitely with all the things you describe in your rooms. Use a little tan for your candle shades. Choose the color of ripe wheat. Figured cretonne would do well for your windows in the room with the brown portieres if you choose cretonne printed on a tan ground. Try to keep to one style of pictures in each room.

* *

MRS. M. O.: The best window hangings for summer would be plain white voile. Let them have hemstitched edges and have two pairs for each window, so that they can be changed. Dispense with inside draperies until fall. Chintz is popular for bedspreads and they are made so long that they come up over the pillows, tucking in a slight fold over and under the pillows so that shams are unnecessary.

* *

W. F. H.: There is a beautiful sunfast madras on the market now, one in black and white and pale yellow. The overdrapes with it could be the color of the side wall, but several tones deeper, made on a cornice, with the madras curtains beneath it, and the glass curtains next to the window.

* *

F. C.: Since the rest of your furniture is mahogany, use a mahogany library table. If possible dispense with the piano cover. Choose tapestry verdure for your upholstered fireside chair. Let the lamp shade be an old rose, tinged with tan. Chintz curtains are attractive printed on a tan ground, with the figures in old rose, mahogany color, and olive green. Have a number of pillows, and let each one repeat some color in the room. Choose a puce colored rug.

The August Furniture Sale Excels in at Least One Respect and that is: We haven't made any claims as to how many carloads we bought for this sale—haven't regaled you with the number of forests we denuded to get this furniture—haven't printed the fabulous amount of each transaction. AND YET, strange to say, we march right along selling lots and lots of good furniture—for good homes—for contented homes—AND, do you know another thing, we expect to do the biggest week of all this coming week. Because this sale thrives on comparison. Claims are common—but comparison convinces—it's the sure-fire, acid test—all Chicago is a city of wise, prudent furniture shoppers, and we want the hard-to-please critical customer to exercise this trait to the extreme limit—we know who'll deliver the stuff.

NEWS OF THE PLAYS AND PLAYERS

Charles Sumner and Harry Segall, Chicago dramatists, will provide Miss May Irwin with her next season's play. "Friend Wife" is its name.

"The Big Show" is to be the title of the new spectacle at the New York Hippodrome. It will have Pavlowa, an ice ballet, a minstrel first part, and many vaudeville acts.

Miss Lola Fisher and Walter Jones will appear next week in Willard Mack's "King, Queen, Jack," under the superintendence of A. H. Woods.

Lawrence Grossmith, the English player who acted last season in "Nobody Home," will be an associate of Miss Lina Abarbanell in her new piece, "Flora Bella."

The next appearance of Miss Elsie Ferguson will be as a smart young woman of Manhattan engaged in the society and other activities common to such persons. The play is called "A New York Girl," and it is by Hulburt Footner, a minor novelist.

Miscio Itow, a Japanese dancer, will supply the dancing interludes of "So Long, Letty," when that show is presented in New York. Itow has been successful in London in private entertainment as a protégé of Lady Cunard.

Frank O. Miller, until recently business manager of the Manhattan opera house, New York, will be in charge of the Chicago theater this season.

Ralph Herz is going to be the star of a musical comedy entitled "A Regular Girl." Among his assistants will be Miss Leonore Novassio and Miss Eleanor Henry, once prominent at the La Salle under the management of the Askin régime.

For the title role of "Little Orphant Annie," a dramatization of James Whitcomb Riley's poems, Miss Mabel Taliaferro has been engaged.

George Broadhurst, whose disinclination to pay alimony has kept him out of New York City for many months, is again permitted the privileges of that city. For some time the rehearsals of Mr. Broadhurst's plays have been held in Hoboken, so that the author could be present.

"But he swims beautifully."

"O, yes. But one can't keep one's husband in an aquarium, you know."

"What's your line of business?"

"I'm an actress."

"I'm disappointed."

"Why?"

"Thought you were a shoplifter."

"Have you seen papa's new dog, Carlo?"

"Yes; I have had the pleasure of meeting the dog the other evening."

"Isn't he splendid? He is so affectionate."

"I noticed he was demonstrative."

"He is very playful, too. I never saw a more playful animal in all my life."

"I am so glad to hear you say that."

"Why?"

"Because I was a little afraid that when he bit that piece out of me the other evening he was in earnest. But if he was only in play of course it's all right. I can take a joke as well as anybody."

"Why do married men talk in their sleep?"

"So as not to forget how, I suppose."

A Bit of Originality in the Season's New Plays.

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—There is a conventional amount of originality in the new plays of the new season thus far. In this respect it is not disappointing.

Three so far give ocular evidence of having caught on, as the curbstone prophets of Times Square have it. Audiences have been large, applause has been loud, and the speculators have been active.

The most entertaining of the new plays we found to be Roi Cooper Megrue's "Seven Chances." Builded on an improbable premise, it is still a bright and cheery and sometimes deftly satiric criticism of human nature.

The boy who is forced to marry is the playwright's favorite comic hero, a youthful bachelor too content with his club and his liberties, his friends and his liquor, to care anything about experimenting with the reported joys of married life. The obvious thing to do with a chap like this is to plunge him hopelessly into love and refuse to extricate him before the final curtain.

In "Seven Chances" he learns that his eccentric grandfather, dead in France, eager for the perpetuation of his line and its family traditions, has willed $12,000,000 to him provided he is married by the time he is 30 years old. Otherwise the money is to go to various institutions. On learning the news the young man has less than twelve hours to win or lose the money.

Personally he is willing to count escape from matrimony a bargain at any price, but is prevailed upon to save the money for the good he can do with it. Working with his chum, he makes out a list of seven eligibles, and the second act is given over to the chum's efforts to explain to them lucidly the reason, first, for his marrying, and, second, the necessity for haste.

One girl is already engaged, and another is waiting for the grande passion to bowl her over; a third will marry nothing less than a modern cave man, and a fourth refuses to enter into grandfather's enthusiasm for childbearing in the home. A fifth, being only 16, though she tries to look older, is called back to school, and a sixth balks at his cooly deliberate manner of approach. The seventh, of course, is the real girl, who has always loved him.

But even she refuses to be accepted as a last excuse, or as a makeshift, or a temporary mate with whom to win a fortune.

Finally all the girls who have refused him reconsider and, singly and collectively, offer themselves. It is then a question of which to take. While he is debating news comes that a later will has been found and that he is disinherited, which sends them all scooting—all but the real girl. And when he discovers that his love for her is genuine the news of the new will is denied. The original document, with its millions affixed, stands, and everybody is happy.

If it is crook plays that you enjoy, here is Max Marcin's "Cheating Cheaters," in which all the principal characters are thieves save one, and she a detective. Here again is a highly improbable premise to start with, for the author would have us believe that two sets of leading criminals could each accept the other as being real society leaders. At first, however, it is not suspected that the Palmers as well as the Brocktons are crooks.

The Brocktons are self-confessed. They are pretending to be socially superior because they want to get in with the Palmers, and near the Palmers' celebrated collection of jewels. To put themselves on the same level, in display at least, the Brocktons have had all their own jewels, the result of many burglary campaigns, set gloriously, and it is these that first attract the attention of the Palmers.

Then it is revealed, as a comedy climax to the second act, that the two "families" have a common object—the Palmers to steal the Brockton jewels and the Brocktons to acquire the Palmer collection. At the end of the third act both gangs are rounded up and placed under arrest by the "National Detective association," and the audience is not at all certain the detectives are not a third set of crooks.

But the revelations of the last act, and the big surprise of the evening, settle that. Here it transpires that the leader of the Brockton gang is none other than Ferris, the mysterious detective all crookdom fears, and that Ferris is the heroine of the play.

We come now to "The Silent Witness," a labored effort with human moments. Here, as a third example, is the premises again highly colored and not in the least plausible.

A young woman preparing for her approaching marriage to a college student hears of the latter's death in a dormitory fire. For reasons best known at this time to herself she makes hurriedly for the far west and there, some months later, her child is born. Taking the name of the student she had expected to father the infant, she poses as a widow, and later her boy, grown to school age, is sent to his father's college.

Here the scandal concerning him finally breaks out and he is twitted of his double standard parentage. In resenting one of these insults he hurls a healthy club at the head of the offender who falls and is picked up dead.

In prosecuting the case the assistant district attorney is particularly eager for a conviction. When things look blackest the mother, seeking out the district attorney himself to beg a sympathetic interest on his part, discovers him to be the father of her son.

Father, discovering who son really is, and wishing to make amends for the past, takes the case away from his assistant and, with the help of the "silent witness," a blood stain on the log at the point where the dead boy keeled over, proves the accused lad innocent.

WHAT IT MEANS FOR A MOTOR CAR
to leave New York Monday, arrive San Francisco Saturday
3476 Miles – 5 Days, 18½ Hours

To do this, the average for 3476 miles must be better than 25 miles an hour, including all stops and delays. Most of the actual driving must be done at 45 miles an hour or more—and this speed must be maintained day and night with stops only to secure supplies. All sorts of roads and conditions are to be encountered, and all the delays of passing vehicles on the roads and through towns. The car must ride and handle easily so as not to fatigue the drivers. The which established this record averaged better than 32 miles an hour, elapsed time, for more than 2100 miles (New York to Cheyenne). It never stopped more than 15 minutes at a time (for supplies only) during that distance. From Cheyenne to San Francisco adverse conditions brought down the average—wet weather, bad roads, mountains and deserts, yet it arrived in San Francisco on Saturday, having left New York—3476 miles away—the previous Monday.

TWO VITAL FACTORS in making this record were Lynite Aluminum mono-block motor casting and Lynite Aluminum pistons.
LYNITE ALUMINIUM

It was a car chosen by S. B. Stevens, Chairman of the Motor Reserve Division of the American Defense Society, to demonstrate the possibilities of motor transportation across the continent.

This remarkable run proves conclusively that the scientific design and aluminum construction of the Marmon 34 make it a touring car which can be driven—if need be—at high speed over country roads with ease, surety, comfort and safety.

No Change for 1917

There will be no change in the Marmon 34 for 1917 save perhaps minor refinements such as are likely to be made at any time during a season's production.

May we give you a demonstration in this remarkable car? We suggest that you make an appointment today.

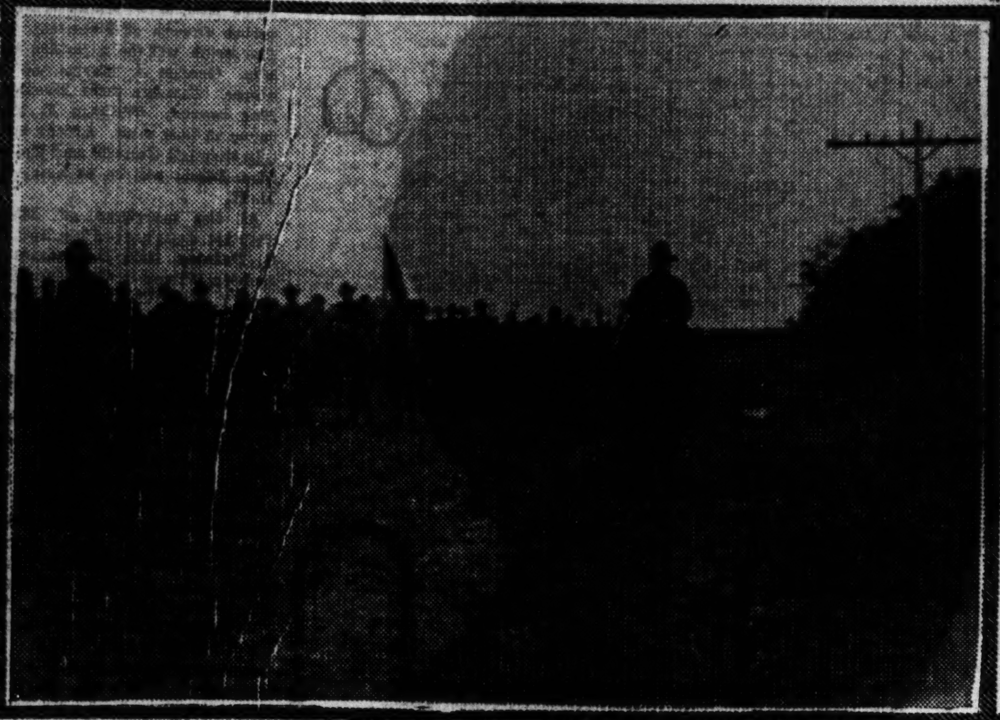
The World's Greatest News Film.

In the two issues this week are shown:

Number 66

THE WILD WEST IN NEW YORK.

The effete east has been enjoying a touch of the real wild west transplanted from the plains to Sheepshead Bay. Cowmen, cowgirls, rough riders have been opening the eyes of the provincials of Manhattan. A championship belt and $50,000 in prizes were features.



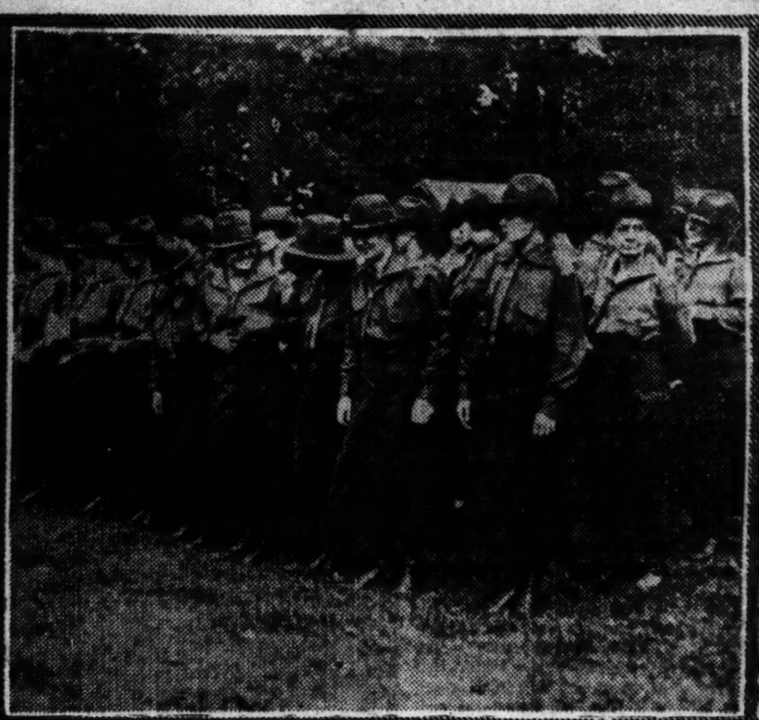
THE FINEST FIRST.

Here we have a glimpse of what the members of "the Finest First," the crack First Illinois cavalry, are doing on the border. The boys are daily engaged in the work at the camp at Brownsville, Tex., that will put them in condition to withstand any hardships they may have to endure.

Number 67

WORKING TO AVERT BIG STRIKE.

President Wilson requested representatives of both the railroads and the four brotherhood unions to visit him at the White House to work out a solution of the problem that would prevent a destructive strike involving 400,000 men and every important railroad in the country.



WOMEN ROOKIES ALSO SERVE.

Lake Geneva, Wis., is all a-flutter with girl and women rookies who are in camp there learning how to help Uncle Sam in case he should have to go to war. Over a hundred enthusiastic rookies, among them members of rich and powerful families, enrolled early for two weeks' training.

KATHLEEN FLEES THE LIONS.

KATHLYN WILLIAMS, the well known film star, who has just resigned from the Selig company, has signed a long term contract to appear under the Morosco-Pallas brand of pictures. Upon resigning from the Selig company, Miss Williams received four attractive offers to appear in big productions, but decided in favor of Morosco-Pallas. Alas, poor Selig!

Did you ever dream, and did your dream ever come true? Well, that is just what happened to little Mary Pickford! She is at present possessor of her own motion picture company. It will be called "The Mary Pickford Film Corporation." The Famous Players admitted a few days ago that the little film star was no longer connected with them and had organized her own company. When questioned about the matter, Miss Pickford confirmed the announcement and further stated that she had already started work on a picture in her "very own studio" in West Forty-second street, New York. Miss Pickford's contract with the Famous Players expired last March. She continued with the firm, however, until she finished the picture "Hulda from Holland." Under the new arrangement Miss Pickford will not receive a salary, but expects to make more money than ever. Here's wishing Miss Pickford unlimited success!

In order to convince her director, Harry Millarde, of the cleverness of her makeup as a crook, Miss Betty Shade bet that she could do a little shoplifting and get away with it. She was progressing nicely when Mr. Millarde "tipped off" the store detective. Then things happened. She, Miss Shade, was arrested! She paid the bet and since learning of Mr. Millarde's duplicity is wondering how she can secure the return of the wager.

Report has it that Juanita Hansen, heroine of "The Secret of the Submarine" serial, has left the American company and accepted an engagement with the Fox Film company.

It has been a question of great discussion as to who was the first leading man in pictures. It is hereby settled with the announcement that Mr. Wilfred Lucas has that distinction, as he was drafted from Rose Stahl's company in the "light" and made a leading man by D. W. Griffith.

Ben Turpin, whom press agents quote as being a "bundle of nerves," fell fifty feet the other day when the flagpole on which he was balanced broke in half. Outside of being thrown through a glass door against a marble statue, the fall was rather "commonplace." Poor Ben Turpin.

This from another press agent who dreamed that he was interviewing Annette Kellerman:

P. A.—"How are you getting along?"
Annette—"Swimmingly."
P. A.—"Your favorite dish?"
Annette—"Bread and dripping."
P. A.—"Your strongest objection to a city?"
Annette—"Dives."
P. A.—"How do you vote?"
Annette—"Wet."
P. A.—"You are telling the truth?"
Annette—"The naked truth."

Did you know that on Aug. 12 Miss Gertrude Lamson, alias Nance O'Neill, was married to Alfred Hickman?

William S. Hart is directing a Mexican border drama in which he will star.

This is what Marshall Stedman of Universal says: "There is about one chance in a thousand that any one can get a job in pictures nowadays. A person would have to be physically constructed in a most unusual manner to get a hearing at all unless it would be for only a day or two in a mob scene." The same condition prevails at all the other studios, only on a smaller scale, according to the employment men.

Pslams of Life

TO A STRAW CAUBEEN.

(Hibernian slang for Kelly.)

O, straw chapeau, when you were new,
A crown of pristine beauty you,
An argent cloud of shimmering sheen.
A kelly fit for any bean,
A nimbus on my raven fuzz,
A luscious lid—that's what you was,
But now your glory's one with Greece,
Your grandeur is of Rome's a piece;
Your primal pulchritude has blewed
To innocuous desuetude.

In other words, O straw Caubeen,
You're on the fritz—that's what I mean.
An evanescent charm you had,
Too brief a time you made me glad.
Like to the poet's poppies spread,
I touched the bloom, the flower was dead;
A gem of snowy charm today,
Tomorrow just a piece of hay—
O, adios, farewell to thee,
Good-by, good luck, and R. I. P.

Out yonder stands a sad eyed cow
Who'll make a nifty meal of thou,
And thou, a one time snappy dud,
Will presto be a juicy cud.
A common fate is that, alas!
We die and fertilize the grass
On which in sweet contentment browse
A multitude of grateful cows
Which give us milk which once was we,
And to ourselves, we drink us—see?
Straw hat, good-by and R. I. P.

Society Quartet Starts for North to Hunt Big Game

By Mme. X.

EACH one to his taste; some find Newport—luxurious, hectic, effete—the acme of summer joy. Others prefer the more leisurely elegance of the Berkshires, the aristocratic seclusion of Boston's north shore, or the bracing smartness of Bar Harbor for the warm and radiant months. But to us the summit of summer bliss would be the two month's excursion on which the Howard Linns and the Mason Phelpses started yesterday.

They are headed for Jasper, in the province of Alberta. Here they will collect guides and horses—fifteen of the latter—and journey up and into the lower Rocky mountains for a six days' trip, until they come to the haunt of that shyest and wildest of wild creatures, the mountain sheep. In that remote region the Chicago quartet will pitch camp and will devote itself to the chase of this elusive animal, which only dwells in lonely, untrod wildernesses.

Alberta is a comparatively new Canadian province, as it was established in 1905. It is chiefly distinguished to us in this part of the world as being the home of that famous meteorological station, Medicine Hat, whence come our blizzards and cold waves.

The mountain sheep of the Rockies is khaki colored, white rumped, and extremely diffident. It eschews the highest, steepest rockbound regions, preferring the more open stretches of the lower hills, but even these must be far from the farthest outposts of civilization.

"Roughing It" in Winnetka.

Americans are the only people who appreciate the revivifying qualities of a camping trip. Europeans, if they meditate such a recreation, go to Central Asia, or Africa, or South America, to realize it. They do not arrange for this return to mother nature within a few hours' journey of their own homes. But we Americans are wiser and know that nothing equals the wholesome joy of a week or a fortnight out of doors with the earth for a floor, and the sky for a roof, and a good, airy tent as our sole shelter. This can be attained by almost any one, as witness the numerous campers along the margin of Lake Michigan within a half hour's rail journey of Chicago.

A stroll up the beach near the present home of the X family reveals some of these happy excursionists living on the warm, clean sands. The pater familias goes in to his town office every morning, while his wife and children, mainly clad in scanty bathing suits, disport themselves the livelong day in the sunshine on the narrow strip of warm, sweet beach which lies between the verdure clad bluffs and the rippling lake. They cook and eat their simple meals in the open and at night sleep under tents or out under the stars if the thermometer soars.

Rich are the coats of tan with which they return to show to their pallid city neighbors. There's no summer villa, hotel, or boarding house can match this open air life if one can rough it a little and put up with some discomforts. It's a far cry from the expedition of the Linns and Phelpses to the simple colony near the foot of the Winnetka water tower, but the same spirit moves both outfits—desire for a temporary freedom from conventional restraints and love of primitive nature.

Society Women Poisoned.

Apropos of nature in the primitive, it is amazing that, with all the various crusades against rural disadvantages, such as bad roads, mosquitoes, flies, polluted water, imperfect drainage, and so forth, no one has organized a campaign to destroy and exterminate the immense crop of poison ivy which infests our waysides, woods, and ravines and makes every walk a thing of danger and distress.

It may be imagination, but it has seemed as if this year more cases of ivy poisoning have occurred than usual. Nor has it been confined to children, usually the principal sufferers from this pest of the north shore. Among its more mature victims have been Mrs. Arthur Aldis of Lake Forest and Mrs. William B. Hale of Winnetka, both of whom suffered severe and comprehensive cases of poisoning.

Besides the pain, discomfort, and disfigurement of ivy poisoning, one of its worst features is that it renders the afflicted mortal peculiarly susceptible ever after to its baleful effects. Even the proximity of this three leafed foe will affect the skin of the ex-victim. It is a matter that might well occupy the attention of the various garden clubs that are springing up everywhere. They could get out leaflets and spread them broadcast describing this poisonous vine, its habits, and habitats, how to exterminate it and how to treat the wounds it inflicts.

So ignorant are many people as to its appearance that the guests of one north shore dinner hostess found themselves seated at a table charmingly decorated with a trailing three leafed crimson vine—it was in late September, hence the crimson—before one wiser than the rest said:

"Why, this is poison ivy!"

A roaring lion prancing around the middle of the table could hardly have produced greater consternation among the guests than this statement.

Off on a Cruise.

A jolly lot of tars are the men who have gone off on the naval training cruises. "Jack" Ewen was largely responsible for collecting and rounding up an important contingent of the Chicago group which embarked on the U. S. S. Louisiana last Tuesday from Norfolk, Va. Among them were such well known citizens as Joseph Winterbotham Jr., Laird Bell, William B. Hale, Preston Kumler, Pierce Anderson, and Charles Adsit Jr.

Uncle Sam is as careful and precise in what he requires these volunteer mariners to bring with them or acquire on board ship for personal equipment as any boarding school ma'am.

Listed for guidance, with prices attached, are tooth brushes, shaving outfit, comb and brush, shoe shine outfit, towels, low shoes, high shoes, light socks, heavy socks, dark jersey, under drawers, undershirts, leggings, watch cap, bathing trunks, neckerchief, scrubbing brush, clothespins (the regulations call them clothes stops), dungarees, mattress and cover, white suits, and ditto hats. All that the government provides them is "ditty box, bag, hammock, set of clews, rings, and necessary lashings"—the last sounds fierce, but doubtless pertains to said hammock.

If any men are so [illegible] and wedded to luxury that they can't get along without them, they may bring along night clothes, sheets, pillows, and pillow covers. But many of the men prefer to carry out the whole expedition to the last letter of experience, and, for the time being, to be the real article, the simple, rugged man of war's man. So, avast such enfeebling superfluities as pajamas, pillows, and sheets.

Real Thing on the Border.

Not so pleasant is the lot of the volunteer soldier lad on the Mexican border. One of them—an easterner, at home on temporary leave—says that there are hundreds of cases of dengue or enteric fever down there due to poor food, impure water, and myriads of flies.

He said that for himself he never ate camp food. He subsisted on one meal a day, which he went in town—what town not specified—to buy. It was to this precaution that he attributed his own immunity from illness so far. Besides these intestinal troubles, the sun claims many victims—the sun, aided by inexperienced militia officers.

From the same source of information comes an account of one hike wherein out of 500 men but ninety-six came in to camp at the end of the tramp. A regular army officer on horseback met this particular batch of panting, sweating, struggling men, straggling along and dropping like flies in their tracks. Dismounting, he gave the amateur officer in charge a hauling over the coals, saying that no experienced officer would ever do to troops in his change what this tyro was doing.

Let no one forget, in the pleasant lethargy or preoccupation of this height of summer and holiday times, those 100,000 fellowmen who are so pluckily enduring hardships, privations, and sickness down there. It is up to each one of us to ask the question, Why should they be there, away from family and business, while other men of their ilk are not?

Autumn and Suffrage.

One of the deep delights of midsummer's leisure has been the chance to read in a swinging seat on a shaded, boxscented porch Hugh Walpole's "The Dark Forest." Once more we get a glimpse of that mysterious, strange, unfathomable Russia, the Russia of Tolstoi, Dostoievsky, and Tourgenieff. Although it is about the present war that this prose epic centers, yet even the great war becomes of secondary importance beside the descriptions of souls swept by the winds of love and death which blow through the book and sway these souls like candle flames. While it is not so cosmic as Tolstoi's "War and Peace," it reminds one somewhat of portions of that mighty romance.

Though the locust's shrill, buzzsaw tremolo rounds out the perfect symphony of these delicious summer days, the clamor of the katydid has for some time vied with the night cricket's piercing note to warn us of approaching autumn and of the duties, responsibilities, and interests that lie in wait for each one of us.

Already the suffragists are gathering their cohorts for a most important convention to be held by the Woman's National Suffrage association in Atlantic City from the 6th to the 10th of September, when will be decided the question of what part that organization shall take in the coming presidential campaign. Should it be an active part for one candidate it would be quite a formidable element added to a political party.

Among the Chicago women who expect to be there are Mrs. James W. Morrisson, Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, Mrs. Augustus Peabody, and Miss Suzette Ryerson, all active workers and locally influential. Mrs. Morrisson and Miss Ryerson are uncommonly good public speakers, and are indomitable workers for any cause they advocate. Mrs. Fairbank took an active part in the Progressive presidential campaign four years ago, and if she can be interested in national politics this autumn will make a fine and effective champion for any candidate.

Cherchez la Femme.

Just at present, however, Mrs. Fairbank is quite absorbed in automobiling. She has become an enthusiastic motorist, driving her own car all over Cape Cod's perfect roads, even speeding up so far north as to visit her sister, Mrs. "Sam" Chase, at York Harbor, Me.

The Fairbank family returns to their summer home at Lake Geneva, Wis., Sept. 1, thus releasing the "Ben" Carpenters and family, who have had the old Fairbank place, to journey forth in various directions.

To return a moment to politics, it is one of the many political rumors that because they expect the women to support Hughes, the distillers and liquor interests will rally to Wilson. This latter element—perhaps rightly—regards women as their most dangerous foes. It's the old, old battle and will end, in the long run, with victory to the powers of light. "Which are the powers of light?" do you say? "Cherchez la femme."

A fellow citizeness, recently returned from a trip east, when asked what the word was there, said:

"They're talking mainly about infantile paralysis in the east." It seems that, although not so chronicled in the New York dailies, between 140 and 150 cases a day of this malady are brought to the hospitals, and of this number one-third are fatal. Considering the after effects of this disease, perhaps this large percentage of fatalities is better than a smaller one. And up to now science is helpless either to prevent or cure it. It is a most distressing and alarming situation.

Last month the Charles B. Macdonalds' daughter, Mrs. Joseph Grace (the Macdonalds are well known former Chicagoans), hastily packed up and carried her two children away from their lovely Long Island country place to the Macdonalds' seashore home at Southampton, because the gardener's child on the Grace estate developed the malady. It is the haunting specter of that part of the world.

This Year's Tennis Matches.

The attendance at the tennis tournament on the Onwentsia club courts at Lake Forest improved very decidedly last week, as the quality of the games improved.

The weather, for one thing, was ideal. Those who were faithful tennis fans a year ago recalled those rain drenched days and the slippery courts and the bedraggled plumage of the spectators, and doubly enjoyed the sunshine, perfect turf, and gay toilets of this year's tournament. All of these factors were delightfully depitced by Mrs. Robert McGann in a brilliant oil sketch she made of the scene. Sitting high up at the southeast corner of the grand stand, under an umbrella lashed to a stanchion, she enjoyed the matches as much as the wildest tennis enthusiast, though at the end of the day she couldn't have told who won.

The first day that she established her easel on the bleachers she vied with the tennis men in the eye of the inquisitive public. Strangers and friends alike visited her eyrie and inspected and discussed freely her work. When we are more cosmopolitan as a community we shall accept many things without comment and accord greater personal liberty to our fellow beings.

STEFFENS PHOTO

One of the earliest of the fall weddings will be that of Miss Gladys Anderson, daughter of Bishop and Mrs. Charles P. Anderson, who has set Sept. 4 for her wedding to Haven ReQua, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles ReQua. The wedding will take place at the summer home of the family on Long Lake, Mich., and will be celebrated at 4 o'clock in the afternoon in the garden of the estate.

A recent wedding announcement is that made by Mr. and Mrs. George E. Depew of 4436 Sheridan road, of their daughter, Olive Elizabeth, to Paul Power Hertz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Hertz of 524 Diversey parkway, which took place on Aug. 9.

WEDDINGS.

One of the fall weddings for which the date has just been set is that of Miss Alice Morrison Buckingham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Buckingham, 266 Linden street, Winnetka, to Parker Blair, son of Thomas S. Blair Jr., 23 East Division street. It will be a small home wedding on Saturday afternoon, Sept. 16, and plans are being made to have it an out of doors affair. Miss Harriet Buckingham, the youngest daughter in the Buckingham family, with Miss Sylvia Shaw, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Van Doren Shaw of Lake Forest and Lake Shore drive, will be introduced to society at a ball to be given in the crystal ballroom of the Blackstone hotel on the evening of Friday, Nov. 24.

Dr. and Mrs. Henry H. Everett have issued invitations for the marriage of their daughter, Charlotte Reed, to Claude Rose Dines, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry B. Dines of Quincy, Ill., and the wedding is set for the evening of Sept. 2 at the home of the bride.

The Rev. J. V. Blake of All Souls' Unitarian church of Evanston will officiate. The bride will be attended by her aunt, Mrs. George J. Harris, as matron of honor. Carolyn Jane Everett will be the ring bearer. William F. Hartman will serve as best man. After a short wedding trip through Canada and the east Mr. and Mrs. Dines will be at home at Hanover, N. H.

At the marriage of Miss Caroline Painter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Painter, 5006 Dorchester avenue, to Holden Wilson of Cincinnati on Saturday, Oct. 7, Miss Virginia Beckler of Cincinnati, the bride's cousin, will be maid of honor and R. A. Holden Jr., also of Cincinnati, will act as best man. The ushers will include Parker Painter, brother of the bride, and Ira Holden. The service will be celebrated at 4 o'clock in the afternoon at the residence of the bride's parents. Only the immediate families and a few intimate friends will be present.

Saturday, Sept. 2, is the date set for the wedding of Miss Emma Grace Dickerson, daughter of James Spencer Dickerson, to Harvey Benjamin Fuller Jr. of St. Paul. The wedding will take place at Eagle Nest camp, Oregon, Ill., and Miss Elizabeth Dickerson will serve her sister as maid of honor. There will be two matrons of honor, Mrs. Dwight Dickerson and Mrs. Harry C. Lawton. Harold Rypino will be best man and the ushers will be Dwight Dickerson and Dr. Harry Lawton. The wedding will be celebrated out of doors and Dr. Latham A. Crandall of Minneapolis will read the service.

The marriage is announced of Miss Fannie Veatch Dixon to Charles E. Patmor at the residence of the bridegroom's sister, Mrs. Harry W. Shaw, 4146 Berkeley avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Patmor will make their home at Fairbury, Ill.

The marriage is announced of Miss Helen Frances Stearns, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. William M. Stearns of Kenilworth, to John Wilson McConnell, son of Mrs. Jean Wilson McConnell of New York City, on Aug. 12 at the family residence. Dr. William K. Foote of Omaha, Neb., brother of the bride's mother, served as best man and Miss Helen Ehrman of Oak Park was maid of honor.

Mr. and Mrs. Simon Rubel of 552 East Fifty-first street announce the marriage of their daughter, Elsa, to Elmer S. Eisner on Aug. 10 at 5:30 in the afternoon at the residence of the bride's parents.

ENGAGEMENTS.

The engagement is announced of Miss Elizabeth Wells, daughter of Mrs. M. D. Wells and sister of Mrs. Howard Shaw and Mrs. Charles T. Atkinson of Lake Forest, to Tracy Lay McCauley, U. S. N.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Jenning of 1325 East Fifty-fourth street announce the engagement of their daughter, Mary Josephine, to John T. McDonough, son of Mrs. John McDonough of Eau Claire, Wis.

Mr. and Mrs. Fischer T. Page of Chattanooga, Tenn., announce the engagement of their daughter, Hazel Virginia, to C. Ellsworth Clark, son of the Rev. and Mrs. Robert Bruce Clark of New York City. Miss Page is a former resident of Chicago. The marriage will take place in the early autumn.

A conviction that is a challenge to you

1917 GRANT SIX $825

IT IS our sincere conviction that the Grant Six leads in Quality, Size and Power for its price. We believe it is the best thing on wheels for under a thousand dollars.

This car has marvelous flexibility. It throttles down to one and one-half miles an hour on high gear, it speeds up to fifty. It has power to spare. Moreover, it is economical—owners average twenty miles to the gallon of gasoline (some say twenty-eight miles) and 900 miles to the gallon of oil. Of course, it is easy on tires, because in spite of its generous size, its roomy body, its extra strength, it is light in weight.

And its true cantilever spring suspension makes it remarkably easy riding on any road. We emphasize this feature of the Grant Six because it deserves emphasis.

Taking all these facts into consideration, it is our conviction that the Grant Six offers you more for the money than any car sold for less than a thousand dollars.

This is a challenge to you to come and see!

The TRIBUNE'S WEEKLY ALMANACK

AUGUST

St. Bartholomew.

LATE August comes and with it St. Bartholomew, forerunner, like the katydid, of frost and chill conditions. With St. Bartholomew comes the cold dew. The woods stand green and the fields never more flowering, luxuriant as they have not been during the supposedly luxuriant months of the year. Now we approach the dead months which live and flower for present preception, but which are in anticipation dead.

The present pleases but the prospect chills. There comes an east wind and folk are driven indoor and to hunt logs for the fire, which presently blazes to give a comfortable hint of early Autumn.

In this last of summer there is an intimation of the coming season which will require the steady fire of logs of an evening, which will permit the early lighting of the reading lamp and which will allow folk to withdraw from the outdoors into the four walls of hut happiness outside of which they have lived during the free days. The early wood smoke of a cool August evening suggests the coming closed and intimate season when life must have within itself the elements of its own sustenance and comfort; when hut happiness asks that there be inclosed within the hut the components of happiness.

Corn is ripening and the suggestion of chill is only a suggestion. Nevertheless a fire is built under logs for comfort in the evening and it is St. Bartholomew's.

Hairfree Underarms Clean and Comfortable

Removing the hair from the underarms with El Rado relieves the annoyance and discomfort of excessive perspiration. It has enabled many women to discard the cumbersome dress shield with perfect safety, and insures an underarm smoothness as fresh and cool as a baby's.

The removal of hair is absolutely necessary for the wearing of sleeveless gowns and sheer blouses, also for comfort and cleanliness.

The thought of shaving is naturally distasteful to most women, but with El Rado, a sanitary liquid toilet preparation, the hair may be removed in a way that is pleasant, harmless, and altogether "womanly."

El Rado removes hair from the face, lip, neck or arms by dissolving it in a few moments, almost like washing it off. Easily applied with piece of absorbent cotton, and does not increase or coarsen later hair growth.

Money back guarantee.

NEW YORK SOCIETY by MME. Y.

It's the Boy With Muscle Who Wins Newport Eye Now

By Mme. Y.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—I take it as rather a satisfying sign of the times that preparedness and all the military interest attaching thereto has made a change in the standards by which Newport society now judges the qualifications of its young men.

Gone, and gone forever, we all hope, are the days when the silly and flamboyant methods of a Harry Lehr were a sort of open sesame to social prominence. It takes something more than the planning of "monkey dinners" or an exhibition of wading in public fountains to attract the attention of either debutante or eager matron these days.

Another Harry Lehr could appear on the scene today, with bells on his fingers and rings on his toes, wearing earrings and a purple sport shirt, and attract no more attention than a freak at an amateur circus. He might plan the most startling of entertainments and attract unto himself columns of the sort of publicity Sabbath journals delight in. But he still could not break through.

Society just now is interested in the athletic young man. And what society is interested in, of that society is inclined to make a god. Manliness and sportsmanship have the call today, and if that is not a triumph for the new military spirit, what is it?

What Newport Really Admires.

Take, for instance, the case of Lorrilard Tailer, son of the T. Suffern Tailers. "Lorry," as he is known to his family and his intimates, has just graduated from Newport's junior set and his popularity is largely based on his athletic prowess. He is a yachtsman, he plays polo, making a very good impression in his first big game last Saturday with Mrs. Bargey Wallach; he won the mixed doubles at tennis last week, he is entered in the invitation tournament to follow, and he plays good golf. When social success comes to a fine, upstanding chap of this sort, not even the outsiders resent it.

That the parents of this type of junior are in hearty sympathy with the sporting trend is proved by the party the Tailers gave for their young hopeful last week. A tent was erected on the lawn of Honeysuckle lodge for dancing, but between the dances the juniors tramped joyously over to the garage, where there was an improvised bowling alley and a shooting gallery to amuse them.

What is true of "Lorry" Tailer is also true of most of the other worth while juniors this season. Young Douglas Sloane Burden, son of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Burden; Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, and William T. Carter, son of William E. Carter, are attracting the attention of society's most exacting matrons because of the reports spread of them by polo fans who have watched them play.

Another junior about to emerge is P. A. B. Widener, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Widener. He borrowed father's yacht, the Josephine, last week and gave a formal luncheon aboard her for some thirty of his friends. All these promising lads are having no end of fun this season joining Mr. and Mrs. Morgan Belmont in their coaching parties. The Belmonts celebrated their first weddin anniversary last Monday evening. Now they are grooming their coach and its accessories for the forthcoming horse show.

Bobbie Goelets "Movied."

Taking and exhibiting moving pictures continues a popular diversion. Robert Walton Goelet is the latest to utilize the camera and the screen to entertain his friends. Just now he is interested in a series of French war pictures taken at the front by Marquis de Polinac, who is his guest in Newport. His first thought was to show them all at once, but he found there was so much interest in the views that he was forced finally to engage a local moving picture theater and entertain there at several showings. He also took pictures of the yacht races last week from the deck of Henry Walter's steam yacht, Narada, and as a competing "producer" he had Henry O. Havemeyer turning the crank of another machine aboard Noma.

None of the picture shows is attracting more attention, however, than that arranged by the Vincent Astors in aid of the American ambulance fund, which will have been over several hours when you are reading this.

The Astor film is one of "Our American Boys at the Front in Europe," and the way to its complete success as a charity was paved by the naming of Miss Ethel Borden Harriman, presented to society a week ago, as the chairman of the entertainment committee, which included Miss Muriel Winthrop, Miss Mary Alexander, Miss Rose B. Dolan, and Miss Margaret Perin. The new ballroom at Beechwood was utilized and the patronesses included Mrs. French Vanderbilt, Mrs. August Belmont, Mrs. Clarence Dolan, Mrs. E. L. Winthrop, Mrs. Frederick Allen, Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, and Mrs. Astor.

Gov. and Mrs. R. Livingston Beeckman continue their large Saturday night dinner parties and last week they had Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Longworth of Washington as house guests. How strangely quiet and reserved has Alice Longworth become, and in direct contrast to all those weird predictions we once heard of her!

Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, who set out determinedly to keep the soldier lads at the front in Texas supplied with reading matter, reports that she has so far shipped 1,000 pounds of literature to the border. This has gone forward in 200 pound lots, and a weird assortment of reading matter it proved to be, I venture. Mrs. Vanderbilt was bravely assisted in the work by her son and daughter, Miss Grace and Cornelius Jr.

Yachts Make Lovely Week.

The Narragansett Pier colony fairly buzzed with social activities last week during the yacht races. Arthur Meeker anchored the Arcady in the bay and entertained in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Walter D. Denegre. Capt. Grenville Kane had his brother, Henry B. Kane, aboard the Ventura, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Churchman and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur H. Brockie gave a Sunday party aboard the Crusader.

George W. Scott brought the Miladi into the bay, too, and had as his guests C. B. Halsey, F. C. Henderson, R. W. S. Hull, and George B. Huhne. Col. Samuel Nicholson had a party of friends aboard the Lady Warwick, the De Forest Hicks and the E. P. Hicks entertained on the Eleanor, and Peter Goelet Gerry had a number of guests aboard the Owera.

The blue and yellow ballroom, newly erected by the Harry Payne Whitneys for the debut of their daughter, Flora, a week ago, was again utilized last night when they gave the first party in her honor. Many affairs are planned for the debutantes, who are particularly numerous this season.

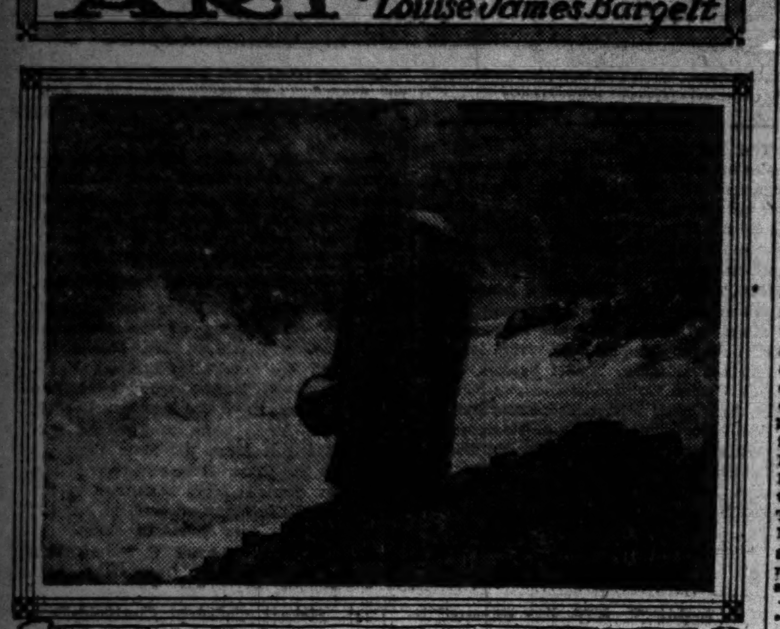
ART By Louise James Bargelt



"Watching the Breakers" by Winslow Homer

HANGING IN THE PERMANENT COLLECTION OF THE ART INSTITUTE.

CONTEMPORARY BRITISH ARTISTS.

THERE is an extremely interesting exhibit opening at the Art institute on Aug. 25th. It is an exhibition of the work of contemporary British artists, selected by Harrington Mann of London, and will remain at the institute for a month.

Among other well known artists whose work will be shown are Austin Brown, D. Y. Cameron, B. Grenville Evers, George Washington Lambert, William Orpen, John Lavery, and William Strang.

Perhaps no living Briton's work is better known in this country than that of Strang. Not much over 50, he has already done an enormous amount of work, and is a prodigious producer along many artistic lines. He found his first admirers with his etchings, and many of these are classics, exceeding even Rembrandt in the eyes of many present day critics.

On the continent he is better known through his paintings. His "Bathers" won the gold medal at Dresden, and a series of Adam and Eve pictures challenges comparison with the most ambitious productions of modern art. His work on wood recalls the engravings of Holbein generations ago, and he is one of the few modern artists to give us really original engravings. He has hit on a new method of portrait painting which expresses fine shades of modeling in the simplest way. He did a remarkable portrait of Rudyard Kipling. His landscape work gives abundant play to the imagination and he has illustrated many books in the last few years.

Strang's abhorrence of the pretty amounts almost to a morbid obsession, and he has become a past master in the art of freezing the blood with his fantastic imagination. His relish for the horrible has enabled him to give it the impressiveness of art.

He has a rare power, too, of grouping which conveys a sense of the elemental forces. His chiaroscuro "Dance of Death," which was published by the Essex House press some years ago, is a marvelous thing. The meaning of his prints and engravings is not always clear. Sometimes his thoughts escape through the mesh of language and elude one.

Chicago will also delight in one of the finest of John Lavery's works—his "Aida." Lavery is a brilliant and expressive product of the Glasgo school. He has all of the frankness and innate charm which belongs to the Scotch Irish, and at heart is a real cosmopolitan, having made his home in London for many years and traveled all over the world. He is utterly different from Strang, having no use at all for ugliness and preferring beauty even to character. He is furthermore, in his way, decidedly modern. His people are attractive, fresh, radiating his own vigorous personality. He has some of the most delightful Irish studies of girls England has ever seen.

Summer is preëminently the season for the keenest enjoyment of landscape painting and this fact is attested by the crowds of people who are flocking to the Art institute and lingering in evident pleasure before the many landscape pictures the institute possesses.

American artists have been particularly prolific in the landscape line, and the museum has more than a generous number of representative landscapes by artists of this country.

There is a fine example of Winslow Homer's work called "Watching the Breakers." Homer has been named the painter of seclusion because he loved nature and withdrew whenever he could from men to learn of nature's secrets and to understand her moods. Probably no other artist ever knew the Maine coast as well as he, ever felt the weight of its waters, and was so intoxicated by its brisk buoyancy. Other of his well known paintings are "Fog Off the Banks," "Watching the Tempest," and a "Voice from the Cliff."

Then there is a fine collection of the paintings of Inness; Inness, who more than Homer painted nature's most intimate moods and whose canvases are all of them permeated with an exquisite charm. And Vedder, too, is there with one of his unforgettable canvases. Somehow when I see one of Vedder's pictures I always wish that I could have a volume of Poe's short stories which he had illustrated. There is the same haunting, mystical quality in Poe's tales that lurks in the canvases of Vedder.

Daniel Garber has two distinctive landscapes. So has William Keith and Massanovitch and Metcalf and Murphy. Ritschel has one of his finest western paintings. Waugh has a splendid "Surf and Fog" and Wendt a landscape "When All the World Is Young." Peyraud and Foster and Beal and Meakin all have characteristic landscapes, and Ryder's "Misty Morning" is deserving of the most enthusiastic praise. Of course Wyant and Metcalf and West are to be seen in carefully selected work.

It is a fine collection of our American artists and wholly deserving of all the attention it is receiving by Chicago people these summer months.

Exhibitions at the galleries:

Moulton & Rickett's—Twenty canvases by Otrowsky; also, beginning tomorrow, a collective exhibition by local artists.

Roullier's—Sculpture by Alfeo Faggi.

Questions and Answers

I am contemplating an automobile trip to Madison, Wis., and would like to know what is the best route to follow. I may decide to first drive to Milwaukee. Will I find a good road from Milwaukee to Madison?

W. W. Q., Chicago.

I just returned from a tour to Madison and can assure you that the roads are in excellent condition at the present time. The best way is to take Sheridan road to Evanston and then swing over to Railroad avenue and go to the street south of the Wilmette station. Pass through Wilmette and again come onto Sheridan road, following same to eastern edge of Glencoe. Pass through village of Glencoe and take road through Wheeling, Buffalo Grove, Long Grove, Wauconda, McHenry, Ringwood, Hebron, Lake Geneva, Delavan, Emerald Grove, Janesville, Edgerton, Stoughton, and McFarland to Madison. The distance is 160 miles. The road from Milwaukee to Madison consists mostly of gravel, with one or two dirt stretches. This route runs through Brookfield, Oconomowoc, and Watertown, and measures 84.5 miles.

Will you kindly publish the route from Chicago to Omaha by way of Oskaloosa, Ia.

F. R., Chicago.

Maywood, Elmhurst, Lombard, North Glen Ellyn, West Chicago to Geneva. Here you will take the Lincoln highway, passing De Kalb, Rochelle, Dixon, Sterling, 119 miles. Here you will leave the Lincoln highway and go through Galt, Lyndon, Hillsdale, Watertown, Moline, Davenport, 86.2 miles; Blue Grass, Muscatine, Fredonia, Columbus City, Washington, Springfield, Oskaloosa, Otley, Prairie City, Des Moines, 198.5 miles; Waukee, Adel, Guthrie Center, Exira, Minden, Underwood, Council Bluffs, Omaha, 157.9.

Will you please publish in your column the best route to follow in going from Chicago to Wabash, Ind.

F. H. M., Chicago.

South Chicago, Hammond, Highland, South Gary, Hobart, Wheeler, Valparaiso, 51.6 miles; Wanatah, Hanna, Donaldson, Plymouth, Atwood, Warsaw, 75.1 miles; Silver Lake, Rosehill, North Manchester to Wabash, 37 miles.

How are the roads in northern Wisconsin? I am planning a tour from Macomb to Rhinelander, Wis., but do not know the first thing about the best route. Can you help me out? M. P. W., Macomb, Ill.

Some of the roads are good, others are fair, while many are bad. However, they average quite well, and you should not have any serious trouble in reaching your destination. From Macomb go through Bushnell, St. Augustine, Abingdon, Galesburg, 46.9 miles; Henderson, Alpha, Milan, Rock Island, Davenport, 48.5 miles; Pleasant Valley, Princeton, Clinton, 78.3 miles; Fulton, Mount Carroll, Lanark, Shannon, Freeport, 57.8 miles; Orangeville, Monroe, Albany, Evansville, Oregon, Madison, 73.6 miles; Poynette, Portage, 35.7 miles; Dalton, Green Lake, Verlyn, Waupaca, 90.5 miles; Iola, Galloway, Elant Junction, Antigo, 76.9 miles; Dudley, Rhinelander, 54.8 miles.

Can you tell me through your interesting department, the best automobile roads between Hammond and St. Louis? I want to make this trip within a few days and am wondering if the roads will be in good condition at that time.

M. R., Hammond, Ind.

The roads are at their best just now, although considerable construction work is going on at various points. However, wherever the roads are closed, detours are usually marked, so you should have no trouble in getting through. About the best route to follow in going from Hammond to St. Louis is through Riverdale, Dalton, Thornton, Chicago Heights, Steger, Momence, Kankakee, Gilman, Paxton, Rantoul, Urbana, Champaign, 136.7 miles; Monticello, Maroa, Decatur, 57 miles; Mechanicsburg, Springfield, 40.7 miles; Chatham, Girard, Carlinville, Medora, Alton, Granite City, Venice, St. Louis, 118.7 miles.

Miss Iva I. Powell

Announcement is made of the engagement of Miss Iva I. Powell of 551 Aldine avenue to Howard E. Spreat of Detroit. The wedding will take place early in September.

Many Improvements Made on Dixie Highway This Year.

ON account of the summer climatic attractions of Detroit, Judge M. M. Allison, president of the Dixie Highway association, has called a meeting of the board of directors of the association to be held at the Hotel Tuller in that city on Friday. From the responses which have been received from the twenty-two members of the board, representing eight states, a majority of the members will be present.

The Detroit meeting of the board will be in the nature of a jubilee in celebration of some pronounced successes obtained by the association in the construction of the eastern and western divisions of the Dixie highway from Michigan to Florida.

The most notable achievement is the closing up of all of the gaps on the eastern division between Detroit and Chattanooga, of which the recent letting of the contract for the Monroe-Toledo link was an important feature. Numerous other improvements between Toledo and Cincinnati in the way of substitution of permanent paving for macadam road have been brought about through activities of the Dixie Highway association.

From Cincinnati to Chattanooga via Knoxville every county is now at work, so that a well surfaced roadway from Detroit south is assured by the early part of 1917.

Crossing the Ohio river, Kenton county, Ky., is adding to its mileage of concrete roads along the Dixie highway. Boone county recently voted $200,000 to free the toll road and improve the highway. Grant county will soon complete the resurfacing of the Dixie highway. Scott county has an extensive program of improvements for her link, including a part of the mileage of asphalt macadam. Fayette county is busy providing a hard surface roadway throughout the county in addition to preparing to secure the funds to join with Madison county in the construction of a new Dixie highway bridge over the Kentucky river.

Madison county is improving its good road to Berea, where the Dixie highway leaves the Blue Grass to enter the Cumberland mountains. Work was started by Madison and Rockcastle counties on July 27 on the important link between Berea and Mount Vernon. Rockcastle county is spending $90,000 out of a $100,000 bond issue on the Dixie highway. Laurel county, adjoining, with her $100,000, is engaged in building a splendid road to Corbin across Wild Cat mountain, utilizing thirteen miles of abandoned railroad grade. Knox county, which has been at a variance with the Kentucky highway department for a year relative to the routing of the Dixie highway in that county, has reached a satisfactory agreement and contracts have just been awarded for the construction of the entire mileage of the highway through the county, with $200,000 available.

Bell county recently secured 200 convicts from the state to complete the Dixie highway from Pineville to the Knox county line. This county has the highway graded and surfaced from the Tennessee line to Pineville. Claiborne county, Tenn., with the proceeds of a bond issue totaling $376,000, is building the Dixie highway through that county. Union county recently awarded the contracts for the construction of the Dixie highway through that county, out of $100,000 bond issue and the work has been started. Knox county has just completed the expenditure of $500,000 which provided for the road. A splendid road now exists between Knoxville and Chattanooga, with only four miles of surfacing to complete.

A good road over the Dixie highway now exists between Chattanooga and Florida through the state of Georgia. Every county in Florida is making extensive improvements under the impetus of the Dixie highway enthusiasm. As an example the association brought about the complete provision for the construction of the link between Tallahassee and Gainesville, Fla., which has been a serious drawback to through travel to west coast points.

MOTORS AND MOTORCYCLES

Conducted by J. C. Burton

A Week End Tour to Madison and Return.

THE following trip lies through the lake section of northern Illinois and southern Wisconsin and takes in some of the prettiest roads and most attractive scenery in the Chicago district. In addition to this, the roads themselves are in good shape and the trip can be very easily negotiated in two days, and, of course, if any time is desired at the more popular resorts, such as Lake Geneva, Oconomowoc, Madison or Janesville, good accommodations can be found, making the trip one of the most enjoyable possible out of the city.

Leaving Chicago, go north on Sheridan road to Evanston and Wilmette, as far as Lake avenue. Here turn left, leaving the railroad, and go west through Grosse Point for about four and a half miles; here turn right and go straight north, through Northfield and Deerfield and about two and a half miles beyond at a prominent four corners, turn left, going into Half Day. Keep right straight through Half Day, curving right with the road, going northwest past Diamond Lake through Ivanhoe and Volo into McHenry [38.7 miles].

From McHenry, keep straight ahead to the end of the street with the church and here turn right, avoiding the next left-hand road and keeping right at the fork beyond. Keep straight through Richmond and a mile beyond turn left, following the road into Genoa Junction [61.1 miles] and the travel into Lake Geneva.

Leaving Lake Geneva, go north on Broad street to North street, and here jog right and left onto Williams street, which follow to George street, and then turn left over to the railroad and go northwest to Elkhorn [85.5 miles]. From Elkhorn, turn right around the court house and at the fork just beyond, bear right and continue north, passing to the east of Lauderdale lake. Here avoid the left-hand road, keeping right on the direct road and at the four corners beyond turn right, following travel north through Little Prairie [98.7 miles] and three miles beyond, take the left-hand road, coming into Eagle [103.4 miles]. From Eagle, continue straight north through Dousman and into Oconomowoc. Then go west, passing through Ixonia, Watertown, Hubbleton, Portland, Waterloo, Marshall and Sun Prairie, coming into Madison on East Washington avenue [173.4 miles].

Leave Madison on West Washington street and at the five corners, a mile beyond the court house from the capitol, bear diagonally left on South Park avenue and at the next five corners, bear left with poles on middle road, going under railroad, and come into Oregon [8.3 miles]. At fork just beyond, bear left at poles, following the winding road into Redland [15.1 miles]. From here continue south with the travel into Evansville [23.1 miles]. On Main street turn left and follow the travel into Janesville [40.2 miles].

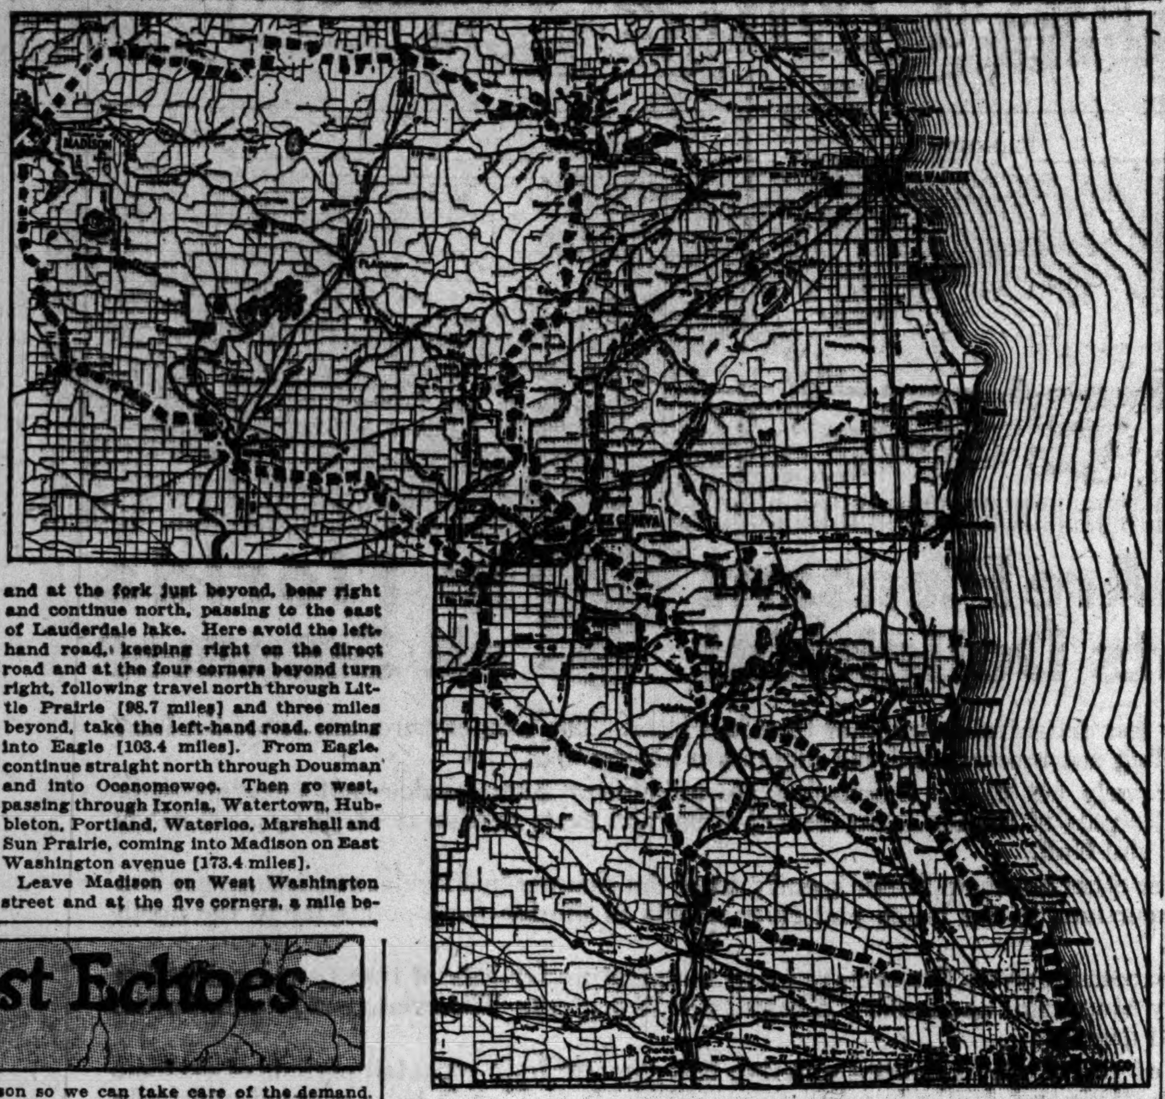
Five miles beyond Emerald Grove turn right with poles, following travel into Fairfield [54.3 miles]. Look out for sharp down grade out of Fairfield, past the creamery. Follow the direct road through Darien into Walworth [65.9 miles]. At Walworth jog right and left around the park, turning right with trolley, passing the postoffice, go south to Big Foot and Harvard [74.1 miles]. Just after crossing the railroad, turn left on Park street and at the end of the street turn right onto Fifth street and then take the next left, and the next right, following the travel down to Woodstock [86.8 miles], and Ridgefield [92.8 miles].

At Ridgefield turn right with the road, coming south into the road from Lake Geneva and go into Crystal Lake and Algonquin [100.4 miles. At Algonquin, keep straight ahead, crossing the Fox river, gradually winding up grade and at the top of the hill avoid the left-hand road and continue south about six miles to the cemetery on the left. Here turn left and follow the Higgins road to the Desplaines river, where turn right and follow the river road down past Kolze's road house and through Franklin Park to Maywood. Here turn left, coming east into Oak Park and following Washington boulevard into Chicago [147 miles].



Exhaust Echoes

The actual transfer of the Thomas B Jeffery company of Kenosha, Wis., to the Nash Motors company, headed by Charles W. Nash, who recently resigned as president of the General Motors company, which took place a few days ago, increased the interest which the automobile industry and the general public is showing in the plans of this new corporation. That the Nash Motors company will be a powerful factor in the automobile business is evidenced by the character of the men associated with Mr. Nash and by his own phenomenal record as a producer and seller of motor cars. James J. Storrow, who was associated with Mr. Nash in the management of the General Motors company as chairman of the executive committee, will hold a similar position in the new Nash Motors company, acting as chairman of the board of directors. In addition to Mr. Nash and Mr. Storrow other directors will include Frederick W. Allen, Robert F. Herrick, Samuel F. Prior, and others to be named later. Private offerings of the stock of the new company resulted in an oversubscription. The acquirement of the Jeffery factory at Kenosha, which marks the first activities of the Nash Motors company, gives the company one of the finest plants in the country for the manufacture of automobiles and motor trucks. The factory buildings, which are practically new, are spacious and modern in every respect, with the finest mechanical equipment possible, and offer every facility for successful manufacture in large quantities.

A. M. Robbins, president of the Centaur Motor company, Jeffery distributer, has just put his O. K. on the final plans for the new service station and truck salesrooms to be erected at 2927-2937 South Wabash avenue. The construction of this building has been made necessary by the large number of Jeffery cars now in use in Chicago and vicinity, and to provide the necessary facilities for the Centaur company. The first floor will be occupied by a large display and salesroom for the truck division of the Centaur company, finished in quartered oak and inlaid mosaic tile and glass. The opposite front will house the general offices of the Centaur company, which will be moved from the pleasure car sales rooms. This floor will also house an innovation in service stations in the form of large room equipped with every comfort and convenience and reserved for the use of dealers from the outside cities embraced in the Centaur company's territory. The second floor constitutes what is probably the nearest to a daylight shop ever put between four walls. The walls are practically entirely of glass and the roof is provided with a sawtooth skylight of over [illegible] square feet area.

The Ford Motor company has adopted a new policy. Henry Ford says an automobile manufacturer cannot manufacture, wholesale, and retail. He must do two of the three things and that is manufacture and wholesale or manufacture and retail, so henceforth the Ford company will not retail in Chicago.

The Erwin Greer Automobile company has taken over the Ford retail branch at 2415 South Michigan avenue and also the fifty retail salesmen.

At present the Ford factory is over 50,000 cars behind in delivery. Deliveries at present are a little slow, but will start coming through on the first of the month. The Ford company contemplate building 750,000 cars during the season of 1917 and if the demand warrants they can increase their production to 1,000,000 cars.

Lawder Bros., 6010 Lafayette avenue, are building a three story building to be used as an exclusive Ford sales and service station. The name Lawder has been identified for a number of years with the Ford car in Chicago and their sales and service forces are in good shape to handle the Ford retail business.

In Boston there lives an automobile owner who has a Saxon roadster nearly a year old that has never been washed with soap and water. Except for the rain and snow storms through which this car has made its way in that time never a drop of water has been used on it and to look at the car today one would not think it had been out of the factory more than a few days. This car owner is a Wonder-Mist fan—has used nothing but Wonder-Mist for cleaning and polishing his car since he has had it and prides himself on its looks today same as when he got it.

"I have just received some good news for myself and all other Oakland dealers," said W. S. Tennant, president of the Tennant-Oakland company, 2447 Michigan avenue. "We are to have more Oakland cars. Perhaps this will not be immediately, but we will be fixed for the next season so we can take care of the demand. The Oakland company has purchased additional property for new factory buildings at Pontiac, Mich., and the tract includes four acres adjoining the Oakland buildings on the east and the solid block of property from Oakland avenue to Howard street fronting on Baldwin street on the north."

In spite of difficulties which have been experienced by all automobile manufacturers who have entered the field on a large scale during the present year in securing materials, the Bour-Davis Motor Car company of Detroit has started its production on cars for the 1917 season, and these cars are going forward from the several temporary plants now being occupied by the company pending the completion of its plant on West Fort street. Several carload lots inaugurated early shipments during the last week, and with material on hand every day now sees other shipments by carload to every point of the country.

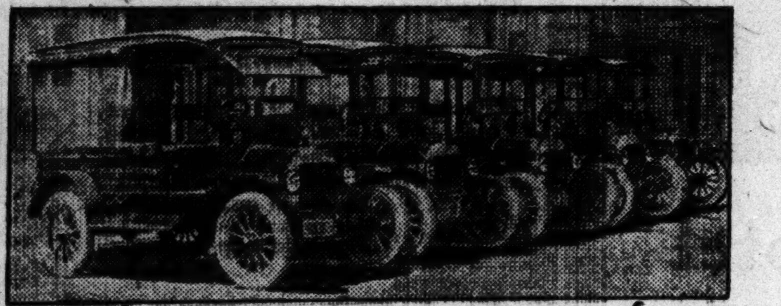
Turn Your Ford Into A Motor Truck For $40

A Simple Attachment—
Gives You All the Necessary Strength—
No Intricate Changes on the Car

THE

CAMELFORD

Converts Any Ford Into a Delivery Truck



FLEET OF TRIBUNE TRUCKS EQUIPPED WITH THE CAMELFORD

The Chicago Tribune needed light-weight dependable motor trucks. They made a thorough investigation and then equipped Fords with Camelfords. So did many other concerns, and so will you after you investigate

What the CAMELFORD IS and What It Will DO

The CAMELFORD is a very simple attachment. It has no maze of machinery—no intricate parts—it strengthens the rear end of the Ford without in any way changing it—maintains the same standard for low fuel consumption and low upkeep that the Ford pleasure car now enjoys—relieves the rear axle—throws the load toward the extreme outside end of the axle and toward the wheels—eliminates swaying and sagging—relieves the Ford rear spring—increases the loading capacity (you can use a larger body safely)—reduces repair bills on the rear axle, differential, housing and spring.

Shipping Weight 110 lbs.

Dealers: The Camelford is the only Ford truck converter that sells for $40. The market for it is beyond your imagination. Here's a chance for you to make a fortune—to clean up.

ASTRONOMY

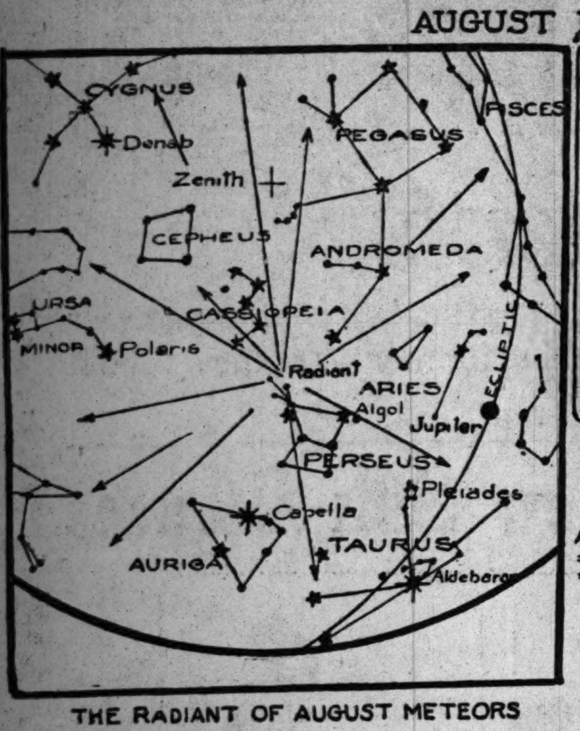
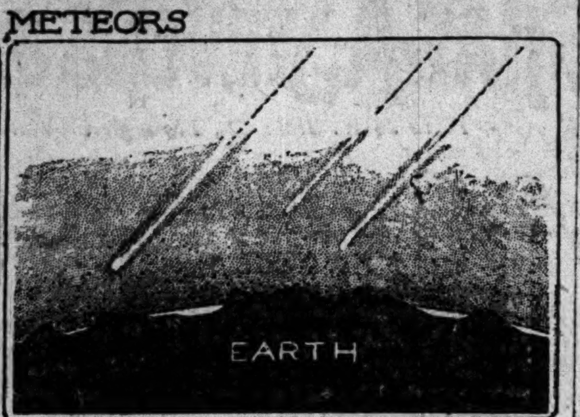
AUGUST METEORS



THE RADIANT OF AUGUST METEORS



METEORS ENTERING THE EARTHS ATMOSPHERE

AUGUST METEORS.

THE August meteors are the Perseids. They are so called because their radiant seems to be in the constellation of Perseus, of which Algol is the most noted star. If the trails of meteors could be traced back it would be found that they radiated from certain points and that each swarm had its radiant point.

The shooting stars into which the earth is running this month come from the vicinity of Algol and are named for the constellation in which Algol lies.

The earth begins to meet the August meteors about the middle of the month and from then on an observer may be fortunate to see two or three or more a minute, coming into the earth's atmosphere and being burned in the friction which this protective envelope creates in the passage of a celestial body hitting it at the speed at which the shooting stars travel.

If tonight be clear it ought to furnish observation with a sight of these celestial particles going to destruction. If they miss the atmosphere of the earth they continue on their way. If they hit it they perish. In the moment of their dissolution, when their stone and iron is turned to gas in the terrific heat which friction causes, they flash and then, dissipated, disappear.

Some reach the earth, having survived, owing to their mass, the journey through the earth's atmosphere. These fragments have been examined in laboratories and the gases which can be extracted from them by heating, has led to the belief that they are fragments of vast bodies, once important in mass in the universe, shattered by some force and continuing to exist as chips, operated upon, as such, by the laws which govern the great bodies which travel infinite space.

The time when certain swarms will be encountered is computed but the spectacle expected is not of constant value. Sometimes, it is indicated, the swarm has yielded to the attraction of another planet and has not been in the path of the earth to the extent it would otherwise have been. The August meteors are yellowish, with a green or blue tint.

The meteoric orbit is an elongated ellipse. The farthest point is 26,000,000,000 miles away from the sun and the nearest 91,000,000 miles, or about 2,000,000 inside the earth's orbit. At the most distant point the sun would appear only as a bright star. The motion of the meteors in their orbit is opposite that of the members of the solar system; instead of from west to east they go from east to west. The swarm is not compact but is strung loosely throughout the whole orbit.

Meteors rush into the air from outer space with high velocities, often as much as forty miles a second. At this speed the air offers great resistance. In a twinkling they are melted and glowing from the fierce friction. Meteors which strike the earth head on burn high in the air, 50 to 100 miles up, but those which come up and overtake it sometimes reach solid ground.

Aug. 30—Weekly luncheon Chicago Automobile Trade association, Hotel Metropole.

The new series twin six Pathfinder is little changed from the preceding model. About the only outward indication of a change is the tilt of the windshield. In the new model it is tilted backward at a slight angle. There are few changes in the body of the car, the makers being satisfied with the graceful lines which created much admiration among dealers and owners alike. Mechanically the car is also much the same. The V type overhead valve twin six motor has not been changed in the least.

Tests like these prove the perfection of the— HASSLER Shock Absorber for Ford Cars

Some Ford owners are from Missouri. They have seen so many make-believe shock absorbers, they have to be shown that the HASSLER SHOCK ABSORBER is all we claim before they will give it a ten days' trial on their own cars.

To convince some of these skeptics, one of our distributors performed the stunts illustrated above. By driving his Ford equipped with the HASSLER over a trestle and down a flight of steps he showed his passengers that the HASSLER provides easy resilient action, and that it prevents rebound and sidesway. But most important he proved the strength and durability of the HASSLER, for the cruel jolts could not break it.

You, of course, don't intend to go touring over trestles and stone steps but you will find a good deal of satisfaction in knowing that with HASSLER SHOCK ABSORBERS on your Ford you can drive easily and safely over the roughest roads and get as much comfort and pleasure out of your car as if it were a big $2000.00 limousine. And you can be sure that your first investment in the HASSLER will be your only investment because these shock absorbers will last as long as your car.

$500.00 in Prizes to Ford Owners

Ask our local dealer about HASSLER SHOCK ABSORBERS, ride in a Ford equipped with them, then write us in twenty-five words or less why every Ford should have them. For the best answer received before September 30, 1916, we will pay $200.00, for the next best $100.00 and so on through a number of prizes.

Write us today for name of dealer nearest you, contest circular, answer blank and descriptive folder

Where to Spend Your SUMMER VACATION

FLORIDA. FLORIDA. FLORIDA. FLORIDA.

The Days Are Pleasant and Nights Delightful in Florida all Summer

Florida is scarcely less delightful in summer than in winter. The temperatures are even; the heat is tempered by prevailing sea breezes, and the nights are always cool.

There are no extremely hot days. Sunstrokes are unknown. Summer does not enervate as in less favored sections. No part of Florida is far from the sea, and every section is swept by mild winds cooled by the Atlantic and Gulf.

Many persons from other Southern States spend part of the summer in Florida, and transportation companies now run excursions to the beach and river resorts in Florida from points far to the north in the summer season.

For five typical, successive years the average mean temperature for July of twenty representative cities, east of the Rocky Mountains and north of Florida, was 78 degrees. The average of Florida for the same period was only 81 degrees.

While the people of the North have been suffering this summer from repeated periods of extreme heat, with many prostrations and deaths in consequence, residents of Florida have enjoyed uniformly pleasant weather without a single uncomfortably hot day.

Life in Florida is a year-round joy. Every season has its special pleasures. Boating on Florida's enchanting lakes, bays and rivers, bathing at the numerous beaches, and automobiling on the splendid boulevards and roads are especially enjoyable in the summer.

Summer is the leisure season in Florida; farms, gardens, groves and livestock require little attention now; the people generally are prosperous and can well afford to travel, yet most of them find more comfort and enjoyment at their homes, around the lakes, on the rivers or the beaches of Florida than even the most famous summer resorts of the North afford.

TABLOID BOOK REVIEW

by FANNY BUTCHER

Last week's best sellers in a leading Chicago bookstore:

WAR.

"The Red Horizon" [Doran], by Patrick MacGill.

FICTION.

"When a Man's a Man," by Harold Bell Wright [Book Supply].

"Nan of Music Mountain," by Frank Spearman [Scribners].

"That Girl Phillippa," by Robert W. Chambers [Appleton].

"Green Mansions," by W. H. Hudson [Knopf].

"The Prisoner," by Alice Brown [Macmillan].

"Thirteenth Commandment," by Rupert Hughes [Harpers].

NONFICTION.

"Diplomat's Wife in Mexico," by Mrs. E. O'Shaughnessy [Harpers].

KATHLEEN NORRIS has a knack of writing that makes you afraid to put one of her books down before you've finished for fear something may happen while you're gone. It isn't that she writes thrillers, or that her characters are so magnetic. The quality of extreme readableness is just there in her books and that's all there is to it. "The Story of Julia Page" was that way. "The Heart of Rachael" (Doubleday-Page), her new novel, has it. I think it's probably the fact that she tells her story, whatever it is, with sincerity. The major premise of the tale may be sentimental and, to you, false—as it was accused of being in "Mother"—but you feel that to Kathleen Norris it is true, and that, having decided that such and such a situation and psychology exists, she immediately forgets about everything in connection with it except that it is a story worth telling. Her personality is quite definitely reflected in what she writes. She is a big hearted, happy woman who loves to cook and whose life is not complicated by nerves. When she writes about abnormal psychological situations she always solves the difficulty in a perfectly normal fashion.

The field service of the American ambulance is the most vital part which Americans have played in the great war. Hundreds of young Americans have driven their cars along the actual firing line. In "Friends of France" (Houghton-Mifflin) this service is described by certain of the drivers in the various sectors of the French front. Among them are A. Piatt Andrew, inspector of the service; Henry Sydnor Harrison, who has done almost no writing about the war despite the fact that he has been in the midst of it for a year or more; Stephen Galatti, Preston Lockwood, James R. McConnell, and Waldo Peirce. The illustrations include a hundred uncensored photographs of scenes at the front and drawings from numberless French artists' pens.

A mammoth war library, one of the byproducts of the great war, has been amassed by Germany and is soon to have a building for its shelter and preservation. Publications dealing with the war from the German viewpoint are said to equal in number the combined English and French product of war books. At the end of last September an investigator found that there were 6,395 of them, including maps, economic and legal dissertations, and imaginative writings inspired by the war. By this time the total must be at least 8,000.

Half a year ago, like the hero of his own novel, "The Trail of the Hawk" (Harpers), Sinclair Lewis chucked everything and started out with his wife just to wander about the face of the earth. The winter they spent in Florida and Georgia, they were here for a month, then they went to Sauk Center, Minn., his home town. Now they've started on a vagabondish motor trip which will end in California, in that wonder town of Carmel, with its seven veils of shifting mists which wrap themselves about the black-green trees and throw a bed of down upon the floor of the Pacific. The Lewises have made their own tent, so that it acts as a protection for the car as well as a bedroom. They carry a complete camping outfit, from a pullout for wilderness roads down to a knife for cleaning fish, and a complete writing room consisting of a folding table and a folding typewriter. If you see a small motor driven by a tall, rangy young man with very red hair and an eager boyishness about his whole self anywhere along the highways of the west or ambling through Yellowstone or Glacier National park, or climbing the Canadian Rockies, stop him and tell him you've met him—in the Tabloid. I promise you that you'll be eternally glad you did.

The O. Henry story which tells about a girl who couldn't take the easiest way out of poverty because Lord Kitchener was watching her out of the gilt photograph frame on his dresser is called "An Unfinished Story." Three or four correspondents have asked about it.

Bertha Runkle, author of "Straight Down the Crooked Lane" (Century), says she embarked upon the sea of historical novel writing at the age of 14. Her first story began in a spirited manner with the murder of Count A by Count B, Count A's son settling scores by murdering Count B, sacking and burning his castle, and carrying off his beautiful daughter, who in turn occupied several chapters with her ingenuous attempts to stab, poison, or otherwise dispose of young Count A. Miss Runkle—she's Mrs. Bash now, wife of an army captain—says that it was her intention that these two should eventually marry and live happily ever after, but that by the middle of the book such a river of blood flowed between them as to cause too many misgivings as to their possible future happiness in the mind of a 15 year old psychologist.

Like some of the rest of us, Samuel Hopkins Adams, whose latest novel is "The Unspeakable Perk" (Houghton-Mifflin), is not noted for his clear and flowing penmanship. Not long ago he was asked to speak at a meeting near Boston, and the chairman of the program committee wrote asking the subject of his address. Mr. Adams, whose typewriter at the time wasn't working, wrote to the man in long han dthat he would speak on "The Facts Behind the News." Whereupon the man wrote back to ask just what he meant by his curious subject, "The Face Behind the Nose."

The French ministry of war has thrown open to Arthur Gleason, whose recent book, "Golden Lads" (Century), contains the only American eye witness report of German atrocities in Belgium, its collection of original diaries taken from German dead and German prisoners. A thousand or more of these diaries written in pencil day by day on the march tell, Mr. Gleason says, of the shooting of old men, women, and children and the pillaging and burning of houses of noncombatants. He says they are a complete human record of the war and a dramatic indictment of the German method. Some of the soldiers are shocked by their orders, he says. One officer wrote on three different dates in his little black covered notebook: "We are behaving like vandals."

Oldsmobile

Light Eight
$1195
(f o b Lansing)

New avenues of motoring gratification are opened to users of finer automobiles by this product of the Olds Motor Works—The Light Eight De Luxe. To drive it—to feel its eager energy purring at the throttle is to revel in a new sense of motor car mastery.

And—to be able to possess it for $1195, f. o. b. Lansing, is the gratifying surprise to the world of motorists aware of the rightful prestige associated with the name Oldsmobile.

Motor: Eight-cylinder, V-type, high speed—developing 48 h. p. at 2,600 r. p. m. Action superbly smooth and quiet—a power stroke to every 5 inches of car travel. Aluminum pistons and balanced connecting rods minimize wear and vibration. Exceptionally sturdy crankshaft. Simple—accessible construction.

Performance: Eight-cylinder liquid power—plus less than 2,800 pounds car weight, enables the Oldsmobile to always set the pace. Smooth—rapid acceleration. Minimum gear shifting. Nothing to do but drive—with supreme ease of body and mind.

Comfort: 120 inch wheel base—and short hood afford more than enough leg room. Wide seats—deep, soft cushioned, with broad roll edge upholstery, add luxurious contentment to Oldsmobiling.

Easy Riding: Springs long, flat and underslung float the load rather than support it. Scientific chassis balance absorbs road shocks. Up-spring weight minimized by full floating rear axle.

Operating Cost: Exceptionally economical. 15 to 17 miles of swift flight from each gasoline gallon. Oil consumption nominal. Light car weight plus superb smoothness of action reduces tire strain—lengthens tire life.

Appearance: Body lines possess typical Oldsmobile grace. Every detail suggestive of power and litheness. Rich, satiny exterior finish—in royal green and black. Clear hickory wheels, natural finish and silver finished radiator add striking touches of distinction.

Refinements: Silver finished instruments set in Imported Circassion Walnut dash. Walnut steering wheel. Upholstery, French leather—rich and dignified.

Body Styles: 5-passenger touring and 3-passenger roadster, convertible to accommodate 2 extra passengers.

Among others of the distinctive Oldsmobile advantages are Delco lighting, starting and ignition, Hotchkiss drive, Timken front axle bearings, rain vision windshield, one-man top—but, why not see and know them all! Let us give you a demonstration.

NEWS OF CHICAGO SOCIETY

Miss Lolita Armour, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Ogden Armour of Lake Forest, is entertaining her cousin, Miss Alice Silverthorne of New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Armour III., have arrived at Southampton, N. Y., where they will pass the month of August with Mrs. Armour's mother, Mrs. Thomas Gerald Condon.

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin L. Winchell, 1100 Lake Shore drive, are expected to leave within a fortnight for an extended trip through Canada, Boston and New York. They passed several weeks of the heated term in Denver and Salt Lake City.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis T. A. Junkin have as their guest Mme. de Marandat, the noted French artist, at their country estate at Lake Geneva. Mr. and Mrs. Junkin entertained a large house party over the week end.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Blair and their daughter, Miss Anita Blair, 2735 Prairie avenue, are in the Berkshires for the remainder of the season.

Mr. and Mrs. James E. Quan, 63 East Division street, have taken the Ernest Ballard house in Hubbard Woods for the remainder of the season. They left last week with Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Chadbourne of New York, the latter a sister of Mrs. Quan, to make a trip through the Canadian Rockies to Yosemite valley, Banff, and other interesting points.

Mrs. James Heyworth, 1434 Lake Shore drive, will go to Canada, to remain until early September. She recently returned from Greenwich, Conn., where she had been visiting her sister, Mrs. Charles Mallory. Mrs. Heyworth went east in June to see that her granddaughter, Miss Julia Heap, who passed two years here, was safely in the charge of friends, with whom she made the trip home from England.

Mrs. Edward Kendall Rogers, 12 Scott street, accompanied by her daughter, Miss Edith Rogers, are planning to go south early next month for an indefinite stay. No date has been set for the wedding of Miss Rogers to Lieut. Alfred Wallace Owen Jr., Fifty-first battalion, C. E. S., son of Alfred Wallace Owen of Prince Edward Island, Canada.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hartshorne of New York are the guests of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Simon B. Chapin, at their country estate on Lake Geneva.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. Gregory of Highland Park have as their guest their daughter, Mrs. Arthur Sweetser of Boston, who was Miss Ruth Gregory until last summer. Mr. and Mrs. Sweetser are planning to go to Washington in the early fall to make their home.

Mrs. Abby Farwell Ferry and Mrs. Montague Ferry gave a tea Thursday afternoon from 4 until 6 o'clock for Mrs. Horace Ferry at Beach Brow, Lake Forest.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Dickinson and family of Winnetka have gone to Ephraim, Wis., for a month's stay.

R. Clarence Monreau, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. Monreau of 4072 Lake Park avenue, has gone to Annapolis, Md., where he will enter the naval academy this fall.

Mrs. William Brown McIlvaine and the Misses McIlvaine of Hubbard Woods left on Wednesday for the Chicago club at Charlevoix, Mich., to spend several weeks.

Miss Marian Key is the guest of her sister, Mrs. William P. Martin of Lake Forest. She will also visit her other sister, Mrs. J. Allen Haines of Winnetka, before she returns east. Several informal affairs are being given in her honor during her stay here.

Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Burnham, who have been at Mackinac island for much of the summer, will return to their home in Evanston.

Mrs. J. Wallace Wakem and Mrs. William Waller are among recent visitors to Gloucester, Mass., one of the most popular watering places in the east.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Peacock, with their daughter, Miss Dorothy Peacock, are touring the Canadian Rockies. Their little son, Charles D. Peacock III., is with his grandmother, Mrs. C. D. Peacock, at her summer home, Sugar Loaf, on Green Lake, Wis.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Marqua of 5481 Blackstone avenue have returned after a motor trip through the east.

News of the Religious World

More Ministers in Making Than Ever for All Creeds.

BY THE REV. W. B. NORTON.

FOWLER PHOTO

The Rev. Charles M. Stuart DD, Litt.D, LL.D.

CHICAGO is rapidly becoming the center of theological education in the United States.

Every denomination is displaying activity in building up its theological seminaries and in erecting new buildings. The days when the decline of the number of candidates for ministerial education was deplored, not so many years ago, seems to be passing. One theological seminary in Boston recently declined to receive fifty candidates who were all college graduates, because the building was already overcrowded.

In Chicago the activity is marked. On the campus of the University of Chicago the Baptists, Congregationalists, and the Disciples are at work. The Baptists are erecting a new building to cost $200,000, the corner stone of which was laid in June. The Congregationalists have purchased dormitories and are preparing for a new theological building, while for the time being they will be accommodated with the Baptists in the new building in process of erection. The Disciples have secured an endowment fund of $90,000 and $30,000 in property and expect to build a divinity house.

A campaign for funds is also being made by the Western Theological seminary, under the control of the Protestant Episcopal church.

The McCormick Theological seminary, under the authority of the Presbyterian Church of the United States of America, recently dedicated one new building.

One of the smaller denominations, the Swedish Mission Covenant, dedicated a new building recently in connection with their Park college in the northwest section of Chicago.

The Lutherans have at Maywood and at River Forest growing institutions.

The plans of Archbishop Mundelein of the Roman Catholic church in building the preparatory school in honor of his predecessor, Archbishop Quigley, on Rush street, north of the Holy Name cathedral, include later an enlarged theological seminary in which candidates for the priesthood may study theology. The Quigley memorial is for the education of young men before they have fully committed themselves to study for the priesthood.

Chicago already claims to be the center of medical education, having the largest number of students and institutions of any city in the United States, and it may have a like distinction in theology.

Dr. L. E. Lennox, Benton Harbor, Mich., reports that the Michigan conference of the Methodist Episcopal church has just received a gift of a farm with growing crops, valued at $12,000, for a retiring competency for aged preachers and adequate care of their widows and orphans.

A public chapel of perpetual adoration is to be established in Chicago by the authority of Archbishop G. W. Mundelein of the Roman Catholic church. It will be located at Fifty-third and Laflin streets and will be under the special care of the convent of the Sisterhood of the Poor Clare-Collettines. The service contemplates the exposing of the sacred host with the saying of prayers every moment of the twenty-four hours in each day and night. Archbishop Mundelein, in commenting on the building of the chapel, described the fitness of such a service in a city which never sleeps and in which business and pleasure seeking do not rest night or day.

The Rev. Charles Macaulay Stuart, Litt. D., D. D., LL. D., is the president of the Garrett Biblical institute, Evanston, one of the theological schools of the Methodist Episcopal church and affiliated with the Northwestern university.

The institute, under the leadership of Dr. Stuart, will soon be housed in a new group of theological buildings which are in process of erection. The corner stone for the first building was laid in June. The dormitory sections will be finished some time this fall. A campaign for $1,000,000 for building and new endowment will soon be begun.

Dr. Stuart completes this month five years as president of the theological school. Before he was elected president he was a professor in the institute and served twelve years as assistant editor or editor of the Northwestern Christian Advocate. He has received many degrees from various universities and theological schools, and is the author of several volumes on art, hymnology, poetry, and theology. He was elected to the chair of Christian ethics and philosophy in Wesleyan university, Middletown, Conn., but was released from fulfilling his contract in order to accept the presidency of the Garrett Biblical institute.

The Rev. W. W. Scudder of Washington, D. C., has been selected to assist the Rev. Hubert C. Herring in promoting the work of the tercentenary celebration of the landing of the pilgrims at Plymouth. Oct. 15 has been designated as tercentenary day and the Congregational churches of Chicago will then begin active work in behalf of the celebration whic hwill culminate in 1920.

The Lutheran churches of Chicago are preparing for a celebration of the four hundredth anniversary of the Protestant reformation on the evening of Oct. 31. A committee of 100 has been formed, with the Rev. L. Harrisville as chairman. The event will be celebrated with meetings in various parts of the city. It will be preliminary to the larger and more extensive international celebration in 1917. All of the synods of the Lutheran denomination will join in the October celebration.

VALPARAISO UNIVERSITY

Founded 1873

VALPARAISO, INDIANA

One of the Largest Institutions of Learning in the United States

Thorough Instructions at Lowest Expense

THIS INSTITUTION was founded with the idea of giving to every person, whether rich or poor, a chance to obtain a thorough practical education at an expense within his reach. That it is performing this mission is indicated by the numbers who avail themselves of the advantages offered.

VALPARAISO UNIVERSITY was founded with 3 departments, 4 instructors, and an annual enrollment of 210 different students. Now there are 21 departments, 220 instructors, and an annual enrollment of more than 5,000 different students.

THE REASON for this growth is in the fact that this University constantly increases its facilities, strengthens its courses of study, and offers additional advantages without making the expense to the student any greater. The University is well equipped with buildings, libraries and laboratories for giving instruction in the following:

Departments Preparatory, High School, Primary Methods, Kindergarten Methods, Commerce, Phonography and Typewriting, Review for Teachers, Education, Arts and Sciences, Engineering, Architecture, Manual Training, Agriculture, Expression and Public Speaking, Music, Fine Art, Domestic Economy, Pharmacy, Law, Medicine and Dentistry.

While the expense in all the Departments is exceedingly low, it has not been made so at the sacrifice of a high grade of instruction, but by applying business principles to

The Cost of Living so that the most satisfactory accommodations for board and room may be had, from $29 to $41 per quarter of twelve weeks. Tuition $20 per quarter, or $65.00 if paid in advance, for a year of forty-eight weeks. If the entire tuition is paid in advance for the year, it includes all the departments, except Medical, Dental and private lessons in Music.

The total expense of board, tuition and furnished room for the regular school year (thirty-six weeks), need not exceed $142, or for forty-eight weeks $181. For Free Catalog Address

An Army Officer Writes

Rated an Honor School by U.S. Gov't.

"I am more than pleased with what you have been able to do for the boy in the short time he has been with you. Everyone speaks of his fine physical appearance compared with what it was when he came to you, and I know he is much more alert than he was before he went to St. John's."

This is unsolicited testimony from one who from personal experience recognizes the value of military training, and whose choice of a school would be correspondingly discriminating. He selected St. John's because he wanted a real military school.

Do you want your boy to grow more alert? Do you want him to have a fine, strong body? Do you want to properly develop his character? Send for our catalogue and let us tell you what we can do for him. Address

BATTLE CREEK SCHOOL OF HOME ECONOMICS Accredited

AFFILIATED WITH BATTLE CREEK SANITARIUM

DOMESTIC SCIENCE

is the one science above all others that offers an unusual opportunity to young women, because it creates a vocation of the highest order. The thorough instruction in the many branches of this needful science, taught by efficient instructors, in the Battle Creek Sanitarium School of Home Economics, is valuable and practical. By it the student is fitted not only for successful home making, but is prepared here for institutional service on a dignified and lucrative basis.

Through its affiliation with the Battle Creek Sanitarium the School affords unusual practical advantages. All the sciences relative to right and thorough living are found in the curriculum, which embraces two courses:

FIRST—a two-year course which graduates Dietitians for hospitals, sanitariums, industrial organizations, and public and educational institutions of all kinds.

SECOND—a one-year course which graduates housekeepers capable of applying economically and tastefully all the theories of the culinary art.

Let me tell you that stenographic positions are desirable and promising to young men and women, as they lead to positions of correspondent and secretary. Efficient stenographers are employed at the live end of business—associated with executives and their responsibilities, where confidential interests are handled, employing detailed knowledge, strict confidence, and secretarial ability. You would be greatly pleased with our course and methods and with the position and salary we can guarantee you. We have qualified a majority of the good stenographers in this city during the past twenty-five years. We supply leading employers with stenographic and secretarial service. You profit by the prestige of an institution of national reputation. Our course is cheapest in cost, best in results. Day and evening sessions. Individual instruction. Fall term, day session begins September 5; evening session, September 6. Come in and let us tell you more about what we can do for you. Barrett Institute is central in location, beautiful in environments, select in character, and practical in instruction, insuring the fullest satisfaction to patrons—the better class of young men and women. Majestic Theater Building, Monroe street, between State and Dearborn streets.

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS.

ADAM SCHAAF
REMOVAL SALE.

On Sept. 1 we move into our new building, now nearing completion. Every instrument in our temporary store at 337 S. Wabash-av. will be marked at a very great reduction to insure immediate sale.

In this sale are included upright, grand, and player pianos of such makes as Steinway, Mason & Hamlin, Chickering, A. B. Chase, and our own celebrated Adam Schaaf Pianos.

On your own terms.

We can't afford to move a single piano. We must sell every instrument at once. We therefore offer you the most wonderful opportunity you ever had to get the greatest piano value.

ADAM SCHAAF.
Established 1873.
Temporary store, 337 S. Wabash-av., nr. Van Buren-st.

GROCERY BUYER AND DEPARTMENT manager—For department store outside the loop; excellent opportunity for right party; state fully past experience, age, etc. Address N H 396, Tribune.

MAN—A THOROUGHLY HIGH GRADE advertising man to take charge of the advertising department of one of the fastest growing organizations in America. Must be a man of force and ideas; one who does not feel he is too big for detail yet one who will not permit himself to be buried by it. We publish several house organs, use general publicity, and get out great quantities of direct literature.

The man we want knows enough about printing and engraving to make an attractive layout—not necessary that he be a finished artist—specify his own type faces, and be independent of a printer for pleasing effects. He should, of course, be a good copy writer, be able to write sales letters with a punch and be an organizer and systematizer. This is largely a creative position and all things being equal, we will favor the man who has specialized in direct work and can submit best samples of his own creative ability. Now that you know our requirements show by your letter and samples you are the man we want. No attention paid applications unless complete. Answer quick, stating age, experience, references, salary wanted, send photograph and say how quickly you can report for work. Samples will be returned if desired. Address Sales Manager, P. O. Box 814, Indianapolis, Indiana.

SALES MANAGER.
Sober, ambitious man of experience and proven ability to act as assistant sales manager in handling sales correspondence with merchants and high class specialty salesmen in the sale of a $375 article on a commission basis; must be resourceful and possess rare tact, force, and ability, and be able to prove it with results. We are doing business from Maine to California, and our present force consists of thirty live wire salesmen; we have room for fifty more—our letters are to be one of the chief factors in building up and holding this organization together. To the man who can qualify we offer a permanent position in a northern Indiana city with a moderate salary at start and a big opportunity for advancement. Young married man preferred. Send your photograph and all evidence of ability with first letter; same will be promptly returned or an interview granted within ten days after their receipt. Address D N 42, Tribune.

Salesmen, Solicitors, Etc.

A SALESMAN WANTED.

$1,200 to $4,000 per year.

This company is the largest manufacturer in its field. We have over 50 able salesmen, and the figures given above represent the individual amounts they drew last year.

Owing to added facilities and increases in our line of manufacture, we now have open a position for a man of strong natural ability to sell our specialties to general stores, retail hardware trade, automobile garages, and others. Established trade—products nationally distributed—over 90 different varieties.

The man we employ will be permanently retained if successful. We expect references as to ability and responsibility. This valuable connection calls for a man of good personality, unusual sales ability, and willingness to travel where assigned.

Look this up in Dun or Bradstreet, or inquire of any bank.

If you have qualifications required, briefly outline them in letter requesting interview.

Address N N 424, Tribune.

SALESMEN— WHO CAN SELL STOCKS, BONDS, AND LAND.

How would you like to belong to a sales organization where your efforts will be building up an independent and permanent business of your own?

Are you not tired of jumping from one proposition to another every year or so, losing the cumulative effect of your hard work every time you make a change?

Some successful business men are organizing a company which will combine the land business with an industrial and manufacturing enterprise. This business should continue to grow in volume each year, and its profits should eventually enable us to retire from this eternal hustle.

We have room for two or three additional live wire salesmen to whom we can offer a very attractive proposition.

Although we do not require an investment in our company, we can show the man with a little capital an opportunity to join us on an equal basis in the organization of an enterprise that has tremendous possibilities. Address N T 102, Tribune.

SALESMAN— Only men under 30, who can recognize the possibilities of successful future when presented to them and are not working for a "position," but realize that if they want a good position they have to earn one. This opportunity will not appeal to the man that talks "big money," who is always looking for some new line. It will only appeal to the man who realizes the time has come whereby he must get settled in business and is willing to work for a permanent future. The men we want need have no experience in selling. We take care of that by personal instructions. We will place at their command a practical, tested, and successful plan of salesmanship which will enable them to win success from the first. This is the yearly stage of our sales organization and a big, life size, man size chance to affiliate with one of the country's greatest sales institutions. Address N H 307, Tribune.

SALESMEN—A $1,500,000 ILLINOIS CORPORATION, composed of the strongest and best known business and financial men in America, is marketing a quick selling, nationally advertised automobile specialty retailing at from $10 to $16. Exclusive rights will be granted covering territory in this state, to one or more counties or whole state, to a responsible man or company able to furnish top notch references and able to buy merchandise for cash. No bonus asked. A straight merchandising proposition, with a liberal discount. Amount of merchandise to be purchased determined by number of automobiles in territory. A wonderful money making opportunity for any man who can qualify. Give selling experience, references, including at least one bank. Wire or write promptly. Tireoid Company, Chicago.

SALESMEN—PIANO. Cable Piano Company wants head salesman for one of its branch stores in large town in northern Illinois, adjacent to Chicago; must be high class, experienced man of excellent habits, and "sure shot" closing salesman; we also want second piano man to work under head salesman in branch equally as large as above; excellent opportunities ahead for men who make good; answer by letter only, giving detailed experience, houses worked for, and salary expected; all replies strictly confidential. Employment Agencies.

THE MANY MANAGERS PLACED LAST WEEK.

Up to $4,500 per year, were men who were even more skeptical than you. Your imagination, opinion or information is wrong if you don't get in touch with us at once. Some of these men filed their applications with us a year ago. Others were placed at once.

Can you afford to stick in that rut any longer? We have several hundred fine jobs open paying $600 to $12,000 per year. In our Clerical Department we placed several hundred young fellows at $12 to $20 per week, and as a whole, all of the hundreds of men that we place average over $100 per month. From this statement, you can also imagine the many big fellows we place on the road to success.

Don't pull a "boner" by laying this ad aside. You are either going forward or backwards. You are either a dead one or a live one. We cannot use the dead ones. All interviews strictly confidential in private offices, not jeopardizing your present interests in any way whatsoever. If you want to make a change or are dissatisfied, you are not only "water logged," but you are doing your employer an injustice by sticking around. Get what you want, and make way for the fellow who really wants your job. We are the readjusters.

Surely our 13 years' experience dealing with around 20,000 of the best concerns in the country and placing nearly a quarter of a million people in satisfactory jobs, i. e., jobs they were willing to accept themselves, is of some value to YOU, as evidence.

OUR PROPOSITION is just as clean as any bank and will absolutely meet with your approval and will agreeably surprise you.

Remember, in our organization we have nearly 65 people on the lookout for a better job for YOU, and it doesn't cost you a cent unless you get absolutely what you want.

We could fill this entire page listing the hundreds of positions [incidentally we have upwards of 1,000 positions open in our two places], but after all it is up to you to come in and see for yourself, therefore, we will list our openings in a wholesale way.

Regardless of the weather, the shape of the moon, or the condition of your liver, and for the sake of yourself or your family, come in and talk it over. It costs nothing to do this.

EXECUTIVE DEPT.—3 Advertising Men, $1,300-$3,500; Copy Readers, $1,300; 2 Buyers, $1,800-$3,000; 4 Purchasing Agents, $1,040-$2,000; 16 SALES MANAGERS [in as many lines], $1,500-$12,000; Office Mgrs., $1,200-$1,500, Credit Mgr., $2,000; Office Mgr., $3,000; Beef Market Man; Dept. BKKPRS. AND CLERKS

STENOGS. AND BOYS.

When we make the statement that we have several hundred good jobs open with the best concerns in the city, paying the salary you want, we could not say more if we wrote an entire page advertisement.

Now, if you have had any office experience at all, or if you are an office boy that has never worked a day, come in and let us set you right.

We want you to come in and look over these jobs. It doesn't cost you a cent to do this, and you don't have to accept any job you don't want. Now, that's fair, isn't it? We should have about 300 young fellows Monday to take care of the jobs we have open right this minute.

PARENTS—Send that boy to us. Don't let him wander around the streets any longer. Don't wait until the weather becomes perfect. We need him NOW and he needs the job NOW.

CRAIG EMPLOYMENT AGENCY,

1326 Republic Bldg., State and Adams.

A SANE MAN WITH A TOOTHACHE seeks a dentist; if he wants his trousers patched he employs a tailor. Why, then, make an exception when you need a position? Employ experts to find you a job—see us.

To enumerate each position that we have open would cost more than we can afford to pay. Suffice it to say we have a whole desk drawer full of inquiries for Supts., Foremen, Correspondents, Chemists, Draftsmen, Bookkeepers, Accts., Tracers, and Engineers of all descriptions.

EMPLOYMENT HEADQUARTERS—New JOBS of ALL KINDS—Every Day. Advance Emp. Ex., 179 W. Washington-st.

WANTED—FEMALE HELP.

Employment Agencies.

WE NEED 406 STENOGS. BKKPRS. CLKS.

This week to fill the positions we actually have open. This is a terrible condition of affairs. Never has the demand been so strong with us, which is brought about by the patronage and good will we have developed with the thousands of employers we have been dealing with the past 13 years.

It hardly seems possible that we have this many openings, but they are right in our order box for your inspection. Now, why will you continue to stick in that rut? It costs nothing to talk it over. We have the jobs. The fact that you are reading this ad means that you want to make a change. Why go further? Your opinion is absolutely wrong if you don't come in and see us. Our location in the Republic Bldg. permits you to come in and shop for a job. This arrangement is for your convenience.

We could fill a page listing the positions we have open, but take our word for it. Hundreds of stenographers have appealed to our special advertising the last 30 to 60 days, and we have placed them in positions at $3-$5 per week over and above what they were making at once. Now, we can do just as much for you.

Don't pass by this ad regardless of what your opinion may be, because we actually have the goods, and you do your part by seeing. Costs nothing to talk it over, or ask questions. We are glad to give you any information you desire. Clip this ad out, place it in your purse, and be sure and see us next week regardless of the weather, because the jobs are here just the same. The hotter it gets the more positions we have, because the lazy ones will not show up.

CRAIG EMPLOYMENT AGENCY, 1326 Republic Bldg., State and Adams.

HOGENSON'S MODEL BUNGALOWS AT MEDIUM COST

To appreciate the many features both in the exterior and the interior of these beautiful homes, a visit should be made to inspect them.

The hundreds of homes built by us completing Long, Lorel, and Lockwood-avs. south of Division-st. puts this home property really in a class by itself.

We are now working on Latrobe and Laramie-av., between Division and Augusta-sts., where 5 to 8 room bungalows in brick, stucco, or California Redwood can be seen in completion or under construction, or will take orders for a limited number to be built to suit purchaser on Latrobe-av. on 33 1-3 or 40 ft. lots, asphalt paving and street otherwise beautified.

On terms to suit or cash.

Homes open for inspection every day and on Sunday afternoons, when agent will be on the ground to show the property.

Take a Chicago-av. car to Latrobe or Lockwood and walk north 3 blocks.

The Division-st. car also passes this property, which connects with Grand, Crawford, or Cicero-av. cars.

California.

FOR SALE—I OWN APPROXIMATELY 63 acres of beautifully located irrigated land on hard surface highway; direct auto route, about four hours from San Francisco and the Yosemite National park, where are located the California big trees. I am planting 20 acres to almonds and alfalfa, with a view to having an income producing country home. I would like to sell the other two twenties to people who are looking for such country homes. There is no finer nut trees or alfalfa land, or land more ideally located for country homes in the state of California. Near two lines of railway; electric power line passes immediately by property, from which light and power may be obtained. A sufficient number of beautiful live oak trees for shade. Arrangements can be made to have the place planted, improved, and otherwise cared for until such time as the owner may want to take charge of his property. Fine neighbors. Price $150 per acre. Terms can be arranged for part if desired. For particulars address owner, Dr. VERDO B. GREGORY, care Joseph Hospital, Joseph, Ore.

FOR SALE—CLEAR, ORANGE GROVE and other property; assume here. Address E 399, Tribune.

Opportunity to purchase land suitable for a great residence estate or game preserve; 32 miles from New York City and in a famous social center; beautiful woods and cliffs, mile of rushing trout stream, lake of 10 acres and more than 300 acres of land. Such an opportunity is extremely rare, because practically all such land in the vicinity of New York has long since been purchased and cut up into country estates, and similar stream property cannot be bought at all.

FOR SALE—CAMPHOR CITY.
FLORIDA'S LATEST DEVELOPMENT.
The development of our 2,000 acre camphor farm at Camphor City is sure to increase values of surrounding land. We are now offering a few hundred acres adjoining our property in blocks of 40 acres or more, at very low wholesale prices. This property should positively triple in value in less than one year. The land is high, well drained, free from waste, intersected by a railroad, adapted to citrus culture as well as general farming. Investigate this if you are considering the purchase of Florida land. You can make big profits raising camphor trees, the same as we expect to; or simply hold your land for the profit our large development will produce for you. Address M P 577, Tribune.

REAL ESTATE—FARM LANDS.

Michigan.

Farmers on Top.

THE HISTORY OF NATIONS PROVES that landowners become the aristocrats and rulers. As America grows older the rich become richer, the poor poorer. Ownership of land makes the difference. Not long ago farmers were scoffed at as hay-seeds, but now that hay frequently runs up to $25 a ton, he is respected and envied by city and town people, most of whom are less well-to-do. Each year farm owners occupy a higher position in the financial and social scale.

FARMERS ARE ON TOP because the continual increase in the values both of land and farm products has brought them permanent prosperity. That brings walth. Wealth brings culture. Prosperity, wealth, and culture all come to the lords of the land. To raise the standard of living for yourself and children the surest way is to secure good farm land now. Don't fool yourself about finding plenty of it later on when you get around to it. You can depend that land values will keep going up so that the man who waits will lose his chance.

YOU CAN'T GO WRONG if you buy good farm land at present market values most anywhere, but we advocate a careful decision on location, and therefore have prepared literature with many photographic illustrations that give an accurate idea of our country. We recommend that you take time by the forelock and get this free literature at once and post yourself. By so doing you will be able to arrive at a well considered decision when you take the short trip to the Swigart Tract of lands in Manistee, Mason, Lake, and Wexford counties, Michigan. We will mail this literature to you upon receiving a postal card or letter, or will be glad to have you call for same and see samples of this year's crops and stereopticon views.

SEE OUR CLOVER, ALFAFLFA, rye, vetch, oats, wheat, buckwheat, fodder corn, timothy, potatoes, peas, beans, and all vegetables. Excellent land for growing apples, peaches, pears, apricots, plums, cherries, grapes, and bush fruits. Learn about the abundant supply of pure water, the rainfall, and the climate benefits of being close to Lake Michigan, as well as the chracter and growing strength of our warm loamy soil, the level to gently rolling lay of the lands, and then about the schools, churches, towns, good roads, and the progress of the district in agriculture and the growing industry of raising cattle, sheep, and hogs. There is no better location for poultry.

PRICES $10 to $25 per acre. You can take your selection out of 50,000 acres and pay for it on terms as low as $10 to $50 down and $5 to $10 per month per 40 acres. Ask about the insurance feature in our contract, the privilege to exchange at present prices, and other cooperative features that benefit each buyer. Ask for information about the series of great electric power farms which are being built in the center of this tract.

RIGHT NOW is a splendid time to visit this district when you can see the growing crops and the harvesting. Special excursions on Aug. 22 and Sept. 5 by the P. M. R. R., leaving our Chicago offices at 11:30 a. m. Only $12.50 for the round trip from Chicago to Wellston, our Michigan headquarters, including railroad fare, meals, and lodging. You return to Chicago at 7:20 a. m. the following Friday morning. Automobiles free. Offices remain open Monday evenings and Saturday afternoons.

REAL ESTATE—FARM LANDS.

Missouri.

OWNER OF SUCCESSFUL,
HIGHLY PRODUCTIVE
1,000 ACRE ORCHARD AND FARM
WILL SELL

20-Acre Farm for Only $300

ON TERMS OF $10.00 CASH AND $5.00 MONTHLY,
WITHOUT INTEREST OR TAXES.

I am having splendid success with my 1,000 acre orchard and farm in Southeast Missouri. Have 100 acres in peaches, 136 in apples, 6 in grapes, 8 in strawberries, 4 in blackberries and raspberries, and 150 in vegetables, grains, and grasses. The balance will be planted to grapes and fruit trees next spring. The peaches have been running over $100 per acre, berries and grapes $200, tomatoes $100 [$10 per ton at the canning factory], etc. Apples just coming into bearing.

I have a large amount of land surrounding my 1,000 acre orchard and farm, much more than I will ever be able to get under cultivation myself, and will sell 10 to 20 acre tracts at $300 on terms of $10.00 cash and $5.00 monthly, without interest or taxes.

FARMS FREE TO LIMITED NUMBER.

For a limited number of persons I have an arrangement whereby they can obtain a farm tract free.

My location is in Southeast Missouri, midway between the Ozarks and the lowlands, elevation above sea level about 550 feet.

Before offering any of my land for sale I went to the authorities of the seven nearby states having these so-called "blue sky" laws and asked them to pass on the printed matter I had prepared and to send their expert land men to inspect my orchard, farm, and land offered. After doing this, and also investigating my financial responsibility and past business record, they quickly granted permission to sell my land in their states.

A few acres here, properly looked after, will bring you a splendid income, besides providing the best of everything for your own use. $100 to $800 clear profit per acre can be made. Fruits, berries, vegetables, grains, and grasses will produce these results. A single cow can be made to pay $12 clear profit every month. $100 will build you a cozy, comfortable home in our mild climate that will seem like a little palace compared with the ordinary crowded, brick bound city flat.

With a few chickens, pigs, and a cow, fruits, berries, vegetables, and a little meadow to start with, your health, wealth, and happiness come into your own hands. You are boss of all with room to grow and no one is big enough to come in and give you orders. We have good schools, churches, rural free delivery and mutual rural telephone lines and good towns.

FREE RAILWAY FARE

to purchasers; 90 days' time to visit land and make your selection; money back after one year if dissatisfied; payments stop in case of death; money loaned for improvements; perfect title; immediate possession.

GET THIS FREE BOOK TODAY.

I have made about 50 kodak views in and around the big orchard and farm and on the land I am offering, and have had them reproduced in a 161 page pamphlet, in which also I have placed all the information to be obtained regarding the topography, soil, climate, water, rainfall, healthfulness, productivity, products, and about everything you want to know; also 50 letters from men in Chicago and nearby towns who have gone down to look and who have bought. I'll gladly send you a copy if you will call, write, or telephone.

Oklahoma.

$300,000,000

Is the estimated value of the crude oil to be produced in Oklahoma this year. Land owners are becoming wealthy by leasing their land for oil and gas drilling, for which they receive a bonus besides every eighth barrel of oil produced from their land.

While oil and gas drilling in Mexico and the warring nations is practically at a standstill, Oklahoma land owners and the many oil companies operating there are reaping a harvest.

THE U. S. Government will soon offer to the public about 900,000 acres of the Choctaw and Chickasaw Indians' land in what is considered by geologists and experts in oil and gas locations to be the coming oil and gas fields of Oklahoma. Some of this land has much valuable timber on it, and is suitable for stock raising and general farming, with the great oil and gas possibilities included.

You can secure yourself a tract of this valuable land direct from the United States government and have it leased for oil and gas, farming or grazing, without you spending time or money to go to Oklahoma. You do not have to live on or improve this land. The homestead act does not apply.

Call and see maps, charts, photographs, and products, and obtain detailed information. Open Monday evenings until 9 o'clock.
R. VAN TRESS,
311 SO. DEARBORN-ST., CHICAGO.

FOR SALE — GOVERNMENT INDIAN lands for sale or rent. Why buy a farm outright when you can rent one in which title is now vested in the Choctaw Indian Nation, under the supervision of the government, in which nonresident citizens have an equity and will rent you a farm on your own terms, some free for the improvements put thereon? Rent one first, and if you make money then buy for less an acre than you now pay as rent for a back East farm. No irrigation, plenty of water and timber, and located near cultivated farms and good schools. NO COST FOR OUR SERVICE. Call or write McAlester Real Estate Exchange, 311 S. Dearborn-st., Chicago, Ill.

BUSINESS CHANCES.

CAPITAL—ONE DOLLAR PER ACRE.

This Once-in-a-Lifetime chance is open to just 40 more keen investors to get 160 acres of land apiece for ONE DOLLAR PER ACRE. The best people have taken these quarter sections and only forty of them are left [except what I will take for myself].

DON'T LAUGH at this and say "IT MUST BE WORTHLESS." A lot of other Chicago people don't think so, and THEY OUGHT TO KNOW, as you will concede when you find out who they are. They expect to realize FIFTEEN dollars for every dollar invested; within a short time, too.

IT SOUNDS "FISHY," doesn't it?

Well, come and find out for yourself, that's all; it won't cost you a cent.

I HAVEN'T TIME TO COME TO YOU, so you must come to my office for an interview. Send me your 'phone number, and I will arrange interviews in the order that replies come in to this advertisement; first come, first served; and only forty of them left, remember.

Don't bother me unless you can invest $160 in cash, if you are satisfied; you can have time enough to satisfy yourself IF YOU ACT PROMPTLY.

That's all. Good-by!
Address E 202, Tribune.

CAPITAL—W. WANT TO GET IN TOUCH with a man who has $500 to invest, together with his services, in one of the best propositions on the market today. Do you remember when you were told to buy motor car stock? If you had done so at the start you would have made $16,500 from every $100 originally invested. This advertisement should appeal to any man who has a little money to invest, together with his services. Many a chance to better yourself financially has slipped by you because you did not take the time to send in your name and address, so you could see what the other fellow has to offer. Don't let that happen again. It costs nothing to answer this advertisement, and it may mean independence for you. Address N M 101, Tribune.

CAPITAL—WANTED—25 PEOPLE TO INvest $500 each in going, growing mfg. company located right in Chicago. There is 500% profit in the article we manufacture, which is sold to farmers. Two large banks will vouch for the management, also the safety of the investment. We have hundreds of testimonials from satisfied users. We can also show orders which we cannot take care of without this additional capital. If you have the $500 to invest and are not a curiosity seeker, you will miss a great opportunity if you don't investigate this ad. Address N M 104, Tribune.

CAPITAL WANTED—$50,000, FOR SIX months to one year. Will pay interest and substantial bonus. This money will be under your direct control, and will be as safe as money in the bank, or money invested in highest grade municipal bonds or real estate first mortgages. BUSINESS CHANCES.

INVESTMENT — THIS ENTERPRISE, while not a mail order one, is destined to be to the city homes what the large mail order houses are to the rural homes.

We have been in business one year, and in that time have been compelled to triple our floor space. Before another year we expect to occupy space twenty times the present space.

We are offering, subject to prior sale, 25 blocks of our capital stock, fully paid and nonassessable, of 40 shares to each block, at $4 per share, par value $10 per share. In other words, for each $160 you invest you will receive $400 worth of our capital stock. This is one of the few investments where you can derive a source of income the day you join. Write for particulars. Address N D 496, Tribune.

INVESTMENT—WE WANT A MAN BIG enough to handle Cook county proposition that is backed by half a million dollar advertising campaign and a man familiar with employing other men. BUSINESS CHANCES.

FOR SALESMEN.

Wouldn't you like to be building up your own business, instead of working indefinitely for the other fellow?

Some successful business men of large salesmanship experience are organizing a company which will combine the land business with a manufacturing and industrial enterprise, having extremely large possibilities.

Instead of working for idle capital, we propose to pool our money to finance our undertaking, and thus secure all of the profits.

We desire to associate with us a few men who have had successful records as salesmen. Although we will not require it, we will give these few picked men the privilege of joining us on an equal basis, in the organization of our company. These men will be given selected territories, maximum commissions, drawing accounts, and other inside advantages.

We have a new and unusual sales plan, which should give our representatives a large and permanent income, when their territories are well organized.

A successful salesman having $500.00 or more which he can use in financing an independent business of his own, will find this proposition worth investigating. Address N K 580, Tribune.

OPPORTUNITY

A well known manufacturer of automobiles wishes to change their present selling policy and secure a responsible, wide awake distributor for their cars in Chicago and Illinois territory.

ACT QUICKLY

Address D 466, Tribune.

AN EXCEPTIONALLY GOOD INVESTment of $500 to $5,000. We offer splendid opportunity to acquire an interest in going national manufacturing business. Your money is as safe as first mortgage. The men in charge are all capable Chicago business men. The demand for our product exceeds the supply. The profits are large. You are assured of substantial return on your money, besides the 7 per cent guaranteed. Look into the opportunity we have to offer. We will show you where you can put your money to work to the best advantage. Address N N 404, Tribune.

AM READY TO INVEST A FEW THOUsand and full service for half or larger interest in legitimate business in Chicago or elsewhere; prefer to join honest concern or individuals who have accomplished something, but require the above for expansion, or will buy outright. BUSINESS CHANCES.

A GROUP OF WELL KNOWN CHICAGO business men want a limited amount of additional capital in strong motion picture organization.

Splendid Chicago studio secured. Famous artists of the Metropolitan Opera Company of New York City, and other well known American and European actors now under contract. A large number of scenarios now owned; one of which should equal the "Birth of a Nation" as a money maker. All films contracted for by largest releasing company in America.

Those investing this week will receive a large common stock bonus in addition to the 7 per cent. cumulative, preferred stock.

No industry has made fortunes to compare with "movies." We believe this organization has better opportunities than any other company now existing.

Only men with money and enough brains and experience to be ready to invest upon their own judgment need apply.

Offer is limited to not less than $100 or over $1,000 to an individual. This is the first and only time we advertise. Address E 583, Tribune.

$290 CASH DIVIDEND WAS PAID ON each $10 invested within 9 months from the date that the investors put in their money. This happened between July, 1915, and March, 1916. We have the names and addresses of the people who put in the money and got it out. It was invested in a company engaged in the business of developing one of the greatest natural resources in all the world. There are uncounted millions left. Are you sufficiently interested to call for the proof. We have it to give you only for the asking. E. F. HOLMES, 763 Gas and Electric Bldg., Denver, Colo.

A REBUILT CADILLAC
It's a Safe Used Car to Buy

A rebuilt Cadillac is superior to any new car at the same price. They are the truest values on the street. By rebuilt we mean that the cars have been taken entirely apart, each part examined, and, if necessary, replaced by a new part made at the Cadillac factory, the entire car repainted and refinished like new, all equipment put in first class condition—the whole car, in fact, carefully reconstructed until it is good as new in every detail.

We are as interested in the performance of these rebuilt cars as we are in new Cadillacs. In actual service value these cars are worth a great deal more than we ask for them, and we usually have a variety of body styles to select from. See them before you buy.

A TIP FROM THE INSIDE.
A new railroad or a new industrial development usually makes fortunes for the insiders who have a chance to buy land before the development at a low price and sell it afterwards at a high price.

An industrial enterprise of large possibilities is about to be launched. The insiders will make their money on the new town site which is being opened. There is also a big chance for profit in acreage property adjoining the townsite. The proposition is too big for us to handle alone and we will sell several hundred acres in large and small tracts at wholesale prices. This property should positively triple in value in less than a year. Address N T 581, Tribune.

WE ARE A CORPORATION WITH AN AUthorized capital of $2,000,000, which has been organized as a General Holding Company. We are expecting to establish a chain of twenty banks in Texas, where high rates of interest are charged and where the mortgage security is the best. We want to finance this by disposing of our capital stock. If you are interested in a good, safe investment which will pay the highest dividends, let us hear from you. Address N O 146, Tribune.

7% FIRST FARM MORTGAGES.
We have 7% first farm mortgages to place, interest payable semi-annually. Best of security on farm land. Absolutely safe for your savings investments. Amounts $200 and up. Call and investigate, or write for full particulars. Farm Mortgage Sales Co. [not inc.], 1160 Transportation Bldg., 608 S. Dearborn-st., Chicago.

A MANUFACTURER WHO HAS LARGE manufacturing plant needs from $10,000 to $25,000 to buy raw material to fill orders. Party loaning money can act as treasurer or handle own money. Real estate security given. Established staple business. Good interest paid. References and close investigation invited. Address owner, D 145, Tribune.

IF YOU HAVE $300 OR MORE THAT YOU want to invest in an absolutely sound Chicago company paying 7% dividends now [dividends payable quarterly], and earnings much more; with highest bank and commercial references. Write for full particulars. Address N T 583, Tribune.

FOR SALE—BY CITY PAVING CONtractor, from two to twelve thousand City of Chicago certificates. The payment of said certificates are guaranteed by an old ten million bonding guarantee Co. Chicago banks will loan on these. Address D 406, Tribune.

YUKON TERRITORY RICH IN MINERALS AND FARM TRACTS

Gov. Black Tells of Possibilities of Canadian Frontier and Its Government.

BY FRANK G. CARPENTER.

[Copyright: 1916: By Frank G. Carpenter.]

DAWSON, Yukon Territory.—I have just had an interview with the governor of northwestern Canada. I refer to the Hon. George Black, the commissioner of the Yukon territory.

His dominions begin within thirty miles of the Pacific ocean and they extend to the Arctic. They are a thousand miles long, and in places 300 miles wide. They comprise almost as much land as either Germany or France, and altogether are equal to one-third of Alaska. The country is separated from Alaska by the international boundary, which crosses the Yukon river about 100 miles from Dawson, where this letter is written.

Dawson Is Chief City.

Dawson is the chief town of the territory. It is the seat of government and the headquarters of the mounted police. Here the judges hold court, and here is the residence of the commissioner.

The government house is the social court of the territory. The commissioner entertains a great deal. His wife is an American woman, the daughter of George M. Munger, formerly of Chicago and now of Los Angeles.

The commissioner knows his territory. He came to the Yukon as a young man at the time of the gold rush. When the present party came in he was chosen by the premier to be commissioner of the Yukon and has held that office from then until now.

Plenty of Vegetation.

It was in the commissioner's office that I chatted with Gov. Black about his dominions.

"Our summers are as warm and pleasant as those of southern Canada," the commissioner said. "The only difference is in length of the season, and that does not affect growth so much as many suppose. Plants live upon light, and we have about one-third more light than you have in the same length of summer.

"By the middle of May darkness practically leaves us, and we have 100 or more days when we can read our newspapers out in the open at midnight.

"The sun works for us almost twenty-four hours. In the summer we have light all day and all night. Growth begins in April, when the crocuses come up through the snow. We plant our gardens by the middle of May, and by the latter part of June have vegetables to eat.

"Our chief summer month is July, although the frosts do not come until the middle of September. After that we have Indian summer and the hills are ablaze with gold."

Farm Land Galore.

"Is there much of your country adaptable to farming?" I asked.

"Yes, as far as the markets of the far north are concerned. We have meadows in the south and southwest, and also great areas that can be used for grazing. Dr. Dawson, who made a survey of the territory, said that we have 38,000,000 acres which can be utilized either for crops or for grazing.

"During the last few years we have been growing oats and potatoes and other vegetables all along the Yukon valley. We have grown on the islands of the Yukon two tons of oats hay to the acre, and we have one farmer on the Stewart river who has harvested twenty-six tons of hay in a summer. That hay is worth more than $50 per ton."

"Will the country ever become an agricultural one?"

"Not in the sense that people will come here to farm in order to ship their crops to other parts of the world. The most of the farming will be done for the local community, and that means for the miners."

"But will not the mines soon play out?"

"I think not," replied Commissioner Black. "The country, as a whole, is practically unprospected, and the improved methods of mining are enabling us to work more and more territory where in the past the gold output was so low that it did not pay. Many of the original creeks are still undredged, the greater part of the Klondike valley has yet to be turned over, and there are gold beds in the Indian river basin that are still to be tested."

"How about placer mining in other parts of your territory?"

"Color has been found in almost all the streams that empty into the Yukon. Mining has been profitably done on the Stewart river, 150 miles from the Klondike, and also on the tributaries of the Big Salmon half way between Dawson and our southern boundary. In fact, there seems to be gold bearing territory all the way from here to California, and a great part of it has not been prospected."

"Is there any quartz gold in this vicinity?"

"That question is yet to be answered," replied the commissioner. "Quartz mining is a rich man's proposition. Placer mining can be done without capital, and our people have been so busy taking out the placer gold, which was easy to get, that they have paid little attention to quartz."

Big Game Country.

I asked the commissioner to say something as to the big game of his territory. He repeated:

"This is one of the best big game regions of the North American continent. All shooting is licensed and restricted, and, so far, there is no indication of the game playing out.

"We have an abundance of moose, caribou, mountain sheep and mountain goats. Ten thousand caribou may sometimes be seen moving along over the country. Such a drove will not turn aside for anything. You can drive with a motor car through it while it is crossing a mountain wagon road.

"Our moose are among the largest in the world. Their horns have often a spread of five or six feet, and it is not uncommon to kill caribou whose antlers will average over thirty points."

"What other game have you?"

"We have mountain sheep whose flesh is more delicious than that of any other game animal. We have plenty of bear, both black and grizzly. We have wild birds of many varieties, including duck, geese, snipe and crane. We have five varieties of grouse. We have pheasants and ptarmigan. The latter changes its brown coat of the summer to rosy white in the winter.

"According to law there is no limit to the shooting of bear, wolves and small game. As to other big game, we issue licenses that give the holder the right to shoot two moose, six caribou and six sheep in a season."

The conversation here turned to the government of the Yukon, when, in response to my questions, the commissioner said:

"The Yukon territory has federal and local officials, the constitution defining their powers. The federal officials are appointed by the federal government. They are the commissioner who governs the territory, the controller who handles the federal moneys and the postmaster and collector of customs. We have also a surveyor, an inspector of fisheries, a timber and land agent, and a number of mining recorders. All of these men have their clerks and assistants.

"As to the local officials, they are appointed by the commissioner. They are the superintendents of road and bridge construction, the territorial secretary and treasurer, the medical health officials and others. In addition there is the legislative council of the territory. This is elected by the people, and it corresponds to your legislatures. It votes the moneys for taxes, and makes the laws subject to the veto of the commissioner.

Good Roads Being Built.

The roads of the territory of Yukon are said to be better than those of Alaska. I asked the commissioner how they are handled. He replied:

"Our roads are built by the federal government, which gives us an appropriation each year for the purpose. The money is placed at the disposal of the commissioner and the council, and it is expended by the commissioner on the vote of the council."

"How much road have you?"

"We have the Overland trail, running from White Horse to Dawson, which is 350 miles long, and we have also roads from Dawson to the principal mining centers. We have another road from Dawson to the Mayo mining district which is 200 miles long, and, altogether, we have wagon roads to the length of 1,300 miles. All of these roads have a right of way sixty feet in width. Most of them are ballasted, and all are kept in good repair.

"We are now making an automobile road from here to White Horse and we spent more than $50,000 on it last year."

"Will you ever have a railroad connecting this country with other parts of Canada and Alaska?"

"Several such roads have been proposed, and it is not impossible that one may be built in the future."

Sees a Great Future.

"What do you think of the future of your territory?"

"I expect to see it grow steadily in population and wealth. We have large areas of low grade gold properties which will employ many men for years to come. This mining will be done with large capital and at fixed wages.

"We have also extensive deposits of copper and we are now constructing trails to the copper camps. The White river district, for instance, needs only transportation to make it a populous and productive copper mining center.

"We have a great deal of land that is well adapted to farming. Dr. Dawson estimated that the territory would sustain a population of at least a million farmers and we have other possibilities in the way of fur farming that may add to our territorial wealth."

PLAN COMFORT STATIONS ALONG MOTOR HIGHWAYS.

Local Organizations to Join National Move to Erect Structures of Standard Design on Main Roads.

A campaign is shortly to be launched here by the department of public welfare, assisted by civic, automobile, and highway associations, for the erection of public comfort stations along the mainly traveled highways. The local campaign is a part of a national one being conducted by the national committee of the confederated supply associations with headquarters in New York for similar stations along the main interstate highways between the Atlantic and Pacific.

Among the national organizations assisting in the campaign are the American Automobile association, National Highways association, and the National Old Trails Road association.

Ernest Flagg, an architect, has been commissioned to design a type of station which can be built of local materials and yet be so distinctive in outline it can be easily recognized by tourists.

ACCUSES OLD SWEETHEART.

Woman Says Man She Jilted to Wed Another Attacked Her with Knife.

A former love affair which terminated when she married another man was responsible for an assault upon Mrs. Florence Zirniti of 1640 North Park avenue yesterday, according to her statement when she obtained a warrant for the arrest of Harry Johnson.

Mrs. Zirniti said Johnson entered her home through a window and attacked her, flourishing a knife. He struck her several times, she said, bruising her arms and hands, and cut her on the right hand with the knife.

"We were sweethearts," she said. "I married another. He induced me to institute divorce procedings, but I withdrew them and he became angry."

CARRANZA END SEEN AS NEAR BY BORDER MAN

Sam Dreben Says Legislato Movement Will Restore Order in Mexico.

"Carranza is a joke. The end of his regime is in sight. I give him only a few weeks more. Then Mexico will have a legalisto president and order will be restored without intervention of the United States."

Sam Dreben of El Paso, soldier of fortune, who has fought in half a dozen Mexican revolutions, a scout with Gen. Pershing for seven weeks, former purchasing agent for Pancho Villa, summed up the situation in Mexico. Mr. Dreben is stopping at the La Salle hotel.

Villa Down and Out.

"Villa is through," Mr. Dreben said. "He realizes his trouble with the United Statse has made it impossible for him ever to come back. He is at present in the northern part of Durango with [illegible] men. In his personal command are [illegible] men. These for the most part are formed his famous escolto—the dorados or 'golden ones'—as desperate a bodyguard as any man in Mexican history ever gathered round him.

"Villa is waiting for the legalisto movement to sweep into power. Then he will leave the country. He intends to go to South America, where he will make his home for the remainder of his life. He is an immensely wealthy man and can afford to live at ease.

The Legalisto Movement.

"Not a great deal has reached the outside world regarding the legalisto movement. But it is the only force at present in Mexico. That means anything. It is an amalgamation of the old cientifico party and the Catholic church. It has hundred of millions of dollars behind it. It was to have started its revolution last Sunday, but somehow did not do it. The start will be made in a short time and the movement [illegible] Gomes in the presidential chair.

"Felipe Angeles, Villa's old lieutenant and one of the smartest men in the Villa revolution, is now in New York. This is not generally known. I understand he will make an attempt to see Secretary of State Lansing. The United States knows the Carranza government is on its last legs. Angeles will ask the support of the United States for the legalisto program.

Means No Intervention.

"If the legalisto movement succeeds—and no well posted border man believes it will fail—it will mean the necessity for intervention on the part of the United States will have been eliminated. I do not believe the militia now on the border ever will set foot on the other side of the Rio Grande. It is accepted along the border that they are there for training. I don't expect to see them recalled until next winter or next spring. They are being made into real soldiers.

"When their training is over the United States virtually will have a large standing army. The militia boys will come home as good as regulars."

Arrested on Charge of Leaving Family and Taking Wife's $7,000 and Buying Another Mate

Ephraim Adams of 1044 West Thirteenth street, a gypsy fortune teller, was arrested yesterday at Cambridge, Ill., by detectives from Chicago on complaint of his wife, Mrs. Rosie Adams. He is accused of stealing $7,000 from his wife, deserting her and her children, and eloping with a new bride whom he purchased in Cicero for $2,000. The new bride deserted Adams when she found he already has a wife and children.

HOLD TWO IN BARN RAID.

Police Find Man and Woman Who Declares She Was Dragged There by Men.

The police were called to a barn at 867 Milton avenue yesterday. When they were breaking down the door a man climbed out of a window and fled. Policeman Thomas Ryan fired two shots at him, but he escaped.

Inside they found Frank Cancillosa of 1870 Sheffield avenue and Mrs. Gertrude Pelscheit of 1438 North Park avenue.

The woman said Cancillosa and four other men had dragged her into the barn. Cancillosa declared the other men locked him in the barn with the woman. Both are being held.

COAL STRIKE IS AVERTED.

Miners and Owners Reach Agreement Which Will Raise Prices of Fuel, Operators Say.

Kansas City, Mo., Aug. 19.—Danger of a strike of coal miners in Kansas, Missouri, Oklahoma, and Arkansas has been averted. This was announced today by members of the subcommittee of miners and operators. Agreement has been reached on the six disputed clauses.

While the terms have not been made public, it was stated that both miners and operators conceded points to make the agreement possible.

By the settlement 35,000 men will continue at work. It also means higher prices for coal, according to the operators.

SHOOTS AT BIRD; KILLS BOY.

Child Tries to Hit Sparrow in Playmate's Hand, but Bullet Slays Youth.

George Broker, 8 years old, son of Joseph Broker, a railroad engineer, living in Edgington avenue, near [illegible] avenue, Franklin Park, was fatally wounded early last Friday evening when he was accidentaly shot by John Shannon, 5 years old, while playing at [illegible] street and Grand avenue, Franklin Park. He died at midnight in the Oak Park hospital. The Shannon boy had picked up a .22 caliber rifle which the owner, Arthur Egan, 15 years old, had placed on the grass, and playfully aimed it at the Broker boy, who held a sparrow in his hand. He touched the trigger and the discharge struck the Broker boy in the [illegible]

"IT'S DAMNED ROTTEN BEING A PRINCE," his royal highness the Prince of Wales recently wrote from Flanders to an Eton chum. "Every day I try to go to the trenches, but they send me back." Truth is that the heir to the throne of England is altogether too negligent of his own safety when he is at the front to make it easy for the men who have him in their care. He jumps around trench parapets without ducking his head and takes chances on getting hit by high explosive shells. He is popular at the front and democratic. His language is by no means royal, and when he so desires he can express himself in words that for force would do justice to any jolly tar. He also likes his "nip." One afternoon he showed up at mess with the Grenadier Guards, the regiment to which he is accredited, and burst out: "I've come for tea, and I hope it's............," mentioning a well known whisky.

A MINIATURE "BUSY BERTHA"—At the Invalides in Paris, where war trophies are shown, this small howitzer, a facsimile of the great mortars used by the Germans in battering down the forts of Liege and Namur, has been put on view since the beginning of the new allied offensive. The small mortar is reported as effective against trenches as its larger prototype is against forts.

LAYING FOUNDATIONS FOR ADOBE HUTS—The American militiamen on the border have looked upon the Mexican 'dobe hut and found it cooler and a better protection than the army tent and have begun to adopt it as a border shelter. The photograph shows militiamen spreading the soft loamlike adobe clay, which is mixed with straw, into a hut foundation under an officer's tent.

The Hoe-man and the Great War

By Edwin Markham

Author of "The Man With the Hoe," and Other Poems

IT has been pointed out that we now have two new and needed words in the English vocabulary—hoe-man and hoemanry. The word yeomanry having long represented the more intelligent and well-to-do tillers of the soil, the free-holders, now we are told that the hoemanry represent the landless multitude, the serfs, who, as Lloyd George has said, are aliens in the land of their birth.

War is hell crashing through civilization. All feel its horror and shame; but the heaviest impact, the most frightful wreckage, falls upon the hoemanry at the bottom of the labor pyramid. The war outcries that we hear, come from the classes at the top, those that have pens and pulpits and platforms to express their feelings; but who can ever depict the silent sorrows and the grim destitutions that rush in upon the hoe-men and the hoe-women who have no voice wherewith to speak loudly?

There is a slight alleviation of suffering and war when there is money to afford the comforts of life; but who can body forth the gaunt sorrows of those dim hoe-men who are beset by both suffering and poverty? Upon the back of the hoe-man rests the bread burden of the world. He is the grim earth-dweller. Inch by inch he digs his way into stubborn nature. He drains the swamps, reclaims the deserts, digs the ditches, builds the roads. He makes the rose to blossom and the tree to grow heavy with fruit, and he sends the rippling barley into the bare fields. Out of his stern labor, there has arisen a pyramid of riches worth more than all the gold dug from all of the mines known to recorded history. And yet he is evermore crushed with drudgery and cursed with poverty.

In years of peace he is not only earning his own scanty living, but he is also carrying the idle soldier on his back, and putting bread into the mouths of the idle gentry. Besides, he is paying with unremitting toil the monstrous debts of old wars—some of them being old, far-off, forgotten wars.

Thus, even in peace, the hoe-man is bent to the earth with burdens; but when war rushes in upon him, he is crushed, prostrated. Usually his scant property is swept away. The fields that have been his lean living, are torn with hoof-beats and wheel-ruts and shell-furrows; and he is hustled into the blood-splashed trenches as food for the guns.

WHY has the hoe-man ever left his green fields for the red fields of battle? What quarrel has he had with brothers he has never seen, and in lands he has never known? He has had no grievance, no desire to go out to murder. He has gone only in obedience to some command or instigation of the overlords.

Said Emperor William in 1891, to the young men who had been mustered up to take the military oath: "You are now my soldiers; you have given yourselves to me body and soul. There is but one enemy for you and that is my enemy * * * It may happen that I shall order you to fire on your fathers and brothers. But in such a case you are bound to obey me without a murmur."

Here are some lines from my Hoe-book of long ago:

The leaves shower down and are sport for the winds that come after;
And so are the toilers in all lands the jest and the laughter
Of nobles—the toilers scourged on in the furrow as cattle,
Or flung as a meat to the cannons that hunger in battle.

Thus the dim-seeing hoemanry go out to slay and be slain; and the women who draw the carts in the streets of the cities and always help to till and reap the fields, now take on the man's entire burden with their own, and wait for the end.

IT may be that those bent and patient home-drudges will only get word of one more body calcined in the lime-pit or will receive from a train-load of maimed and mangled soldiers a huddled wreck of a man, broken or daft or blinded. Indeed, there may be no home left after the fire and the fury, only the bare ground, as in Belgium. Not a cow is left in Poland today for babe or man. In the Balkans there are "rivers of blood and fields of bones." But they will begin again as did generations of their fathers on these same old blood-soaked fields. For, as soldiers of the legion, as mercenaries, as gladiators—always as dumb driven cattle—men have accepted carnage and cruelty as a part of the scheme of existence, as a part of the divine order of things.

But, how is this treason to the hoe-man accomplished? The begilted and beswordeds overlords pick a quarrel with their neighbors of the same stripe and blade. Forthwith honor demands a war; and forthwith (to bamboozle the people) there goes up the cry that the nation is in danger. The war-lords are psychologists. They know that they can hypnotize the people with specious catch-words and phrases.

Then the drums beat and the bugles blow, the banners wave and the orators vociferate. The people become curiously spellbound, or else otherwise are compelled to go forth to slaughter their neighbors with whom they have no quarrel.

The vital point in the discussion is the fact that in all wars the hoe-men have nothing to gain and everything to lose!

SOME months ago the organized but poverty-stricken workers of England saw this significant truth. They were being urged to join the army. They had been told to think of their honor, of their manhood, and especially to think of England's greatness. But the workers replied by saying that they had nothing to lose, and, therefore, had nothing at stake; that they were disinherited and destitute under English rule and that they could only be disinherited and destitute under any other government. And they ended by saying, "We will let those fight who have something to lose!"

I consider this the most remarkable and significant utterance on war that has ever been made. I hear in it the possible knell of all wars. For, if the workers once get this lightning glance into the sham and shame of war, they will combine and refuse to fight, and leave the war-makers and war-lovers to wage their own battles.

A spark can kindle a conflagration that may envelope a continent; so this bold idea may yet take fire in the brain of the hoemanry of the world and forever destroy the chimera of war, compelling an International Tribunal, clothed with positive power, to settle international disputes.

FIGURING value in terms of service, the most economical wood for home-building is

WHITE PINE

Lumber men, architects and carpenters have for generations agreed that no other wood gives such long and satisfactory service, when exposed to the weather, as White Pine.

It does not shrink, swell, crack, twist, warp or rot—and once in place it "stays put," after years of exposure, even in the closest fitting mitres and in delicate mouldings and carvings.

THE ILIAD OF THE OYSTER

By DON MARQUIS—ILLUSTRATIONS BY TONY SARG

“OUR remote ancestor was probably arboreal.”—Eminent Scientist.

From his hut in the tree-top Probably Arboreal looked lazily down a broad vista, still strewn with fallen timber as the result of a whirlwind that had once played havoc in that part of the forest, towards the sea. Beyond the beach of hard white sand the water lay blue and vast and scarcely ruffled by the light morning wind. All the world and his wife were out fishing this fine day. Probably Arboreal could see dozens of people from where he crouched, splashing in the water or moving about the beach, and even hear their cries borne faintly to him on the breeze. They fished, for the most part, with their hands; and when one caught a fish it was his custom to eat it where he caught it, standing in the sea.

In Probably Arboreal's circle, one often bathed and breakfasted simultaneously; if a shark or saurian were too quick for one, one sometimes was breakfasted upon as one bathed.

In the hut next to Probably Arboreal his neighbor, Slightly Simian, was having an argument with Mrs. Slightly, as usual. And, as usual, it concerned the proper manner of bringing-up the children. Probably listened with the bored distaste of a bachelor.

“I will slap his feet every time he picks things up with them!” screamed Slightly Simian's wife, an accredited shrew, in her shrill falsetto.

“It's natural for a child to use his feet that way,” insisted the good-natured Slightly, “and I don't intend to have the boy punished for what's natural.” Probably Arboreal grinned; he could fancy the expression of his friend in making this characteristically plebeian plea.

“You can understand once for all, Slightly,” said that gentleman's wife in a tone of finality, “that I intend to supervise the bringing-up of these children. Just because your people had neither birth, nor breeding, nor manners——!”

“There, there, my dear!” broke in Slightly, with a warning in his voice. “Don't you work around to anything caudal, now, Mrs. S.! or there'll be trouble. You understand?”

On one occasion Mrs. Slightly had openly charged her spouse that his grandfather had a tail five inches long; she had never done so again. Slightly Simian himself, in his moments of excitement, picked things up with his feet; but, like many other men of humble origin who have become personages in their maturity, he did not relish having the matter commented upon.

“Poor old Sim,” mused Probably Arboreal, as he slid down the tree and ambled towards the beach, to be out of range of the family quarrel. “She married him for his property, and now she's sore on him because there isn't more of it.”

NEVERTHELESS, in spite of the unpleasant effect of the quarrel, Probably found his mind dwelling upon matrimony that morning. A girl with bright red hair, into which she had tastefully braided a number of green parrot feathers, hit him coquettishly between the shoulder blades with a handful of wet sand and gravel as he went into the water. Ordinarily he would either have taken no notice at all of her, or else would have broken her wrist in a slow, dignified, manly sort of way. But this morning he grabbed her tenderly by the hair and sentimentally ducked her. When she was nearly drowned he released her. She came out of the water squealing with rage like a wildcat, and bit him on the shoulder.

“Parrot Feathers,” he said to her, with an unwonted softness in his eyes, as he clutched her by the throat and squeezed, “beware how you trifle with a strong man's affections—some day I may take you seriously!”

He let the girl squirm loose, and she scrambled out upon the beach and threw shells and jagged pieces of flint at him, with an affectation of coyness. He chased her, caught her by the hair again, and scored the wet skin on her arms with a sharp stone, until she screamed with the pain, and as he did it he hummed an old love tune, for to-day there was an April gladness in his heart.

“Probably! Probably Arboreal!” He spun around to face the girl's father, Crooked Nose, who was contentedly munching a mullet.

“Probably,” said Crooked Nose, “you are flirting with my daughter!”

“Father!” breathed the girl, ashamed of her parent's tactlessness, “how can you say that!”

“I want to know,” said Crooked Nose, as sternly as a man can who is masticating mullet, “whether your intentions are serious and honorable?”

“Oh, father!” said Parrot Feathers again. And putting her hands in front of her face to hide her blushes she ran off. Nevertheless, she paused when a dozen feet away and threw a piece of driftwood at Probably Arboreal. It hit him on the shin, and as he rubbed the spot, watching her disappear into the forest, he murmured aloud, “Now, I wonder what she means by that!”

“Means,” said Crooked Nose, “don't be an ass, Probably! Don't pretend to me you don't know what the child means. You've made her love you. You've exercised your arts of fascination on an innocent young girl, and now you have the nerve to wonder what she means! What'll you give me for her?”

“See here, Crooked Nose,” said Probably, “don't bluster with me.” His finer sensibilities were outraged. He did not intend to be coerced into matrimony by any father, even though he were pleased with that father's daughter. “I'm not buying any wives to-day, Crooked Nose.”

“You have hurt her market value,” said Crooked Nose, dropping his domineering air, and affecting a willingness to reason. “Those marks on her arms will not come off for weeks. And what man wants to marry a scarred-up woman unless he has made the scars himself?”

“Crooked Nose,” said Probably Arboreal, angry at the whole world because what might have been a youthful romance had been given such a sordid turn by this disgusting father, “if you don't go away I will scar every daughter you've got in your part of the woods. Do you get me?”

“I wish you'd look them over,” said Crooked Nose. “You might do worse than marry all of them.”

“I'll marry none of them!” cried Probably, in a rage, and turned to go into the sea again.

A heavy boulder hurtled past his head. He whirled about and discovered Crooked Nose in the act of recovering his balance after having flung it. He caught the old man half way between the beach and the edge of the forest. The clan, including Crooked Nose's four daughters, gathered hurriedly to watch the fight. It was not much of a combat. When it was over, and the girls took hold of what remained of their late parent to drag him into the woods, Probably Arboreal stepped up to Parrot Feathers and laid his hand upon her arm.

"Feathers," he said, "now that there can be no question of coercion, will you and your sisters marry me?"

She turned towards him a sobered face. Grief had turned her from a girl into a woman.

"Probably," she said, "you are only making this offer out of generosity. It is not love that prompts it. I cannot accept. As for my sisters, they must speak for themselves."

"You are angry with me, Feathers?"

The girl turned sadly away. Probably watched the funeral cortege winding into the woods, and then went moodily back to the ocean. Now that she had refused him he desired her above all things. But how to win her? He saw clearly that it could be no question of brute force. It had gone beyond that. If he used force with her, it must infallibly remind her of the unfortunate affair with her father. Some heroic action might attract her to him again. Probably resolved to be a hero at the very earliest opportunity.

In the meantime he would breakfast. Breakfast had already been long delayed; and it was as true then, far back in the dim dawn of time, as it is now, that he who does not breakfast at some time during the day must go hungry to bed at night. Once more Probably Arboreal stepped into the ocean—stepped in without any premonition that he was to be a hero indeed; that he was chosen by Fate, by Destiny, by the Presiding Genius of this planet, by whatever force or intelligence you will, to champion the cause of all mankind in a crucial struggle for human supremacy.

HE waded into the water up to his waist, and bent forward with his arms beneath the surface, patiently waiting. It was thus that our remote ancestors fished. Fish ran larger in those days, as a rule. In the deeper waters they were monstrous. The smaller fish, therefore, sought the shallows where the big ones, greedy cannibals, could not follow them. A man seldom stood in the sea as Probably Arboreal was doing more than ten minutes without a fish brushing against him either accidentally or because the fish thought the man was something good to eat. As soon as a fish touched him, the man would grab for it. If he were clumsy and missed too many fish, he starved to death. Experts survived because they were expert; by a natural process of weeding out the awkward it had come about that men were marvelously adept. A bear who stands by the edge of a river watching for salmon at the time of the year when they run up stream to spawn, and scoops them from the water with a deft twitch of his paw, is not more quick or skillful than was Probably Arboreal.

Suddenly he pitched forward, struggling; he gave a gurgling shout, and his head disappeared beneath the water.

When it came up again, he twisted towards the shore, with lashing arms and something like panic on his face.

"Oh! Oh! Oh!" he cried. "Something has me by the foot!"

Twenty or thirty men and women who heard the cry stopped fishing and straightened up to look at him.

"Help! Help!" he shouted again. "It is pulling me out to sea."

A knock-kneed old veteran, with long, intelligent-looking, mobile toes, broke from the surf and scurried to the safety of the beach, raising the cry: "A god! A god! A water-god has caught Probably Arboreal!"

"More likely a devil!" cried Slightly Simian, who had followed Probably to the water.

And all his neighbors plunged to land and left Probably Arboreal to his fate, whatever his fate was to be. But since spectacles are always interesting, they sat down comfortably on the beach to see how long it would be before Probably Arboreal disappeared. Gods and devils, sharks and octopi, were forever grabbing one of their number and making off to deep water with him to devour him at their leisure. If the thing that dragged the man, were seen; if it showed itself to be a shark or an octopus, a shark or an octopus it was; if it were unseen, it got the credit of being a god or a devil.

"Throw me a line!" begged Probably Arboreal, who was now holding his own, although he was not able to pull himself into shallower water. "It is not a god or a devil. It doesn't feel like one. And it isn't a shark, because it hasn't any teeth. It is an animal like a cleft stick, and my foot is in the cleft."

But they did not help him. Instead, Big Mouth, a seer and vers libre poet of the day, smitten suddenly with an idea, raised a chant, and presently all the others joined in. The chant went like this:

"Probably, he killed Crooked Nose,
He killed him with his fists,
And Crooked Nose, he sent his ghost to sea
To catch his slayer by the foot!
The ghost of Crooked Nose will drown his slayer,
Drown, drown, drown his slayer,
The ghost of Crooked Nose will drown his slayer,
Drown his slayer in the sea!"

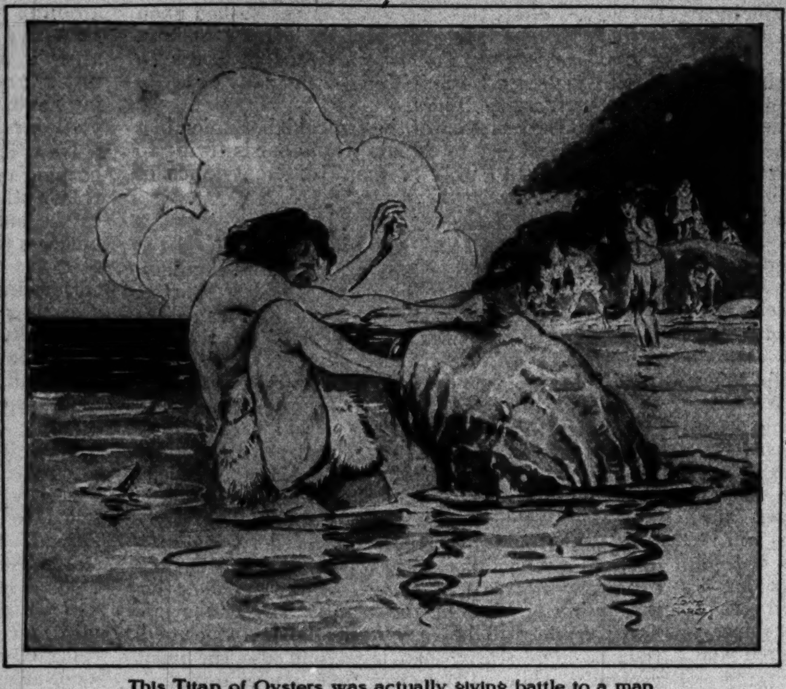
"You are a liar, Big Mouth!" spluttered Probably Arboreal, hopping on one foot and thrashing the water with his arms. "It is not a ghost; it is an animal."

But the chant kept up, growing louder and louder:

"The ghost of Crooked Nose will drown his slayer!
Drown, drown, drown his slayer,
Drown his slayer in the sea!"

Out of the woods came running more and more people, at the noise of the chant. And as they caught what was going on, they took up the burden of it, until hundreds and thousands of them were singing.

But, with a mighty heave and wriggle, Probably Arboreal went under again, up to his head and body; his feet for an instant swished into the air, and every-one but Probably Arboreal himself saw what was hanging onto one of them.



This Titan of Oysters was actually giving battle to a man

It was neither ghost, shark, god, nor devil. It was a monstrous oyster; a bull oyster, evidently. All oysters were much larger in those days than they are now, but this oyster was a giant, a mastodon, a mammoth among oysters, even for that period.

"It is an oyster, an oyster, an oyster!" cried the crowd, as Probably Arboreal's head and shoulders came out of the water again.

Big Mouth, the poet, naturally chagrined, and hating to yield up his dramatic idea, tried to raise another chant:

"The ghost of Crooked Nose went into an oyster,
The oyster caught his slayer by the foot
To drown, drown, drown him in the sea!"

But it didn't work. The world had seen that oyster, and had recognized it as an oyster.

"Oyster! Oyster! Oyster!" cried the crowd sternly at Big Mouth.

The bard tried to persevere, but Slightly Simian, feeling the crowd with him, advanced menacingly and said: "See here, Big Mouth, we know a ghost when we see one, and we know an oyster! Yon animal is an oyster! You sing that it is an oyster, or shut up!"

"Ghost, ghost, ghost," chanted Big Mouth, tentatively. But he got no farther. Slightly Simian killed him with a club, and the matter was settled. Literary criticism was direct, immediate and effective in those days.

"But, oh ye gods of the water, what an oyster!" cried Mrs. Slightly Simian.

And as the thought took them all, a silence fell over the multitude. They looked at the struggling man in a new community of idea. Oysters they had seen before, but never an oyster like this. Oysters they knew not as food; but they had always regarded them as rather ineffectual and harmless creatures. But this Titan of oysters was actually giving battle, and on equal terms, to a man! Were oysters henceforth to be considered as enemies? Were oysters about to attempt to conquer mankind? This oyster, was he the champion of the sea, sent up out of its depths, to grapple with mankind for supremacy?

Dimly, vaguely, as they watched the man attempt to pull the oyster ashore, and the oyster attempt to pull the man out to sea, some sense of the importance of this struggle was felt by mankind. Over forest, beach and ocean hung the sense of momentous things. A haze passed across the face of the bright morning sun; the breeze died down; it was as if all nature held her breath. And if mankind upon the land was interested, the sea was no less concerned. For, all of a sudden, and as if by preconcerted signal, a hundred thousand oysters poked their heads above the surface of the waters and turned their eyes—they had small, fiery, opalescent eyes in those days—upon the combatants.

At this appearance, mankind drew back with a gasp, but no word was uttered. The visible universe, perturbed earth and bending heavens alike, was tense and dumb. On their part, the oysters made no attempt to go to the assistance of their champion. Nor did mankind leap to the rescue of Probably Arboreal. Tacitly, each side, in a spirit of fair play agreed not to interfere; agreed to leave the combat to the champions; agreed to abide by the issue.

But while they were stirred and held by the sense of tremendous matters impending, neither men nor oysters could be expected to understand definitely what almost infinite things depended upon this battle. There were no Darwins then. Evolution had not yet evolved the individual able to catch her at it.

But she was on her way. This very struggle was one of the crucial moments in the history of evolution. There have always been these critical periods when the two highest species in the world were about equal in intelligence, and it was touch and go as to which would survive and carry on the torch, and which species would lose the lead and become subservient. There have always been particular instants when the spirit of progress hesitated between two forms of life, doubtful as to which one to make its representative.

BRIEFLY, if the oyster conquered the man, more and more oysters, emboldened by this success, would prey upon men. Man, in the course of a few hundred thousand years, would become the creature of the oyster; the oyster's slave and food. Then the highest type of life on the planet would dwell in the sea. Civilization, which was not yet, would be a marine growth when it did come; the intellectual, spiritual and physical supremacy held by the biped would pass over to the bivalve.

Thought could not frame this concept then; neither shellfish nor tree-dweller uttered it. But both the species felt it; they watched Probably Arboreal and the oyster with a strangling emotion, with a quivering intentness, that was none the less poignant because there was no Huxley or Spencer present to interpret it for them; they thrilled and sweat and shivered with the shaken universe, and the red sun through its haze peered down unwinking, like the vast bloodshot eye of life.

An hour had passed by in silence except for the sound of the struggle; more and more men and more and more oysters had gathered; the strain was telling on both champions. Probably Arboreal had succeeded in dragging the beast some ten feet nearer the shore, but the exertion had told upon him; he was growing tired; he was breathing with difficulty; he had swallowed a great deal of salt water. He, too, was dimly conscious of the importance of this frightful combat; he felt himself the representative of the human race. He was desperate but cool; he saved his breath; he opposed to the brute force of the oyster the cunning of man. But he was growing weaker.

If only those for whom he was fighting would fling him some word of encouragement! He was too proud to ask it, but he felt bitterly that he was not supported, for he could not realize what agonized emotion had smitten dumb his fellow-

THE HARD TIMES OF PROSPERITY

By Guy W. McConnell

DISPLAYED conspicuously in any number of stores, shops, factories and offices today is this newly adopted slogan of the National Association of American Manufacturers:

BUSINESS DEFENSE.

"What does it mean?" I asked the President of the Association.

"It is our call to the common citizen to come to our aid in the conservation of American business," he replied.

"What has the common citizen to do with general business?"

"Today, everything. We hope to teach him by a widespread publicity campaign its true relation to his own prosperity or poverty."

Here is an unprecedented movement to bring into closer understanding and co-operation the employer, the employee, the business and professional man, the laboring man, the consumer and the producer. It aims to hold mass-meetings in industrial centers, attended by members of all kinds of local organizations, boards of trade, employers' associations, labor unions, professional bodies and the general public. These meetings are now being advertised everywhere, even in schools and colleges.

The purpose is to analyze publicly the problems and difficulties of the manufacturer, the burden of which falls in the end, upon the ultimate consumer.

At last business is laying its cards, face up, upon the table, for the scrutiny of one and all. We want to know why needles and pins are not only higher in price but also scarce in quantity. Why our coal bills are jumping from fifteen to forty cents a ton and why steel rails by the ton have advanced five dollars. Why has glassware gone up twenty-five per cent, table linen forty per cent? These questions will be answered, as well as will the rise in potatoes of from two and a half to four and a half a bag, flour per barrel from six dollars to eight-fifty. The increased cost of clothing, hats, caps, boots and shoes, machinery, rents and sundry necessities will be analyzed and fundamentally explained.

AND what will the explanation be? "War prices?" I asked a prominent manufacturer of agricultural implements.

He shook his head. "No," said he, gloomily. "Labor prices!"

Today big money is being made by both capitalist and workingman. The dinner pail is full and bulging. Long rows of depositors are observed on pay days at the savings bank window in city post-offices. Retail merchants frankly admit that until now they never really knew what fat times meant. The huckster, nowadays, drives happily to town to a constantly rising market. Coupon day comes with sure and satisfying regularity to investors in stocks and bonds. Look at the railroads! The very sight of the unprecedented human and freight traffic, in all parts of the continent, reflects the unwonted activity of trade.

Yet, both capital and labor confess that after their bills have been paid, less money is left to both than before the from sea-to-sea and gulf-to-lakes business boom hit American industry. Never before has the workingman faced such high costs in living. Nor has the producer ever been in such a predicament as now, for continually advancing is the price of all kinds of raw material entering into manufacture. From day to day fluctuations occur in the expenses of both the employer and the worker at a trade, always higher, never lower. And the manufacturer who has sold his product in advance for the year 1916, though his plant may run steadily during the twelve months, is more apt than not to find, when he strikes a balance at the year's end, that his net profits will foot up with a minus sign in front.

"If present-day conditions continue," recently stated a prominent steel manufacturer, whose eyes wore a harried expression, "business, to save itself, will have to shut down!"

Prosperity lies in abundance of cheap products. Today any factory man will tell you that the producing cost has long since passed the danger point—upwards. Recently agents of the Federal Reserve set out to ascertain why this is so. Answers to ninety-seven per cent of several thousand letters addressed to all kinds of manufacturers contained this startling explanation which has been incorporated in an official report to the Federal Government:

"The future of business rests squarely upon the shoulders of the working man of America. He is lying down on his job. Labor, never more dear or scarce, is lacking in efficiency at a time when the maximum effort is necessary to prevent business paralysis."

Thus, in the midst of prosperity, business is having serious hard times. The blame is attributed to the dominating and independent attitude of labor. Curiously enough, labor does not shirk the allegations of its critics. It acknowledges that for many months past, by strike or otherwise, in factory village, mill town and industrial city, the country over, it has been tapping the profit sap out of the prosperity tree of business. And having forced the wage standard to the wave's crest, these headlines it has flashed upon its bulletin board, regardless of the general welfare:

Employment Only To Those Licensed By Labor To Work—Restricted Output—Limited Machine Capacity—Shorter Working Hours.

I asked the secretary of the central labor union in a large seaboard city to explain why labor is trying to force business to walk so many different kinds of planks at the same time.

"PREPAREDNESS for the future is behind the labor movement of today," he stated candidly. "We intend to see that when the after-war spurt or paralysis in business comes, the working man does not get it in the neck. For years after the war in Europe ends," he continued, "the present struggle for world supremacy between the Central Powers and the Allies will merge into a struggle between all of Europe and America to fill the world's bare shelves. Once more, as before the war, Europe will flood this country and the entire world with the cheaper article, imperiling not only our trade at home but the trade we have established abroad since the war began. What will American business do in order to successfully compete in this world-wide selling movement? Cut production cost, of course! And where does this strike first? Why, in the plant! The employer's first thought will be to over-tax labor—which will then be more scarce than now—and also the plant generally, while, at the same time, trying to reduce wages. This is exactly what we are preparing against now, when we are in a position to make our demands."

Upon a placard posted on the yard fence of a prominent shipbuilding plant, this warning to the workmen is given by the labor union: "Work slow. Slow down. This means more pay for you at less toil!"

Naturally, curtailment of production follows. This is why employers are getting together with the common folk today in seeking relief from labor conditions which have "more than reached the limit in increased pay and shortened hours of work," says the report of the investigating agents of the Federal Reserve. Here is offered some concrete testimony.

Said a textile manufacturer: "I have orders on my books for eight months to come, yet my mills are running at only two-thirds capacity. This is due to the independence of the workmen who, instead of taking advantage of the opportunity to make large earnings, are not inclined to give reasonable returns for the abnormally high scale they are paid. They take a holiday whenever they please and have cut the working day from six to four days. Their pay envelopes during the past few months have been so fat that now they lay off for a day or two at any time on the slightest pretext."

An automobile manufacturer of international reputation is paying increased labor cost of nearly forty per cent. "Yet," said he, "instead of my workmen's realizing that the present harvest is apt to be short, working steadily and saving money, they waste time and seem to be satisfied if they average net in shorter hours the previous lower rate of wages, indifferent entirely to the effect on production."

"With every wage increase," remarked a castings maker in answer to my inquiry, "there is a corresponding decrease in labor productiveness. The men have become intolerantly independent. They will not take orders from their superiors, but, growing restless in one plant, they move on to another. Because of this unrest, I refuse to quote prices, covering any large amount of tonnage, and I am not renewing annual contracts of long standing with regular customers."

Now, it is a sort of habit of business always to be harping on the disaffection of its laborers, if for no reason other than to keep the nose of the worker close to the industrial grindstone. But in these wild-fire business times, the cry of the employer to his men to earn the enormous wages he has yielded to them, springs from motives of self-preservation when trade speed is geared to its highest. The steamcocks of business really can not be shut off. The pressure of trade must continue so long as orders keep crowding in. Practically every plant in the country is sold for months to come, many for deliveries as far ahead as late in 1917. I know of machine works in New England booked up until 1918. Not all of these orders are of foreign origin. Take, for example, steel. It has been generally assumed that domestic consumers have failed to receive material owing to heavy buying abroad. Charles M. Schwab is authority for the statement that less than ten per cent of our steel production is now being exported. "At least seventy-five per cent of it," testified another prominent manufacturer, "is for domestic consumption. Accepted contracts last month for domestic shop extension alone aggregated eighty-two per cent of the structural output."

"Of what is this indicative?" he was asked.

"That America, in the high tide of a stupendous war-born trade, is preparing of necessity, now, for trade after the war."

YET, owing to labor's refusal to be one hundred per cent efficient, in steel there is a famine. I could quote a dozen hardships this has caused to general business. One; A man I know recently needed steel beams for factory extension. It meant thousands of dollars to him to have the building completed at a certain time. The best quotation he could get from the steel mills was five cents a pound for delivery within nine months. Regardless of the price, he could not wait so long. So he sent a man about the country in search of beams. In an Ohio village he found an available lot, although they had seen long service. He bought them at a high price and after considerable difficulty took them to his plant yard. Then, in the erection work, a strike occurred. This settled, after great expense of time and money, labor refused to work more than five and a half days a week, even at the inducement of time and a half for Saturday afternoons. It could not work on Sunday, even at double time, for the law prohibited. The working day consisted of eight hours and at the stroke of the clock the men threw down their hammers, though overtime for longer hours was offered. By the time the building was ready for occupancy, the need for which it had been created, had passed, and the owner was in the hole financially.

"And here is where labor, in the noose it is constantly setting for business, (Continued on page 796)

WOULD it bore you to dip into Thermology?

"Temperature has a tremendous influence on the human race," says Dr. Wuremburg in his treatise on Mankind and the Weather. "It makes and unmakes nations, just as it makes and unmakes individuals. . . Under the influence of great heat man may do, say and think things he would consider madness under a moderate temperature."

Thus, in a few words, we finish with Dr. W.

ENTER the plot!

It had been a dreadful day. The August heat had held Manhattan in its grasp since dawn. You fancied something personal in its intensity.

At five in the afternoon Wallace Lemmert stepped from the building in which he was employed. The heat, radiating from the shadowed pavements, seemed to strike him a physical blow. As he walked toward the subway, the westering sun filled the crosstown thoroughfares with quivering gold and the topmost windows of the skyscrapers were aflame.

It had been an irksome day for everyone, and Wallace, like the others, felt the strain. He was irritable, and very tired. All day he had looked forward to this hour of release, but now that it had come, his freedom was not particularly desirable.

The uptown train was packed and jammed. Wallace had to fight his way into a car. The air underground was close, breathed and rebreathed many times. The whirring fans merely forced it back into his lungs.

The overcrowded, ill-ventilated, noisy express weakened his last vestige of self-control. By the time the door of his little flat was reached he felt overwhelmed, as you do when vitality is at ebb, by the helplessness of man when confronted by some great natural force, the futility of striving against Nature's irrevocable laws.

What was the use of slaving day after day so that you might have strength to slave again? Lemmert put this question to himself many times, and each time the answer was the same: There was no use, no use at all. And this realization of the meaninglessness of existence made him suddenly angry. At the same time, he knew his anger to be that of a child shaking its fist in the face of God.

The sight of his wife, white clad and smiling, waiting for him at the apartment door, seemed the one thing needed to fan his smoldering anger into flame.

She greeted him with unaffected camaraderie.

"It's been a dreadful day for you, hasn't it, dear?" she asked, as she closed the door behind him.

"Yes, it has," returned Wallace, gruffly.

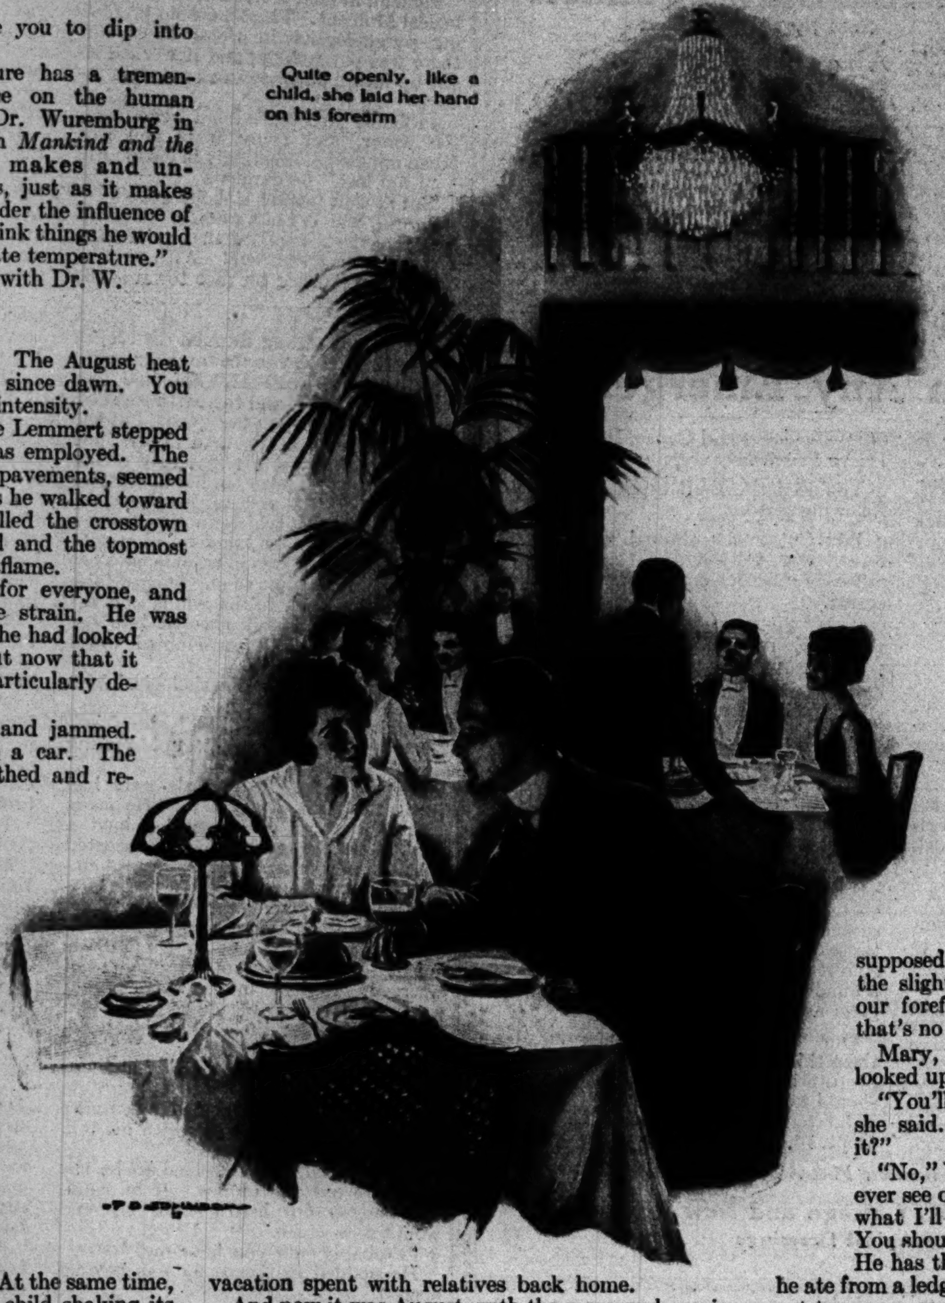
She let his sullenness pass unnoticed.

"Your bath is ready," said she. "By the time you've changed I'll have dinner on the table." She touched his shoulder with gentle affection. "I'm sorry you're so tired."

"You look cool enough," he told her.

"It's been ever so hot up here," she reminded him. She spoke without that irritating patience which can be made more annoying than the angriest word. "But there's a nice cool dinner with——"

The slam of his bedroom door cut short her remark. With lips tightly pressed she went into the small, super-heated kitchen and closed the door. She took her apron from its accustomed hook and tied it about her waist. For the first time in many weeks she failed to sing softly as she went about her work.



Quite openly, like a child, she laid her hand on his forearm

It had been a year and a half since Wallace Lemmert had brought Mary Watkins to New York from a small mid-western town and established her in a small, but comfortable, flat. They were married in the "parlor" of Mary's home, and immediately after the ceremony they left for the metropolis where Wallace had been given a position in the main office of the firm for which he had traveled since almost a boy. And here he had worked day after day for eighteen months, with the exception of a two weeks' vacation spent with relatives back home.

And now it was August, with the mercury hovering about the nineties!

III

DINNER that night was not a pleasant meal.

Wallace sat silently at one end of the small table. At the other end sat Mary, quiet and externally cheerful, serving the salad, pouring the iced-tea, attending to her husband's needs with the matronal youthfulness he had always found so charming.

She was reviewing the months of her married life. In retrospect, they were pleasant to recall. Petty quarrels there had been, but these were more than overshadowed by the idiotic happiness of "making up." Wallace had been a good husband, this she knew. At the same time he had been something more, an excellent friend. And one thing she told herself, a truth to blot out all the rest, no matter what he might do, no matter what he might say, Wallace Lemmert was the one and only man for her.

The heat in the little dining-room was intense. Not a breath of air stirred the muslin curtains at the open windows. The unceasing drone of the city, the frequent honk of distant motor-cars, the nearby rumble of the apartment-house elevator as it struggled up and down, seemed, in some strange way, to intensify the strain, to make the heat more difficult to endure.

Without warning, Wallace slid back his chair. He threw his napkin on the table, overturning his glass of tea. An umber stain flashed across the cloth like the shadow of events to come.

Mary did not move.

"I'm going to quit," he said.

"Quit what?" she asked. "What do you mean?"

"I'm going to quit the whole thing." He spoke with a sort of impersonal fierceness. "I'm tired of getting up every morning, hurrying through my breakfast and going to the office in the crowded train just like a million other men. I'm tired of working for someone else. I'm tired of fighting my way home so I may rest, and fight my way to work again."

"But——" Mary began.

"Don't give me any of your 'buts,'" Wallace interrupted, wrathfully. "I know what you're going to say; I've said it often enough to other worms. Man must toil that he may live. Idleness breeds evil habits, and all that sort of copy-book twaddle. Believe me, none of it is true."

"We must make the best of our position in life," ventured Mary.

"I didn't ask to come here, did I?" he interrogated, bitterly. His anger swept over him like a flame. "We aren't given a fair show. Do you think it's reasonable to expect a fellow to work day in and day out, to be honest, straightforward and truthful, without a single reason for being so? And after we've been decent all our lives, what do we get for it? Nothing but a promissory note of future bliss. We're like squirrels in a cage. We go round and round and round till we're all worn out, and then we die and leave the cage to our children. We wouldn't ask a child to do a thing without giving it a reason why, and yet we're supposed to go on for years and years without the slightest reason for doing so, except that our forefathers did the thing before us. And that's no reason at all."

Mary, pale, and trembling just a little, looked up at him.

"You'll get a better position some day," she said. "That's worth working for, isn't it?"

"No," Wallace returned, "it isn't. Did you ever see old Martin down at the office? He's what I'll be if I'm faithful to my employer. You should see him! He's old and weazened. He has the outlook of a hen. He looks as if he ate from a ledger; I'm sure he sleeps in one. He's got two more rooms to his apartment, and a player-piano, but they don't compensate a fellow for what he's missed by sitting on a stool all day for fifty weeks a year."

Mary started to arise, then sank back. "You told me, Wallace dear, how happy Mr. Martin was with his children who were growing up. Surely that makes up for many things."

"Yes," said he, a fleeting softness in his voice, "that makes up for many things, but we haven't any children. I wish to God we had. Things would be different then." His anger rose and took possession of him again. It seemed to drive him on, somehow, against his will. "But if a human adding-machine is to be my end, I'd rather end right here and now. I'm tired—tired—tired."

Mary rose to her feet, dignified and calm.

"Wallace dear," she remonstrated, "listen for a moment——"

He gently, but firmly, pushed her aside.

"Let me alone," he demanded. Huge drops of perspiration stood on his face. "I've been a stupid worm long enough, but the worm has turned at last. I'm going to quit—now."

Without another word he left the room.

Mary heard him fumbling in the hall for his hat and stick. She tried to call to him, but, try as she might, she could not bring herself to speak. The door of the apartment slammed, and he was gone.

First Aid Book—10c
What to Do in Any Emergency

We issue this book for half what it costs us to foster efficient first aid.

It was written by a famous surgeon, now a Major in charge of U. S. Army Field Hospital. It tells what to do in any form of accident or emergency—
In shocks and sickness—
In burns and bruises—
In wounds and sprains—
Hemorrhage or fainting—
Drowning or electric shock—
Any sort of poisoning.

The book contains 128 pages and over 100 illustrations. It is a complete and authentic reprint of our book that sells for 50 cents. Every home at some time has urgent need for it, when a life may be at stake.

We ask 10 cents merely as evidence of serious intent. The book costs us much more.

Be Double-Sure

This is part of our effort to prevent careless wound-dressing. And to help you fight germ infections.

Another part is to make dressings that are sterile. And enable you to keep them sterile. We are at war with half-way measures. We urge you to be double-sure.

What You Need

What you need in the house—all the time—is B&B Absorbent Cotton, B&B Bandages and Gauze, B&B Adhesive Plaster.

You need the B&B brand for the following reasons:

B&B Cotton goes through 22 processes. Our Cotton and Gauze are twice sterilized, once after being sealed.

B&B Arro Brand Cotton and Handy-Fold Gauze are both put up in germ-proof envelopes—enough for one use in each. They keep their sterility for years.

Both are also put up in handy packages. No need to remove the roll. Cut off what you need and leave the rest untouched.

B&B Adhesive

B&B Adhesive Plaster is rubber coated. It is prepared especially for surgeon's use. But it sticks to anything without heating or wetting. And it stays stuck. Every home has a hundred uses for mending rubber, glass and wood.

Our First Aid Book tells how these things are used. Also hundreds of other things—knowledge you should keep on file. We will mail it for ten cents. Address First Aid Dept. 10.

Always call the Doctor—remember First Aid is only first aid

men. He had got to the place where a word of spiritual comfort and encouragement would have meant as much as fifty pounds of weight in his favor.

He had, in fact, arrived at the Psychological Moment. There were no professing pyschologists in those days; but there was psychology; and it worked itself up into moments even as it does today.

Probably Arboreal's head went under the water, and briny tears and salt ocean mingled nauseatingly in his mouth.

"I am lost," he gurgled.

But at that instant a shout went up—the shrill, high cry of a woman. Even in his agony he recognized that voice—the voice of Parrot Feathers! With a splendid rally he turned his face towards the shore.

SHE was struggling through the crowd, fighting her way to the front rank with the fury of a wild-cat. She had just buried her father, and the earth was still dark and damp upon her hands, but the magnificent creature had only one thought now. She thought only of her lover, her heroic lover; in her nobility of soul she had been able to rise above the pettiness of spirit which another woman might have felt; she knew no pique nor spite. Her lover was in trouble. and her place was nigh him; so she flung a false maidenly modesty to the winds and acknowledged him and cheered him on, careless of what the assembled world might think.

She arrived at the Psychological Moment.

"Probably! Probably!" she cried. "Don't give up! Don't give up! For my sake!"

For her sake! The words were like fire in the veins of the hero. He made another bursting effort, and gained a yard. But the rally almost exhausted him; the next instant his head went under water once more.

Would it ever reappear again? There was a long, long moment, while all mankind choked and gasped in sympathetic unison, and then the dripping head emerged. It had hit a stone under water, and it was bleeding, but it did emerge. Besides the cut on his head, one eye was nearly closed.

"Watch him! Watch him!" shouted Parrot Feathers. "Don't let him do that again! When he has you under water he whacks your eye with his tail. He's trying to blind you!"

And, indeed, these seemed to be the desperate oyster's tactics. If he could but destroy our hero's sight, the end would soon come.

"Probably—do you hear me?"

He nodded his head; he was beyond speech.

"Take a long breath, and dive! Do you get me? Dive! Dive at your own feet! Grab your feet in your hands, and roll under water in a bunch! Roll towards the beach!"

It was a desperate manoeuvre, especially for a man who had already been under water so much that morning. But the situation was critical, and called for the taking of big chances. It would either succeed—or fail. And death was no surer if it failed than if he waited. Probably Arboreal ceased to think; he yielded up his reasoning powers to the noble and courageous woman on the sand; he dived and grabbed his feet and rolled.

"Again! Again!" she cried. "Another long breath, and roll again!"

Her bosom heaved, as if she were actually breathing for him. To Probably Arboreal, now all but drowned, and almost impervious to feeling, it also seemed as if he were breathing with her lungs; and yet he hardly dared to dive and roll again. He struggled in the water and stared at her stupidly.

She sent her unusual and electric personality thrilling into him across the intervening distance; she held him with her eyes, and filled him with her spirit.

"Roll!" she commanded.. "Probably! Roll!"

And under the lash of her courage, he rolled again. Three more times he rolled . . . and then . . . unconscious, but still breathing, he was in her arms.

As he reached the land a half million oysters sank into the sea in the silence of defeat and despair, while from the beaches rose a mighty shout. The sun, as if it had gestured, flung the mists from its face, and beamed benignly.

"Back! Back! Give him air!" cried Parrot Feathers, as she addressed herself to the task of removing the oyster from his foot.

That giant beast was dying, and its jaws were locked in the rigor of its sufferings. There was no way to remove it gently. Parrot Feathers laid her unconscious hero's foot upon one rock, and broke the oyster loose with another.

Incidentally, she smashed Probably Arboreal's toe.

He sat up in pained surprise. Unthinkingly, as you and I would put a hurt finger into our mouth, he put his crushed toe into his mouth. At that period of man's history the trick was not difficult. And then——

A beatific smile spread over his face! Man had tasted the oyster!

IN half an hour, mankind was plunging into the waves searching for oysters. The oyster's doom was sealed. His monstrous pretension that he belonged in the van of evolutionary progress was killed forever. He had been tasted, and found good. He would never again battle for supremacy. Meekly he yielded to his fate. He is food to this day.

Parrot Feathers and Probably Arboreal were married after breakfast. On the toes of their first child were ten cunning, diminutive oyster shells. Mankind, up to that time, had had sharp toe-nails like the claws of a bird. But the flat, shell-like toe-nails, the symbols of man's triumph over, and trampling down of, the oyster were inherited from the children of this happy couple.

They persist to this day.

Country Town Sayings

By Ed. Howe of Atchison

THE newspapers say the people demand a thing long before the people have thought of it.

No use grumbling; people won't act to suit you.

Intuition is usually suspicion.

Your best luck comes while you are behaving best.

Many a man who is not perfect is a tolerably good fellow, and useful in a modest way.

To be mated is man's natural condition; when he remains a bachelor, some woman has scared him.

English sparrows are the proletariat of the bird world. And how they multiply!

Every rich or noted man is as conceited as a pretty woman.

A man's first intention is to be fair; while he is in this humor, make him sign a contract.

If you let another man do your thinking, he will take advantage of you.

Eating too much is the pace that kills; and everyone has a chance at it three times a day.

Hope and ambition will not make you a leader after industry, temperance, politeness and fairness have failed.

The history of every political party has been that while it promises reforms next year, it is very extravagant this year.

The Corsicans were as strong patriotically, and as weak agriculturally, as the Mexicans.

A verdict of "not guilty" is no victory; victory is not being accused.

FOOD DEPARTMENT

By Phoebe Burbank

Pies and Puddings

IF THERE is one dessert that the average man prefers above all others it is pie. The housewife, in catering to this masculine preference, will find among the pies and puddings presented here a seasonable variety.

It is recommended that in hot weather fresh fruits should always be used in preference to dried or canned fruits, saving the latter until the advent of winter.

It is hardly necessary to emphasize that all pies and puddings should be cooked thoroughly to insure their digestibility. Also, that the bottom crust should, in most cases, be cooked before filled and then cooked quickly again.

Following is a crust recipe that has some advantages over puff paste, being cheaper, requiring less time in preparation and being less liable, with reasonable precaution, to become soggy when used for bottom crust of fruit pies.

Pie Crust With Egg

1 cupful of flour
½ cup of lard
½ teaspoonful of salt
1 egg-yolk
Ice-water

Sift salt with flour and work into it the lard, which should be very cold, until mixture is like coarse powder. Beat egg-yolk in a cup and add ice-water to make about one-third of a cupful. Use the egg mixture for wetting the dough and make of the same consistency as plain paste. This quantity makes two lower crusts, or one upper and one lower. The amount of liquid required will depend upon the kind of flour used, but sufficient water should be added to egg-yolk to have enough of this mixture left from wetting the dough to brush over the crusts just before baking. This paste must be baked in a very hot oven to emerge crisp and flaky. The oven should be hot enough to "set" the crust at once so that the lard will not melt and allow the dough to settle down the side of the pan, spoiling the shapeliness of the crust.

Orange Whip Pie

½ cupful of sugar
4 egg-yolks
1 orange
1 pint whipping cream
1 level teaspoonful cornstarch

Line a deep pie tin with the paste, prick with a fork to let the air out, brush with egg mixture and bake in a very hot oven. Set aside to cool.

Whip egg-yolks light, and gradually add sugar with which cornstarch has been sifted, then the juice and grated rind of orange. Cook in a double boiler till very thick, then cool. Whip cream and sweeten slightly. Take half of it and fold into above mixture after it has become perfectly cold. Turn this out into the crust shell and heap the remainder of the whipped cream over the top of the pie. To be at its best, the filling for this pie should be very cold, therefore, should not be put together until just before serving.—Mrs. A. B. D., Cody, Wyoming.

Peach Meringue Pie

(Crust)
1 cup flour
pinch of salt
1 teaspoonful baking powder
1 tablespoon shortening

(Filling)
8 large peaches
2 eggs (whites)
2 tablespoons sugar

Bake pie, and while warm, fill with peaches cut into quarters. Cover with meringue and place in oven a few minutes to brown. Blackberries, raspberries or huckleberries in season, may be substituted for peaches. This makes a dry, delicious pie.—Mrs. E. E., Philadelphia, Pa.

Mock Mince Pie

1 cup fine bread crumbs
1 cup hot water
1½ cups sugar
½ cup butter, melted
½ cup vinegar
1 cup chopped apple
1 cup currants
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cloves
1 teaspoon powdered cinnamon
½ teaspoon allspice
½ teaspoon ginger
1 cup sultana raisins

This mince meat is better if made a few days before wanted for use. Can be kept indefinitely in airtight jars.—Mrs. J. T., Waukegan, Ill.

Chocolate Cream Pie

Beat four eggs slightly, add one and one half cups of sugar, one third cup of softened butter, two-thirds cup of grated unsweetened chocolate, one cup cream, one teaspoon vanilla, and a few grains of salt. Cook over hot water until mixture thickens, cool slightly, turn into deep pie plate, lined with paste, and bake in a moderate oven. Cover with meringue, and bake eight minutes to cook meringue.—Mrs. R. B. K., 224 Seaton Place, N. E., Washington, D. C.

Gooseberry Meringue Pie

Cook a pint of gooseberries until soft, rub through a sieve, add three heaping tablespoons of fine bread crumbs, one heaping tablespoon butter, the well beaten yolks of two eggs, and sugar to taste. Line a pie tin with rich pastry, fill with the fruit mixture, and bake until pastry is done. When the pie is cold, heap the beaten whites (to which two teaspoons of sugar have been added) on top, and brown in the oven.—M. M. O., 476 Mary Place, Elgin, Ill.

Lemon Pie

Make a rich crust and bake first, pricking it all over carefully to avoid blistering. Set aside while the filling is being made. Put into an earthen stew crock one teacup of granulated sugar. Grate over it the yellow rind of one lemon, being careful not to remove any of the white underneath. Cut the lemon and squeeze the juice over the sugar and grated rind. Mix one tablespoon (heaping) of cornstarch and a few spoonfuls of water. Add also one whole egg and yolks of two others, well beaten. Stir all together thoroughly. Pour over the same one large teacup of boiling water. Set on stove until it thickens, watching carefully and stirring at need. Cool somewhat and turn into the crust.

Beat the two remaining whites, which must be kept very cold, to a stiff froth, add a heaping teaspoon of sugar, spread over the top. Return to the oven until of a delicate brown.—Mrs. F. M. H., 204 E. 13th Street, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Cream Cocoanut Pie

1 pint boiling milk
2 egg-yolks
2 tablespoons of flour
1 tablespoon butter
¾ cup sugar

Beat last four ingredients, then stir in milk and cook until thick. Remove from stove and add one-half package cocoanut and flavor to taste, (vanilla). Put in baked crust add meringue made of whites of eggs and a little sugar, then brown in oven.—Mrs. F. M. H., Jr., McWhorter, Va.

Crow Nest Pudding

Put a pint of cherries, or any kind of berries, into a buttered baking dish. Sweeten and sprinkle a little flour over the top. Make a batter of 1 cup sugar

1 egg
1 teaspoon baking powder
Butter size of a walnut
½ cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
Flour to make a little stiffer than cake batter and bake.

Sauce

Butter size of a walnut, browned, milk and water, one-half pint of each, one-half cup sugar, flour enough to thicken. Flavor with vanilla, let come to a boil. Serve warm or cold.—Mrs. R. M., 409 Walnut Street, Elmwood Place, Ohio.

Rice Pudding With Prunes

½ cup rice soaked in cold water
½ teaspoon salt
2 eggs well beaten
½ cup raisins
1 quart milk
2 or 3 tablespoons sugar
½ teaspoon vanilla

Put on a slow fire and boil until rice is done. Add the other ingredients as soon as the rice starts to boil. One minute before the rice is done, add the well beaten eggs, and cool.—Mrs. J. F. L. 5843 So. Talman Street, Chicago, Ill.

Orange Bread Pudding

Soak together two cups of bread crumbs and two cups of water. When soft add:

2 egg-yolks, unbeaten
1 teaspoon butter
Juice of one orange strained
½ cup sugar
½ orange rind grated

Bake slowly one-half hour. When cold add meringue of whites of two eggs beaten stiff, with two tablespoons of sugar. Brown in oven.—H. L. L., San Bernardino, Calif.

21 Delights

Folks Owe to Prof. A. P. Anderson

Three Puffed Grains have been created by Prof. Anderson. And each is often served in seven ways. So there are 21 kinds of enjoyment now open to users of Puffed Grains.

These are the seven popular uses:

1—With sugar and cream.
2—Mixed with any fruit.
3—In bowls of milk or cream.
4—Doused with melted butter.
5—As garnish for ice cream.
6—As wafers in soups.
7—As nuts in fudge, etc.

Summer Suppers Best

But thousands say that the best use is the summer dairy dish. These toasted bubbles, airy and flaky, are delightful in bowls of milk.

Puffed Wheat and Puffed Rice are whole grains, with all the whole-grain virtues.

They are thin, crisp, fragile morsels, four times as porous as bread. And they melt away into nut-flavored granules, with a fascinating taste.

Their ease of digestion makes them ideal foods for luncheon or for bedtime. And Puffed Grains are pure nourishment. Every atom feeds.

Puffed Wheat 12c
Puffed Rice 15c
Except in Far West
Corn Puffs—Bubbles of Corn Hearts—15c

Puffed Grains are exploded. Each food cell is blasted by creating steam pressure within it. Within each grain there occur in our process over 100 million explosions.

Other cooking methods break part of the food cells. But no other method breaks all of them. That's the scientific reason for Puffed Grains.

These grains, more and more, are being eaten in puffed form. The trend is growing as the facts become better known. Whole wheat especially, when steam-exploded, is almost a perfect food. Keep all three kinds on hand.

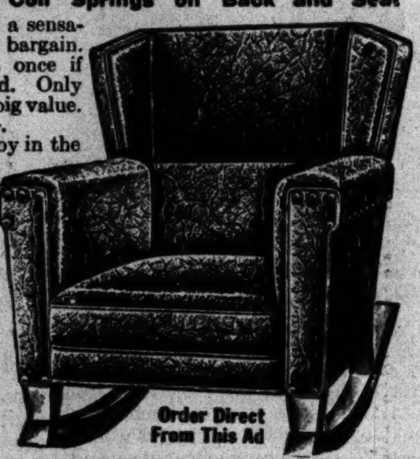
Colonial Solid Comfort

Big Fireside Rocker

50c Down

Black or Brown Imitation Spanish Leather

Steel Coil Springs on Back and Seat



Simply a sensational bargain. Act at once if you want it. Quantity is limited. Only those who order first can get this big value.

50c with order, 75c monthly.

Think of the comfort you will enjoy in the many evenings to come if you have one of these big, roomy fireside rockers. It is pretty hard to say just how much you would pay for a rocker of this quality. But, certainly, even if you paid $10.00, you could not possibly get better material, better construction, or more comfort.

Colonial Fireside Design. This rocker is built in unusual broad proportions, giving you ample room to spread, thus affording the fullest measure of back comfort. It is made in rich, plain Colonial fireside design, with very massive upholstered side wings, thickly padded sides, broad comfortable arms.

Steel Coil Spring Seat and Back. Never before has a rocker at this price been offered that contained steel coil springs in both seat and back. Ty Cobb, Super-man, World's Greatest Baseball Player, Tells How Nuxated Iron Gave Him New Life

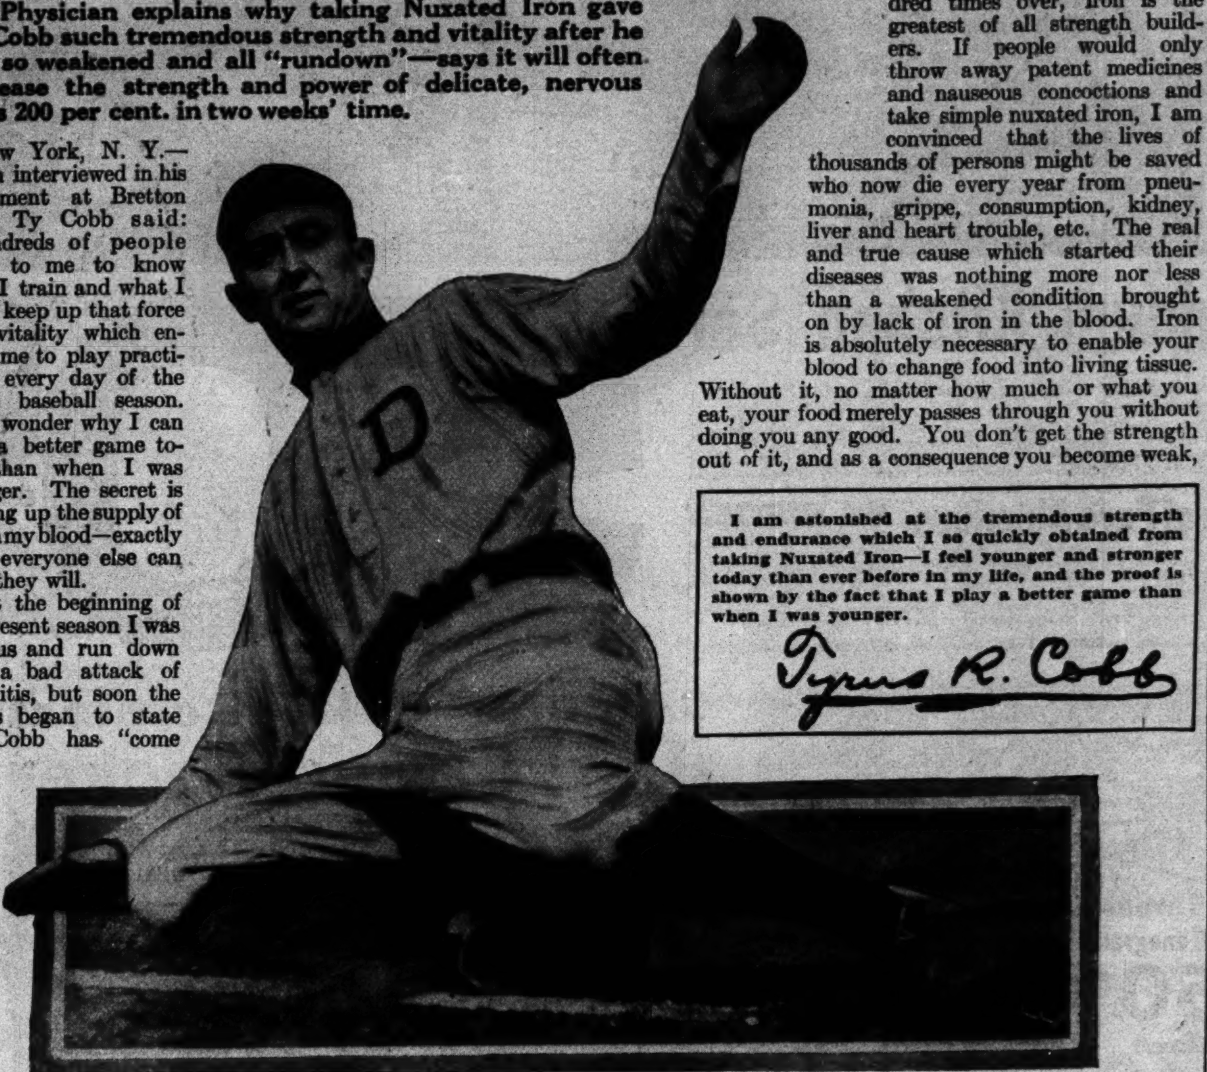
This great giant of strength and endurance says he now plays a better game than when he was younger.

Physician explains why taking Nuxated Iron gave Ty Cobb such tremendous strength and vitality after he was so weakened and all "rundown"—says it will often increase the strength and power of delicate, nervous folks 200 per cent. in two weeks' time.



New York, N. Y.—When interviewed in his apartment at Bretton Hall, Ty Cobb said: "Hundreds of people write to me to know how I train and what I do to keep up that force and vitality which enables me to play practically every day of the entire baseball season. They wonder why I can play a better game today than when I was younger. The secret is keeping up the supply of iron in my blood—exactly what everyone else can do if they will.

"At the beginning of the present season I was nervous and run down from a bad attack of tonsillitis, but soon the papers began to state 'Ty Cobb has "come back." He is hitting up the old stride.' The secret was iron—Nuxated Iron filled me with renewed life.

"Now they say I'm worth $50,000 a year to any baseball team, yet without plenty of iron in my blood I wouldn't be worth five cents. Nuxated Iron supplies that 'stay there' strength and vim that make men of mark and women of power." Continuing, Dr. Sauer said: "Mr. Cobb's case is only one of hundreds which I could cite from my own personal experience, which proves conclusively the astonishing power of nuxated iron to restore strength and vitality, even in most complicated chronic conditions."

Not long ago a man came to me who was nearly half a century old and asked me to give him a preliminary examination for life insurance. I was astonished to find him with the blood pressure of a boy of 20 and as full of vigor, vim and vitality as a young man; in fact, a young man he really was, notwithstanding his age. The secret he said was taking iron—nuxated iron had filled him with renewed life. At 30 he was in bad health; at 46 he was careworn and nearly all in. Now at 50 a miracle of vitality and his face beaming with the buoyancy of youth. As I have said a hundred times over, iron is the greatest of all strength builders. If people would only throw away patent medicines and nauseous concoctions and take simple nuxated iron, I am convinced that the lives of thousands of persons might be saved who now die every year from pneumonia, grippe, consumption, kidney, liver and heart trouble, etc. The real and true cause which started their diseases was nothing more nor less than a weakened condition brought on by lack of iron in the blood. Iron is absolutely necessary to enable your blood to change food into living tissue. Without it, no matter how much or what you eat, your food merely passes through you without doing you any good. You don't get the strength out of it, and as a consequence you become weak, pale and sickly looking, just like a plant trying to grow in a soil deficient in iron. If you are not strong or well you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of ordinary nuxated iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see for yourself how much you have gained. I have seen dozens of nervous, run-down people who were ailing all the while double their strength and endurance and entirely get rid of all symptoms of dyspepsia, liver and other troubles in from ten to fourteen days' time simply by taking iron in the proper form. And this after they had in some cases been doctoring for months without obtaining any benefit. But don't take the old forms of reduced iron simply to save a few cents. You must take iron in a form that can be easily absorbed and assimilated like nuxated iron if you want it to do you any good, otherwise it may prove worse than useless.

Many an athlete or prize fighter has won the day simply because he knew the secret of great strength and endurance and filled his blood with iron before he went into the affray while many another has gone to inglorious defeat simply for the lack of iron.—E. Sauer, M. D.

I am astonished at the tremendous strength and endurance which I so quickly obtained from taking Nuxated Iron—I feel younger and stronger today than ever before in my life, and the proof is shown by the fact that I play a better game than when I was younger.

Tyrus R. Cobb

A good batter must be in prime physical condition—he needs a cool head, a quick eye and tremendous strength to put the swing behind the bat.

Ty Cobb is undoubtedly the greatest baseball player in the history of the game. A short time ago he was weakened and all "rundown"—today he is a miracle of strength and endurance, due to filling his blood with plenty of iron. He says Nuxated Iron has given him new life and renewed energy and put the old-time vim and vigor of youth into his blood.

NOTE—Nuxated Iron, recommended above by Dr. Sauer, is not a patent medicine nor secret remedy, but one which is well-known to druggists and whose iron constituents are widely prescribed by eminent physicians everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach: on the contrary, it is a most potent remedy in nearly all forms of indigestion as well as for nervous, run-down conditions. The manufacturers have such great confidence in Nuxated Iron that they offer to forfeit $100.00 to any charitable institution if they cannot take any man or woman under 60 who lacks iron and increase their strength 200 per cent. or over in four weeks' time, provided they have no serious organic trouble. They also offer to refund your money if it does not at least double your strength and endurance in ten days' time. It is dispensed in this city by all good druggists.—Advertisement.

The Hard Times of Prosperity

will hang its own prosperity, if not now, when the after-war conflict of trade comes," a union worker acknowledged to me the other day—a machinist in a large eastern shop with whom I talked during the half-hour midday lunch. "The manufacturers, by going direct to the people with their high overhead troubles will stir up the government and get it on the backs of us both."

"How do you figure that?"

"Well," said he, philosophically, "when it costs business too much to do business and meet competition, there's only one way to save us from bankruptcy. The government will have to regulate both business and wages." Unconsciously, perhaps, this union man uttered a thought which is not new in the business mind.

"Business has had government by instinct, government by psychology and government by investigation," a large employer of labor recently said, "but the one thing which business has not had is wage regulation by government."

"Do you advocate this?"

He shook his head. "All business wants is equal opportunity with labor. This it does not have. It can be obtained only through sober, sane, public opinion and co-operation. The affairs of the industrial world are complicated. While relatively a few hundred corporations comprise the bulk of the employing forces of industry, the public forgets that its own vital connection with the weal or woe of life is bound up with the success or failure of these concerns. Labor also forgets this, interested only in drawing the highest wage on the easiest terms. If all classes of society could meet business face to face, seek the truth concerning the conditions of business and then discuss it in a common sense way, we would have less class feeling, more equitable business dealings, a more solid business structure and a more really patriotic Americanism."

There you are! Concretely, the business situation as affected by labor is:

(1) The country is short a million workers to ply our war-born and home trade;

(2) Wages are top-notch the country over and mounting;

(3) Labor unions are standardizing wages, and, by shortening the hours of toil, are restricting and curtailing production;

(4) Production costs, in consequence, together with consequent increased prices for materials, are narrowing the margins of profit in business more closely than in less active times;

(5) Labor, itself, is worse off at higher wages than on a lower scale;

(6) Business while more prosperous than ever before has no protection against hard times accompanying competition from abroad when it comes;

(7) The public pays more dearly for every kind of commodity than ever before.

JUDGE ISAAC FRANKLIN RUSSELL, Chief Justice of the Court of Special Sessions, of New York, has to make a personal supervision of penal institutions, among them insane asylums, as one of his official duties. He went to the White Plains asylum recently on a tour of inspection and found a strange guard at the entrance, an old friend of his having been discharged.

Judge Russell told the guard he wished to be admitted.

"Can't do it," was the answer.

"But I have business here," said the Judge. "I come from New York."

"We've got two hundred in here now who came from there," answered the other.

"I'm afraid you do not know who I am," ventured the Judge getting tired of the guard's belligerent attitude. "I am Chief Justice of the Court of Special Sessions——"

"Cut it, cut it," broke in the other. "We've got three men inside now who say they're Chief Justices."

Mary Waits by the Window

Outside, the heat still rose from the uptown street, all but deserted in the early evening. The sunset's aftermath lingered in the west. As Wallace turned in the direction of the subway a little breeze came up the street. A brooding thunder-storm flashed its signals overhead.

With the majority of the passengers, he left the train at Times Square, and, more to avoid the hurrying throng than anything else, he entered the Knickerbocker bar and ordered Scotch and soda. And there, stick on arm, stood Ned Greene, the only man in New York that Wallace Lemmert could really call his friend. He was gazing at Old King Cole as if he'd never seen the merry old soul before.

Ned Greene was a good-looking, idle young man, healthy, wealthy and wise, to whom Wallace had been given an introductory letter when he first came to New York. Subsequently, the two men had become excellent friends, probably because they were as unlike as it is possible for two men to be. He greeted Wallace as if they had parted ten minutes before.

"Who'd have thought to see the wondrously wedded Wallace wandering wistfully on the wild wet way," he said, shaking him by the hand. "It's unbelievable! It's so absurd it must be true. Wife gone to the country; poor dear hubby all alone in the great glittering city with one eye on the Grand Central awaiting her return, and the other——"

"Cut it," said Wallace, a trifle annoyed. "What are you doing in New York on a night like this?"

The other man shrugged his shoulders vaguely. "I was going to the Maraschino Roof to see 'The Waggish Widow,'" responded he. "As the heroes in the English novels say, it's a toppin' show. But if you don't want to go, I'll do anything you say."

Wallace smiled. "If you recommend 'The Waggish Widow' as being fit for a young married man to see, we'll get seats at once. I'll make for the newsstand now."

As they shouldered their way through the lobby of the hotel, Greene waxed almost lyrical in praise of one Miss Tottie Trelawney, whose real name was Magee, of the first row chorus, second from the left, in the pale pink bathing suit.

"She's somehow different," he explained. "Instead of straw colored hair and pale blue eyes, she has hair of a dark reddish brown and large frightened looking eyes that make you want to take her home to mother. And when you ask her out to supper, what d'you think she orders? A club sandwich and a small bottle of ale; simply that, and nothing more."

Wallace displayed an interest he did not feel. "That woman belongs in a museum," he said.

Side by side they swung along Broadway.

"She belongs in some good man's home," said Ned, with unusual seriousness. "She's got my goat, and no mistake."

Wallace laughed for the first time. "I'm afraid that ruminating quadruped of yours is an inconstant animal," said he. "I've known him to be in possession of many lovely ladies occupying various stations in society. Why don't you keep your goat at home awhile?"

Ned Greene slipped his arm through that of his friend.

"Wait till you meet the girl," was all he said.

V

THE Maraschino Roof isn't on the roof. There are a good sized stage, several rows of orchestra chairs and many tables spread oasislike in a desert anything but dry. On either side of the proscenium arch is painted the suggestion of the deck of an ocean liner. The effect is as nautical as a sailor in a comic opera.

To describe "The Waggish Widow" there is no need. The dialogue sounded as if the people on the stage were improvising as they went along. The music gave the impression of a drum solo, with orchestral accompaniment. Once in a while a perfect lady (one could tell it by the ball-gown she wore on the Atlantic City boardwalk in mid-afternoon) or an equally perfect gentleman (one could tell it by his purple evening clothes), came out and argued with the orchestra. It was a typical Broadway show.

Which brings us to our second heroine.

Wallace had to confess that Miss Tottie Trelawney, despite her name, was somewhat different. She was slight and dark, with large brown eyes which made you forget her face was plain. "Wistful" is the word that tells the most about her. And any woman who can be wistful in a pale pink bathing suit has an uncommon personality.

By eleven o'clock even Ned Greene was glad the thing was over. The heat still hung over the city, although when the street was regained it mirrored the myriad lights as a result of the promised storm, which had proved a fleeting one.

Ned had sent a note to Miss Trelawney, so, after calling a cab, the two adventurers waited within its shadowed depths. Having nothing to say, they sat smoking in silence.

VI.

OUR next scene shows the Cafe de la Paix.

It is filled with mirrors, manikins and mannerisms; diamonds, dollars and democracy, and an ever present cabaret. The women wear too few clothes and too many jewels, while many of the men speak of themselves as gentlemen. There is a noisy near-Hungarian orchestra L. C., and a tiny stage beyond.

Miss Trelawney was silent. She juggled a club sandwich with an engaging disregard for the rules of the game. Ned Greene chatted with his usual cheerfulness, while Wallace looked about with honest interest.

It was six minutes to midnight when Miss Trelawney turned to Wallace and said: "What are you doing here?" She nodded in the direction of Ned Greene, who had joined some acquaintances at a distant table. "You aren't one of his kind, you know."

Wallace asked just what she meant.

It seemed difficult for her to explain. "There're people born for a certain kind of life, just as there're pictures made for a certain kind of frame. And when your kind of man is put in the midst of this kind of life, the effect's all wrong, like a picture badly framed." She paused for a moment. "Then," she added, a shade less seriously, "your thoughts have been miles away all evening. To be quite frank, you don't know how to play this game at all."

"I'm sorry I've been so dull," Wallace lied.

Quite openly, like a child, she laid her hand on his forearm. Suddenly, this little brown hand gave him the clue for which he had been unconsciously seeking.

"If you'll tell me why you're here, I'll return the compliment," he told her. "Your picture, now I come to look at it, is as badly framed as mine."

She caught his eyes, and smiled.

"I guess that's a pretty fair exchange," said she. "But you'll find mine the same old worn-out story, one of those breezy Manhattan Nights' Entertainments to be found in the magazines. Only, those always end happily, and mine——"

For a moment she hesitated. A new expression came over her face, an expression as far removed from the Cafe de la Paix as Third avenue is from Fifth.

Then she began:

"I was married, and very happy in a little home of my own. Tom was a devoted husband, as husbands go; kind and thoughtful and fairly considerate. I loved him very much then, and I love him very much now. A woman's love doesn't change with the seasons like a woman's clothes. To tell the truth, I love my husband so very dearly, now that we're separated, nothing seems to matter in the least. He came home one night, cross and tired from his day's work, and——"

"Cross and tired," repeated Wallace.

She continued as if she had not noticed the interruption. "It was a night like this, sticky and torrid. We quarreled over something, I scarcely

Gained 32 Pounds
And Splendid Figure

Every woman can have an attractive figure, full round bust and shapely limbs. Dr. Whitney's secret has done it for thousands of others and will do it for you.

Mrs. B. W. Abbott, formerly, of Boston, now of 472 Eighth avenue, New York City, writes us: "I was very thin when I learned of your treatment four years ago. By following your course I gained 32 pounds and still keep the weight. I am the picture of health with rosy cheeks, just as when I was a girl."

The beauty of this treatment is that you can have a free liberal trial sent in a plain wrapper and test it yourself in the privacy of your own home. The trial treatment alone in many cases has added five pounds. You will realize that a new day has dawned for thin people and that no one need go through life humiliated by a thin, unattractive figure or colorless complexion.

"I was one of the most disheartened women that ever lived before taking Dr. Whitney's Nerve & Flesh Builder, being 5 feet, 6 inches tall and weighing only 108 pounds. Now I weigh nearly 160 pounds," writes Mrs. Newton, of Kansas. Mrs. Nicely, of West Virginia, says: "I gained 45 pounds, bust enlarged 6 inches. It did more than you said it would."

We will gladly send you the trial and book of indorsements from intelligent people everywhere. The trial will prove that you may have as attractive a figure as any one, filling out the hollow places, gain plump, perfect arms, neck and limbs and by special Treatment No. 8 increase the bust measurement from 4 to 8 inches.

If you will drop a line right away to C. L. Jones Co., 28H Friend Bldg., Elmira, N. Y., enclosing ten cents to help pay packing and postage, by return mail you will receive a full five days' treatment giving the proof that real color and better health and figure can be yours.

Please say whether you want No. 1 for increasing flesh all over the body for both men and women or No. 8 to develop the bust alone as only one can be sent.

remember what. You often forget the cause of a quarrel, don't you, although the quarrel itself may last forever?"

"Yes," said Wallace, slowly. "I understand."

"Anyway," the woman went on, ever so quietly, "off Tom went, swearing that the worm had turned at last, that he'd never return. And I sat up and waited for him, but when I fell asleep at dawn he had not come. I waited almost a month, expecting him every moment; but he didn't come back. As we were poor and lived from hand to mouth, I had to look for work. The girl who got me this job told me I might share her room. I took her at her word, so——"

"Why did you wait?" Wallace asked. He really wished to know.

"We women have a faith you men don't understand," said she. "I waited until I couldn't wait any longer. Then baby and I moved to my friend's rooms. Then—then my baby died, so there's nothing left me now. I like your friend, really I do, and I thought I'd let things happen as they might. When you're lonely you don't much care."

Wallace smiled.

Miss Trelawney made known her surprise.

"I've heard that story before," said he, "only I've heard it from the man's side. He went out, he says, and got gloriously drunk. When he recovered he found himself in a hospital with a fractured head, and the weeks had flown. Before he had the doctor's permission he left for home to find that his wife had gone. She left no address, or, at least, the people there remembered none. He searched as long as he had funds, which wasn't very long, and then applied for his old position, but it had been filled."

"And now?" breathed Miss Trelawney.

"And now," continued Wallace, "the man I'm speaking of, is janitor in the apartment house in which I live, and, if I'm not mistaken, he has an attractive, but lonely, little flat in the basement."

The woman clutched his arm.

"And his name?" she begged.

"His christian name is Tom, his surname is Magee, and his wife's name is Mollie, for he told me so himself."

The woman, who had risen to her feet, fell face forward on the table, upsetting several tumblers, a vase of flowers, and a bottle of Bumm's 96. Ned Greene came to see what the trouble was.

"Good heavens," he exclaimed, "she isn't drunk, is she?"

"I should say not," said Wallace, a half-smile on his face. "You mightn't have expected such a scene from Miss Tottie Trelawney, but when Mrs. Tom Magee finds her Long Lost Husband she's liable to take it rather hard. The Lost One is janitor in my apartment house, and she's going home with me. Call a taxi, please."

Ned Greene was too astonished for speech, so he did as he was told. A sip of wine restored Mrs. Tom Magee, and trustingly, she placed her hand on Wallace's arm. He put her in the cab; gave the driver the address.

"Good-night, Ned, old boy," said he, extending his hand. "It's been a pleasant evening. I've learned lots of things I never knew before. Mrs. Magee and I are going home; she, to a man by the name of Tom, I, to a woman by the name of——"

But Mary's name was lost beneath the noise of the moving car.

VII

SOON the pulsing lights of Lobster Square were far behind. The soft lights of the upper West Side flashed like fireflies past the windows.

Wallace told Mollie all about Mary and his silly quarrel, and Mollie said she was sure Mary was sitting by the window waiting for him.

"We women understand one another," she explained.

The breeze made by the motion of the cab blew her hair about her face, and, as she pushed it back beneath her hat, she seemed almost happy. And then Wallace held her hand, which she didn't object to, in the least, until the cab drew up before one of the apartment houses that stand in solid rows along the uptown streets.

Of course, you won't believe it, but standing outside the door was Mr. Tom Magee, gazing empty-eyed toward the shimmering river, trying his best to get a breath of air. By the time Wallace had overpaid the chauffeur, she was in Tom's arms, and he was murmuring—— But that's none of our business, after all.

Wallace went up-stairs two steps at a time. When he entered the little apartment, flushed and breathless from his climb, he found Mary waiting by the window, just as Mollie had predicted. She was looking down on the city where the blaze of Broadway cast its night-glow toward the blinking stars. A bit of sewing was in her lap.

She smiled up into his pleading eyes.

"Home at last, Wallace, dear," said she. Then, as he could not speak: "I've been waiting for you."

He knelt before her on the floor, his face hidden in her hands, the sewing crushed beneath it. "I'm sorry, Mary, dear," he breathed, "very sorry. After such a day as this, cooped up in a stifling office, a fellow——"

Mary raised his face; kissed the words from his lips.

"My dear," she smiled, "I understand."

He rose, and took the sewing in his hand.

"What's this you're making?" he asked.

For a moment her eyes shone like winter stars. The mysterious creature began to cry. "Baby clothes," said she.

In half a second she was folded in his strong, young arms.

"Why didn't you tell me before?"

Mannish he was, and unreasonable.

"I've only known for a few days," she said, "and today you wouldn't let me tell you, try as I might."

"Mary, darling."

"Wallace ——"

Came a ringing at the bell.

"Who can that be?" questioned Mary, arranging her hair, womanlike.

Wallace laughed boyishly.

"It's probably Mr. and Mrs. Tom Magee," he said. "I'll go and let them in."

The Best Fishing Time

THE best time to fish is from daylight to ten o'clock in the forenoon and from three or four o'clock in the afternoon to sunset and after until it becomes quite dark. Every moment of the morning is precious to the fishermen. Never waste any of that precious time digging bait or getting your tackle ready. Always have your fishing tackle and your fishing clothes and your lunch in readiness the night before.

Trout always head upstream and when scared their first impulse is to start upstream although later they may dart about. Do not try to fool a fish by making your bait travel upstream. He knows better than to believe anything can float against the current. Let your bait flow down the stream, and, if the trout has not heard you or seen your shadow or felt the vibration from heavy footfalls on the bank, he will think the bait is being naturally floated down with the current and so will chase and swallow it. Let your bait drift with the current. Do not drag down faster than the current travels.

Another mistake is to think that the best fishing is in the deep holes. Trout lurk there, it is true, but when they are hungry they do not stay in the still or sluggish deep water of the pool, but get out in the shallow rapids in order to catch whatever food may be drifting down with the current, such as worms that are washed up, or grasshoppers, bugs and flies that fall in.

Use common-sense about your bait. Fish worms are always good but there are times when other bait is better. Grasshoppers in season, moth millers and such insects when used without a sinker and allowed to float down on the surface of the water, especially in late summer, are always tempting to the fish.

An Indoor Substitute For a Bathing Beach

Keeps You Full of Pep and Hustle in Spite of Hard Work and Hot Weather

Try It on Approval to Prove It

ALL the vacation I'll be able to squeeze out this year is a little golf now and then, with perhaps an occasional afternoon at the ball game.

But I'm not kicking—not for two-thirds of a minute.

Others who aren't working half so hard as I am are complaining that they need a rest; and complaining of the heat.

Extra Profits for Merchants

The Kenney Needle Shower is fast educating the whole country to the idea of bathing in running water—every drop clean. Liberal Selling Coöperation. Write for proposition.

But I've got the bulge on hard work and hot weather—I've found a way to keep full of the old Pep and Hustle in spite of the wear and tear of staying on the job.

Invigorating Fun

I've got something that gives me—right in my own bath tub—the same cool-you-off, makes-you-feel-fine fun and invigoration that lures people to the seashore.

I've found a mighty good indoor substitute for a bathing beach—a Kenney Needle Shower on my bath tub.

The extra snap and invigoration it puts into either hot or cold water is the finest thing in the world for the man who can't spare the time for a rest—keeps the sweating, sweltering days and nights of August and September from slowing him up and getting the best of him.

And it's equally fine for those who can indulge in a vacation—including the women and children.

At our house we figure that a single week's use at any time—and especially during a hot spell—is alone worth the full price.

A Daily Energizer

A few minutes' invigorating fun in running water first thing every morning gives you a running start on the day—sends you down to work as full of energy and enthusiasm as a man who has just made a million dollars.

Then out of your clothes and into a cool-you-off shower after the heat of the day and you feel good as new—as fresh as the proverbial daisy.

And a quick, refreshing shower at bed time will help you get sound, restful sleep even on the hottest night.

The Modern Way to Get Clean—A Constant Rinsing Process

In this day and age, no bathroom seems complete without a shower—it's the modern and hygienic way to keep clean, both summer and winter.

When you fill a tub, you finish in the same water you start with—finish in dirty water, water filled with impurities washed out of the pores.

But when you take a shower, you stand up in running water—a constant rinsing process—every drop from the first to the last absolutely fresh and clean.

A Revolutionary Improvement—No Curtain—No Wet Hair

And here's good news for everyone who likes the modern comforts and conveniences.

The Kenney Needle Shower turns any bath tub into the equivalent of a special stall shower, at a fraction of the expense.

A permanent, last-for-years, all metal fixture that is easily and quickly attached—no tools needed, nothing but your fingers.

Does away with all need for a curtain—a patented exclusive feature makes all the water hug the body and run down into the tub instead of spattering off—all splash is eliminated.

Guaranteed not to splash out of the tub—and you can try it on approval to prove it.

Another big advantage—it sends all the water direct against the body instead of first drenching the head—doesn't wet your hair a particle unless you prefer to duck your head under.

Simplicity Cuts the Cost Down

In every way this new kind of shower is a revolutionary improvement.

Yet the cost complete—with four fine models to choose from—is only $6 to $25.

All due to simplicity—to eliminating the curtain and other parts heretofore necessary evils.

Ask Your Dealer

Any wide-awake dealer—any department store, any drug or hardware store, any plumber—either has this new kind of shower in stock or can get any model for you, and will let you try it on approval.

Or if your dealer hasn't stocked up, simply write to us—we'll send you any model by mail—lend it to you for a 10-day see-for-yourself test.

In either case, the trial won't cost you a single cent unless you are thoroughly satisfied, unless you want to keep the shower.

A Free Book You'll Enjoy

Keeping Well
by Keeping Clean

If you want to know all about the fun and benefits of bathing in running water, then send your name and address for the free book pictured here—"Keeping Well by Keeping Clean."

It will give you an entirely new viewpoint on bathing—it's chock full of sound common-sense about how to keep at your best, both summer and winter, simply by getting more invigoration out of soap and water.

It also tells all about all four models of the Kenney Needle Shower—why they don't splash out, how they never interfere with filling the tub, and how any model will be loaned to you for 10 days see-for-yourself enjoyment without any obligation to keep it.

It will take you only a minute to tear out the coupon and start it on its way—and I promise you one of the most interesting books you've ever had in your hand.
